Decisions of the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations Nos. 777-959

January 5, 1977

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNIT
OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION AND WELFARE,
SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION,
BUREAU OF FIELD OPERATIONS
A/SLMR No. 777

This case involves a petition for clarification of unit (CU) filed by the Social Security Administration, Bureau of Field Operations (Activity-Petitioner), seeking to clarify the status of a bargaining unit described as all nonprofessional employees of the Social Security Administration District Office, Birmingham, Alabama, and its branch offices located in Ensley, West End and Jasper, Alabama. Specifically, the Activity-Petitioner sought to clarify the unit description in accordance with the transfer of the Jasper Branch Office to the Tuscaloosa, Alabama, District and the frequent changes in branch office status and location. The matter was transferred to the Assistant Secretary for decision by the Regional Administrator pursuant to Section 206.5(a) of the Regulations.

Under all the circumstances, the Assistant Secretary concluded that a reorganization had altered the scope and character of the certified bargaining unit to the extent that the Jasper Branch Office employees no longer share a community of interest with employees in the subject certified bargaining unit. He noted that the reorganization resulted in significant changes affecting the employees of the Jasper Branch Office, including changes in overall supervision, administrative direction and control, altered areas of consideration for promotion and reduction in force procedures, and the organizational sphere within which such employees enjoyed integrated operations and experienced interchange and transfer. The Assistant Secretary further found that the continued inclusion of the Jasper Branch Office employees in the subject exclusively recognized unit could not reasonably be expected to promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. The Assistant Secretary also found that the employees assigned to the Five Points West Branch Office and the East Lake Branch Office share a community of interest with the employees in the certified bargaining unit, and that the inclusion of such employees in the bargaining unit would promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. In this regard, the Assistant Secretary noted the apparent agreement of the parties as well as the facts in the record supporting the finding that the employees in the two branch offices shared a community of interest with the other employees in the certified unit. However, as to the proposal by the Activity-Petitioner seeking to clarify the unit as to include employees assigned to all branch offices within its jurisdiction, the Assistant Secretary, noting that the effect of such clarification would be to automatically accrete to the unit employees of any branch office subsequently established in the District in the future, found that it would not effectuate the purposes and policies of the Order to clarify the unit in this regard.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the unit be clarified so as to exclude employees assigned to the Jasper Branch Office, and to include employees assigned to the Five Points West Branch Office and the East Lake Branch Office.

DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNIT

This matter is before the Assistant Secretary pursuant to Regional Administrator Lem R. Bridges' Order Transferring Case to the Assistant Secretary of Labor, dated June 29, 1976, in accordance with Section 206.5(a) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations.

Upon consideration of the entire record in this case, including the parties' stipulation of facts and accompanying exhibits, the Assistant Secretary finds:

The Petitioner filed a petition for clarification of a unit of employees described as "all employees of the Social Security Administration District Office, Birmingham, Alabama, and its Branch Offices located in Ensley, West End and Jasper, Alabama." 2/ Specifically, the Activity-Petitioner seeks to clarify the unit description in accordance with the transfer of the Jasper Branch Office to the Tuscaloosa, Alabama, District Office. In this regard, the Activity-Petitioner seeks to change the unit description to read: "All employees of the Social Security Administration, Birmingham District," with the normal exclusions. The Activity-Petitioner contends that the new unit description would remove the Jasper Branch from the bargaining unit, and accommodate the frequent changes in branch office status and location within the Birmingham District Office. The AFGE took no position with regard to the instant petition.

1/ The American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2206, AFL-CIO, was granted exclusive recognition for the subject unit of employees on July 9, 1971, and on May 28, 1975, the exclusive representative amended its Certification of Representative, changing the name of the certified exclusive representative to the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 3438, AFL-CIO (AFGE).

2/ The unit description appears as described in the Certification of Representative.

The record reveals that at the time of the original certification of the AFGE on July 9, 1971, and thereafter, the employees of the Birmingham District Office and its subordinate branch offices enjoyed a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from other employees of the Activity-Petitioner. In this regard, the evidence discloses that such employees enjoyed common overall supervision, frequent interchange and transfer, and were subject to common and uniform personnel policies and practices and, generally, similar terms and conditions of employment.

The record further reveals that at an undisclosed time prior to July 1973, the West End Branch Office was physically relocated and renamed the Five Points West Branch Office. Further, in July 1973, a new branch office was established known as the East Lake Branch Office. The evidence further discloses that sometime subsequent to July 1973, the parties, by agreement, and without recourse to the procedures established by the Assistant Secretary, accreted to the certified bargaining unit all eligible employees of both the Five Points West Branch Office and the East Lake Branch Office. Thereafter, the employees of both of these branch offices were treated by both parties as members of the subject certified exclusive bargaining unit and no question has been raised as to their status by the Activity-Petitioner.

Thereafter, on July 1, 1975, pursuant to a reorganization, the Jasper Branch Office was transferred from the Birmingham, Alabama, District Office to the Tuscaloosa, Alabama, District Office. Although the employees of the Jasper Branch Office remained in the same location and continued to perform essentially the same duties under the same immediate supervision, the evidence discloses that, as a consequence of the reorganization, significant changes occurred. Thus, the record reveals that subsequent to the reorganization the employees of the Jasper Branch Office became subject to the overall supervision of the Tuscaloosa, Alabama, District Office. Further, they are subject to the personnel policies and practices established by the Tuscaloosa, Alabama, District Office, such as promotions, transfers, hiring, within-grade increases, training, disciplinary actions, leave policy, grievance processing, performance appraisals and awards, as well as the area of consideration for promotions and reduction in force procedures established by the Tuscaloosa District Office. In addition, the Jasper Branch Office employees are subject to the Tuscaloosa, Alabama, District budgetary policies affecting travel and overtime, as well as operational policies affecting such matters as space and facilities, and numbers and types of positions maintained by the Jasper Branch Office. Further, the employees of the Jasper Branch Office no longer experience interchange and/or transfer with employees of the Birmingham, Alabama, District Office, but do, in fact, interchange and/or transfer with employees of the Tuscaloosa, Alabama, District Office.

Based on the foregoing circumstances, I conclude that the subject certified bargaining unit experienced an alteration of its scope and character as a consequence of the the July 1, 1975, reorganization to the extent that the employees of the Jasper Branch Office no longer continue to share a community of interest with the employees of the Birmingham, Alabama, District Office. 3/ Thus, as noted above, the reorganization resulted in significant changes affecting the employees of the Jasper Branch Office, including changes in overall supervision, administrative direction and control, altered areas of consideration for promotion and reduction in force procedures, and changed the organizational sphere within which such employees enjoyed integrated operations and experienced interchange and transfer. Moreover, under the circumstances outlined above, I find that the continued inclusion of the Jasper Branch Office employees in the subject exclusively recognized unit could not reasonably be expected to promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. Accordingly, I shall order that the subject exclusively recognized bargaining unit be clarified to exclude employees of the Jasper Branch Office.

Further, noting the apparent agreement of the parties and the circumstances set forth above, I find that employees assigned to the Five Points West Branch Office and the East Lake Branch Office share a community of interest with the employees in the certified bargaining unit exclusively represented by the AFGE, and that the inclusion of such employees in the certified unit will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. Accordingly, I shall order that the subject exclusively certified bargaining unit be clarified to include the employees assigned to the Five Points West Branch Office and the East Lake Branch Office.

With regard to the Activity-Petitioner's request to clarify the unit description so as to include all employees assigned to the Birmingham, Alabama, District, including employees assigned to all branch offices within its jurisdiction, I do not concur. Although the avowed purpose is to accommodate frequent changes in branch office status and location within the District, the effect of such clarification would be to automatically accrete to the certified bargaining unit employees of any branch office which may subsequently be established in the Birmingham District in the future. Since the establishment of such offices in the future, and the circumstances under which employees would be assigned to such offices, are purely speculative at this time, I find that it would not effectuate the purposes and policies of the Order to clarify the unit in this regard where, as here, the effect of such clarification would be to add to the certified unit employees of branch offices which have not, as yet, been established within the Birmingham, Alabama, District. 4/ In my view, the unit placement of new branch offices can best be assessed when they are established upon the filing of an appropriate petition. Accordingly, I shall not clarify the unit to include automatically all employees of all branch offices of the Social Security Administration, Birmingham District.

3/ See United States Coast Guard Air Station, Non-Appropriated Fund Activity, Cape Cod, Massachusetts, A/SLMR No. 561.

4/ Cf. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Social and Rehabilitation Service, Central Office, Washington, D.C., A/SLMR No. 632.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the unit sought to be clarified herein be, and it hereby is, clarified by excluding from said unit all employees assigned to the Jasper Branch Office, and by including in said unit all employees assigned to the Five Points West Branch Office and the East Lake Branch Office, and by changing the unit description to:

> All employees of the Social Security Administration, Birmingham, Alabama, District Office, including employees assigned to its branch offices located in Ensley, Five Points West and East Lake, excluding all management officials, professional employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in Executive Order 11491, as amended.

A/SLMR No. 778

The subject case involved a representation petition filed by the Navajo Nation Health Care Employees, Local Union No. 1376, Laborers International Union of North America, AFL-CIO (Laborers) seeking a unit consisting essentially of all General Schedule and Wage Grade professional and nonprofessional employees of the Activity, which unit is currently represented by the National Federation of Federal Employees, Local No. 189 (NFFE), and a petition filed by the Arizona Nurses Association (ANA) seeking a unit consisting essentially of all full-time and regular part-time registered nurses currently within the exclusively recognized unit represented by the NFFE. The Activity and the NFFE contend that the severance sought by the ANA would be inappropriate because it would disturb the established and effective existing bargaining relationship. The Laborers asserts that the existing unit represented exclusively by the NFFE should not be modified or changed.

The Assistant Secretary found no "unusual circumstances" justifying a severance of the registered nurses from the exclusively recognized unit and, in accordance with the policy enunciated in United States Naval Construction Battalion Center, A/SLMR No. 8, denied the requested severance and dismissed the ANA's petition. He further found that the employees in the unit petitioned for by the Laborers, which includes all of the employees of the Activity, share a clear and identifiable community of interest and that such unit will continue to promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. Accordingly, he directed an election in such unit. In this regard, he noted that Section 10(b)(4) of the Order, which precludes an election of a mixed unit of professional and nonprofessional employees without affording the professional employees an opportunity of separately expressing their desires, continues to be applicable notwithstanding the fact that the professional employees have already enjoyed the opportunity of such separate expression in a prior election. Consequently, he ordered that the professional employees have the opportunity in the election ordered of a separate expression under Section 10(b)(4) of the Order.

DECISION, ORDER AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION

Upon petitions duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a consolidated hearing was held before Hearing Officer Hugo S. Rossitter. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in the subject cases, including briefs filed by Arizona Nurses Association, hereinafter called ANA, and National Federation of Federal Employees, Local No. 189, hereinafter called NFFE, the Assistant Secretary finds:

1. The labor organizations involved claim to represent certain employees of the Activity.

2. In Case No. 72-6062, the Laborers seeks an election in a unit consisting essentially of all General Schedule and Wage Grade professional and nonprofessional employees of the Activity. This unit is currently represented on an exclusive basis by the NFFE which was certified as the exclusive representative on December 14, 1970. The record reveals that, although an agreement previously was negotiated by the NFFE and the Activity, approval of the agreement was denied by higher level agency management. No negotiated agreement was executed thereafter, and although the NFFE requested bargaining on or about April 28, 1976, negotiations were held in abeyance pending the outcome of the subject petitions.

In Case No. 72-6093, the ANA seeks an election in a unit consisting essentially of all full-time and regular part-time registered nurses employed by the Activity who currently are included within the exclusively recognized unit represented by the NFFE.

The Activity and the NFFE contend that severance of the petitioned for nurses from the NFFE's exclusively recognized unit would be inappropriate because such a severance would disturb the established and effective existing bargaining relationship. The Activity further asserts that should the Assistant Secretary find two separate units appropriate, one should cover all professional employees of the Activity, not merely the nurses. The Laborers takes the view that the petition filed by the ANA should be dismissed, and states that the existing unit represented by the NFFE is appropriate and there is no reason to modify or change it. The ANA, on the other hand, maintains that a separate unit of registered nurses constitutes an appropriate unit based on their unique, clear, and distinctly identifiable community of interest separate and apart from other professional employees of the Activity. It argues that the instant case is distinguishable from those situations in which "carve outs" have been denied. In those cases, it asserts, only one petition was filed seeking to represent a limited identifiable group within an overall existing unit, with no question concerning representation raised with respect to the particular existing unit involved. In the subject case, however, the ANA points out that the Laborers' petition raises a question concerning representation in the overall existing unit represented by the NFFE. Thus, in the ANA's view, even if there were no petition seeking a separate unit of registered nurses, the existing unit may be subject to change as a result of the Laborers' petition because if an election is ordered "the professional employees must be given the ballot option as to whether or not they wish to continue in a combined professional and nonprofessional unit." 3/ Also, it asserts that the record does not establish that the NFFE has effectively represented the existing unit. In addition, the ANA contends that the Public Health Nurses employed

3/ I agree that where an election is ordered in an existing mixed unit of professionals and nonprofessionals, the professional employees must be given the option to decide whether they wish to continue in a combined professional and nonprofessional employee unit. In this regard, I view Section 10(b)(4) of the Order, which precludes the inclusion of professional employees in a unit with employees who are not professionals without affording the professional employees an opportunity of separately expressing their desires respecting such inclusion, as applicable also to subsequent elections in which questions concerning representation have been raised in the mixed unit. Thus, in my view, the privilege accorded by Section 10(b)(4) to the professional employees is not necessarily limited to a single expression of their wishes and separate balloting for the professional employees involved herein should not be affected because they have already enjoyed the opportunity of such separate expression in the election held on November 20, 1970, which resulted in the certification of the NFFE on December 14, 1970, for a mixed unit of professional and nonprofessional employees.

by the Activity who are members of the Commissioned Officers Corps should be included in the unit. 4/

The Indian Health Service, which is part of Health Services and Mental Administration, United States Public Health Service, an organizational component of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is divided into eight service areas of which the Activity is one. The mission of the Activity, the Navajo Indian Health Service, is basically to provide the best of health care to all Indian people within its boundaries and jurisdiction. The Service Unit is an organizational entity of the Activity under the direction of the Service Unit Director who reports directly to the director of the Navajo Indian Health Service. It encompasses the Public Health Service Indian Hospital, including the in and out-patient clinics in Fort Defiance, Arizona, and the Indian Health Service Area Office, in Window Rock, Arizona. The Activity employs approximately 267 employees, of whom some 40 are registered nurses constituting a majority of its professional employees.

As noted above, the Laborers' petition covers the same unit currently represented by the NFFE. The evidence indicates that the employees in the claimed unit, which includes all of the employees of the Activity, share a clear and identifiable community of interest, and that such unit has and will, as asserted by the Activity, continue to promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. Accordingly, I find the unit petitioned for by the Laborers, for which the NFFE currently is the exclusive representative, is appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition. 5/

4/ These nurses currently are excluded from the existing unit represented by the NFFE. I shall continue to exclude the Public Health Nurses employed by the Activity who are members of the Commissioned Officers Corps from any unit found appropriate as they are not civilian employees within the meaning of Title 5 of the United States Code. See United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Regional Office VI, A/SLMR No. 266, and Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW), Health Services and Mental Administration (HSMHA), Maternal and Child Health Services, A/SLMR No. 192.

5/ At the hearing, the parties stipulated that the Public Health Nurse Consultant at the Window Rock Area Office, the Director of Nursing, the Assistant Director of Nursing, and the Director of Community Health Nursing Services at Fort Defiance Hospital should be excluded from the unit because they are either supervisors within the meaning of Section 2(c) of the Order, or management officials. As there was no record evidence to the contrary, I shall exclude these employees from the unit found appropriate.

Further, I find that dismissal of the ANA's petition is warranted. In this regard, the Assistant Secretary has held that absent "unusual circumstances," where the evidence shows that an established, effective, and fair collective bargaining relationship has existed, severance from an established more comprehensive unit will not be permitted. 6/ In the instant case, the record reveals that the NFFE and the Activity have conducted regular meetings which have resulted in the implementation of certain practices designed to benefit employees in the unit. Thus, the NFFE has been instrumental in effecting the establishment of training courses, and the parties have worked out, among others, local procedures with respect to dues check off and official time regarding the attendance of employees at regional conferences sponsored by the NFFE. Further, the evidence reflects that the NFFE has represented all unit employees, and there is no indication that the NFFE has failed or refused to represent any unit employees, including those in the ANA's proposed unit, regarding grievances or any other matters affecting their terms and conditions of employment. Based on the foregoing, I find that no "unusual circumstances" exist which would warrant the severance of the registered nurses from the existing unit, or from a unit of other professional employees. Accordingly, I shall dismiss the ANA's petition. 7/

The Activity contends that its head nurses are supervisors within the meaning of Section 2(c) of the Order and, therefore, should be excluded from the unit. The record indicates that head nurses have the administrative and clinical responsibility for providing continuity of nursing care on a 24-hour basis. Typically, the tour for the head nurses is the day tour. The head nurse is responsible for planning and making daily work assignments and schedules, and reviewing the work of the nursing personnel; has authority to grant leave subject to review by the Director of Nursing who usually concurs with the head nurse's decision; evaluates the performance of the staff nurses; and makes recommendations with respect to promotions or disciplinary action which are generally sustained. In addition, the record reveals several instances where recommendations for awards were initiated by head nurses and were generally approved. Under these circumstances, I find that head nurses are supervisors within the meaning of Section 2(c) of the Order inasmuch as they assign and review work, evaluate performance, and have made effective recommendations with respect to promotions and disciplinary actions, and awards. Accordingly, I shall exclude them from the unit found appropriate.

6/ See United States Naval Construction Battalion Center, A/SLMR No. 8.

7/ Cf. Veterans Administration Hospital, Portland, Oregon, A/SLMR No. 308, Veterans Administration Center, Mountain Home, Tennessee, A/SLMR No. 89, and Veterans Administration Center, Togus, Maine, A/SLMR No. 84. The fact that the Laborers' petition raises a question concerning representation in the overall existing unit represented by the NFFE was not considered to warrant a contrary result.

I find that the following employees of the Activity may constitute a unit appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under Executive Order 11491, as amended:

> All General Schedule and Wage Grade professional and nonprofessional employees of the Indian Health Service Area Office, Window Rock, Arizona, and Public Health Service Indian Hospital, Fort Defiance, Arizona, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, excluding all temporary, part-time, and intermittent employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

As stated above, the unit found appropriate includes professional employees, and, therefore, the desires of the professional employees as to inclusion in a unit with nonprofessional employees must be ascertained. I shall, therefore, direct separate elections in the following voting groups:

Voting Group (a): All General Schedule and Wage Grade professional employees of the Indian Health Service Area Office, Window Rock, Arizona, and Public Health Service Indian Hospital, Fort Defiance, Arizona, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, excluding all nonprofessional employees, temporary, part-time, and intermittent employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

Voting Group (b): All General Schedule and Wage Grade nonprofessional employees of the Indian Health Service Area Office, Window Rock, Arizona, and Public Health Service Indian Hospital, Fort Defiance, Arizona, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, excluding all professional employees, temporary, part-time, and intermittent employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

The employees in the nonprofessional voting group (b) will be polled whether they desire to be represented by the NFFE, the Laborers, or neither.

The employees in the professional voting group (a) will be asked two questions on their ballot: (1) whether or not they wish to be included with the nonprofessional employees for the purpose of exclusive recognition; and (2) whether they wish to be represented for the purpose of exclusive recognition by the NFFE, the Laborers, or neither. In the event that a majority of the valid votes of voting group (a) is cast in favor of inclusion in the same unit as nonprofessional employees, the ballots of voting group (a) shall be combined with those of voting group (b).

Unless a majority of the valid votes of voting group (a) is cast for inclusion in the same unit as nonprofessional employees, they will be taken to have indicated their desire to constitute a separate unit, and an appropriate certification will be issued by the appropriate Area Administrator indicating whether the NFFE, the Laborers or no labor organization was selected by the professional employee unit.

The unit determination in the subject case is based, in part, then, upon the results of the election among the professional employees. However, I will now make the following findings in regard to the appropriate unit:

1. If a majority of the professional employees votes for inclusion in the same unit as the nonprofessional employees, I find that the following employees will constitute a unit appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition within the meaning of Section 10 of the Order:

> All General Schedule and Wage Grade professional and nonprofessional employees of the Indian Health Service Area Office, Window Rock, Arizona, and Public Health Service Indian Hospital, Fort Defiance, Arizona, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, excluding all temporary, part-time, and intermittent employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

2. If a majority of the professional employees does not vote for inclusion in the same unit as the nonprofessional employees, I find that the following two groups of employees will constitute separate units appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition within the meaning of Section 10 of the Order:

> (a) All General Schedule and Wage Grade employees of the Indian Health Service Area Office, Window Rock, Arizona, and Public Health Service Indian Hospital, Fort Defiance, Arizona, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, excluding all professional employees, temporary, part-time, and intermittent employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

(b) All General Schedule and Wage Grade professional employees of the Indian Health Service Area Office, Window Rock, Arizona, and Public Health Service Indian Hospital, Fort Defiance, Arizona, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, excluding all nonprofessional employees, temporary, part-time, and intermittent employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the petition filed in Case No. 72-6093 be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

DIRECTION OF ELECTION

An election by secret ballot shall be conducted, as early as possible, but not later than 60 days from the date below. The appropriate Area Administrator shall supervise the election, subject to the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. Eligible to vote are those in the unit who were employed during the payroll period immediately preceding the date below, including employees who did not work during that period because they were out ill, or on vacation or on furlough, including those in the military service who appear in person at the polls. Ineligible to vote are employees who quit or were discharged for cause since the designated payroll period and who have not been rehired or reinstated before the election date. Those eligible shall vote whether they desire to be represented for the purpose of exclusive recognition by Navajo Nation Health Care Employees, Local Union No. 1376, Laborers International Union of North America, AFL-CIO, or by National Federation of Federal Employees, Local No. 189, or by neither.

A/SLMR No. 779

This case arose as a result of petitions filed by the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, which was joined at the hearing by the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, AFL-CIO, and the Metal Trades Department, AFL-CIO, as Joint-Petitioners, seeking separate elections in units composed of all nonprofessional employees of the Defense Property Disposal Service (DPDS) employed in its Defense Property Disposal Regions (DPDR's) located at Memphis, Tennessee, Columbus, Ohio, and Ogden, Utah. The National Federation of Federal Employees, (IND.), through various Locals, filed numerous petitions seeking separate units of all nonprofessional employees of certain designated Defense Property Disposal Offices (DPDO's) of the DPDS. The Activity contended that no unit smaller than a DPDR is appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order.

The Assistant Secretary found that separate units of all nonprofessional employees of the DPDR's were appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition. In this regard, he noted that the DPDS employees in each region enjoy common overall supervision, uniform personnel policies and practices, and essentially similar working conditions, and that there is a substantial degree of transfers of employees within each DPDR as well as work related contacts. He further noted that authority for personnel and labor relations matters existed at the Regional level. As a result, the Assistant Secretary found that the employees assigned to the DPDR's in Memphis, Tennessee, Columbus, Ohio, and Odgen, Utah, share a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from each other and from the other DPDS employees and that such region-wide units would promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. Accordingly, he ordered separate elections among the employees assigned to the DPDR Memphis, Tennessee, DPDR Columbus, Ohio, and DPDR Odgen, Utah.

The Assistant Secretary also found that separate units of nonprofessional employees of the DPDO's as petitioned for by NFFE, were not appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. In this regard, he noted that the DPDO's are organizational components of the DPDR's and are subject to the authority and responsibility of the Regional Commanders within their respective regions. He noted also that the job descriptions and duties of the employees in the claimed DPDO units are essentially similar to those of other employees in the DPDR's, and that all employees in the individual regions enjoy essentially similar working conditions and common personnel policies and practices established by the respective Regional Commanders and there are numerous instances of transfers among certain of the employees of the various DPDO's within the respective DPDR's. Under these circumstances, the Assistant Secretary found employees in the claimed DPDO units did not enjoy a clear and identifable community of interest separate and distinct from each other or from other employees in their respective regions. Moreover, noting that the Defense Property Disposal Officers have been delegated minimal authority with respect to personnel and labor relations matters, he found that the claimed units would artifically fragment the three DPDR's and could not reasonably be expected to promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the petitions filed by NFFE be dismissed and that separate elections be held in the three DPDR's.

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES ASSISTANCE COUNCIL, INC., LOCAL No. 2

Petitioner

2/ Numerous locals affiliated with the National Federation of Federal Employees, (Ind.), hereinafter called NFFE, filed additional representation petitions involving numerous Defense Property Disposal Offices, hereinafter called DPDO's, of the Defense Property Disposal Service, hereinafter called DPDS, in various locations throughout the Continental United States in Case Nos. 20-4268(RO); 20-4295(RO); 20-3950(RO); 22-5027(RO); 22-5029(RO); 22-5037(RO); 22-5049(RO); 22-5050(RO); 22-5054(RO); 22-5055(RO); 22-5071(RO); 31-7529(RO); 32-3273(RO); 35-2935(RO); 40-5148(RO); 40-5149(RO); 40-5150(RO); 40-5151(RO); 40-5152(RO); 40-5153(RO); 40-5154(RO); 40-5155(RO); 40-5157(RO); 40-5158(RO); 40-5159(RO); 41-3418(RO); 41-3419(RO); 41-3420(RO); 42-2338(RO); 42-2362(RO); 42-2363(RO); 42-2388(RO); 50-9727(RO); 50-11000(RO); 50-11019(RO); 53-7018(RO); 60-3445(RO); 60-3526(RO); 60-3530(RO); 61-2174(RO); 61-2210(RO); 61-2211(RO); 60-2212(RO); 61-2222(RO); 62-3829(RO); 63-4222(RO); 63-4534(RO); 63-4576(RO); 63-4583(RO); 70-4111(RO); 72-4281(RO); 72-4350(RO); 72-4463(RO); 72-4464(RO); 72-4465(RO); 72-4498(RO); 72-4511(RO); and 72-4512(RO).

DECISION, ORDER AND DIRECTION OF ELECTIONS

Upon petitions duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a consolidated hearing was held before Hearing Officer Richard C. Grant, Sr. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed. 3/

3/ Over the objection of the NFFE, the Hearing Officer granted the motion of the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, hereinafter called AFGE, to amend its petitions in Case Nos. 41-3407(RO), 53-7040(RO) and 61-2173(RO) to show as Joint Petitioners the AFGE, the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, AFL-CIO, hereinafter called IAM, and the Metal Trades Department, AFL-CIO, hereinafter called MTD. Thereafter, the NFFE renewed its objection in its post-hearing brief, arguing that it would be inappropriate to allow such motion without the knowledge or assent of the employees who signed the showing of interest for the various Joint Petitioners, as such employees had no opportunity to express their desire as to whether or not they wished to be represented by the Joint Petitioners. In this regard, the NFFE cited Veterans Administration Hosptial, Montrose, New York, A/SLMR No. 470. I find that the NFFE's contention and the case cited in support thereof to be inapposite in the instant situation. Thus, in the cited case, the Assistant Secretary found inappropriate an attempt by an exclusively recognized bargaining representative to change its affiliation from one national labor organization to another without first affording the employees involved an opportunity to express their desire in a secret ballot election. In the instant case, however, as discussed in detail below, the employees involved will have an opportunity to express their desire in a secret ballot election as to whether or not they wish to be represented exclusively by the Joint Petitioners. Under these circumstances, I affirm the ruling of the Hearing Officer.

As a consequence of the Hearing Officer's ruling on the AFGE's motion to amend its petitions, as noted above, and in order to protect its interest in these matters, on May 28, 1976, as well as by mailgram to the Hearing Officer on July 2, 1976, the NFFE requested intervention status in Case Nos. 53-7040(RO) and 61-2173(RO), as it previously had done in Case No. 41-3407(RO). At the hearing, as well as in its post-hearing brief, the Joint Petitioners argued that the NFFE's requests should be denied as untimely filed. Under the peculiar circumstances herein, and as I have been administratively advised that the NFFE has a sufficient showing of interest to support its requests to intervene in the more comprehensive, region-wide units sought by the Joint Petitioners by virtue of the showing of interest submitted in support of its petitions seeking units encompassed by the claimed region-wide units, I hereby grant the NFFE's request to intervene in Case Nos. 53-7040(RO) and 61-2173(RO).

Finally, during the course of the hearing, and partially as a consequence of the above actions, the various parties herein withdrew certain petitions and interventions. Thus, the AFGE withdrew its petition in Case No. 53-7038(RO); the IAM withdrew its petitions

Upon the entire record in these cases, including the briefs filed by the DPDS, the NFFE and the Joint Petitioners, the Assistant Secretary finds: 4/

1. The labor organizations involved claim to represent certain employees of the DPDS.

2. In Case No. 41-3407(RO), the Joint Petitioners seek an election in a unit of all Wage Grade and General Schedule employees of Region 2, Defense Property Disposal Region, Memphis, Tennessee, including the Regional Headquarters, excluding employees of the DPDO's located at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas, and the Marine Corps Air Station Cherry Point, North Carolina, professional employees, management officials, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, guards and supervisors as defined in the Order.

In Case No. 53-7040(RO), the Joint Petitioners seek an election in a unit of all Wage Grade and General Schedule employees of the Defense Supply Agency (DSA), DPDS, Defense Property Disposal Region, Columbus, Ohio, excluding all professional employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, guards and supervisors as defined in the Order.

In Case No. 61-2173(RO), the Joint Petitioners seek an election in a unit of all full-time, part-time and temporary employees expected to be employed over 90 days, serviced by the personnel office of the DPDS, Ogden, Utah, Region, excluding all DPDS employees located at Davis Monthan Air Force Base, Arizona, Mountain Home Air Force Base, Idaho, Minot Air Force Base, Minot, North Dakota, and Camp Pendleton MCB, California, who had already been petitioned for, management officials, professional employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, guards and supervisors as defined in the Order.

3/ in Case Nos. 50-11020(RO) and 53-5719(RO), as well as its intervention in all other cases herein; the MTD withdrew its interventions in all cases herein; and the NFFE withdrew its petitions in Case Nos. 41-3421(RO), 60-3528(RO), 60-3529(RO), 71-2681(RO), and 72-4513(RO).

4/ Although the National Association of Government Employees (Ind.), hereinafter called NAGE, intervened in Case No. 72-4512(RO), and was notified of the hearing in this matter, it did not appear at the hearing. I find that the NAGE's failure to appear at the hearing constitutes, in effect, a disclaimer of interest in representing the petitioned for employees. Under these circumstances, I hereby dismiss the NAGE's intervention in Case No. 72-4512(RO).

In Case No. 20-4267(RO), the NFFE seeks an election in a unit of all Wage Grade and General Schedule employees of the DPDO, DSA, Mechanicsburg, Pennsylvania, excluding all professional employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, guards and supervisors as defined in the Order. 5/

In Case No. 50-9683(RO), the Government Employees Assistance Council, Inc., Local No. 2, hereinafter called GEAC, seeks an election in a unit of all Wage Grade and General Schedule employees of the DPDO, Savanna Army Depot, Savanna, Illinois, with the standard exclusions. 6/

The Joint Petitioners contend that the three separate petitioned for region-wide units of the DPDS are appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order as such units embrace all employees who share a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from all other employees of the DPDS and will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. On the other hand, the NFFE contends that its claimed DPDO units are appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order in that employees in such units enjoy a separate and distinct community of interest and that such units will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. Contrary to the Joint-Petitioners, the NFFE contends that the claimed region-wide units are not appropriate, as employees in such units do not share a clear and identifiable community of interest. Nor, in the NFFE's view, would such units promote effective dealings in view of the vast geographic areas encompassed by the regions of the DPDS. In agreement with the Joint-Petitioners, the DPDS contends that the petitioned for region-wide units are appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order and that the units sought by the NFFE would not promote effective dealings or efficiency of agency operations in view of the absence of effective and substantial authority for labor relations matters at the organizational level of recognition sought by the NFFE.

The DPDS, an activity within the DSA, was established in 1973 to provide for the integrated management of personal property reutilization and disposal operations of the Department of Defense on a world-wide basis. In this regard, the DPDS operates as a clearinghouse to help achieve optimum reutilization of Department of Defense owned materiel and equipment. The Headquarters of the DPDS is located in Battle Creek, Michigan, and consists of approximately 100 employees. The DPDS is administered by a Commander and a Deputy Commander. Its Headquarters Staff is divided into the following 11 Offices and Directorates: Special Assistant for Public Affairs; Military Personnel Officer; Security Officer; Safety Officer; Office of Counsel; Office of Plans and Management; Office of Comptroller; Office of Civilian Personnel; Directorate of Property Accounting and Disposal Operations; Directorate of Reutilization; and Directorate of Sales. The Headquarters staff establishes and administers the operational policies governing the world-wide operations of the DPDS. In addition, the DPDS is organizationally composed of five Defense Property Disposal Regions, hereinafter called DPDR's, which are headquarterd at: Columbus, Ohio; Memphis, Tennessee; Ogden, Utah; Lindsey Air Force Station, Wiesbaden, Germany; and Ft. Kamehameha, Hawaii. The DPDR Memphis, Tennessee, consists of a headquarters, 61 DPDO's, and 5 Residences, employing approximately 1,480 employees; the DPDR Columbus, Ohio, consists of a headquarters, 56 DPDO's, and 5 Residencies, employing approximately 1,200 employees; and the DPDR Ogden, Utah, consists of a headquarters, 35 DPDO's and 4 Residencies, employing approximately 1,400 employees. Each of the 3 DPDR's within the Continental United States are located with a DSA "host" activity which provides personnnel services throughout that region. The DPDR's are headed by a Commander, who is a military officer, and a Deputy Commander, who is a civilian employee. The headquarters of each of the DPDR's within the Continental United States is organized essentially the same as the DPDS headquarters, but consists only of 8 to 10 offices and directorates which, under the direction of the Commander, are responsible for the execution of all missions and functions of the DPDS within that particular region. The DPDR's also are composed of a number of "Residencies" which are composed of groups of functional specialists who are assigned to the region, but who perform their functions on site throughout the region, as extensions of the DPDR, in such prescribed functional areas as sales, surveillance and reutilization. Each DPDR issues its own regulations with guidelines established by the DPDS headquarters. These regulations vary from region to region depending on the type of work performed within that region, as well as the regulations of the specific DSA "host" activity at which it is located. All personnel actions are reviewed, approved and processed at the regional level and all personnel records are kept at the regional headquarters. A personnel specialist at the DPDR is assigned to handle certain DPDO's, and his name and phone number are posted at those DPDO's as the point of contact for personnel advice and actions. The payroll function is located at the DPDR and paychecks are distributed to employees from the DPDR payroll office. While there is no collective bargaining history in the DPDS, the record discloses that only the Regional Commander has been delegated authority to handle labor relations matters and is the final authority regarding grievances arising within his region.

5/ In the numerous petitions filed by various NFFE locals involving DPDO's at various locations throughout the country, as noted above in footnote 2, the NFFE sought essentially the same type of unit as petitioned for in Case No. 20-4267(RO), limited to nonprofessional employees of the particular DPDO involved.

6/ Although the GEAC filed the petition in Case No. 50-9683(RO), it did not appear at the hearing in this matter. I find that the GEAC's failure to appear at the hearing constitutes, in effect, a disclaimer of interest in representing the petitioned for employees. Under these circumstances, I shall dismiss the GEAC's petition in Case No. 50-9683(RO).

All transfers, details and promotions must be approved by the Regional Commander. The record reveals that while there are minimal transfers between regions, there are numerous transfers occurring within each region, either from the Regional Office to a DPDO, from one DPDO to another, or from a DPDO to the Regional Office. Although, normally, there is little work contact between individual DPDO's within a DPDR, the record reveals that when there is a work backlog certain property may be moved physically from one DPDO to another along with the attendant responsibility. Further, in certain circumstances, when there is a substantial backlog, a "roving" DPDO may be established by the DPDR, by drawing employees from each of the DPDO's within the DPDR and temporarily moving them wherever the manpower is needed. In addition, the record shows substantial contact between the employees of the DPDO's and Residencies who, although they are assigned to the Regional Office, assist the DPDO's in their functional specialties.

The DPDO's are the operating arm of the DPDR and vary in size from 6 to 140 employees. They are headed by a Defense Property Disposal Officer. The DPDO's are responsible for receiving, classifying, segregating and reporting excess material for screening, collecting, preparing for sale, and, in some instances, selling. The larger DPDO's are organized into four components having separate branches for sales operations, reutilization, documentation and property management. Smaller DPDO's have one to three components. The larger DPDO's also may have a number of "holding activities," which are auxiliary property management facilities headed by a DPDS Property Disposal Agent, and are located at a site separate from, but organizationally assigned to, the DPDO. Although the Defense Property Disposal Officer at each of the DPDO's is delegated certain discretion in carrying out day-to-day functions, the evidence establishes that he is restricted by the guidelines established by the regulations issued by the DPDR. The Defense Property Disposal Officer has a key role in the negotiation of the agreement with the "host" activity where it is located, covering such matters as space, security, and heat, as well as other necessary services. However, although the Defense Property Disposal Officer may initiate numerous personnel actions, such as selection of new employees, merit promotions or incentive awards, these actions must be approved by the Regional Commander.

Based on all the above circumstances, I find that separate units of all nonprofessional employees of the DPDR's within the Continental United States, as petitioned for by the Joint Petitioners in Case Nos. 41-3407(RO), 53-7040(RO) and 61-2173(RO), are appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. Thus, the record reflects that the DPDS employees in each region enjoy common overall supervision, uniform personnel policies and practices, essentially similar working conditions, a substantial degree of transfer within their individual regions, and work related contacts within the geographical boundaries of each region. Under these circumstances, I find that the employees assigned to the DPDR Memphis, Tennessee, the DPDR, Columbus, Ohio, and the DPDR Ogden, Utah, share a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from each other and from other DPDS employees. Moreover, noting the authority for personnel and labor relations matters at the Regional level, I find that such units will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. 7/

7/ Cf. Federal Energy Administration, A/SLMR No. 611.

Accordingly, I shall order separate elections among the employees assigned to the DPDR Memphis, Tennessee, the DPDR Columbus, Ohio, and the DPDR Ogden, Utah.

Further, under all the circumstances herein, I find that separate units of nonprofessional employees of the various DPDO's, as petitioned for by the NFFE, are not appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. Thus, as noted above, the evidence establishes that the DPDO's are organizational components of the DPDS regions, are subject to the authority and responsibility of the Regional Commanders within their respective regions, the job descriptions and duties of the employees in the claimed DPDO units are essentially similar to those of other employees in the region, all employees in the individual regions enjoy essentially similar working conditions and common personnel policies and practices established by the respective Regional Commanders and there are numerious instances of transfers among certain of the employees of the various DPDO's within the respective DPDR's. Under these circumstances, I find that the employees in the claimed DPDO units do not enjoy a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from each other or from other employees in their respective regions. Moreover, noting that the Defense Property Disposal Officers have been delegated minimal authority with respect to personnel and labor relations matters, in my view, the claimed DPDO units would artifically fragment the three DPDR's and could not reasonably be expected to promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. 8/ Accordingly, I shall order that the petitions filed by NFFE be dismissed.

Accordingly, I find that the following employees constitute units appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition within the meaning of Section 10 of Executive Order 11491, as amended: 9/

> All employees assigned to the Defense Property Disposal Region, Memphis, Tennessee, excluding professional employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, guards, and supervisors as defined in the Order. 10/

9/ As the record is unclear as to the status and/or number of temporary and part time employees at the DPDR Memphis, Tennessee, DPDR Columbus, Ohio, and the DPDR Ogden, Utah, I make no findings with respect to the eligibility of such employees.

10/ In Case No. 41-3407(RO), the Joint Petitioners excluded all DPDS employees located at Eglin Air Force Base, Florida, Sheppard Air Force Base, Texas, and the Marine Corps Air Station, Cherry Point,

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION
OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY,
OFFICE OF REGIONAL COUNSEL, WESTERN REGION
A/SLMR No. 780

This case arose as a result of a petition filed by the National Treasury Employees Union seeking an election in a unit of all professional employees employed by the Department of the Treasury, Office of the Regional Counsel, Western Region (Activity). The Activity contended that such a unit was not appropriate as the employees involved did not share a clear and identifiable community of interest; the proposed unit would not promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations; and the unit was based solely on the extent of organization. In addition, the Activity asserted that the only appropriate unit would be a nationwide unit of professional employees within the Office of the Chief Counsel.

The Assistant Secretary found that the unit sought was appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition. In this regard, he concluded that the petitioned for employees share a clear and identifiable community of interest and that a unit of such employees would promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. He noted that the claimed employees are under the general direction of the Regional Counsel and share a common mission, common working conditions, uniform personnel policies and practices and possess the same basic qualifications and skills. Moreover, the Regional Counsel retains significant discretion in personnel and labor relations matters, including the authority to negotiate agreements with labor organizations representing employees under his supervision.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered an election in the unit found appropriate.

Petitioner

DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer Jean Perata. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in this case, including the briefs filed by the parties, the Assistant Secretary finds:

1. The labor organization involved claims to represent certain employees of the Activity.

2. The National Treasury Employees Union, hereinafter called NTEU, seeks an election in a unit of all professional employees of the U.S. Department of the Treasury, Office of the Regional Counsel, Western Region, excluding all nonprofessional employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, guards, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

The Activity contends that the proposed unit is inappropriate inasmuch as the employees involved do not share a clear and identifiable community of interest; the proposed unit would not promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations; and the unit sought is based solely on the extent of organization. The Activity further contends that the only appropriate unit would be a nationwide unit of professional employees within the Office of the Chief Counsel.

The Office of the Regional Counsel, Western Region, is one of seven regional offices which, along with the national office, comprises the Office of the Chief Counsel. The Office of the Chief Counsel, a division within the Department of the Treasury's Office of the General Counsel, serves as the principal legal advisor to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) although it is not an organizational component of the IRS. The seven Offices of the Regional Counsel, each headed by a Regional Counsel, are coextensive with IRS regional offices and serve as the principal legal advisors to the corresponding IRS regional offices.

Previously, the Assistant Secretary found in United States Department of the Treasury, Office of the Regional Counsel, Western Region, A/SLMR No. 161, that a unit of professional and nonprofessional employees of the Office of the Regional Counsel, Western Region, was appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition. 1/ Separate units of professional and nonprofessional employees subsequently were certified on July 11, 1972. However, no agreements were negotiated in either unit 2/ and the professional employee unit, which is the subject of the instant petition, was decertified on November 2, 1973. 3/

The Office of the Chief Counsel at the national level is headed by the Chief Counsel. Serving under the Chief Counsel are a Deputy Chief Counsel and two Associate Chief Counsels. The Associate Chief Counsel, Tax Litigation, supervises the following four Divisions, each of which is headed by a Director: Tax Court Litigation; Interpretative; Refund Litigation; and Legislation and Regulations. The Associate Chief Counsel, General, supervises the following five Divisions, each of which is headed by a Director: General Litigation; Criminal Tax; General Legal Services; Disclosure; and Administrative Services.

The Office of the Regional Counsel, Western Region, is headquartered in San Francisco. There are five branch offices within the region located in Los Angeles, Phoenix, Seattle, Portland and Salt Lake City. 4/ Approximately 79 professional employees are employed throughout the Western Region, which includes primarily attorneys and a number of technical advisors. 5/ The Tax Court Litigation, General Litigation and Criminal Tax functions are performed in the branch offices as well as the regional office headquarters while the General Legal Services function is performed only in the San Francisco office.

1/ On appeal to the Federal Labor Relations Council, the Council upheld the Assistant Secretary's unit determination noting, among other things, that the Assistant Secretary had properly considered the criteria set forth in Section 10(b) of the Order. See U.S. Department of the Treasury, Office of Regional Counsel, Western Region, 1 FLRC 259, 260 [FLRC No. 72A-32].

2/ The record indicates that there is currently a dues withholding agreement covering the nonprofessional unit.

3/ There is no other collective bargaining history within the Office of the Chief Counsel.

4/ The Western Region covers a ten state area, including California, Arizona, Utah, Nevada, Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Montana, Alaska, and Hawaii.

5/ Technical advisors assist attorneys in the Criminal Tax function.

The Tax Court Litigation function at the regional level handles tax court cases assigned to it from the Tax Court Litigation Division at the national level. The General Litigation function is concerned with the assessment and collection of taxes. It also handles matters pertaining to the collection and protection of tax claims and liens of the United States in certain proceedings under the Bankruptcy Act. The Criminal Tax function handles cases involving alleged criminal violations of Internal Revenue laws which are referred by the IRS' Assistant Regional Commissioner (Intelligence). The General Legal Services function provides legal advice to the IRS in such matters as personnel, fiscal and facilities management, labor relations and equal employment opportunity. In this regard, it provides representation in formal hearings involving adverse actions, unfair labor practice and discrimination complaints, representation proceedings, arbitration of the terms of a negotiated agreement and various other employee appeals. It also acts as legal advisor in negotiations and in the administration of negotiated agreements and provides representation in suits against regional officers and employees. The Tax Court Litigation Division, the General Litigation Division, the Criminal Tax Division and the General Legal Services Division at the national level maintain advisory, procedural and technical contact with the Regional Counsels, including the preparation, approval and issuance of procedural and technical memoranda to Regional Counsels in the respective subject areas.

General responsibility for the administration of the Office of the Regional Counsel, Western Region, rests with the Regional Counsel who has the general authority to plan, direct and coordinate the legal work of the region and is responsible for regional administration and management. The Regional Counsel assigns work to personnel throughout the region and often assigns cases across the various functions. Staffing recommendations are made by the Regional Counsel to the Director of Administrative Services Division. The Regional Counsel prepares and submits the regional office budget to the Administrative Services Division which plans and controls the fiscal and budgetary operations within the Office of the Chief Counsel.

The record indicates that while all professional employees throughout the Office of the Chief Counsel possess the same basic qualifications, share the same skills, and utilize the same technical knowledge, the Regional Counsel and his staff are responsible for recruiting and interviewing prospective employees. Personnel policies are equally applicable to all professional employees throughout the regions although the Regional Counsel must make the initial recommendation for noncompetitive promotions up to the GS-14 level. Promotion to the GS-15 nonsupervisory level is competitive with the area of consideration being nationwide. Requests for transfers and reassignments are channeled through the Regional Counsel to the Administrative Services Division. While training is administered on a national basis, the Regional Counsel can authorize training on localized problems. The regional office maintains personnel files for professional employees although the official personnel file is kept at the national office.

The Regional Counsel has the authority to adjust grievances in such matters as work assignments and questions involving the use of leave, and makes recommendations as to discipline which are submitted to the Director of Administrative Services Division who then accepts, modifies or rejects the Regional Counsel's recommendation. 6/ The Regional Counsel can also request that an attorney who is not performing satisfactorily during the trial period tender his or her resignation. The record further discloses that the Regional Counsel has the authority to negotiate basic labor agreements and local supplemental agreements which are subject to the terms of a controlling master agreement.

Based on all of the foregoing circumstances, I find that a regionwide unit of professional employees within the Office of the Regional Counsel, Western Region, is appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition. Thus, the record shows that all professional employees are under the general direction of the Regional Counsel and that they all share a common mission, common working conditions, uniform personnel policies and possess the same basic qualifications and skills. The Regional Counsel retains the authority to assign cases and cross-assign cases to employees on his staff and has significant discretion in personnel and labor relations matters, including the authority to adjust grievances with respect to work assignments and the use of leave, as well as the authority to make effective recommendations on disclipinary matters. Under these circumstances, I find that the petitioned for employees share a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from other professional employees within the Office of the Chief Counsel. Further, noting the Regional Counsel's significant discretion in personnel and labor relations matters and his authority to negotiate agreements with labor organizations representing employees under his supervision, I find that such a unit will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. 7/

Accordingly, I find that the following employees constitute a unit appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under Executive Order 11491, as amended:

> All professional employees of the United States Department of the Treasury, Office of the Regional Counsel, Western Region, excluding nonprofessional employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, guards, and supervisors as defined in the Order. 8/

6/ The record reveals that in only one instance was the recommendation of the Regional Counsel modified.

7/ In reaching the disposition herein, it was noted also that the factual situation herein has remained substantially unchanged from that which existed when a professional unit was previously found appropriate in U.S. Department of the Treasury, Office of Regional Counsel, Western Region, cited above.

8/ The parties stipulated that the three attorneys assigned to the General Legal Services function in the regional office perform Federal personnel work and, as such, should be excluded from the unit found appropriate. In the absence of any evidence contrary to the parties' stipulation, I find that such employees should be excluded from the unit found appropriate.

DIRECTION OF ELECTION

An election by secret ballot shall be conducted among employees in the unit found appropriate as early as possible, but not later than 60 days from the date below. The appropriate Area Administrator shall supervise the election subject to the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. Eligible to vote are those in the unit who were employed during the payroll period immediately preceding the date below, including employees who did not work during that period because they were out ill, or on vacation or on furlough, including those in the military service who appear in person at the polls. Ineligible to vote are employees who quit, or were discharged for cause, since the designated payroll period and who have not been rehired or reinstated before the election date. Those eligible shall vote whether or not they wish to be represented by the National Treasury Employees Union.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
NAVAL AIR REWORK FACILITY,
ALAMEDA, CALIFORNIA
A/SLMR No. 781

This case arose as a result of an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, AFL-CIO, Local 739, Oakland, California, alleging, in substance, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order based on its actions in refusing and/or denying an employee's request for union representation at a meeting concerning a possible violation of the Agency's rules and regulations. Subsequent to the meetings in question, the employee involved was given a letter of reprimand.

The Administrative Law Judge recommended dismissal of the complaint on the basis that the meetings involved did not constitute "formal discussions" within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order and that it followed that the denial of representation at such meetings did not violate Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

The Assistant Secretary deferred his decision in the subject case pending the Federal Labor Relations Council's Statement On Major Policy Issue concerning the representational rights of employees under the Order. The Council's statement was issued on December 2, 1976.

Noting particularly the absence of any exceptions, the Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations and, consistent with the major policy statement by the Council, ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

On February 24, 1975, Administrative Law Judge Burton S. Sternburg issued his Report and Recommendations in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had not engaged in the unfair labor practices alleged in the complaint and recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. No exceptions were filed to the Administrative Law Judge's Report and Recommendations.

Thereafter, on June 23, 1975, the Assistant Secretary informed the Complainant and the Respondent that it would effectuate the purposes and policies of the Order to defer his decision in the subject case pending the Federal Labor Relations Council's resolution of a major policy issue which has general application to the Federal Labor-Management Relations program:

> Does an employee in a unit of exclusive recognition have a protected right under the Order to assistance (possibly including personal representation) by the exclusive representative when he is summoned to a meeting or interview with agency management, and, if so, under what circumstances may such a right be exercised?

On December 2, 1976, the Council issued its Statement On Major Policy Issue, FLRC No. 75P-2, Report No. 116, finding, in pertinent part, that:

> 1. An employee in a unit of exclusive recognition has a protected right under the last sentence of Section 10(e) of the Order to the assistance or representation by the exclusive representative, upon the request of the employee, when he is summoned to a formal discussion with management concerning grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions of employees in the unit; and
> 2. An employee in a unit of exclusive recognition does not have a protected right under the Order to assistance or representation at a nonformal investigation meeting or interview to which he is summoned by management; but such right may be established through negotiations conducted by the exclusive representative and the agency in accordance with Section 11(a) of the Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Report and Recommendations and the entire record in the subject case, and noting particularly that no exceptions were filed, I hereby adopt the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge.

The complaint alleged essentially that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by refusing and/or denying an employee's request for union representation at a meeting concerning a possible violation of the Agency's rules and regulations.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded, and I concur, that the discussions on April 24 and 25, 1974, were confined solely to the employee's alleged failure to follow a rule or regulation with respect to the time for taking luncheon breaks and did not constitute "formal discussions" within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order. Accordingly, and for the reasons set forth by the Council in FLRC No. 75P-2, I agree that the denial of representation at the nonformal meetings herein did not constitute a violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the complaint in Case No. 70-4340 be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to an amended complaint first filed on July 16, 1974, under Executive Order 11491, as amended, by the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, AFL-CIO, (hereinafter called the Union or Complainant) against the Naval Air Rework Facility, Alameda, California, (hereinafter called the Agency or Respondent), a Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued by the Assistant Regional Director for the San Francisco, California, Region on October 4, 1974.

The complaint alleges, in substance, that the Agency violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Executive Order by virtue of its actions in refusing and/or denying employee David L. Salberg's request for union representation at a meeting concerning a possible violation of the Agency's rules and regulations.

A hearing was held in the captioned matter on November 22, 1974, in San Francisco, California. All parties were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses, and to introduce evidence bearing on the issues involved herein.

Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions and recommendations:

1. On April 17, 1974, employee David L. Salberg and two other fellow employees left their respective work stations at approximately 11:00 a.m. and took an early lunch break.

2. Upon Salberg's return from lunch on the afternoon of April 17, 1974, he was approached by his immediate foreman George H. Miller and informed that there would be a meeting in the general foreman's office.

3. Later during the afternoon of April 17, 1974, Salberg, along with the two other employees who had accompanied him to lunch earlier, attended a meeting in the general foreman's office with Larry Williams, general foreman; Ralph Dolan, electrican foreman; John Perry, electrical general foreman; Bill Bryant, electrical foreman; and George Miller, mechanical foreman. During the course of the meeting electrical general foreman Perry informed Salberg and his luncheon companions that they had been wrong in going to lunch 25 minutes early and proceeded to give them a lecture on the applicable rules and regulations in effect at the installation. Thereafter, when neither Salberg nor his luncheon companions failed to deny or confirm the accusations made by Perry, general foreman Williams told Salberg's immediate supervisor, George Miller, to write up Salberg.1/

4. On April 24, 1974, foreman George Miller approached Salberg and attempted to discuss the April 17th events with him, particularly the reason underlying his action in leaving for lunch earlier than his scheduled lunch break. Salberg refused to discuss the matter without a representative from the Union, which was the exclusive representative of the machinists unit at the installation. Miller informed Salberg that he was not entitled to representation and the discussion or attempted discussion then ended.

5. On April 25, 1974, foreman Miller again approached Salberg and requested him to sign a "Supervisor/Employee Discussion Report" which summarized the events of April 17 and 24, 1974, described above. Salberg refused to sign the report in the absence of union representation. Thereupon, Miller, in accordance with usual practice, summoned foreman Dolan to witness the fact that Salberg refused to sign the report. According to the credited testimony of Miller, the employee's signature on the report does not constitute an admission of the facts summarized in such report, but merely amounts to an acknowledgment that the report has been shown to the employee involved.

6. Subsequently, on May 20, 1974, Salberg was given a letter of reprimand for "leaving your work station without permission approximately 25 minutes before your lunch break, on 17 April 1974".

1/ According to the credited testimony in the record, a "write up" means summarizing the events on paper, making a report or record.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

Section 10 (e) of Executive Order 11491 provides that an exclusive bargaining representative "shall be given the opportunity to be represented at formal discussions between management and employees or employee representatives concerning grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions of employees in the unit". The denial of such right and/or opportunity is violative of Sections 19 (a) (1) and (6) of the Order. U. S. Department of the Army, Transportation Motor Pool, Fort Wainwright, Alaska, A/SLMR No. 278.

In the instant case the discussions on April 24 and 25, 1974, wherein employee Salberg requested the presence of, or representation by, a union representative, were confined solely to Salberg's alleged failure to follow a rule or regulation with respect to the time for taking luncheon breaks. Accordingly, in the absence of any evidence, whatsoever, that the meetings or discussions on the above cited dates were related to the processing of a grievance or involved general working conditions or work performance, such meetings did not constitute "formal discussions" within the meaning of Section 10 (e) of the Order. Department of Defense National Guard Bureau, Texas Air National Guard, A/SLMR 336. In these circumstances and since I find the facts of the instant case to be indistinguishable from those set forth in Department of Defense, National Guard Bureau, Texas National Guard, supra, it follows that the denial of representation at the two meetings here involved did not constitute a violation of Sections 19 (a) (1) and (6) of the Order.

RECOMMENDATION

Having found that Respondent has not engaged in certain conduct prohibited by Sections 19 (a) (1) and (6) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, I recommend that the complaint herein be dismissed in its entirety.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNITS
OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
SPECIAL SERVICES DEPARTMENT,
NAVAL STATION, NORFOLK, VIRGINIA

This case involved three petitions for clarifications of unit (CU) filed by Local 23, Hotel, Restaurant and Cafeteria Employees Union, AFL-CIO, (Petitioner) seeking to clarify certain existing exclusively recognized units, located at the Norfolk Naval Base, to reflect changes in the units which resulted from various consolidations and/or reorganizations. Specifically, the Petitioner sought to include in its Naval Station (NAVSTA) unit those Special Services employees previously located on the Naval Air Station (NAS) and to exclude from the NAVSTA unit those employees of the clubs, messes, and package liquor stores who had been administratively transferred to the NAS and to include them in the NAS. In addition, the Petitioner sought to clarify the existing units of the Navy Exchange, NAS, and the Navy Exchange, NAVSTA which were consolidated and redesignated Navy Exchange, Naval Base, by excluding the Enlisted Men's Clubs, (Tradewinds and Aerodrome) from these respective units, and by including them in the NAS unit to which they had been administratively transferred. The parties agreed essentially on the proposed clarifications.

The Assistant Secretary found that, subsequent to a reorganization, the Special Services employees previously located on the NAS shared a clear and identifiable community of interest with NAVSTA unit employees separate and distinct from employees of the Navy Exchange, Naval Base, and NAS units. He noted that they all shared a common mission and supervision, personnel policies and practices, and essentially, similar job skills and working conditions. Further, there was a common area of consideration for promotion and reduction-in-force procedures. The Assistant Secretary also determined that such unit will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations.

In regard to the petitioned for clarification of the NAS unit, the Assistant Secretary noted that the employees of the clubs, messes and package liquor stores shared common supervision, the same personnel policies and practices, and similar job skills and working conditions, and, in effect, shared a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and apart from the employees of the Navy Exchange, Naval Base, and Special Services. Moreover, he noted that the clarified unit will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations.

With respect to the Navy Exchange units, the Assistant Secretary found that, subsequent to a consolidation, the Navy Exchange, NAS, unit was no longer in existence, and that its remaining component, the Food Service Operation, was incorporated into the existing Navy Exchange, NAVSTA unit, which was now redesignated as the Navy Exchange, Naval Base. The Assistant Secretary noted that the employees of the Navy Exchange, Naval Base, shared a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and apart from employees of other units. Moreover, the employees shared common supervision and work sites, a common personnel office with personnel policies which apply to Exchange personnel only, and a common area of consideration for promotions and reductions-in-force. In addition, he noted that effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations had been experienced in the unit as evidenced by the negotiated agreements executed by the Petitioner and the Navy Exchange, Naval Base.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the subject units be clarified to reflect the changes resulting from the consolidation and/or reorganizations which had occurred.

DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNITS

Upon petitions duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a consolidated hearing was held before Hearing Officer Bridget Sisson. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in these cases, including a brief filed in behalf of the Activities, the Assistant Secretary finds:

The Hotel, Restaurant and Cafeteria Employees Union, AFL-CIO, Local 23, herein called Petitioner, is the exclusive representative of certain nonappropriated fund employees in each of the above-named Activities. In this proceeding, involving petitions for clarification of unit (CU), the Petitioner seeks to clarify the status of certain existing exclusively recognized bargaining units to reflect changes in such units which have resulted from various reorganizations and/or consolidations. The Activities agree essentially with the proposed clarifications.

In Case No. 22-6687(CU), the Petitioner seeks to clarify the status of certain employees with respect to its exclusively recognized unit at the Naval Station, Norfolk, Virginia, hereinafter called NAVSTA. In this connection, the Petitioner seeks to include in the NAVSTA unit certain Special Services employees under the command of the Commanding Officer, Naval Station. The record reveals that on April 24, 1967, the Petitioner, pursuant to Executive Order 10988, was granted exclusive recognition for a unit of nonappropriated fund employees of the NAVSTA, comprising "all eligible employees in the Special Services Department and the Commissioned Officer's Mess (Open)." 1/

In Case No. 22-6688(CU), the Petitioner seeks to clarify the effect of a consolidation and reorganization on the status of certain employees in certain exclusively recognized units. In this connection, on June 23, 1967, the Petitioner was granted exclusive recognition for a unit of "all eligible employees of the Navy Exchange, Naval Station, of the Food Services Department (including all those working the Food Service Warehouse and all Navy Exchange Cafeterias), the Tradewinds and Breakers Enlisted Clubs, and all the several warehouses of the Naval Exchange", and on June 29, 1967, it was granted exclusive recognition at the Navy Exchange, Naval Air Station for a unit consisting of all eligible employees of the Laundry, Food Service Operation and the Enlisted Men's Club (Aerodrome). The Petitioner seeks to clarify the recognition to reflect the incorporation of the employees in the Navy Exchange, Naval Air Station unit into the Navy Exchange, Naval Station unit and the subsequent redesignation of the latter as the Navy Exchange, Naval Base.

In Case No. 22-6689(CU), the Petitioner seeks to clarify the status of an existing exclusively recognized unit of the Naval Air Station, hereinafter called NAS. On April 24, 1967, the Petitioner was granted exclusive recognition for a unit of nonappropriated fund employees in the Non-Commissioned Officers Clubs and messes of the Naval Air Station. 2/ In this connection, the Petitioner seeks to include within the unit, the clubs, messes and package stores of the NAVSTA and the Enlisted Men's Clubs of the Navy Exchanges which have been transferred to the operational control of the Commanding Officer, NAS.

1/ At the time recognition was granted the Special Services Department operated the Petty Officers Mess and the Chief Petty Officers Mess in addition to providing recreational and sports facilities.

The record indicates that, subsequent to the various grants of exclusive recognition, negotiated agreements were entered into by the parties and that all such agreements, but one, 3/ have expired and are no longer in force.

BACKGROUND

On November 4, 1972, the Chief of Naval Operations issued a directive initiating the consolidation of the Navy Exchange, Naval Station and the Navy Exchange, Naval Air Station under the command of the Commander, Norfolk Naval Base.

On June 19, 1973, the Chief of Naval Personnel approved the transfer of the Naval Station Enlisted Men's Club (Tradewinds) and the Naval Air Station Enlisted Men's Club (Aerodrome) from their respective Exchanges to the control of the Activity on which they are physically located. 4/ The clubs were also redesignated as Enlisted Mess (Open). The record shows that the transfer of the Tradewinds and Aerodrome was effected on July 25, 1973, and, from that point on, the consolidated Navy Exchange no longer engaged in the operation of any clubs.

On February 18, 1975, the Commander, Norfolk Naval Base issued a directive calling for the consolidation of common recreational and entertainment functions and a command realignment. All Special Services activities 5/ at the NAVSTA and the NAS were assigned to the Commanding Officer, NAVSTA, and the operation of all clubs, messes, and package

2/ The existing Commissioned Officers Club (also known as Breezy Point) was not included in the original unit recognition.

3/ A negotiated agreement between the Navy Exchange, Naval Base and the Petitioner is currently effective.

4/ The Breakers Enlisted Men's Club had closed down prior to the reorganization.

5/ These included programs and facilities such as movie theaters, hobby shops, bowling alleys, gymnasiums, swimming pools, ball fields, golf courses and boat rentals.

liquor stores of the NAVSTA and the NAS were assigned to the NAS command. On July 1, 1975, the consolidation and common realignment was effectuated. Thus, the evidence establishes that the Commanding Officer, NAVSTA, assumed operational control over all the Special Services employees. 6/ The evidence further establishes that the Commanding Officer, NAS, assumed operational authority over the clubs, messes, and package stores that were physically located on the NAVSTA in addition to those already within his control at the NAS. In addition, the package stores which had been consolidated previously on their respective Activities, were further consolidated and the Commanding Officer, NAS, assumed control over them also. 7/

The mission of the Special Services Department, Naval Station, is to provide recreational programs, services and facilities for all tenant activities of the Norfolk Naval Base and those forces afloat who berth at the NAVSTA.

The record indicates that, subsequent to the reorganization, the former employees of the Special Services, NAS, have been administratively and physically integrated with the Special Services employees of the NAVSTA. Thus, the evidence establishes that the former NAS Special Services employees now work alongside of, and share common supervision with, NAVSTA Special Services employees. Moreover, the evidence shows that there is a substantial identity of job skills between these two groups of employees and that such skills differ from the job skills of the employees of the Exchange, and the clubs, as well as the messes and package stores. In addition, there is no interchange between the NAVSTA employees and those of the other Activities. The evidence establishes also that the Special Services employees, including the former NAS employees, share the same personnel policies and personnel office and are within the same area of consideration for promotions and reduction-in-force procedures.

6/ These included approximately 200 employees, 170-175 of whom were originally in the NAVSTA unit and 25-30 of whom were located at the NAS, but were not within any exclusively recognized unit.

7/ Originally, each Commissioned Officers Club, Chief Petty Officers Club, and Petty Officers Club had a package liquor store operating as a department of each individual club. In 1973, the three stores on each Activity were made independent of the clubs and operated as a separate entity while still within the premises of each club. In 1975, the package stores were consolidated and moved into a single building on each Activity. By virtue of the July 1, 1975, reorganization, the package stores were combined into two locations with a common warehouse and supervision but operate as a single entity.

Under these circumstances, I find that the Special Services employees formerly located at the NAS, now share a community of interest with, and are an integral part of, the existing unit of the Special Services employees of the NAVSTA represented by the Petitioner. Moreover, in my view, under the reorganized command structure, the unit as clarified will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations.

Accordingly, I shall order that the existing unit of the Special Services Department, NAVSTA, be clarified to include the Special Services employees formerly within the command of the NAS.

The mission of non-commissioned and commissioned clubs is to dispense food, beverages, and to furnish entertainment for patrons and members, while an Open Mess functions as a facility for the serving of food and beverages and is open to all those who meet the requirements for admittance. A package store, as is involved in this case, serves as a carry-out facility for beer and alcoholic beverages.

The record indicates that prior to 1973 both the NAS and the NAVSTA operated their own clubs, messes, and package stores, and that the Exchange at each Activity operated one Enlisted Men's Club. When the Navy Exchange, Naval Base was established as the result of the consolidation, discussed below, the clubs were removed from its control and placed under the control of each Activity. Moreover, after the subsequent reorganization of July 1, 1975, all of the clubs, messes, and consolidated package stores came under the control of the Commanding Officer, NAS, and under the immediate supervision of the Mess Management Officer, NAS. 8/ Thus, the record reveals that the former employees of the NAVSTA non-commissioned officers and enlisted men's clubs, messes, and package stores have been administratively and functionally integrated into the existing unit of nonappropriated fund activity employees of the NAS and that they share a clear and identifiable community of interest with such NAS employees. In this regard, the evidence establishes that all former NAVSTA employees now share common supervision with NAS employees; they have similar job skills and functions different from those in the Exchange and the Special Services; and they share the same personnel policies implemented by a single personnel office separate and apart from the Exchange and Special Services. In addition, their work contacts and interchange is limited to the employees in the clubs, messes and package stores. Moreover, I find the inclusion of these former NAVSTA employees in the NAS unit will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations.

8/ On July 1, 1975, these included the Commissioned Officers Mess at both the NAS and the NAVSTA, the Chief Petty Officers Mess at the NAS and the Chief Petty Officers Messes 1 and 2 at the NAVSTA, the Petty Officers Messes at the NAS and the NAVSTA, and the Enlisted Men's Messes at both the NAVSTA and the NAS. The record reveals that the Commissioned Officers Mess at the NAVSTA closed on October 31, 1975.

Accordingly, I shall order that the existing NAS unit be clarified to include all the eligible employees of the Non-Commissioned Officers Clubs, Enlisted Men's Clubs and package stores which before the reorganization were administratively assigned to the NAVSTA.

The mission of the Navy Exchange at the Naval Base, Norfolk, is to provide a convenient and available source from which authorized patrons may obtain, at the lowest practicable cost, articles and services required for their well being and contentment; to provide through profits a source of funds to be used for the welfare and recreation of Naval personnel; and to promote the morale of the command in which it is established through the operation of a well-managed, attractive and serviceable exchange.

Prior to the consolidation of July 25, 1973, both the NAS and NAVSTA had a separate Navy Exchange unit. In order to maximize economies and improve services and to place the control of the exchanges under a single authority, the Commanding Officer of the Naval Base, the Chief of Naval Operations ordered consolidation of the aforementioned units into one unit and the transfer of the respective Enlisted Men's Clubs from the responsibility of the two Exchanges to the control of the NAS and the NAVSTA. 9/

The result of this consolidation was that the exclusively recognized unit at the Navy Exchange, NAS, no longer existed as its only remaining component, 10/ the Food Service Operation, was incorporated into the Exchange unit of the NAVSTA, which was thereafter redesignated Navy Exchange, Naval Base. 11/ The record reveals that, subsequent to the consolidation, the Navy Exchange, Naval Base unit consists of a Food Service Department, Food Service Warehouse, Navy Exchange Cafeterias

9/ The Breakers Enlisted Men's Club closed prior to the consolidation and transfer.

10/ The laundry, which had been in the original unit, was closed several years prior to the consolidation.

11/ In this connection, I shall clarify the existing exclusively recognized unit to reflect its current designation.

and the several warehouses of the Navy Exchange. In this regard, the evidence establishes that the Food Service employees of the Navy Exchange, Naval Base, have a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and apart from the employees in the NAS and NAVSTA units. Thus, the employees in this unit share common supervision and work sites and have similar job skills and functions. Moreover, the Navy Exchange, Naval Base, utilizes its own personnel offices and a separate set of personnel instructions which apply only to its personnel. Further, the area of consideration for promotions and reductions-in-force is within the Navy Exchange, Naval Base.

Under these circumstances, I find that all the food service employees of the Navy Exchange, Naval Base, share a clear and identifiable community of interest, separate and apart from employees of the NAS and the NAVSTA. Moreover, it was noted that effective dealings have been experienced in the unit as evidenced by the negotiated agreements executed by the Petitioner and the Navy Exchange, Naval Base, and that the parties agree that such a unit has promoted effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations.

Accordingly, I shall order that the redesignated unit of the Navy Exchange, Naval Base be clarified further to include all Food Service Department employees formerly employed by the Navy Exchange, NAS, and to exclude from the designated unit the employees of the Enlisted Men's Clubs of the NAS unit, as indicated above.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the unit sought to be clarified in Case No. 22-6687(CU), in which the Hotel, Restaurant and Cafeteria Employees Union, Local 23, AFL-CIO, was recognized in 1967 as the exclusive representative of certain employees of the Special Services Department, Naval Station, Norfolk, Virginia, be, and it hereby is, clarified to include in said unit the Special Services employees previously employed by the Naval Air Station, Norfolk, Virginia, and to exclude from said unit all employees of clubs, messes, and package liquor stores.

SUMMARY OF SUPPLEMENTAL DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

NATIONAL TREASURY EMPLOYEES UNION
(INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE)
A/SLMR No. 783

On September 22, 1976, the United States District Court for the District of Columbia in National Treasury Employees Union v. Paul J. Fasser, Jr. et al., Civil Action No. 76-408 (D.D.C. 1976) held that an absolute ban upon all picketing as, in effect, was contained in A/SLMR No. 536, FLRC No. 75A-96, is overly broad and violates the First Amendment when improperly applied. Accordingly, the Court vacated the Decision and Order in A/SLMR No. 536, in which the Respondent, National Treasury Employees Union was found to be in violation of Section 19(b)(4) of Executive Order 11491, as amended. On January 4, 1977, an appeal by the Government from the decision of the District Court was withdrawn.

Thereafter, on January 5, 1977, the Federal Labor Relations Council (Council) issued a Statement on Major Policy Issue, FLRC No. 76P-4, in which the Council noted, among other things, that the District Court had determined that the application of Section 19(b)(4) to the precise fact situation in the instant case contravened the First Amendment.

Based on the District Court's holding, the rationale contained therein, the Council's rationale contained in FLRC No. 76P-4, and the facts as found in A/SLMR No. 536, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the complaint in the instant case be dismissed in its entirety.

SUPPLEMENTAL DECISION AND ORDER

On September 22, 1976, the United States District Court for the District of Columbia in National Treasury Employees Union v. Paul J. Fasser, Jr. et al., Civil Action No. 76-408 (D.D.C. 1976) held, among other things, that while the Executive Order "can constitutionally prohibit any picketing, whether or not peaceful and informational, that actually interferes or reasonably threatens to interfere with the operation of the affected Government agency", an absolute ban upon all picketing during any labor controversy as, in effect, was contained in A/SLMR No. 536, FLRC No. 75A-96, is overly broad and violates the First Amendment when improperly applied. Accordingly, the Court vacated the Decision and Order in A/SLMR No. 536 in which the Respondent, National Treasury Employees Union, was found to be in violation of Section 19(b) (4) of Executive Order 11491, as amended.

On January 4, 1977, an appeal by the Government from the decision of the District Court was withdrawn. Thereafter, on January 5, 1977, the Federal Labor Relations Council (Council) issued a Statement on Major Policy Issue, FLRC No. 76P-4, in which the Council noted, among other things, that the District Court had determined that the application of Section 19(b)(4) to the precise fact situation in the instant case contravened the First Amendment.

Based on the District Court's holding in the instant case, the rationale contained therein, the Council's rationale contained in FLRC No. 76P-4, and the facts as found in A/SLMR No. 536, I shall order that the complaint herein be dismissed in its entirety.

UNITED STATES
FEDERAL LABOR RELATIONS COUNCIL
WASHINGTON, D.C. 20415

FLRC No. 76P-4

STATEMENT ON MAJOR POLICY ISSUE

Pursuant to section 4(b) of the Order and section 2410.3 of the Council's rules of procedure (5 CFR 2410.3), the Council provides this major policy statement on the implementation of the decision rendered by the District Court in National Treasury Employees Union v. Paul J. Fasser, Jr., et al., Civil Action No. 76-408 (D.D.C. 1976), appeal from which was withdrawn by the Government effective on January 4, 1977.

In the subject case, the Court vacated the decision and order of the Assistant Secretary in A/SLMR No. 536, sustained by the Council in FLRC No. 75A-96 (Mar. 3, 1976), Report No. 97, in which the union was held to have violated section 19(b)(4) of the Order by its picketing of several Internal Revenue Service facilities in the course of a labor-management dispute with that agency.

While the Court determined that the application of section 19(b)(4) to the precise fact situation in the subject case contravened the First Amendment, the Court denied the union's request that the picketing ban in section 19(b)(4) be declared unconstitutional. Instead, the Court ruled, in the latter regard, that the Order "can constitutionally prohibit any picketing, whether or not peaceful and informational, that actually interferes or reasonably threatens to interfere with the operation of the affected Government agency." Further, the Court, after expressing the need for more facts and the application at least initially of expert judgment on the problem, suggested that the Council—either through rulemaking or otherwise—develop facts as to the precise Government interest to be protected and as to possible differentiations between types of picketing, based on such matters as the sensitivity of the particular governmental function involved, the location of the picketed facility, the number of pickets, and the purpose of the picketing.

Consistent with the decision of the Court, the Council has decided to accomplish the delineation of picketing which is permissible or nonpermissible under section 19(b)(4) on a case-by-case basis, utilizing the adjudicatory procedures established in sections 4(c)(1) and 6 of the Order. Clearly only when picketing of an agency by a labor organization in a labor-management dispute actually interferes or reasonably threatens to interfere with the operation of the affected Government agency will that picketing be found nonpermissible under section 19(b)(4). If picketing of an agency by a labor organization in a labor-management dispute does not actually interfere or reasonably threaten to interfere with the operation of the affected Government agency that picketing will be found permissible under section 19(b)(4). The Council has concluded that it is less

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the complaint in Case No. 22-5976(CO) be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

Bernard E. DeLury, Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations practicable to delineate through rulemaking the myriad circumstances in which such nonpermissible or permissible picketing might occur. Moreover, the development of facts as to the precise Government interest to be protected in given circumstances and as to possible differentiations between types of picketing can best be accomplished on a case-by-case basis through the adjudicatory procedures established under the Order. These procedures include provision for the presentation of arguments by amici curiae under section 2411.49 of the Council's rules.

More particularly as to the adjudicatory procedures, upon a complaint filed by an agency alleging that a labor organization unlawfully picketed the agency in a labor-management dispute, in violation of section 19(b)(4), the Assistant Secretary shall continue to process such complaint in accordance with the expedited procedures set forth in section 203.7(b) (29 CFR 203.7(b)) and related provisions of the Assistant Secretary's Rules and Regulations (including the procedure for the issuance of an order providing for cessation of the picketing pending disposition of the complaint). In such cases, the Assistant Secretary shall determine whether the picketing involved in the particular case interfered with or reasonably threatened to interfere with the operation of the affected Government agency and thereby violated section 19(b)(4) of the Order. In this connection, the Assistant Secretary shall fully develop in the record and carefully consider the precise Government interest sought to be protected and such matters as the sensitivity of the governmental function involved, the situs of the picketed operation, the number of pickets, the purpose of the picketing, the conduct of the pickets, and any other facts relevant to the exact nature of the picketing and the Government organization concerned. Based upon these detailed findings in each case, the Assistant Secretary shall render his decision as to whether the picketing was permissible or nonpermissible under section 19(b)(4) of the Order.

Thereafter, upon a petition for review of the decision of the Assistant Secretary duly filed by a party to the case and upon acceptance of that petition for review by the Council under part 2411, subpart B of the Council's rules of procedure (5 CFR 2411.11 et. seq.), the Council will carefully review the decision of the Assistant Secretary. As appropriate, the Council will carefully analyze the Assistant Secretary's determination and the required supporting findings by the Assistant Secretary referred to hereinabove relating to whether, under the particular circumstances of the case, the picketing interfered with or reasonably threatened to interfere with the operation of the Government agency involved, in violation of section 19(b)(4) of the Order. Requests of interested agencies, unions or other persons to submit their views on these matters, as amici curiae, will be entertained by the Council in accordance with section 2411.49 of the Council's rules (5 CFR 2411.49). Founded on this analysis, and in conformity with section 2411.18(b) of the Council's rules (5 CFR 2411.18(b)), the Council will issue its decision sustaining, modifying or setting aside the Assistant Secretary's ruling that the picketing at issue was permissible or nonpermissible under section 19(b)(4) of the Order.

In this manner, on a case-by-case basis and demonstrated by the facts in each case, the Council will effect the specific delineation of picketing which is permissible or nonpermissible under section 19(b)(4) of the Order, as suggested by the Court in the National Treasury Employees Union decision. The decision of the Council rendered in each case will, of course, serve as a precedent which will be binding on the disposition of any like situation which may subsequently be presented.

The foregoing practice and considerations will apply in all pending and future cases involving complaints that a labor organization unlawfully picketed an agency in a labor-management dispute, as proscribed by section 19(b)(4) of the Order.

By the Council.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE AIR FORCE, OFFUTT AIR FORCE BASE
A/SLMR. No. 784

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint, which was amended at the hearing de novo, alleging essentially that employee Lucille Daugherty was disciplined and discharged because she engaged in certain union activities in violation of Section 19(a)(2) and (1) of the Order, and that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order by virtue of certain anti-union remarks and interrogations by supervisors of the Respondent and by issuing a certain Notice and a Direction which improperly restricted employee discussion of union activity.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that Mrs. Daugherty was reprimanded and discharged from her position as a waitress at the Respondent's Noncommissioned Officer's Club (NCO Club) because of her union activities in violation of Section 19(a)(2) and (1) of the Order. In this regard, he found that the agency procedure for review of such action was not an "appeals procedure" within the meaning of Section 19(d) of the Order and, thus, did not preclude his consideration of Mrs. Daugherty's alleged discriminatory treatment under the unfair labor practice procedures of the Order. In addition, he found that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order by issuing a Notice and also a Direction which, in effect, improperly barred discussion of union activity by employees; by certain anti-union remarks made by the NCO Club's manager; and by engaging in certain improper conduct involving other employees of the NCO Club and a job applicant.

The Assistant Secretary concurred with the Administrative Law Judge's finding that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(2) and (1) of the Order by reprimanding and later discharging Mrs. Daugherty. He agreed also with the conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that the Activity procedure available to Mrs. Daugherty for the purpose of contesting her discharge (which procedure was never invoked) was not an "appeals procedure" within the meaning of Section 19(d) of the Order and, thus, was not a bar to his consideration of the alleged discriminatory discharge. In this regard, he noted that the term "appeal" is defined in the Federal Personnel Manual as a "request...for reconsideration of a decision to take an adverse action...," and that the Report and Recommendations of the Federal Labor Relations Council (1971) contemplated that only a procedure which provides third-party review of such adverse action "appeals" would meet the exclusionary standard established in Section 19(d). Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary concluded that the term "appeals procedure" as used in Section 19(d) did not encompass a nonstatutory appeals system which did not provide third-party review of an agency adverse action. Therefore, the "appeals" procedure available to Mrs. Daugherty, which was non-statutory and which did not provide for third-party review, did not preclude his consideration of her discharge. In the Assistant Secretary's view, to conclude that the Respondent's "appeals" procedure was the exclusive means for review of Mrs. Daugherty's alleged discriminatory discharge would mean she and similarly situated nonappropriated fund activity employees would never have the opportunity to seek independent third-party review of any adverse action, a conclusion which he found would be clearly inconsistent with the purposes and policies of Section 19(d) as explicated by the Federal Labor Relations Council in its 1971 Report. Under these circumstances, he ordered the Respondent to reinstate Mrs. Daugherty and make her whole for any loss of income she had incurred.

The Assistant Secretary found also that the Respondent had violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order with respect to certain anti-union remarks by the NCO Club manager; and by the issuance of a March 19, 1973, Notice and by a Direction of April 11, 1973. However, he dismissed on procedural grounds certain portions of the complaint upon which the Administative Law Judge found other violations of the Order as the particular findings were based on allegations of violations of the Order previously dismissed by the Regional Administrator but which the Administrative Law Judge allowed as amendments to the complaint at the hearing de novo.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary issued a remedial order for those violations of the Executive Order which he had found.

DECISION AND ORDER

On June 10, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Samuel A. Chaitovitz issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, 1/ finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it take certain affirmative action as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. Thereafter, the Respondent filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order, the Complainant filed an answering brief, and the Respondent filed a supplemental brief in support of its exceptions. 2/

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the entire record in the subject case, including the Respondent's exceptions, supporting brief, and supplemental brief, and the Complainant's answering brief, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations, as modified herein. 3/

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Respondent issued certain written reprimands to Lucille Daugherty and ultimately discharged her from her position as a waitress at its Noncommissioned Officer's Club (hereinafter called NCO Club) because of her union activities in violation of Section 19(a)(2) and (1) of the Order. In this regard, he held that, under the particular circumstances herein, Section 19(d) of the Order did not preclude the consideration of the issue of Mrs. Daugherty's alleged discriminatory treatment. Additionally, the Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order by issuing a Notice and Direction which had the effect of barring discussion of union activity by NCO Club employees while "on duty" or on "duty time"; by certain anti-union remarks made by the NCO Club's manager; and by engaging in certain improper conduct involving other employees of the NCO Club and a job applicant.

I agree with the Administrative Law Judge's conclusion that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(2) and (1) of the Order by issuing written reprimands to Mrs. Daugherty and later discharging her because she contacted, sought assistance from, and was active on behalf of the Complainant. In my view, the record reflects that, but for such union activities, Mrs. Daugherty would not have been discharged.

I concur also with the Administrative Law Judge's conclusion that the Activity procedure available to Mrs. Daugherty for purposes of contesting her discharge (which procedure was never invoked) is not an "appeals procedure" within the meaning of Section 19(d) of the Order, 4/ and, consequently, is not a bar to the consideration, under the unfair labor practice procedures of the Order, of Mrs. Daugherty's alleged discriminatory discharge. In this regard, it was noted that although the term "appeals procedure" as used in Section 19(d) is not defined in the Order, Chapter 771, "Appeals and Grievances to the Agency", Subchapter 1, "General Provisions", Section 1-2 "Definitions" of the Federal Personnel Manual defines the term "appeal" as "a request by an

1/ A nine day hearing was held in this case before Administrative Law Judge Thomas W. Kennedy. The hearing consisted of three, three-day sessions held on July 31, August 1, and August 3, 1974; September 25-27, 1974; and October 29-31, 1974. Thereafter, due to the death of Judge Kennedy, the case was reassigned to Administrative Law Judge Samuel A. Chaitovitz who ordered a hearing de novo in this matter.

2/ Subsequent to the filing of the Respondent's supplemental brief, the Complainant requested that either the supplemental brief not be considered by the Assistant Secretary as it was not properly limited in scope or, alternatively, that the Complainant be allowed to file a response to the Respondent's supplemental brief. Both requests are hereby denied.

3/ The Respondent excepted to certain credibility findings made by the Administrative Law Judge. In Navy Exchange, U.S. Naval Air Station Quonset Point, Rhode Island, A/SLMR No. 180, the Assistant Secretary held that as a matter of policy he would not overrule an Administrative Law Judge's resolution with respect to credibility unless the preponderance of all the relevant evidence established that such resolution clearly was incorrect. Based on a review of the record in this case, I find no basis for reversing the Administrative Law Judge's credibility findings with respect to the violations of the Order found herein.

4/ Section 19(d) of the Order provides, in pertinent part: "Issues which can properly be raised under an appeals procedure may not be raised under this section...."

employee for reconsideration of a decision to take adverse action against him." 5/ Thus, the term "appeals procedures" as used in Section 19(d) appears to relate to those procedures applicable in adverse action situations. It was noted further that the Report and Recommendations of the Federal Labor Relations Council (1971) contemplated that only a procedure which provides for third-party review of such adverse action "appeals", (as is provided in nearly all "statutory appeals procedures" 6/) would meet the exclusionary standard established in Section 19(d). Thus, the 1971 Report, referred to above, in recommending that the language of Section 19(d) of the Order be changed to its present form, indicated that employees covered under the Order should have "an opportunity to seek third-party adjudication of any issue involving an alleged unfair labor practice," i.e., an alternative to agency management being the final judge of its own conduct. Moreover, in recommending that the existing rule that issues which could properly be raised under an appeals system could not be raised as unfair labor practices be retained, the Council noted that, "Employees currently have the opportunity to seek third-party review of agency action under appeals procedures established by statute." 7/ Based on the foregoing, in my view it is clear that the term "appeals procedure" as used in Section 19(d) of the Order is not intended to encompass nonstatutory "appeals" procedures which do not provide for third-party review of an agency action.

In the instant case, the record indicates that the procedure as set forth in AFM 176-5 8/ by which Mrs. Daugherty could have appealed her discharge was a nonstatutory appeals system, i.e. it was established by the Air Force, a higher echelon within the same agency as the Respondent,

5/ The term "adverse action" is defined in Chapter 752, "Adverse Actions by Agencies", Subchapter 1, "Coverage of Chapter", Section 1-1, "Action Coverage", of the Federal Personnel Manual to include, with certain exceptions not relevant to this case, "disciplinary and nondisciplinary removals, suspensions, furloughs without pay, and reductions in rank or pay."

6/ The term "statutory appeals procedures" includes "appeals procedures established by Executive order, or regulations of appropriate authorities outside the agency to implement or administer responsibilities assigned by statute with respect to the subject matter involved," in addition to those appeals procedures directly prescribed by statute. See FLRC Information Announcement, March 22, 1972, Question and Answer No. 4, 1 FLRC 669, at 670.

7/ Report and Recommendations of the Federal Relations Council, 1971, Part C.

8/ The record indicates that Exhibit C-102 was intended to constitute a complete copy of AFM 176-5. However, the copy submitted as part of the official record is incomplete to the extent that it lacks, among other things, paragraph 2-25 which concerns the right of (Continued) as distinguished from an appropriate authority outside the agency. 9/ It provided essentially that, after a written determination by the base commander, the final "appeal" rested with the base commander's superior, the major air command, in this case the Strategic Air Command. As noted by the Administrative Law Judge, this procedure did not provide for an appeal to persons outside of the Department of the Air Force or even outside of the chain of command. Therefore, to conclude that the Respondent's "appeals" procedure was the exclusive means for review of the alleged discriminatory discharge of Mrs. Daugherty would mean that she and similarly situated nonappropriated fund activity employees would never have the opportunity to seek independent third-party review of any adverse action. 10/ In my view, such a conclusion would be clearly inconsistent with the purposes and policies of Section 19(d) as explicated by the Council in its 1971 Report. Accordingly, I find that I am not precluded by Section 19(d) of the Order from considering the allegation herein concerning Mrs. Daugherty's discharge 11/, and having concluded previously that the Respondent's conduct with respect to Mrs. Daugherty's written reprimands and subsequent discharge were violative of Section 19(a)(2) and (1) of the Order, I shall order the Respondent, among other things, to reinstate Mrs. Daugherty to the same or substantially equivalent position as she held prior to her discharge, and make her whole for any loss of income she may have incurred. 12/

8/ nonappropriated fund employees to appeal when involuntarily terminated. As the missing paragraph was included by the Respondent as part of Exhibit R-1 at the first hearing in this matter, I shall consider it as part of the official record in this case.

9/ See footnote 6, above.

10/ Nonappropriated fund employees are not covered by Civil Service Commission appeals procedures available to most Federal employees. See 5 U.S.C. 2105(c).

11/ In my view, this conclusion is not inconsistent with the Assistant Secretary's decision in Department of Defense, National Guard Bureau, Texas Air National Guard, A/SLMR No. 336, wherein it was held that Section 19(d) of the Order was dispositive with regard to the statutory appeals procedure therein established pursuant to statute (32 U.S.C. 709), which statute specifically precludes third-party review.

12/ Noting particularly the absence of any statute specifically precluding the payment of back pay to nonappropriated fund employees, I find that my authority to direct back pay to the nonappropriated fund activity employee involved herein is clearly proper under the authority vested in the Assistant Secretary by Section 6(b) of the Executive Order. In my view, the remedial order herein, absent specific prohibition, represents, in effect, an intra-Executive Branch administrative adjustment to rectify an improper act, as distinguished from an outside claim against the United States Government.

In addition to concurring with the Administrative Law Judge's conclusions with respect to the improper nature of the Respondent's conduct regarding Mrs. Daugherty referred to above, I agree also with his conclusions that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order by the NCO Club manager's anti-union remarks made at the March 8 and 9, 1973, meetings with Mrs. Daugherty, and that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order by its issuance of the March 19, 1973, Notice barring discussion of the Union by NCO Club employees while "on duty" and by its issuance on April 11, 1973, of Direction SS-OI-34-2 which prohibited nonappropriated fund employees from talking to union representatives on "duty time", including those union representatives who were also NCO Club employees. In this latter regard, it was noted that both the Notice and the Direction had the effect of barring union activity by NCO Club employees during their non-work time, including breaks and lunch hours, a limitation which has been found to be violative of the Order, absent unusual circumstances not present here. 13/

However, under the particular circumstances herein, I reject the conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge with respect to his findings that the Respondent engaged in conduct violative of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order with respect to certain other NCO Club employees and a job applicant. 14/ Contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, I find that the Assistant Regional Director's (now designated as Regional Administrator) letter of May 10, 1974, intended to dismiss all allegations in the complaint directly concerning the Respondent's conduct with regard to Susie Furfari, job applicant Patrick Furfari, and any other employees of the NCO Club other than Lucille Daugherty. No request for review was filed with respect to the Regional Administrator's action in this regard. Under these circumstances, the motion to amend the complaint at the hearing de novo to include portions of the complaint previously dismissed by the Regional Administrator was erroneously granted by the Administrative Law Judge. 15/ Therefore, I shall dismiss those portions 13/ Cf. Charleston Naval Shipyard, A/SLMR No. 1, and Federal Energy Administration, Region IV, Atlanta, Georgia, A/SLMR No. 541.

14/ At the hearing de novo, the Administrative Law Judge, over the objection of the Respondent, granted the Complainant's motion to amend its complaint to include, for Section 19(a)(1) purposes, allegations concerning the Respondent's conduct with respect to "employees" other than Lucille Daugherty.

15/ Moreover, the allegations relating to Linda Hull and Carol Littlefield do not appear to have been appropriately raised as the record reveals that these alleged incidents occurred just prior to the start of the first hearing in this case in July 1974, and apparently were never the subject of pre-complaint charges. Therefore, these allegations are also procedurally defective under Section 203.2(a)(1) and (2) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations which requires that unfair labor practice allegations must be the subject of written pre-complaint charges filed within six months of the occurrence of the alleged unfair labor practices.

of the amended complaint which concern job applicant Patrick Furfari 16/ and employees of the NCO Club other than Lucille Daugherty.

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the Department of the Air Force, Offutt Air Force Base, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Discharging, disciplining, or discriminating in any manner against Lucille Daugherty in regard to her hire, tenure, promotion, or other conditions of employment in order to discourage membership in the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 1486, or any other labor organization.

(b) Promulgating, maintaining, or enforcing any regulation, rule, or direction which prohibits or prevents employees from discussing union activities at their workplace during non-work time, providing there is no interference with the work of the agency.

(c) Applying and/or enforcing existing procedures, policies and regulations, in a manner which discriminates against members of the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 1486, or any other labor organization.

(d) In any like or related manner interfering with, restraining, or coercing its employees in the exercise of rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purpose and policies of the Order:

(a) Offer Lucille Daugherty immediate and full reinstatement to her former or substantially equivalent position, without prejudice to her seniority or to her other rights and privileges, and make her whole, consistent with applicable laws and regulations, for any loss of income she may have suffered by reason of its discrimination by paying to her a sum of money equal to the amount which she would have earned or received from the date of her discharge to the date of the offer of reinstatement, less any amounts earned by such employee through other employment during the above noted period.

16/ In view of the disposition herein, I find it unnecessary to make a finding with regard to the Administrative Law Judge's conclusion that a job applicant is an "employee" for purposes of the Order.

(b) Rescind the "NOTICE TO ALL CLUB EMPLOYEES" dated March 19, 1973 and the Base Direction labeled SS-OI-34-2.

(c) Post at all activities at Offutt Air Force Base which employ nonappropriated fund employees copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms, they shall be signed by the Base Commander and they shall be posted and maintained by him for 60 consecutive days thereafter, in conspicuous places, including all bulletin boards and other places where notices to employees are customarily posted. The Base Commander shall take reasonable steps to insure that such notices are not altered, defaced, or covered by any other material.

(d) Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations, notify the Assistant Secretary in writing within 30 days from the date of this order as to what steps have been taken to comply herewith.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that those portions of the amended complaint alleging violations of Section 19(a)(1) with respect to "discriminatory" treatment of employees and individuals other than Lucille Daugherty be, and they hereby are, dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

On May 10, 1974, the Regional Administrator for the Labor-Management Services Administration, Kansas City Region, issued a Notice of Hearing in this case. The Notice directed a hearing on the Complaint filed by the American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE), Local 1486, herein called AFGE Local 1486 or the Union, against Offutt Air Force Base, and the Non Commissioned Officers' Club, (NCO) at Offutt Air Force Base, Nebraska, hereinafter called the Activity or Respondent alleging violations of Sections 19(a)(1) and (2) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, hereinafter called the Order.

A nine-day hearing was held pursuant to this Notice before Administrative Law Judge Thomas W. Kennedy. The hearing consisted of three, three-day sessions held on: July 31, August 1, and August 3, 1974; September 25-27, 1974; and October 29-31, 1974. Subsequently, due to the untimely death of Judge Kennedy, the case was reassigned to the undersigned Administrative Law Judge.

On November 10, 1975, the undersigned ordered a de novo hearing in this case. A hearing before the undersigned was held on January 13, 14, and 15, 1976 in Omaha, Nebraska. At this hearing, the parties reached agreement on certain stipulations. Specifically, the parties agreed that in lieu of recalling certain witnesses who testified at the previous hearing, they would stipulate to the prior testimony of fourteen of those witnesses, and the exhibits introduced through their testimony. 1/ To avoid confusion, it was agreed that exhibits introduced into evidence at the second hearing would be prefaced by the number one hundred (100). Similarly, the page numbers of the transcript of the second hearing would be prefaced by the letter "A". In this way, the exhibits and testimony at the two hearings would be easily distinguished. Further, the parties were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses, and to introduce evidence bearing on the issues involved herein. Briefs were filed on March 29, 1976 and have been considered.

Upon the basis of the entire record, including the stipulations entered into by the parties and my observation of the witnesses who appeared before me and their demeanor, I make the following conclusions and commendations.

1/ The parties stipulated to the first Hearing testimony of Mrs. Furfari, Mrs. Velda Embree, Master Sergeant Patrick Furfari, Mr. Charles W. Gilmore. Mr. Robert Capps, Mr. Joseph Scheiblhofer, Mrs. Linda Hall, Mrs. Cecilee Ann Block, Mrs. Carol Littlefield, Sergeant Dennis Daugherty, Mr. Jack Stillabower, Mr. Joseph Struckman, Miss Teresa Guizar, and Mrs. Margaret Creeley.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

1. Background

The NCO Club is a non-appropriated fund activity (NAF) located at Offutt Air Force Base near Omaha, Nebraska. The Club provides food and entertainment facilities and services to its members. The events relevant to this case involve, for the most part, only civilian employees of the Club who are directly or indirectly involved in the pool operations of the Club, and higher management personnel on the Base.

The Club employs approximately 95 people including supervisory and management personnel. In the Dining Room itself, there are approximately 18-20 non-supervisory employees, including 10 waitresses, 8 buspersons, a cashier, hatcheck, and a hostess. The Dining Room Supervisor, Helen Morton, is the immediate supervisor of all of the Dining Room personnel. She reports directly to John Ransom, the Club Manager.

The Chef is in charge of the kitchen and supervises approximately 12 employees, some of whom are part-time military personnel. There is also an Assistant Manager and three to four Night Managers who are in charge of the entire Club in the absence of Mr. Ransom.

Mr. Ransom, the Club Manager, is in charge of the day-to-day operations of the Club and has authority to hire and fire employees. The Major Command (MAJCOM), the Strategic Air Command is, however, required to insure that the Club is operated in a manner consistent with the personnel policies and practices prescribed in Air Force Manuel 176-5 (AFM 176-5) including those relating to the Order. Finally, the installation commander is required to provide guidance and assistance to non-appropriated fund activities and bears intermediate responsibility for personnel administration within command. Mr. Ransom's immediate superior at all times relevant to this case was Colonel Blakeslee, Chief of Recreational Services. Blakeslee, in turn, reports to the base commander.

AFGE Local 1486 has been the exclusive bargaining representative of all Wage-Grade employees at Offutt since 1968. At no times relevant to this case were the employees of the NCO Club exclusively represented by any union.

2. The Discharge of Lucille Daugherty

Prior to her discharge on April 30, 1973, Lucille Daugherty had been employed as a waitress at the NCO Club for approximately seven years. She had also worked as a waitress for three years at the NCO Club at Bangor, Maine. It is undisputed that Mrs. Daugherty had been considered to be an excellent waitress, and enjoyed a good relationship with her supervisors, Helen Morton and John Ransom. She had never been disciplined or reprimanded.2/ In fact, due to her good work, Mrs. Daugherty was often the employee selected to be put in charge of the Dining Room if Helen Morton was temporarily absent. Even when other employees who served as Assistant to Dining Room Supervisor were available, if she was on duty, Mrs. Daugherty was automatically presumed to be in charge.3/ She also recieved a wage differential.

Prior to March 1973, Mrs. Daugherty was considered a valuable and trusted employee who enjoyed a good working relationship with her superiors.

The March 3 Incident 4/

A dispute over assignments to parties and sharing tips gave rise to this incident relevant to this case. Pursuant to usual practice, Helen Morton had made out the weekly schedule and put a "P" after those individuals assigned to work parties. 5/ For the evening of Saturday, March 3, Helen Morton, Mrs. Daugherty, Michael Cornelio, and Bonnie Wing were assigned to parties. Later, Helen Morton took off for the evening because it was her birthday.

2/ There was some evidence that in March 1972, Mrs. Daugherty received a reprimand for trying to complain, on behalf of the other employees, over the practice of permitting Mrs. Morton to share in party tips even when Mrs. Morton didn't work on the party. Apparently, however, the reprimand was never perfected or entered into Mrs. Daugherty's file. Thus, it apparently never really became an official reprimand.

3/ Waitresses, including Mrs. Daugherty, who were put "in charge" in the absence of Helen Morton did not exercise the full scope of her supervisory powers. Rather, these waitresses sought the assistance of Mr. Ransom, or the night manager, if any problems arose regarding employees, and limited themselves to making sure the Club was clean, customers satisfied, etc. Mrs. Daugherty was not considered to be a supervisor.

4/ Unless otherwise noted all dates herein refer to 1973.

5/ The schedule is not to be confused with the party sheet. There was a weekly schedule showing who worked what hours, and indicating whether the employee was assigned to the Dining Room, or to parties. The schedule did not specify which party and individual was assigned to, however, and Helen Morton usually informed the person of which party orally, when they reported to work for the day. A separate party sheet was made out for each party. The record indicates that prior to being turned in at the end of the evening, either the employee themselves or Helen Morton recorded the names of those entitled to a tip for that particular party.

On the evening of March 3, there were two parties scheduled at the Club. Helen Morton had been scheduled to work the small party in the Top Three Room (also referred to as Sargeant Park's Party). Mrs. Daugherty, Mike Cornelio, and Bonnie Wing were scheduled for the large party in the Nebraska Room. Ms. Morton testified that when she decided to take off, she specifically informed Sgt. Park, Mrs. Daugherty and Bonnie Wing that Ms. Wing was to take her place at the small party. The record indicates, however, that while she may have informed Ms. Wing, Ms. Morton did not inform Mrs. Daugherty, Michael Cornelio or Sgt. Park. Further, it is undisputed that all three employees did, in fact, serve both parties and Ms. Wing said nothing to Mrs. Daugherty or Mike Cornelio to indicate that she believed she alone was assigned to the smaller party.

Apparently both Mrs. Daugherty and Mike Cornelio had assumed, that since Ms. Morton was off, they and Ms. Wing were assigned to both parties. Further, with Helen Morton absent, Mrs. Daugherty was automatically in charge of the food operation. After they were through serving, Mrs. Daugherty obtained the party sheet for the Sargeant Park's party and added her name and Mike Cornelio's name to the sheet.

Nothing was said that evening, but on Sunday, March 4, when Mrs. Daugherty took her "bank" to the office at the close of the shift, she was informed that her name and Mike Cronelio's name had been taken off the party sheet. Mrs. Daugherty expressed her surprise and said she was going to Building C (the Personnel Office) to see about it. The Assistant Manager, Jack Stillabauer, and Night Manager, Ross Meadows, told her that she should discuss the matter first Mr. Ransom and that she would get fired if she went to Building C.

That evening, Mrs. Daugherty discussed the incident with her husband. Her husband advised her to seek the assistance of AFGE Local 1486. She was unable to reach the Local President of AFGE Local 1486 and, therefore, contacted National Representative Carl Holt. After discussing the problem, Mr. Holt arranged to meet with Mrs. Daugherty and other interested employees. He encouraged Mrs. Daugherty to begin organizing NCO Club employees; explained what was involved; and arranged a meeting with the Inspector General of the Base to discuss Mrs. Daugherty's tip problem.

Subsequently, Mrs. Daugherty did begin orgainzing NCO Club employees.

The Events of March 8

The meeting with the Inspector General, Colonel O'Neil, was scheduled for March 8, aroung 4:00 in the afternoon. Present were the Inspector General (IG), Carl Holt, Mrs. Daugherty, and Francis Gardner, another waitress at the NCO Club. Colonel O'Neil was also the deputy base commander.

The meeting was apparently cordial. Mrs. Daugherty explained the nature of her problem and expressed her concern over possible retaliation, particularly in view of the remark made to her on March 4 by management officials stating she would be fired if she went to Building C. The Inspector General assured her she had every right to come to him, assured her no action would be taken against her, and advised them to first discuss the problem with Mr. Ransom. The Inspector General also assured them that Mr. Holt could act as her representative in the matter.

After this meeting, Mr. Holt and Mrs. Daugherty proceeded directly to the NCO Club to talk to Mr. Ransom and Helen Morton. Upon arriving at the Club, Mrs. Daugherty found that her time card was pulled. 6/ She was told Mr. Ransom wanted to see her in his office and went there immediately. Mr. Holt waited downstairs.

When Mrs. Daugherty entered the office and saw that six management representatives were waiting for her, she asked to be excused to get her cigarettes. 7/ Instead, she went to get Mr. Holt. The two returned to Ransom's office. Mrs. Daugherty sat inside the office and Mr. Holt stood in the doorway and waited until Ransom finished a phone call.

6/ Apparently it was Mr. Ransom's practice to pull an employee's time card when Mr. Ransom wished to speak to that employee.

7/ Present were Mr. Ransom, Helen Morton, Ross Meadows (the Night Manager), Jack Stillabower (Assistant Club Manager), Larry Bibbich (Management Trainee), and Mildred Bought (Ransom's secretary).

When the phone call was concluded, Mr. Holt introduced himself, identified his position, and informed Mr. Ransom that he represented Mrs. Daugherty. Mr. Ransom responded: "We don't have no damn union here and we don't intend to", and asked Holt to leave. A heated conversation ensued. Mr. Holt insisted the meeting was a kangaroo court and he would not leave Mrs. Daugherty alone and unrepresented before six management officials.

Mr. Ransom then called Joe Scheiblehofer, the civilian personnel officer to find out Holt's "status" or right to be there. After this phone call, Ransom asked if Mrs. Daugherty was a member of the Union. She answered yes and Ransom asked to see her Union card. Holt advised her she did not have to show him her Union Membership Card. At this point, Ransom said there would be no meeting that day and he would let them know when one could be held. Holt also asked to meet with Mrs. Morton but was told again that there would be no meeting that day. The parties agreed to meet at another time, shook hands, and the meeting concluded. 8/

After the meeting, Mr. Holt left and the employees returned to work. Mrs. Daugherty also returned to work but had a problem with one customer's steak. Management inquired into the matter and the customers told Mrs. Daugherty the next day (March 9) that she did not blame Mrs. Daugherty and did not understand why management was making so many inquiries about the incident.

Letter of Reprimand Received on March 9, 1973

On March 9, Mr. Ransom asked to see Mrs. Daugherty. She accompanied him to his office. Ransom closed the door and handed her an undated Letter of Reprimand addressed to her. He asked her to read and sign it. She refused, stating that it was not all true. Ransom then called in Sgt. Harrol to witness receipt of the document by Mrs. Daugherty. When Sgt. Harrol left, Ransom shut the door and threw the Letter across the desk stating: "Here, give this to your union representative. I will have you know he is going to [SIC] do nothing but hurt you." This letter dealt solely with the dispute concerning the serving of the Sgt. Park's party on March 3.

8/ There was some confusion as to whether the parties had agreed that Mrs. Daugherty would put her complaint in writing.

The March 14 Meeting With Colonel Blakeslee

Pursuant to the request of Mr. Holt a meeting with Colonel Blakeslee, Chief of the NAF, was scheduled to discuss alleged unfair labor practices committed by NCO Club management. Mr. Holt wanted to discuss Ransom's apparent refusal to permit him to represent Mrs. Daugherty, and the remarks made to her on March 3 by management to the effect she would be fired for going to Building C.

Present at the meeting were Mr. Holt; Mrs. Daugherty; Francis Gardner, (another waitress at the NCO Club); Colonel Blakeslee; Ron Harbour, labor-relations specialist; and Mr. Scheiblehofer.

Colonel Blakeslee, although in charge of Non-Appropriated Fund Activities on the base, was not very familiar with the issues and more or less turned the meeting over to Harbour and Scheiblehofer. Harbour took the position that Mrs. Daugherty had no right to any representative at the initial stage of the complaint or grievance procedure. Mr. Holt disputed this and pointed out that the regulations did not specify one way or the other. The discussion of these regulations continued without resolution and nothing else was accomplished.

The March 19 Reprimand

On March 19, Mrs. Daugherty received another written disciplinary notice. 9/ The substance of this notice was that Ransom was reprimanding her for her "failure to follow Club policy. The notice, stated that on February 27 and 28, 1973, at a meeting, Mrs. Daugherty and other employees were informed that if they had complaints they should be brought first to the supervisor and then, if not satisfied to Mr. Ransom. The notice stated further that after all the "confusion" on March 3, 1973, instead of discussing the problem with the supervisor or Mr. Ransom she discuss her problems with "several other employees", the "Base Inspector" and "several other agencies". (Emphasis Added). By "other agencies," Ransom clearly meant the Union. Mr. Ransom was disciplining Mrs. Daugherty for going to the Union, the IG, and attending the meeting with Colonel Blakeslee regarding 9/ The official record of the second hearing contains two exhibits labeled R-108. The first R-108 is the same document as C-108, but represents a more legible copy. The record's corrected and the legible copy of the March 19 reprimand now labeled R-108 is corrected and shall be deemed substituted for the document labeled C-108.

management's alleged unfair labor practices. 10/

It is important to note that the term "other agencies" as used in the March 19 reprimand, included the Union. Furthermore, Ransom indicated in his testimony that the Reprimand of March 19 included reprimanding Mrs. Daugherty for attending the March 14 meeting with Colonel Blakeslee, the purpose of which was to discuss alleged unfair labor practices committed by management. Thus Mr. Ransom was, at least to a great part reprimanding Mrs. Daugherty because of the Union's involvement in her case and because she met with Colonel Blakeslee on March 14 concerning an alleged unfair labor practice. 11/

Other Incidents Involving Mrs. Daugherty

Mrs. Daugherty, for the first time, was not assigned to the SAC Credit Union party, which paid each waitress a $25 tip. This was justified by claiming she was needed to supervise the Dining Room. However, the Dining Room was virtually empty during the annual SAC Credit Union party since virtually the entire membership of the NCO Club attended the party.

Mrs. Daugherty was also watched with regard to her use of the telephone. While Ransom had always told employees that the Club telephone was not for personal use except in emergencies, this policy, if enforced at all, had been loosely enforced. Mrs. Daugherty had never been personally criticized for her use of the phone, and she and other employees regularly received personal calls at work. Yet, 10/ Mr. Ransom testified further that he is justified in disciplining any employee for failing or refusing to put a grievance in writing, if he believes he will need a written record to explain his response to the grievant to anyone outside the NCO Club. The factor which made Mrs. Daugherty's conduct a serious offense was the fact that she caused other "outside" people to become involved in the dispute.

Mr. Ransom believes that employees have an obligation to come to him first before making inquiries at Building C or the Inspector General, or the Base Commander, or the Union.

11/ On April 12, 1973, another meeting was held in an effort to resolve the unfair labor practice charges filed by the Union against management. Present were John Ransom, Ron Harbour, Joe Scheiblehofer, Local 1486 President Stiggers, Local Vice-President Reeks, Carl Holt, Mrs. Daugherty, Sue Furfari, and Francis Gardner.

on or about April 7, 1973, Mrs. Daugherty was called to the phone and Helen Morton and Larry Bibbich approached her and told her she could not use the phone. Mrs. Morton could not observe Mrs. Daugherty from her duty station. Neither Mr. Morton nor Mr. Bibbich bothered to inquire whether the call was personal or Club business; waitresses regularly took down take-out orders over the phone Sometime in March, 1973, a notice appeared on the employee bulletin board. This notice was dated March 19, 1973 and was addressed to all Club employees. It read as follows:

> "You are not authorized to discuss anything about Union's while on duty. No Union official is allowed to discuss Union business with you while on duty. 12/ The discussion of Union between employees while on duty is prohibited."

Employees (and Mr. Ransom himself) uniformly testified that tnere were no other restrictions on what they talked about while "on duty". In fact, everyone discussed whatever they wanted. The only "Club policy" on this was that employees were not supposed to look idle, or congregate in the Dining Room to talk. Employees could use the Family Room for breaks, etc. There were no other restrictions on employee discussions on duty time. Mr. Ransom's testimony made it clear that the term "duty time" included breaks and lunch hours. It was, therefore, not synonymous with the term "work time".

Direction SS-OI-34-2 issued by the Offutt Air Force Base on April 11, 1973 applies to NAF employees. It provides that employees will not converse with a union representative "on duty time" until it is established in writing that the union representative is representing the employee in an official capacity. This direction apparently is applicable to the Agency's grievance procedure set forth in AFM 176-5, Chapter 5. Change 1, SS-OI-34-1 was subsequently issued but didn't specifically recind that part of SS-OI-34-2 that limits the right of an employee to talk to a union representative.

The meeting began with Mr. Harbour challenging the right of Mr. Reeks to be present on official time. Mr. Stiggers protested strongly since it had always been the practice to permit representatives of Local 1486 attend such meetings on official time. Mr. Harbour insisted and, finally, Mr. Stiggers left to check with the base commander. The base commander was out, however, and the parties were unable to resolve the matter and no further business was transacted.

12/ Mrs. Daugherty was known to be the NCO Club Union Steward. Since the Union did not have exclusive recognition at the NCO Club, she was the only "Union official" employed at the Club.

Termination Notice

On Monday, April 30, 1973, Mrs. Daugherty worked as usual. As usual, she saw Mr. Ransom during the course of the day and exchanged the normal greetings. 13/ She went home at the end of her shift -- about 2:30 or 3:00. Around 6:00 that evening, Larry Bibbich called her at home and told her that Mr. Ransom wanted her to come back down to the Club, and that it was very important. Mrs. Daugherty explained that she could not come that evening.

On Tuesday, May 1, Mrs. Daugherty traded shifts and, therefore, did not work. On Wednesday, May 2, when she reported to work, her time card was pulled. She therefore reported to Mr. Ransom's office and he attempted to give her a final notice of her termination and her paycheck. She refused to accept them and left. Mr. Ransom subsequently mailed them to her.

The reasons given for her termination were as follows:

a. Dining-In, April 6, 1973

On April 6, Mrs. Daugherty and Jackie Hurlburt were assigned to serve a Dining-In ceremony. Mrs. Daugherty testified that after dinner was finished, Helen Morton told Mrs. Daugherty to remove everything from the table. 14/ Ms. Hulbert and Mrs. Daugherty did as requested. The wine glasses later had to be replaced since the toasts continued through the evening after dinner.

The termination letter and Morton claim that Ms. Morton told Mrs. Daugherty to remove everything but the glasses. 15/

13/ Mr. Ransom testified that he normally saw Mrs. Daugherty about five times a day each day she worked.

14/ Ms. Morton claims she always gives this type of minute instructions to Mrs. Daugherty.

15/ Mr. Ransom stated that he does not recall whether or not he checked with Mrs. Daugherty as to what she was told, although he stated that his usual policy would be to talk to the employee before disciplining them.

It is undisputed, however, that Ms. Hurlbert also removed the glasses and was not disciplined in any way for it. Mrs. Daugherty was not aware of any undue inconvenience this may have caused -- it took only five minutes to replace the glasses -- and was not aware of any customer complaints. She believed she was simply following orders.

b. Trading Shifts, April 10, 1973

The second reason given for termination was trading shifts without obtaining approval first from Mrs. Morton. Allegedly, this prior approval was necessary so that no waitress would unnecessarily run into overtime.

Mrs. Daugherty testified that she traded shifts without checking first. However, she testified, as did several other employees, that they had always done this in the past; had observed others doing it; and there were never any complaints from management. The first time employees heard that they had to check first with their supervisor was when it was given as a reason for Mrs. Daugherty's termination. Further, Mr. Ransom testified that he did not know who initiated the request to trade shifts whether it was Mrs. Daugherty or the other employees involved. He did not recall if he asked Helen Morton who initiated the request; and he did not recall if he checked with Mrs. Daugherty. Neither the other employee involved in this incident nor any other employees have been disciplined for this alleged offense.

c. Busboy Remark, March 23, 1973

On March 23, 1973, just after Mrs. Daugherty had come on duty, the assistant manager asked how many busboys were on duty. Mrs. Daugherty replied that she didn't know, she wasn't being paid to be a supervisor. In her view, the remark would be taken as a joke. The assistant manager said nothing further, and did not appear to be upset. Ransom testified that he checked the incident with the assistant manager but does not recall if he checked with Mrs. Daugherty.

d. Delegating Closing Duties, April 20 and 21

The fourth reason given in the termination letter is the fact that Mrs. Daugherty, on two evenings when she was left in charge, asked another waitress to close for her. Mrs. Daugherty admits doing this, but points out that she has frequently done this in the past and had no idea anyone objected. When she did this, she stayed at the Club, went upstairs to visit friends or listened to the music, and when the Club closed, came back to check and make sure everything was in order. No one had ever objected to this practice. Moreover, Mrs. Daugherty had checked with the night manager, explained that her daughter was visiting from South Dakota, and she wanted to visit with them. He raised no objection. On the dates in question, Jackie Hurlburt closed for Mrs. Daugherty.

Mr. Ransom testified that he had no difficulty with permitting Ms. Hurlburt to close. Rather, he viewed Mrs. Daugherty's actions as insubordinate. He stated that he does not recall if he ever checked with Mrs. Daugherty as to whether or not she had actually done this, or whether she had done it in the past.

e. Failure to File Report on Busboy, April 29, 1973

The fifth reason given for her termination was her refusal to come in on her day off and write a report on busboy Michael Valadez.

According to Mrs. Daugherty, she did have a dispute with Mr. Valadez that night, but did not tell him to clock out. He clocked out on his own. Mrs. Daugherty, pursuant to usual practice, reported the incident to the night manager. Mr, Valadez had clocked out on his own before, and was not disciplined for doing this then or on April 29. Mrs. Daugherty had never written a report on any employee (as substitute supervisor); was not asked to do so by the night manager; and was not asked to do so when she reported to work on Monday, April 30.

Both Mr. Ransom and Mrs. Morton stated that, the usual procedure would be for the substitute supervisor or the supervisor to report the incident to him directly (orally), or in his absence, to the night manager who would record it in the log. Even Helen Morton does not ordinarily write-up employees. Mr. Ransom does not recall checking this incident with Mrs. Daugherty.

f. Previous Written Reprimands

The last reason given in the termination notice, in effect, incorporates by reference the previous written reprimands discussed above. The weight of the evidence indicates that the reasons given in these previous reprimands were very critical, and among the most serious reasons for Mrs. Daugherty's discharge. 16/

Ransom testified that it was his policy to pull an employee's time card when he wanted to discuss something with them. He did, in fact, pull Daugherty's time card on March 8 and on May 2 when he wanted to see Mrs. Daugherty. He further testified that it was his policy to discuss incidents with employees prior to disciplining them. In spite of these policies, the record indicates, that after March 9 Mr. Ransom made no attempt to discuss any of the incidents referred to above with Mrs. Daugherty on duty time. 17/ Mr. Ransom or his designee, did, on one or two occasions, call Mrs. Daugherty at home, these calls apparently involved requests to come in and sign disciplinary notices on her own time, rather than on Club time.

No evidence was presented to show that any other employee had ever been disciplined for any of the alleged offenses allegedly committed by Mrs. Daugherty, or for any alleged offense or mistake which would be comparable to the incidents set forth in the discharge notice. Mrs. Daugherty had worked at the Club longer than any other waitress and had an admirable work record. She was a family friend of both Helen Morton and John Ransom. In spite of this, she received no advance notice or opportunity to respond to the accusations contained in her termination letter.

16/ Mr. Ransom also testified that, in discharging Mrs. Daugherty, he relied upon her alleged failure to cooperate in scheduling sick leave. It seems that Mrs. Daugherty was out sick and was asked by Helen Morton when she would be able to return to work. Mrs. Daugherty did not know and said so. Upon cross-examination Mr. Ransom admitted he saw nothing wrong in an employee being unable to predict when they would be well enough to return to work, and indicated he did not know why he relied upon this in discharging Mrs. Daugherty.

17/ Mrs. Daugherty normally worked between 52 and 73 hours per pay period, and usually worked 6 days a week and Mr. Ransom saw her approximately 5 times a day when she worked.

3. Conduct Involving Surveillance and Other Employees

Both Linda Hull and Carol Littlefield, waitresses at the Club, testified that they were resigning because they had repeatedly been asked by John Ransom and Helen Morton to report on Sue Furfari and if Mrs. Furfari said anything about Mrs. Daugherty or the Union. Both were asked to watch Mrs. Furfari when she returned from her interview with Captain Weist and other management representatives prior to the first hearing in this case. Ms. Hull was asked by both Mr. Ransom and Ms. Morton, and Ms. Littlefield was asked by Ms. Morton. Both were told to watch Ms. Furfari and see if she made any telephone calls, or said anything after her interview.

Moreover, both Ms. Hull and Ms. Littlefield testified that Ms. Morton asked them to report on Ms. Furfari and her comments about Mrs. Daugherty or the Union frequently -- almost every night they were on duty. Both Mr. Ransom and Ms. Morton discussed the Union and Mrs. Daugherty's case with these employees and in these conversations, connected Mrs. Daugherty's discharge to her Union activities. While Mr. Ransom and Mrs. Morton appear to have avoided blatant anti-Union remarks, the connection between Mrs. Daugherty's discharge and her Union activity was specifically made.

The testimony of Mrs. Furfari's husband, Patrick Furfari, is equally significant and clearly indicates both surveillance of Sue Furfari, Mr. Patrick Furfari, Mrs. Furfari's husband, applied for a job as cashier at the NCO Club in the Spring of 1973. Mr. Ransom called him about his application and, on the phone, a discussion about unions, asking if Mr. Furfari knew anything about them. Mr. Furfari explained that he had had several university courses in labor-relations, and Mr. Ransom arranged to interview him personally that evening.

At the interview, Mr. Ransom asked Mr. Furfari if he was aware of his wife's involvement with the Union and asked if he knew she had filed affidavits concerning the Club. Mr. Ransom showed Mr. Furfari his wife's folder; and asked Mr. Furfari how he felt about his wife's involvement with the Union. Mr. Ransom asked if Mr. Furfari thought it was good or bad for Sue to be a Union member.

Mr. Furfari at no time initiated any discussion of unions, or his wife's involvement with them. Mr. Furfari never received an offer from Mr. Ransom and never was informed as to why he did not get the job.

Further, in view of the above, it is concluded that Mr. Ransom and Mrs. Morton had knowledge that Ms. Furfari was a Union member while she was employed in 1973 and well before she testified at the first hearing in July, 1974. Other known Union members were subject to disparate treatment. 18/ Velda Embree found her hours cut and she frequently written-up by Mrs. Morton. 19/

4. Conduct of Management Representatives Outside the NCO Club

It is clear from the record that Mrs. Daugherty's discharge was cleared and approved at each critical stage by higher officials at the Air Base including NCO Personnel Coordinator Joe Scheiblehofer and by the base NCO labor-relations specialist Ron Harbour. This clearance and approval included actually reading the text of the reprimands and termination notice.

5. Provisions of AFM 176-5 in AFR 123-11

Air Force Manual (AFM) 176-5 paragraph 1-4(a) provides that employees of nonappropriated funds are not Civil Service appointments and are "not covered by Civil Service Commission Regulations applicable to persons appointed in the competitive or classified service (5 U.S.C. 2105(c))."

AFM 176-5 paragraph 2-25 provides in subparagraph 6 that a NAF employee who is involuntarily separated "will be advised his right of appeal under the grievance procedure (Chapter 5 Section C)."

AFM 176-5 Chapter 5 is entitled "Employee Relations" and Section C is entitled "Employee Complaints and Grievances."

18/ While management claims to be unaware of their Union membership, their presence at labor-management meetings; the small and familiar nature of the dining room operation; the surveillance and questioning by management' and evidence that other employees either by choice or at management's request acted as informers, all believe this claim.

19/ This was at first denied by Mrs. Morton but she later acknowledged it when showed an actual copy of her write-ups.

This section then sets out grievance policies and procedures. 20/ The penultimate step of the grievance procedure provides for consideration of the grievance by the "grievance authority" which is the installation commander. The final and last step of the grievance procedure provides for appeal of the grievance authority's decision to MAJCOM. 21/

AFM 176-5 paragraph 5-3(b) provides procedures for giving an NAF employee a written reprimand. These procedures require notice of proposed action to the employee, including specific and detailed reasons; employee's opportunity to reply, and consideration of the employees reply. Then the employee is to receive a final notice which also sets forth the employee's appeal and grievance rights. Finally this paragraph also recommends that supervisors discussing employee problem with the employee in order to avoid or solve such problems.

Air Force Regulation (AFR) 123-11 deals with Civilian and Military personnel's 22/ right to use the Inspector General Complaint System." It states, as a policy that nothing requires the complainant to follow channels of command or to receive approval of a superior prior to filing a complaint with the Inspector General.

Conclusions of Law

A. Section 19(d) of the Order:

The Activity contends that Section 19(d) of the Order forecloses the consideration of the discipline and discharge of Mrs. Daugherty under the unfair labor practice procedures of the Order because, they contend, that AFM 176-5 provides an appeals procedure within the meaning of Section 19(d) of

of the Order. 23/

NAF employees are not covered by the statutory appeals systems available to most Civil Service Employees. 24/ The only procedures that were available to Mrs. Daugherty to seek review of her discipline and discharge by the NCO Club was under AFM 176-5. The question presented is whether the procedure provided in AFM 176-5 is an "appeals procedure" within the meaning of Section 19(d) of the Order, and would thus bar the consideration of Mrs. Daugherty's discipline and discharge as an unfair labor practices, as urged by the Activity, or whether it is a grievance procedure, which would not bar such consideration 25/, as urged by AFGE Local 1486.

AFM 176-5 subparagraph 5-5 is entitled "Grievance Policies and Exclusions" (emphasis added) and is specifically established for the use of NAF employees, who, it should be noted have no other appeals or grievance procedures available to them. 26/ Nothing called an appeals

23/ Section 19(d) of the Order states: "Issues which can properly be raised under an appeals procedure may not be raised under this section. Issues which can be raised under a grievance procedure may, in the discretion of the aggrieved party, be raised under that procedure or the complaint procedure under this section, but not under both procedures. Appeals or grievance decisions shall not be construed as unfair labor practice decisions under this Order nor as precedent for such decisions. All complaints under this section that cannot be resolved by the parties shall be filed with the Assistant Secretary."

24/ Cf 5U.S.C. § 2105.

25/ It is clear that Mrs. Daugherty did not attempt to utilize or invoke the procedures set forth in AFM 176-5 with respect to her being disciplined and discharged.

procedure available to NAF employees is set forth elsewhere. Rather AFM 176-5 paragraph 2-25(b) sets forth that NAF employees who have been involuntary separated "will be advised of his right to appeal under the grievance procedure (Chapter 5 Section C.)" "(Emphasis added). This does not say an appeals procedure is available, 27/ but rather it states that if the employee wishes to appeal he should follow the grievance procedure. The foregoing is really semantic exercise. The title or name attached to a procedure does not determine whether it is an "appeal" or a "grievance" procedure. Department of the Navy, Portsmouth Naval Shipyard, A/SLMR No. 508 (1975) see Footnote 10 of Administrative Law Judge's Report and Recommendation. The question is whether the procedure available is one that would fit under either the designation "appeal" or "grievance" when viewed in light of the aims and purposes of Section 19(d) of the Order. Phrased in a slightly different way the question is whether all agency grievance procedures are "appeals procedures" under Section 19(d) of the Order or can there be a distinction drawn between an agency grievance procedure and an agency appeals procedure, for Section 19(d) purposes.

In 1969, when originally adopted Section 19(d) of the Order provided that when an alleged unfair labor practice "is subject to an established grievance or appeals procedure, that procedure is the exclusive procedure for resolving the complaint." This language was reviewed and in 1971 the Study Committee issued its report and recommendations. 28/ The Study Committed proposed, changing the language of Section 19(d) to its present form. In so making this recommendation, which was adopted, the Study Committee stated:

> "Further under section 19(d) when an alleged unfair labor practice is subject to an agency grievance procedure, agency management is the final judge of its own conduct. We believe there should be an opportunity to seek third-party adjudication of any issue involving an alleged unfair labor practice. To provide this opportunity we recommend elimination of the requirement that when the issue in certain unfair labor practice complaints is subject > to a grievance procedure, that procedure is "the exclusive procedure for resolving the complaint. We propose, instead, that when an issue may be processed under either a grievance procedure or the unfair labor practice procedure, it be made optional with the aggrieved party whether to seek redress under the grievance procedure or under the unfair labor practice procedure. The selection of one procedure would be binding; the aggrieved party would not be permitted, simultaneously or sequentially, to pursue the issue under the other procedure.

> The existing rule that issues which can properly be raised under established appeals procedures may not be raised under unfair labor practice complaint procedures should be retained. Employees currently have the opportunity to seek third-party review of agency action under appeals procedures established by statute." 29/ (Emphasis Added)

From the foregoing, it is clear that the Study Committee was drawing a clear distinction between a grievance procedure 30/ and an "appeals procedure." The Study Committee made it clear that the purpose of Section 19(d) was to provide that when an alleged unfair labor practice is "subject to an agency grievance procedure, agency management is the final judge of its own conduct"... the employee should have the "opportunity to seek third party review" by utilizing the unfair labor practice procedures provided by the Order. The employee elects which procedure he wishes to pursue and then is limited to that election. However the Study Committee provided further that where there is an "opportunity to seek third party review of agency action under appeals procedures established by statute "the employee has no election and 30/ This applies to both an agency's own grievance procedure or one that has been negotiated and appears in a collective bargaining agreement.

must pursue such appeals procedures. 31/

The procedures provides in AFM 176-5 subparagraph 5-5 and 5-6 do not sufficiently provide for third party review. The procedures are pretty standard grievance procedures. However, at the initial stages the "grievance authority," in this case the base commander 32/ decides what precise procedure to use in processing the complaint, either utilizing a grievance examiner, whom he appoints, or a grievance committee, 33/ which he has a large voice in selecting. The base commander receives and reviews the report of the grievance committee a grievance examiner and then makes a written determination. Finally the base commander's determination can be appealed to the appellate authority, the major air command, in this case the Strategic Air Command, the base commander's superior. This procedure hardly meets the objective of the Study Committee of providing third party review. Until the last step of this procedure the base commander, who through his immediate staff participated in the allegedly objectionable conduct, or his subordinates, make all the important decisions, including a determination on the merits of the complaint. The appeal from this determination goes to the base commander's superior. This is still a determination by "agency management" which is exactly what the Study Committee was trying to supply an alternative to. It is concluded that this is hardly third party review and consideration. It is submitted that it might appear that a superior would try to protect and affirm a subordinate. There is no appeal to persons outside the Air Force or even outside of the chain of command. The Order was attempting to provide employees with an opportunity to receive independent, third party review of their complaints. This procedure hardly meets that aim.

31/ Assuming of course that the appeals procedures permit the consideration of the unfair labor practice issue. In the subject case it is clear that the Air Force's procedures would permit the consideration of the discrimination allegations with respect to Mrs. Daugherty's discharge.

32/ The base commander, through his immediate staff had been involved in many of the disciplinary and discharge discussions concerning Mrs. Daugherty.

33/ A three member committee, one member appointed by the grievant, one selected by the base commander, and a third agreed upon by the first two. If they cannot reach agreement the base commander appoints the third member.

The ideal form of third party review contemplated by the study committee was the type review given by the Civil Service Commission to adverse actions taken against employees of the Federal Agencies. That procedure is hardly equatable with the procedure available in the subject case.

The cases cited by the Respondent are not despositive of this issue; neither the Federal Labor Relations Council nor the Assistant Secretary have addressed themselves to this precise issue. In Veterans Administration, Veterans Benefit Office, A/SLMR No. 296 (1973) the Assistant Secretary specifically did not rule upon the Administrative Law Judge's conclusion that an appeals procedure under Section 19(d) required third party review. In the Texas Air National Guard Case, A/SLMR No. 336 (1974) the appeal was to the Adjuntant General of the Texas Air National Guard, and it was found that Section 19(d) did bar consideration of the alleged unfair labor practice. However, the "third party issue" was not discussed, rather the question of whether the alleged unfair labor practice "issue" could be raised under the appeals procedure was the issue dealt with. Further, it should be noted that that appeals procedure was statutorily set up, not by an agency's own regulations. Finally the procedure in Department of the Navy, Aviation Supply Office, A/SLMR No. 434 (1974) specifically gives the employee the choice of utilizing Civil Service Commission review, a clear third party.

In light of all of the foregoing it is concluded that the agency's own grievance procedure, which is apparently utilized for ordinary grievances, as set forth in AFM 176-5 Chapter 5, does not sufficiently provide for a third-party review as is envisioned by the scheme of Section 19(d) of the Order. 34/ Therefore, such procedure is not an "appeals procedure" within the meaning of Section 19(d) of the Order and does not bar the consideration of Mrs. Daugherty's alleged discriminatory treatment.

B. Discipline and Discharge of Mrs. Daugherty

The credited evidence in the subject case established that Mrs. Daugherty was disciplined and discharged, at least as a major cause, because she contacted AFGE Local 1486, attempted to enlist its aid and became active on its behalf.

34/ This is not meant to indicate that an agency can not set up an "appeals procedure" within the meaning of Section 19(d) of the Order. Rather such a procedure must provide for third-party review.

Although the Activity, in its two letters of reprimand (March 9 and March 19) and termination notice of April 30 set out many reasons to justify the termination of Mrs. Daugherty, they were all clearly pretexts to cover and obscure the real reasons for the discipline and discharge, to wit, Mrs. Daugherty's action in contacting and enlisting the assistance of the Union.

Mr. Ransom testified that it was his practice to meet and discuss employee short comings before taking any disciplinary action. In fact this policy is specifically prescribed in AFM 176-5. He did not meet in advance with Mrs. Daugherty to discuss any of her alleged short comings prior to taking the disciplining action. 35/ With respect to the dispute concerning the March 3 incident, Mr. Ransom had on March 8, "pulled" Mrs. Daugherty's time card to discuss this dispute whith her. However, after her visit to the IG, when she came to his office with a Union representative, Mr. Ransom would not discuss the March 3 incident with her. Although there was some testimony by Mr. Ransom that he expected Mrs. Daugherty to put her complaint in writing, before she had an opportunity to do so, and without obtaining her version of the March 3 incident, Mr. Ransom, on the very next day, issued the March 9 reprimand letter, reprimanding her for the March 3 incident.

At both the March 8 meeting and the March 9 meeting when he gave Mrs. Daugherty the reprimand, Mr. Ransom made anti-union statements.

The March 19 reprimand letter specifically states that one of the reasons Mrs. Daugherty was being reprimanded was because she went to the "base inspector" and "several other agencies." From his testimony it is clear that Mr. Ransom was referring to the Union as one of the "several other agencies." The Activity defends this by arguing that it was not the "Union qua union" that was the object of Mr. Ransom's ire. Rather, it was the fact that Mrs. Daugherty went to anyone outside of the chain of command that caused Mr. Ransom to discipline her. However, what the activity fails to perceive is that this is the very thing the Order was designed to protect employees from. The Order grants employees the right to contact labor reorganizations and to seek their assistance, and an activity can not discipline an employee for exercising this protected right.

35/ Although the failure to follow procedure might not be conclusive proof of discriminatory motivation, it is considered evidenced bad intent.

To argue that she would have been disciplined no matter whom she contacted, even if it weren't a union, is to miss the point; the right to contact a union and seek its assistance is protected by the Order, the right to contact other persons is not protected by the Order.

The short comings set forth in the termination letter are clearly pretexts to justify firing Mrs. Daugherty. The matters were not investigated; Mrs. Daugherty's versions of the incidents were never obtained; and the matters were not discussed with her before the termination notice. With respect to the trading of shifts, busboy remark, delegating of the closing and failure to file a report on a busboy, the record establishes that Mrs. Daugherty was following established practice, her superiors were advised of her anticipated conduct and she was not advised that what she planned to do was improper. With respect to the trading shifts Mr. Ransom did not ascertain which employee initiated to switch, and the other employee was neither disciplined nor advised that the switch was improper. The April 6 Dining-In incident was apparently a misunderstanding which was minor, and caused no great inconvenience. Further, it is not even clear that Mrs. Daugherty was at fault and no attempt was made to ascertain her version of the incident.

Finally, the termination letter also relied on the prior written reprimands, including the one which concerned Mrs. Daugherty's seeking out union assistance. Mr. Ransom admitted that this was a reason for the discharge.

In light of all of the foregoing and the additional evidence of anti-union animus as exhibited by the findings involving Section 19(a)(1) of the Order set forth below, it is concluded that the Activity issued the written reprimands to Mrs. Daugherty and discharged her on April 30 because she contacted, sought assistance from and was active on behalf of AFGE Local 1486. By this discriminatory treatment of Mrs. Daugherty the Activity violated Sections 19(a)(2) and (1) of the Order. 36/

36/ Even if Mrs. Daugherty's Union activity were only a cause of the discriminatory treatment, such treatment would violate the Order. c. f. U. S. Postal Service, Berwyn Post Office, Illinois, A/SLMR No. 272 (1973) and the cases cited by the Administrative Law Judge at page 17.

C. Section 19(a)(1) violations

It is concluded that the activity violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order by Mr. Ransom's anti-union remarks at the meetings of March 8 and 9. The remarks would clearly have the effect of undermining employees' confidence in the Union and would interfere with and coerce with employees' from exercising their rights guaranteed by the Order.

Similarly, the requests of both Ms. Hull and Ms. Littlefield by Mr. Ransom and Mrs. Morton that they engage in surveillance and report on Mrs. Furfari 37/ and her union activity and the statements made by Mrs. Morton and Mr. Ransom to Ms. Hull and Ms. Littlefield connecting Mrs. Daugherty's discharge to her Union Activity interfered with protected employee rights and therefore constitute violations of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

The questions asked by Mr. Ransom of Mr. Furfari, a job applicant, 38/ concerning Mrs. Furfari's Union activity and how much Mr. Furfari knew about her activities would interfere with employees' rights as guaranteed by the Order and violate Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

The March notice limiting employees rights to discuss the Union while "on duty " clearly interfere with the employees' protected rights. "On duty" refers to the employee's entire work day and not just "work time." While an employer may have a right to limit employees' conversations 37/ The complaint in the subject case originally alleged on Section 19(a)(2) violation with respect to Mrs. Furfari. On May 10, 1974, the Assistant Regional Director dismissed... "Those portions of the complaint relating to the alleged discrepant treatment of Mrs. Susie Furfari..." At the hearing before me, I ruled that evidence concerning other employees would be admitted for Section 19(a)(1) purposes, even if it involved conduct affecting Mrs. Furfari, because such conduct would interfere with those other employees' rights. No evidence would be admitted that dealt solely with Mrs. Furfari where no other employee was involved. This ruling was made because the dismissal language is not clear. The AFGE Local 1486, in its brief, asks that I reverse the ruling and consider evidence affecting only Mrs. Furfari. The Union's request is denied.

38/ For purposes of the Order a job applicant is an "employee" whose rights must be protected.

about a union while the employee is actually working, such an interference is violative of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order when it applies, as it did in this case, while the employees were on breaks. The evidence established while employees were on breaks and lunch hours, and using the "family room" there were no restrictions on what they could talk about, except this one prohibiting them from discussing the Union. This clearly violates Section 19(a)(1) of the Order. Similarly the directions, SS-0I-34-2, which prohibits employees from talking to union representatives on"duty time" unless certain procedures are followed interferes with employees' protected rights. The direction is not limited to "work time" and/or to union representatives who are not employees. This is too broad an interference with employee rights and violates Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

Recommendations

Having found that Respondent has engaged in conduct which is violative of Sections 19(a)(1) and (2) of the Order, I recommend that the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations adopt the following order designed to effectuate the purposes of Executive Order 11491.

RECOMMENDED ORDER

PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION,
UNITED STATES COAST GUARD SUPPORT CENTER, THIRD DISTRICT,
GOVERNORS ISLAND, NEW YORK
A/SLMR No. 785

This case arose when District 1, Pacific Coast District, Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, AFL-CIO (Petitioner) filed petitions seeking elections in a unit of Deckhands and Oilers as well as a unit of Masters and Chief Engineers engaged in ferryboat operations at the Activity. The Petitioner and the Activity, as well as the United Marine Division, Local 333, International Longshoremans Association, AFL-CIO (Intervenor), were in agreement as to the scope and composition of the claimed units; however the Regional Administrator issued a Notice of Hearing for the purpose of eliciting evidence on the status of certain employees who the Intervenor sought to exclude from a proposed unit of Deckhands and Oilers, and, on the status of Deckhands and Oilers who occasionally work at additional pay as Masters and Chief Engineers.

The Assistant Secretary found that the units sought were appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition and directed elections in those units. Further, he found that employees having temporary employment status pending the establishment of a Civil Service Register (Tapers) should be included in the unit of Deckhands and Oilers. Based on a lack of evidence the Assistant Secretary did not pass upon the eligibility of employees having Intermittent and Temporary status in the unit of Deckhands and Oilers. He found that Deckhands and Oilers who occasionally work as Masters and Chief Engineers should be included in the unit of Masters and Chief Engineers, and, further, that when such employees return to their normal work as Deckhands and Oilers they should be included in that unit. Accordingly, he found that such employees were eligible to vote in the election provided that their voting eligibility was determined at the time of the election in accordance with the foregoing eligibility principles.

DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTIONS

Upon petitions duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a consolidated hearing was held before Hearing Officer Eleanore S. Goldberg. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in these cases, the Assistant Secretary finds:

1. The labor organizations involved claim to represent certain employees of the Activity.

1/ The name of the Activity appears as amended at the hearing.
2/ The name of the Intervenor appears as amended at the hearing.

2. In Case No. 30-6623(RO), the Petitioner, District 1, Pacific Coast District, Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, AFL-CIO, seeks an election in a unit of all Deckhands and Oilers engaged in Governors Island ferryboat operations at the U.S. Coast Guard Support Center, Third District, New York, excluding employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, confidential employees, supervisors as defined in the Order, and employees who do not perform ferryboat operating duties. In Case No. 30-6676(RO), the same Petitioner seeks an election in a unit of Masters and Chief Engineers engaged in Governors Island ferryboat operations at the U.S. Coast Guard Support Center, Third District, New York, excluding employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, confidential employees, other supervisors as defined in the Order, and employees who do not perform ferryboat operating duties.

At the hearing, the parties were in agreement generally as to the scope and composition of the claimed units and stipulated that a separate supervisory unit of Masters and Chief Engineers and a separate nonsupervisory unit of Deckhands and Oilers would be appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition. However, the Regional Administrator issued an order consolidating the instant cases and a Notice of Hearing, in part, for the purpose of eliciting evidence on the status of certain employees who the Intervenor, United Marine Division, Local 333, International Longshoremans Association, AFL-CIO, seeks to exclude from the claimed nonsupervisory unit and on the status of certain Deckhands and Oilers who occasionally work as Masters and Chief Engineers at additional pay who the Intervenor seeks to include in the claimed supervisory unit herein. Contrary to the Intervenor, the Petitioner and the Activity contend that the proposed exclusions from the nonsupervisory unit are unwarranted, and the Activity contends that Deckhands and Oilers who occasionally work as Masters and Chief Engineers should be included in the claimed nonsupervisory unit. 3/

The record discloses that the Activity operates three diesel-electric ferryboats on a rotating tour of duty transporting passengers and vehicles between Governors Island, New York and Manhattan. On November 25, 1966, under Executive Order 10988, the Activity granted exclusive recogntion to the Intervenor, which, at that time, was 3/ With respect to the proposed supervisory unit, it should be noted that Section 24, paragraph 2 of the Order, states: "This Order does not preclude...(2) the renewal, continuation, or initial according of recognition for units of management officials or supervisors represented by labor organizations which historically or traditionally represent the management officials or supervisors in private industry and which hold exclusive recognition for units of such officials or supervisors in any agency on the date of this Order." The evidence establishes that the Petitioner and the Intervenor are essentially maritime unions which represent supervisors in private industry and hold, or have held, exclusive recognition in the Federal sector for such supervisory personnel.

affiliated with the National Maritime Union, AFL-CIO (NMU), for a mixed unit of ferryboat operating personnel, including Masters, Chief Engineers, Deckhands and Oilers. Thereafter, on January 17, 1972, under Executive Order 11491, the Intervenor was certified as the exclusive representative of:

> "Supervisory ferryboat operating personnel engaged in the Governors Island ferryboat operation, including full-time Masters and Chief Engineers, but excluding nonsupervisory ferryboat operating personnel, Deckhands and Oilers, and Deckhands and Oilers who occasionally perform Masters and Chief Engineer duties on additional pay assignments. Also excluded are supervisory personnel and management officials of the Activity not performing ferryboat operating duties."

The record reveals that employees in the claimed supervisory unit are subject to special pilotage and license requirements and that in order to maintain ferryboat operations at the Activity some 48 civilian employees are utilized on a three shift watch, seven days a week. The crew complement includes: 7 Masters, 6 Chief Engineers, 14 Oilers, and 21 Deckhands. In this regard, the record reveals that 6 Oilers and 2 Deckhands are full-time employees having temporary employment status pending the establishment of a Civil Service Register (Tapers); 1 Oiler is a part-time employee without a regular tour of duty and is classified as Intermittent (Intermittent); and 1 Deckhand is a full-time temporary employee with a time limitation (Temporary).

Under all of the circumstances, and noting particularly the agreement of the parties as to the scope of the units sought and the fact that they conform substantially to the units represented by the Intervenor, I find that the claimed separate units of Deckhands and Oilers and Masters and Chief Engineers are appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition as the employees involved share a clear and identifiable community of interest and such units will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations.

As noted above, certain eligibility questions were raised herein. Thus, there is disagreement among the parties with regard to the inclusion in the nonsupervisory unit of Tapers, Intermittents and Temporaries, as well as of Deckhands and Oilers who occasionally work as Masters and Chief Engineers at extra pay.

TAPERS

As of February 26, 1976, the Activity had eight employees on Taper assignments, 6 Oilers and 2 Deckhands. Such appointments were made because there were insufficient eligibles on Civil Service Registers for filling vacancies for ferryboats operations. The record reveals that Taper appointments are full-time positions without time limitations and that employees who are Tapers have their appointments converted to career employment within 90 days after three years of service. In this connection, the record shows that of the employees currently engaged in ferryboat operations at the Activity seven career employees were Tapers at one time and that employees with Taper assignments often reach career status prior to three years of service. Moreover, employees with Taper assignments have the same supervision, job skills, work duties, health benefits, life insurance, and are subject to the identical maritime pay scale and special overtime wages as other career ferryboat employees. Under these circumstances, I find that employees with Taper assignments have a reasonable expectancy of continued employment for a substantial period of time, and I shall include them in the nonsupervisory unit of Deckhands and Oilers found appropriate. 4/

INTERMITTENTS and TEMPORARIES

The Intervenor seeks to exclude from the claimed nonsupervisory unit employees having Intermittent and Temporary appointments, whereas the Petitioner and the Activity seek to have such employees included in the aforementioned unit. The record indicates that employees with Intermittent status are part-time employees who may work from 8 to 64 hours per week and are subject to irregular tours of duty. Employees who have Intermittent status work on an "as needed" basis and do not enjoy the same life insurance, health benefits and leave accrual as other ferryboat employees. While the record indicates that the Activity began to hire Intermittents in 1967 or 1968, little or no evidence appears in the record as to the current status of Intermittent employees or their continued expectancy for future employment. Similarly, while the record demonstrates that employees having Temporary status appointments have been occasionally used as summer replacements for career ferryboat employees and that Temporaries may hold their appointment status for six months to one year, insufficient evidence was adduced at the hearing regarding whether or not employees holding Temporary status appointments have a reasonable expectancy of future employment or as to their current employment status. Under these circumstances, I conclude that there is insufficient evidence on which to determine the eligibility of employees having Intermittent and Temporary status. Accordingly, I make no findings in this regard. 5/

DECKHANDS AND OILERS WHO OCCASIONALLY WORK AS MASTERS AND CHIEF ENGINEERS

The record reflects that since 1971 Deckhands and Oilers who hold pilotage endorsements and U.S. Coast Guard licenses have occasionally worked as Masters and Chief Engineers at additional pay and that this situation is likely to continue in the future. In this regard, the evidence reveals that Deckhands who have appropriate pilotage endorsements have worked as Masters at the Activity's ferryboat operations from 4 to 55 days per year since 1971 and that Oilers with U.S. Coast Guard licenses have worked as Chief Engineers from 4 to 177 days during the same time period. Moreover, the record shows that when Deckhands and 5/While I have made no finding as to the eligibility of employees having Intermittent or Temporary status in the claimed nonsupervisory unit, such employees may, of course, vote subject to challenge.

Oilers work as Masters and Chief Engineers, they utilize the same skills, receive the same pay, perform the same jobs, and are subject to identical working conditions as other Masters and Chief Engineers, and that the senority accrued for watches and leave as Masters or Chief Engineers is not transferable to the Deckhand and Oiler categories. Similarly, when such employees return to their regular Deckhand and Oiler positions their jobs and working conditions are identical to other Deckhands and Oilers. Under these circumstances, I find that Deckhands and Oilers who work occasionally as Masters and Chief Engineers should be included in the claimed supervisory unit found appropriate during those periods when they work in such capacities, and, further, that when such employees return to their normal work as Deckhands and Oilers they should be included in the nonsupervisory unit found appropriate herein. Accordingly, such employees will be eligible to vote in the election to be held herein, with the provision that their voting eligibility should be determined at the time of the election in accordance with the above stated eligibility principles. 6/

Based on all of the foregoing, I find that the following employees constitute units appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under Executive Order 11491, as amended:

All Deckhands and Oilers engaged in Governors Island ferryboat operations at the U.S. Coast Guard Support Center, Third District, New York, excluding employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, confidential employees, supervisors as defined in the Order, and employees who do not perform ferryboat operations.

All Masters and Chief Engineers engaged in Governors Island ferryboat operations at the U.S. Coast Guard Support Center, Third District, New York, excluding employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, confidential employees, other supervisors as defined in the Order, and employees who do not perform ferryboat operations.

DIRECTION OF ELECTIONS

Elections by secret ballot shall be conducted among employees in the units found appropriate, as early as possible, but no later than 60 days from the date below. The appropriate Area Administrator shall supervise the elections, subject to the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. Eligible to vote are those in the units who were employed during the payroll period immediately preceding the date below, including employees who did not work during that period because they were out ill or on vacation or on furlough, including those in the military service who appear in person at the polls. Ineligible to vote are employees who have quit or were discharged for cause since the designated payroll period and who have not been rehired or reinstated before the election date. Those eligible shall vote whether they desire to be represented for the purpose of exclusive recognition by District 1, Pacific Coast District, Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, AFL-CIO; by the United Marine Division, Local 333, International Longshoremans Association, AFL-CIO; or by neither.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

UNITED STATES AIR FORCE, VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE,
CALIFORNIA
A/SLMR No. 786

This case involved an unfair labor practice filed by the National Federation of Federal Employees, Local 1001 (Complainant) alleging, in substance, that the Respondent, Vandenberg Air Force Base, violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order by reprimanding an employee because he circulated a union authorization petition and by placing the employee on sick leave indefinitely, after he had injured his back, in retaliation for his union activity. At the hearing, the Complainant was permitted to amend the complaint to include Section 19(a)(2) and (4) allegations based upon Respondent's having placed the employee on sick leave and its subsequent processing of that employee's disability discharge.

The Administrative Law Judge found that the Respondent's conduct was violative of Section 19(a)(1) because the reprimand was, in fact, issued in response to the employee's solicitation. He also concluded that the Respondent further violated Section 19(a)(1) when a supervisor questioned the employee regarding his solicitation shortly after the reprimand was given. With respect to the Complainant's contention that the Respondent's actions in placing the employee on sick leave and processing his disability discharge were violative of the Order, the Administrative Law Judge found that such actions were motivated by the Respondent's desire not to aggravate an injury the employee had incurred while on the job and were, therefore, not violative of Section 19(a)(1) and (2).

The Assistant Secretary adopted the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge but noted the latter's inadvertent failure to indicate that he had permitted an amendment of the complaint to include a Section 19(a)(4) allegation or to make a specific finding with respect to such allegation based upon the Respondent's actions in placing the employee on sick leave and processing his disability discharge. However, as it was clear from a reading of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order that he intended to dismiss the Section 19(a)(4) allegation, and as the record did not support such allegation, the Assistant Secretary found that the dismissal of the Section 19(a)(4) allegation was warranted.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the Respondent cease and desist from the conduct found violative of the Order and that it take certain affirmative actions.

DECISION AND ORDER

On October 29, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Samuel A. Chaitovitz issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it take certain affirmative actions as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. No exceptions were filed to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, and noting particularly that no exceptions were filed, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations. 1/

1/ While permitting an amendment of the complaint at the hearing to include Section 19(a)(2) and (4) allegations based upon the Respondent's having placed employee Clovis Rains on sick leave and its subsequent processing of Rains' disability discharge, the Administrative Law Judge inadvertently failed to indicate that he had permitted an amendment of the complaint to include a Section 19(a)(4) allegation or make a specific recommendation with respect to such allegation. However, as it is clear from a reading of his Recommended Decision and Order that the Administrative Law Judge intended to dismiss the Section 19(a)(4) allegation, and as the record does not support such allegation, I find that dismissal is warranted.

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the United States Air Force, Vandenberg Air Force Base, California, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Reprimanding Clovis Rains, or any other employee, because of his activity on behalf of Local 1001, National Federation of Federal Employees, or any other labor organization.

(b) Interrogating employees concerning their activities on behalf of Local 1001, National Federation of Federal Employees, or any other labor organization.

(c) In any like or related manner interfering with, restraining, or coercing employees in the exercise of rights protected by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purposes and policies of the Executive Order:

(a) Remove the September 11, 1975, reprimand from the personnel file of Clovis Rains.

(b) Post at all its facilities at the Officers' Club copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms they shall be signed by the Vandenberg Air Force Base Officers' Club Manager, and shall be posted and maintained by him for 60 consecutive days thereafter, in conspicuous places, including all bulletin boards and other places where notices to employees are customarily posted. The Officers' Club Manager shall take reasonable steps to insure that such notices are not altered, defaced, or covered by any other material.

(c) Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations, notify the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations, in writing, within 30 days from the date of this order as to what steps have been taken to comply herewith.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the complaint, insofar as it alleges violation of Section 19(a)(2) and (4) of the Order be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This proceeding arises under Executive Order 11491, as amended, herein called the Order. On November 10, 1975 a complaint was filed by Local 1001, National Federation of Federal Employees, hereinafter called the Union or Local 1001 NFFE, alleging that United States Air Force, Non-Appropriated Fund, Vandenberg Air Force Base, hereinafter called the Activity, violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (2) of the Order. The complaint specifically alleged that the Activity violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (2) of the Order by reprimanding employee Clovis Rains because Mr. Rains had been soliciting signatures of employees on a petition requesting a representation election on behalf of Local 1001 NFFE. The complaint further specified that, on November 5, 1975 Mr. Rains, after injurying his back at work, was placed on sick leave indefinitely in retaliation for his union activity.

The Regional Administrator, by letter dated May 11, 1976 partially dismissed the complaint. In his letter the Regional Administrator stated that he was dismissing the Section 19(a)(2) allegation because it concluded based on California National Guard, A/SLMR No. 348, that a reprimand for soliciting signatures is not a violation of Section 19(a)(2). The letter stated further that the Section 19(a)(1) allegations were not affected. The Union did not appeal this partial dismissal. Pursuant to the Rules and Regulations of the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor Management Relations, herein called the Assistant Secretary, a Notice of Hearing on Complaint with respect to the allegations that Section 19(a)(1) of the Order was violated was issued on June 14, 1976 by the Regional Administrator for the San Francisco Region.

A hearing was held before the undersigned in Santa Maria, California. Both parties were represented at the hearing and were afforded full opportunity to adduce evidence, call, examine and cross-examine witnesses and argue orally. Both parties have filed briefs which have been duly considered.

Upon the entire record in this matter, 1/ including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions of law and recommendation.

1. Clovis Rains was at all times material herein an employee of the Officers' Club located on the Vandenberg Air Force Base.

2. Mr. Rains first came to work at the Officers' Club in 1970 as a busboy and then dishwasher. About a year later in the latter part of 1971, he became a janitor and at some time subsequent, during 1973, he became janitor foreman. In 1975, in addition to Mr. Rains, there were two other janitors, one worked days and one was on the night shift.

3. As janitor foreman, Mr. Rains did not hire or fire employees; he did not appraise or evaluate employees; he did not interview prospective employees; he did not set the hours or schedule hours of work; he did not approve annual or sick leave; he did not reward or discipline employees; and he did not effectively recommend any of the foregoing. He worked the day shift and he would look over party plans and setups when he reported for work. Hw would then decide how the tables were to be setup and direct the other day janitor in making these special party arrangements. This work assignment was merely a form of work division and was rather routine work. Mr. Rains would also work setting up these party setups and spent most of his time performing the usual janitorial duties. He did not in any way assign work or direct the night janitor.

4. Sometime prior to July 1, 1975 Mr. Rains was called into the office of Captain Wesley M. Bitters, who was then Officer's Club Manager, and who informed Mr. Rains that as of July 1, 1975, and for a period of 90 days, Mr. Rains would no longer be the janitor foreman.

1/ A deposition of Jeffrey Scott Brown was taken by the parties subsequent to the close of the hearing herein and has been submitted into evidence. Mr. Brown's deposition is herby marked Joint Exhibit No. 1, received into evidence and made part of the record in this matter.

5. As of July 1 Mr. Rains in fact no longer assigned any work to the other janitors, on occasion was assigned to the night shift by himself and by September 1975 there was only one other janitor in addition to Mr. Rains, and Mr. Rains did not to any extent supervise him.

6. Prior to September 1975 Mr. Rains had received at least one award for his good work, Employee of the Quarter in 1974, he had received no reprimands and was apparently considered a good worker by his supervisors.

7. During 1975 there were about 44 employees in the Officers' Club, not including the office staff.

8. During the latter part of August 1975 Mr. Rains began soliciting signatures from employees on a petition on behalf of Local 1001 NFFE. He solicited these signatures during the work day, but during coffee, lunch and other "breaks."

9. On or about September 9, 1975 Mr. Rains was at the Officers' Club at about 5:30 a.m., before his starting time of about 6:00 a.m. On that day Airman Joseph Garwick, an employee of the Vandenberge, Noncommissioned Officers' Club arrived at the Officers' Club at about 5:30 a.m. and was admitted by Mr. Rains. 2/ Mr. Rains and Mr. Garwick sat down in the dining room and had coffee together; they sat there about 15 minutes. Mr. Garwick then left to look for Captain Bitters and Mr. Rains clocked in at about 6:00 a.m. After being unable to find Captain Bitters, Mr. Garwick went to the lounge and sat and had some hot chocolate. During this period of time Mr. Rains was working; he was mopping up the bar. 3/ While Mr. Garwick sat drinking his chocolate he saw Captain Bitters pass by. Upon finishing his hot chocolate Mr. Garwick went looking for Captain Bitters but could not then locate him.

2/ Mr. Garwick was there to see Captain Bitters to explore the possibility of transferring of some employees between the Officers' Club and the Noncommissioned Officers' Club.

10. During the morning of September 9, Captain Bitters, after having received complaints that the restrooms were dirty, told Mr. Rains to clean the restrooms. Subsequently the restrooms were apparently either not cleaned or not adequately cleaned.

11. During the morning of September 9, before lunch, Mr. Rains was ordered to go with warehouseman Manuel Cuellar to the commissary to pick up supplies. The supplies were apparently delayed. Mr. Cueller was instructed to return to the Officers' Club and Mr. Rains was to wait for the supplies. Mr. Rains remained at the commissary, picked up the supplies and delivered them to the Officers' Club's warehouse. By the time he had finished running his errands, it was quitting time and Mr. Rains clocked out.

12. On or about September 9 or 10 Mr. Rains solicited a the signature of Mr. Jeff Brown, a bus boy, in the Local 1001 NFFE, while Mr. Brown was on a coffee break. Head Chef and Kitchen Manager Mal Gaudin observed this.

13. Mr. Gaudin, soon after Mr. Brown signed the petition, told Mr. Brown that he could lose his job for signing the union petition. Later that same evening Captain Aanstad and Mal Gaudin asked Mr. Brown what the petition was about, who was circulating it and who else had signed it.

14. During September 9th and 10th, Captain Bitters advised Captain Aanstad that Mr. Rains had not adequately cleaned up the restrooms on September 9th and had been seen talking to Mr. Garwick. Captain Bitters did not either first consult with Mr. Rains, or Sargeant Mackle before reporting these shortcomings to Captain Aanstead. 4/

15. Mr. Rains was called into Captain Aanstad's office on September 11. Captain Bitters and Sargeant Mackle were present. For two hours or so work schedules were discussed. Then Mr. Rains was given a letter of reprimand signed by Captain Aanstad reprimanding Mr. Rains for not cleaning up the restrooms and for loafing for 30 minutes with Mr. Garwick, both allegedly occuring on September 9, 1976.

16. Sometime after this Mr. Gaudin asked Mr. Rains how many people he had signed up on the union petition.

17. Apparently during September 1975 Mr. Rains received an on the job injury and went on sick leave. He returned to work on October 9, 1975 after two weeks sick leave and presented a doctor's note stating that he could return to work but that permanently he should avoid excessive stooping and bending and should not lift more than 50 pounds. Mr. Rains then went on two weeks vacation.

18. Upon returning to work on about November 5, Mr. Rains returned to work and received notification that he was being placed on sick leave. By memorandum dated November 6, 1975 Mr. Rains was advised that the Activity was considering separating him for disability based on the above described doctor's note.

19. The Union on behalf of Mr. Rains opposed this action and by memorandum dated November 17, 1975 the Activity advised Mr. Rains that he was being separated for disability as of a date in the future. Such separation was cancelled by a personnel action dated December 23, 1975.

4/ Captain Bitters had been the Officers' Club Manager during 1975 until September 1. On September 1 Captain Aanstad became the Club Manager. Sargeant Mackle, on Septemberl, became the Officers' Club's operations manager and as such Mr. Rains immediate superior. Captain Bitters stayed on after September 1 as a type of consultant.

20. In January 1976 Mr. Rains was cleared by a doctor to return to work and he was permitted to return to work in mid January 1976.

Conclusions of Law

1. At the hearing the Union was permited to amend the complaint so as to add the allegation that the Activity violated Section 19(a)(2) of the Order because it allegedly placed Mr. Rains on sick leave and attempted to separate him for his disability because of his union activity. Such amendment was permitted because the treatment of Mr. Rains was the subject of the complaint and the Section 19(a)(2) allegation was dismissed by the Regional Administrator from the original complaint only with respect to the September 11 reprimand. Permitting such amendment did not involve any proof of additional facts or incidents. 5/ The Union was not permitted to amend the complaint to allege that the treatment of Mr. Brown and other employees also violated the Order, because such incidents, which occurred in many instances before the instant complaint was filed, were separate incidents and were not included within the language of the complaint. Further, the complaint was quite specific in that it only dealt with the treatment of Mr. Rains. It would have been improper to permit an amendment to raise totally different incidents and allegations.

2. Mr. Rains was not a supervisor within the meaning of the Order either prior to or subsequent to July 1, 1975. The only possible supervisory duties Mr. Rains exercised involved the assignment of setting up parties, but this apparently involved only routine work and was more in the nature of the type of duties of every lead man or senior man. After July 1, Mr. Rains didn't even have this routine duty.

5/ The Activity was advised that it could request additional time to present its case if it felt the amendment would require it. The Activity did not request any additional time.

3. Mr. Rains' conduct during late August and early September 1975 in soliciting signatures in support of Local 1001 NFFE is conduct protected by the Order.

4. The Activity through its supervisors became aware that Mr. Rains was engaging in the above described conduct protected by the Order.

5. It is concluded that the Activity violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order because it gave Mr. Rains the reprimand on September 11, 1975 because he had engaged in the above described protected activity. It is further concluded that the reasons for the reprimand, as set forth therein, were pretextual in nature. This conclusion was reached based on Mr. Rains' past good work history; on the facts that Mr. Rains was not consulted, questioned or warned prior to this rather drastic act; that a supervisor had in fact put Mr. Rains in a position so that he was not available to clean the rest-rooms; that Mr. Rains had not in fact been loafing; that no investigation had been conducted; that the punishment was very severe for a first offense; that the Activity knew of Mr. Rains' activity and the reprimand occurred soon after such discovery was made; and, as found, the Activity's representatives engaged in conduct, such as the statements to Mr. Brown, which showed its anti-union animus.

6. It is concluded that the Activity engaged in conduct which violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order when Mr. Guadin questioned Mr. Rains about the petition. Such conduct would, by its very nature, interfer with employees exercising of rights guaranteed by the Order and would thus violate Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

7. It is concluded that the record does not establish that Mr. Rains was placed on sick leave and then processed for disability separation, because he engaged in the activity protected by the Order. Rather the record establishes that he was so treated because of the letter from his own doctor and the Activity's desire not to aggravate his injury. When it became apparent Mr. Rains was not injured seriously, he returned to work. Therefore, it is concluded that the Activity did not violate Section 19(a)(1) and (2) of the Order by tis placing Mr. Rains on sick leave and processing him for disability separation.

8. In view of all of the above, therefore it is concluded that Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order but did not violate Section 19(a)(2) of the Order.

In light of the foregoing, I therefore recommend adoption of the Order set forth below:

RECOMMEND ORDER

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

UNITED STATES ARMY TRAINING CENTER
ENGINEER AND FORT LEONARD WOOD
A/SLMR No. 787

This case arose as a result of an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the National Federation of Federal Employees, Local 738 (NFFE) alleging, essentially, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1), (2) and (6) of the Order in denying an employee's request for union representation at a meeting with management held on November 19, 1974, and by not permitting the NFFE to be represented at such meeting which was called for the purpose of delivering to the employee involved a notice of proposed suspension.

The Administrative Law Judge recommended dismissal of the complaint on the basis that the Respondent was not required to afford the Complainant an opportunity to be represented at the November 19, 1974, meeting, as such meeting was not a "formal discussion" within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order because it dealt solely with the individual conduct of the employee involved and the consequential measures to be taken against him alone. He found further that the Respondent did not violate Section 19(a)(2) of the Order because there was nothing in the record to indicate any discrimination based on an anti-union attitude on the part of the Respondent or discrimination which might have had an adverse effect on the Complainant.

The Assistant Secretary deferred his decision in the subject case pending the Federal Labor Relations Council's Statement on Major Policy Issue concerning representation rights of employees under the Order. The Council's statement was issued on December 2, 1976.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations with respect to the alleged Section 19(a)(1) and (6) violation of the Order and, consistent with the major policy statement by the Council, ordered that the allegations be dismissed. Regarding the alleged Section 19(a)(2) violation, he found that the issue of discrimination was not properly before the Administrative Law Judge because of the failure of the Complainant to include in its complaint specific allegations of discriminatory action previously contained in the pre-complaint charge. Accordingly, he concluded that dismissal of the Section 19(a)(2) allegation on this basis was warranted.

DECISION AND ORDER

On January 29, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Robert J. Feldman issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had not engaged in the unfair labor practices alleged in the complaint and recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. Thereafter, the Complainant filed exceptions with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

On July 6, 1976, the Assistant Secretary informed the Complainant and the Respondent that it would effectuate the purposes and policies of the Order to defer his decision in the subject case pending the Federal Labor Relations Council's (Council) resolution of a major policy issue which has general application to the Federal Labor-Management Relations program.

> Does an employee in a unit of exclusive recognition have a protected right under the Order to assistance (possibly including personal representation) by the exclusive representative when he is summoned to a meeting or interview with agency management, and, if so, under what circumstances may such a right be exercised?

On December 2, 1976, the Council issued its Statement on Major Policy Issue, FLRC No. 75P-2, Report No. 116, finding, in pertinent part, that:

> 1. An employee in a unit of exclusive recognition has a protected right under the last sentence of Section 10(e) of the Order to the assistance or representation by the exclusive representative, upon the request of the employee, when he is summoned to a formal discussion with management concerning grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions of employees in the unit; and
> 2. An employee in a unit of exclusive recognition does not have a protected right under the Order to assistance or representation at a nonformal investigative meeting or interview to which he is summoned by management; but such right may be established through negotiations conducted by the exclusive representative and the agency in accordance with Section 11(a) of the Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, including the Complainant's exceptions, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations, except as modified below.

The complaint alleged essentially that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1), (2) and (6) of the Order by denying an employee's request for union representation at a meeting with management held on November 19, 1974, and by not permitting the Complainant to be represented at such meeting which was called for the purpose of delivering to the employee involved a notice of proposed suspension.

The Administrative Law Judge found, and I agree, that the Respondent was not required to afford the Complainant an opportunity to be represented at the November 19, 1974 meeting, as such meeting was not a "formal discussion" within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order because it dealt solely with the individual conduct of the employee involved and the consequential measures to be taken against him alone. Under these circumstances, and for the reasons set forth by the Council in FLRC No. 75P-2, I agree that the denial of representation at the nonformal meeting herein did not constitute a violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

The Administrative Law Judge found further that the Respondent did not violate Section 19(a)(2) of the Order because there was nothing in the record to indicate any discrimination based on an anti-union attitude on the part of the Respondent or discrimination which might have had an adverse effect on the Complainant. In my view, the allegation of discrimination against the subject employee was not properly encompassed within the scope of the instant complaint and, therefore, was not properly before the Administrative Law Judge. Thus, while the pre-complaint charge in this matter alleged discriminatory motivation as a basis for the Respondent's issuance of a notice of proposed suspension to the employee involved herein, the instant complaint omitted such allegation as a basis for violation. It has been held previously that in the processing of an unfair labor practice case the failure of a complainant to include in its complaint specific allegations of unfair labor practices previously contained in a pre-complaint charge, as occurred in the instant case, will be considered to be attributable to the parties' informal resolution of those matters. 1/ Accordingly, dismissal of the Section 19(a)(2) allegation on this basis was considered warranted.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the complaint in Case No. 62-4271(CA) be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This case arises under the provisions of Executive Order 11491 (hereinafter called the Order). The complaint, filed December 31, 1974, alleged violations of Sections 19(a)(1),(2), (5) and (6). On May 23, 1975,the Assistant Regional Director for Labor-Management Services, Kansas City, Missouri, dismissed so much of the complaint as alleged a violation of Section 19(a)(5). On June 16, 1975, the Regional Administrator issued a notice of hearing on the remaining allegations.

The issues tendered for determination are: whether the Respondent committed an unfair labor practice under Sections 19(a)(1) or (6) of the Order in not permitting the Complainant Union to be represented at a meeting between management and an employee called for the purpose of delivering to the employee a notice of proposed suspension; and whether such disciplinary action discouraged membership in the union by discrimination in violation of Section 19(a)(2).

Pursuant to the notice of hearing above referred to, the undersigned held a hearing in this matter on August 21, 1975, at Building 1842, Fort Leonard Wood Army Post, Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri. Both parties were represented by counsel at the hearing, were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to adduce evidence and to examine and cross-examine witnesses. Thereafter, counsel for the respective parties filed briefs, which have been duly considered.

Upon the entire record in this case, from my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, and from all of the testimony and evidence adduced at the hearing, I make the findings of fact, reach the conclusions of law, and submit the recommendation set forth below.

1. At all pertinent times, the Complainant, National Federation of Federal Employees, Local 738, has represented a unit composed of all civilian GS non-supervisory personnel at Fort Leonard Wood, with the exception of commissary store and fire-fighter employees.

2. Floyd G. Sullivan, a member of the Complainant Union, has been employed by the Respondent for some nine years, and during the year 1974, his position was that of housing inspector.

3. In or about the month of July, 1974, Sullivan, on behalf of himself and other housing inspectors, brought a complaint to Louis Brinegar, his immediate supervisor, concerning alleged discomfort or possible physical harm resulting from the use of an insecticide spray in the premises under inspection.

4. When the complaint failed to produce any definitive results, Sullivan filed a formal grievance in accordance with prevailing procedures. When meetings with Brinegar did not result in agreement, the grievance was carried to the second step, and several meetings were held during the month of August, 1974, with

Marion D. Summerford, Chief of the Housing Division, and other management representatives. Subsequently, the grievance was carried to the third step in which it was requested that the proceedings be reviewed by the Post Commander.

5. Throughout the above-described grievance procedure, Sullivan was reprsented by Mrs. Dolores Willis, who was chief steward of Local 738 until October, 1974, when she became president of that Local.

6. In or about the month of October, 1974, Sullivan was advised that the civilian personnel office was conducting an inquiry pertaining to some improper statements alleged to have been made by him in reference to certain fellow employees and/or managerial personnel. In connection therewith, he and Mrs. Willis were permitted to examine some reports or supporting statements obtained for possible use in disciplinary action.

7. During the morning of November 19, 1974, Brinegar informed Sullivan that Summerford wanted to see him in his (Summerford's) office at 1:15 that afternoon. Sullivan requested that he have representation at the meeting and Brinegar indicated that there would be no objection. Sullivan was unable to reach Mrs. Willis, however, since she was on leave that day, and he asked Brinegar to postpone the meeting until the following morning. On his return from lunch, Brinegar told Sullivan that Summerford had ordered both of them to report immediately to Summerford's office.

8. At the meeting in Summerford's office on November 19, 1974, at about 1:15 p.m., there were present four management representatives: Summerford; Harold Cook of the Civilian Personnel Office; Douglas Harvey, Housing Project Manager and Sullivan's second-line supervisor; and Brinegar. Sullivan again requested that he have Union representation, but was informed by Cook that such representation would not be necessary.

9. At this meeting, Sullivan was handed a letter dated November 19, 1974, signed by Summerford, informing Sullivan that it was proposed to suspend him for a period of three working days for failure to meet the standards of conduct expected of Federal employees in that he had made certain oral threats and malicious or offensive statements about named employees and officials of the Respondent on six specified occasions in September and October, 1974. The letter (Res. Exh. B) further advised Sullivan of his rights to protest the proposed action and the procedural requirements in connection therewith.

10. Sullivan was given time to read the letter and then was asked by Cook whether he understood the procedure and whether he had any questions. Sullivan responded to the effect that he understood the letter, but would ask no questions in the absence of a Union representative, and he declined to endorse an acknowledgement of receipt of the letter at the foot of a copy thereof.

11. Except as above stated, no discussion of any matter took place at the meeting of November 19, 1974.

12. At a meeting held in connection with the insecticide spray grievance held on August 29, 1974, Brinegar called the inspectors present (including Sullivan) "little peons". Mrs. Willis brought this incident to Summerford's attention, but no action was taken against Brinegar.

Conclusions of Law

In considering whether an unfair labor practice arises from the foregoing facts, it should be noted that pursuant to Information Announcement dated May 9, 1975, the Federal Labor Relations Council has under consideration the following major policy issue having general application to the Federal Labor-Management Relations Program:

> Does an employee in a unit of exclusive recognition have a protected right under the Order to assistance (possibly including personal representation) by the exclusive representative when he is summoned to a meeting or interview with agency management, and, if so, under what circumstances may such a right be exercised?

Since the Council has not yet promulgated a major policy statement on that issue, we are perforce guided by prevailing decisions of the Assistant Secretary interpreting or applying the provisions of Section 10(e) of the Order, the last sentence of which reads as follows:

> The labor organization shall be given the opportunity to be represented at formal discussions between management and employees or employee representatives concerning grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions of employees in the unit.

It has been held that the above section establishes a concomitant right running to all employees in a unit and that the denial of an employee's request for union representation made during the formal discussion of one of the matters specified constitutes a violation of Section 19(a)(1). U.S. Department of the Army, Transportation Motor Pool, Ft. Wainwright, Alaska, A/SLMR No. 278. The Assistant Secretary has further held, however, that there is no violation of Sections 19(a)(1) or (6) where a union representative is not given the opportunity to participate in a meeting called for the purpose of talking over with an employee an individual problem such as his conduct, his performance rating, or contemplated disciplinary action against him, as distinguished from formal discussions of grievances, personnel policies, or general working conditions. Department of Defense, National Guard Bureau, Texas Air National Guard, A/SLMR No. 336; Federal Aviation Administration, National Aviation Facilities, Experimental Center, Atlantic City, New Jersey, A/SLMR No. 438; Department of the Navy, Norfolk Naval Shipyard, A/SLMR No. 548.

In the instant case, it is clear from the evidence that such conversation as took place at the meeting of November 19, 1974, was confined to the purported statements referred to in the letter delivered to Sullivan at the time and to the proposed disciplinary action based thereon. The conference on that date might reasonably be characterized as a "formal discussion" by reason of the setting in which it was held, the surplusage of management personnel present, and the gravity of the action under consideration. Nevertheless, no facts were adduced that would establish, or even that would sustain a reasonable inference, that it was in any way related to the insecticide spray grievance or any other grievance. The meeting dealt solely with Sullivan's individual conduct and the consequential measures to be taken against him alone. No personnel policies or practices nor any other matters affecting general working conditions were involved. I therefore conclude that the Respondent was not required to give the Union an opportunity to be represented at the meeting of November 19, 1974, pursuant to Section 10(e), and that there was no violation of Sections 19(a)(1) or (6) in its failure to provide such opportunity.

The Complainant bases its allegation of a violation of Section 19(a)(2) upon its charge of discriminatory treatment arising from the fact that while disciplinary action was proposed for Sullivan because of his purported derogatory or otherwise offensive statements, an equally derogatory or otherwise offensive statement made by Brinegar was excused or overlooked. The section invoked, however, does not prohibit all discriminatory conduct. It outlaws only the encouragement or discouragement of membership in a labor organization by discrimination in regard to hiring, tenure, promotion or other conditions of employment. To discourage membership, the proscribed discrimination must be motivated to some extent by union animus, or at least must be reasonably expected to be regarded as unfavorable to the union. See, e.g., Norfolk Naval Shipyard, supra, A/SLMR 548 at p. 8 of Administrative Law Judge's decision. There was some testimony to the effect that Sullivan had acted as a spokesman for the housing inspectors, but he held no union office, and there is nothing in the record to indicate that any discrimination against him might reflect any anti-union attitude on the part of Respondent or might have any adverse effect whatsoever on the Union. I therefore conclude that there was no violation of Section 19(a)(2).

RECOMMENDATION

On the basis of the foregoing findings of fact and conclusions of law, I hereby recommend to the Assistant Secretary that the complaint herein be dismissed in its entirety.

A/SLMR No. 788

This case involved a petition for clarification of unit (CU) filed by the National Federation of Federal Employees, Local Union 40 (NFFE) seeking to clarify the status of its existing exclusively recognized unit. In 1969, the NFFE was recognized as the exclusive representative of the employees of the Indian Affairs Data Center (IADC), which performed certain central office functions for the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), although it was located in Albuquerque, New Mexico. In addition, the IADC provided administrative services to the other central office functions located outside of Washington, D.C. The NFFE and the BIA entered into a negotiated agreement on August 3, 1970, and on April 9, 1974, entered into a new agreement. Prior to the execution of the second agreement, the BIA reorganized, and the IADC became the Administrative Services Center as a result of the reorganization with little change in its functions. However, in later 1974, the BIA began another reorganization. Although the name, Administrative Services Center, continued to be used, effectively its organizational components were separated out and it now report upwards through a different first level organizational structure. All employees involved, however, continued to perform the same work in the same location, under the same first level supervision. In addition, the separated organizational components remain under the Office of Administration.

The NFFE took the position at the hearing that the employees of all the central office components serviced by the former Administrative Services Center, including those employees who were employed by the former Administrative Services Center, should be accreted to its exclusively recognized unit. The Activity, on the other hand, contended that the NFFE was attempting to expand its unit to include employees which it had never represented. However, the Activity viewed the CU petition as a vehicle to identify those elements of the unit which remained after the reorganization and to clarify the status of certain inclusions in the exclusively recognized unit.

The Assistant Secretary found that the accretion sought by the NFFE was inappropriate and, therefore, its CU petition should be dismissed. Thus, except for the organizational components which were clearly identifiable as components of the former Administrative Services Center, there was no evidence presented that the other central office components of the BIA located outside of Washington, D.C. were ever part of the existing exclusively recognized unit or that the reorganization commingled their employees with the former Administrative Services Center employees such that they lost their individual identities.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the CU petition be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer A. Jack Lewis. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in this case, including briefs filed by the parties, the Assistant Secretary finds:

The National Federation of Federal Employees, Local Union 40, hereinafter called NFFE, filed the subject petition for clarification of unit seeking to clarify the status of its existing exclusively recognized unit after a series of reorganizations by the Activity. Essentially, the NFFE seeks to include in its existing unit all those employees of the Bureau of Indian Affairs employed in the central office organizational units serviced by the Field Administrative Office. 1/ The Bureau of Indian Affairs, hereinafter called BIA, takes the position that the petition is, in actuality, an attempt to expand the NFFE's unit beyond the scope of its original recognition. However, it contends that the instant petition should be used as a vehicle to identify those elements that remain after the reorganizations from the original recognition which are still part of the appropriate unit. Additionally, it alleges that its professional employees were improperly added to the unit inclusions without the benefit of an election as required by the Order.

The NFFE was recognized as the exclusive representative of the employees of the Indian Affairs Data Center of the BIA in Albuquerque, New Mexico, on December 31, 1969, under the provisions of Executive Order 10988. 2/ An agreement was executed August 3, 1970, which stated that the exclusively recognized unit included all nonprofessional employees of the Indian Affairs Data Center. On April 9, 1974, the parties entered into a new two-year negotiated agreement, automatically renewable for one-year periods thereafter, which defined the exclusively recognized unit as all General Schedule (GS) employees of the Administrative Services Center, which was a successor organizational entity to the Indian Affairs Data Center. 3/

The record reveals that the Indian Affairs Data Center, hereinafter called IADC, was a central office component of the BIA located outside of the Washington, D.C. headquarters in Albuquerque, New Mexico, and that it was headed by an Executive Director who was responsible to the then Assistant Commissioner of the BIA for Administration. It was composed of three branches, Automatic Data Processing, Employee Data and Compensation, and Administrative Services. The first two branches provided their services bureau-wide, while the third branch provided essentially personnel and other administrative services to the other

1/ These central office organizational units were identified at the hearing as the Transportation Division; Investment Branch; Research and Cultural Studies Development, Indian Education Resources Center; Division of Accounting Management; Division of Automatic Data Processing Service; Field Administrative Office; Division of Facilities Engineering; Division of Safety Management; Land Records Improvement Program; Equal Employment Opportunity Office; Southwest Field Coordinator, all in Albuquerque, New Mexico; U.S. Indian Police Training and Research Center, Brigham City, Utah; Division of Educational Audio-Visual Services, Brigham City, Utah; Intergovernmental Relations Liaison Office, Denver, Colorado; Credit Examining Staff, Denver, Colorado; Indian Technical Assistance Center, Lakewood, Colorado; Intergovernmental Relations Liaison Office, Seattle, Washington; and the Joint Use Administrative Office, Flagstaff, Arizona. At the hearing, the parties stipulated that professional and nonprofessional employees of the Office of Indian Education Resources Center, located both in Albuquerque and Brigham City, Utah, should not be considered for inclusion as they were involved in an election held March 22, 1976, in Case No. 63-6207(RO), in which such employees indicated their desire not to be represented.

2/ At the hearing, a question was raised with respect to the legality of the grant of recognition as the letter approving such recognition was dated January 12, 1970, placing it under the provisions of Executive Order 11491. However, record testimony disclosed that the January 12, 1970, letter was, in fact, a confirmation of recognition which was actually granted December 31, 1969.

3/ The 1974 negotiated agreement included within its coverage professional employees and excluded Wage Grade (WG) employees. However, the record is not clear as to whether any professional employees or WG employees were employed by the Administrative Services Center at the time the agreement was signed.

central office components of the BIA located west of the Mississippi River. 4/ In this regard, the record reflects that many of the organizational entities or their predecessors, which the NFFE is seeking now to include in its exclusively recognized unit, were among those central office functions serviced by the Administrative Services Branch and were not included under the unit definition provided for in either negotiated agreement.

Beginning in 1972, the BIA began a series of reorganizations which essentially changed the top levels of its organization. In this regard, for all practical purposes the IADC was succeeded by the Administrative Services Center which was headed by an Assistant Director responsible to the Director of the Office of Administration. 5/ Under this Assistant Director's responsibility were two divisions, Automatic Data Processing and Operations. The latter division was composed of primarily the Employee Data and Compensation Branch from the IADC and certain Indian Trust Fund functions which were added by the reorganization. As prior to the change, both of these divisions provided their services bureau-wide. The former Administrative Services Branch was changed, after the reorganization, to the Administrative Office, reporting directly as a staff function to the Assistant Director. It continued to provide personnel and other administrative services to essentially the same central office functions or their successors as prior to the reorganization.

Beginning in November 1974, the BIA began another reorganization which affected the lower levels of its organization. In this regard, the Administrative Services Center was disestablished as an organizational entity. 6/ Both the Administrative Office and the Automatic Data Processing Division were placed under an Assistant Director for Support Services who is responsible to the Director of the Office of Administration. In this regard, the Automatic Data Processing Division retained its division status and its head is responsible directly to the Assistant Director for Support Services. However, the Administrative Office, now referred to as the Field Administrative Office, reports upwards to the Assistant Director for Support Services through the Chief of the Division of Administrative Services. Moreover, it continues, after the reorganization, to service the same central office components of the BIA, or their organizational successors, as prior to the reorganization.

4/ The record reflects that bureau-wide disbusements were also provided by this branch until April 1971, when this function was transferred to another central office component, the Division of Financial Management, also located in Albuquerque, but which was not part of the exclusively recognized unit.

5/ The Assistant Commissioner for Administration became, in effect, the Director of the Office of Administration as one part of the reorganization.

6/ The record reflects, however, that the name, Administrative Services Center, continued to be used at least until the date of the hearing in this matter.

On the other hand, the Operations Division of the Administrative Services Center was disestablished after the reorganization, with the Indian Trust Fund function being transferred to the newly created Office of Trust Fund Responsibilities, and the Employee Data and Compensation function becoming the Employee Data and Compensation Branch of the Division of Accounting Management, whose division chief reports upwards to the Assistant Director in charge of Financial Management under the Office of Administration. 7/ Therefore, while the Indian Trust Fund function remained in Albuquerque after the reorganization, it now reports upwards through an entirely different chain of command, and the BIA Commissioner is the only level of common supervision with the other components of the former Administrative Services Center. The Employee Data and Compensation Branch, however, remained under the Office of Administration after the reorganization, but it reports upwards through a different Assistant Director than the Automatic Data Processing Division and the Field Administrative Office.

The record reflects that the majority of the employees of what was called, prior to the reorganization, the Administrative Services Center, continue, after the reorganization, to perform the same work in the same location, under the same first line supervision. However, after the reorganization, the lowest level of common supervision of the employees engaged in the Automatic Data Processing function, the Administrative Services function, and the Employee Data and Compensation function, which employees are directly traceable to the original recognition, is the Office of Administration. In this regard, the Activity took conflicting positions at the hearing and in its post-hearing brief regarding which of these employees remain as part of the appropriate unit after the reorganization. Thus, at the hearing, the Activity contended that the employees of all three organizational entities that are directly traceable to the orginal recognition remain an appropriate unit, 8/ and in its brief it contended that just the Division of Automatic Data Processing and the Field Administrative Office remain as part of the appropriate unit because they are responsible to the same Assistant Director. In this latter regard, it argues in its brief, contrary to its argument at the hearing, that while the Employee Data and Compensation Branch was a component of the Administrative Services Center, it reported to a different Assistant Director after the reorganization, and that it should not be permitted to "swamp" the whole Accounting and Management Division into the exclusively recognized unit as sought by the NFFE in its petition.

7/ It should be noted that the Division of Accounting Management consists of two other branches, Finance and Accounting, and Systems. The majority of employees in Finance and Accounting perform the bureau-wide disbursing function which was originally performed by the Administrative Services Branch of the IADC. Therefore, it has certain roots in the original exclusively recognized unit.

8/ It was not clear whether the Activity was contending that just the employees engaged in the Employee Data and Compensation function should remain as part of the appropriate unit or whether the whole Division of Accounting Management should remain as part of the appropriate unit because of the roots of the Finance and Accounting Branch, i.e., the disbursing function, in the IADC.

Under all of the above circumstances, I find that the accretion sought by the NFFE's petition is inappropriate and, therefore, its petition should be dismissed. Thus, the exclusively recognized unit, as it appears under the current negotiated agreement's recognition clause, encompasses the employees of the Administrative Services Center, which succeeded the IADC. The record reflects that after the reorganization the Division of Automatic Data Processing, the Field Administrative Office of the Division of Administrative Services and the Employee Data and Compensation Branch of the Division of Accounting Management are the only clearly identifiable components of the existing exclusively recognized unit. 9/ Accordingly, as the other BIA central office organizational functions sought to be included as part of the existing exclusively recognized unit are not identifiable as components of the Administrative Services Center, as there was no record evidence presented that they have ever been part of the exclusively recognized unit, and as there was no record evidence presented that because of the reorganization the employees of such organizational functions have been commingled with the employees of the existing unit and thus lost their individual identity such that an accretion to the existing unit occurred, I shall order that the NFFE's petition be dismissed. 10/

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the petition in Case No. 63-6344(CU) be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

Dated, Washington, D.C.

Bernard E. DeLury, Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations

9/ The record is unclear as to whether the other branches of the Accounting and Management Division are also identifiable as part of the existing unit. Therefore, I shall make no finding in this regard.

10/ Based on the disposition of the instant petition, I find it unnecessary to pass on the Activity's assertion regarding the alleged improper inclusion of professional employees in the existing unit. Cf., however, Department of Housing and Urban Development, Region II, A/SLMR No. 270.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
NATIONAL PARK SERVICE,
GOLDEN GATE NATIONAL RECREATION AREA,
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA
A/SLMR No. 789

This case involved a petition filed by the Laborers International Union of North America, Local 1276, AFL-CIO, seeking a unit of all Wage Grade and Wage Leader personnel employed in the Maintenance Department of the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, excluding those Wage Grade employees assigned to Fort Point and Muir Woods and all General Schedule employees, or, in the alternative, an Activity-wide unit of all Wage Grade and Wage Leader employees, excluding all General Schedule employees. The Activity contended that both the petitioned for unit and the alternative unit were not appropriate as the claimed employees do not possess a community of interest separate and distinct from the General Schedule employees of the Activity. In addition, it argued that these fragmented units would not promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations.

Applying the three criteria found in Section 10(b) of the Order, the Assistant Secretary found that both the unit sought and the alternative unit were not appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition. Noting, among other things, that other employees of the Activity perform similar work, share similar working conditions, and are subject to the same personnel policies and practices, he concluded that the evidence established that the claimed employees do not share a community of interest separate and distinct from the other employees of the Activity, and that such units could not reasonably be expected to promote effective dealings or efficiency of agency operations. Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the petition be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer Susan L. Kaplan. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in this case, including the Activity's brief, the Assistant Secretary finds:

1. The labor organization involved claims to represent certain employees of the Activity.

2. The Petitioner, Laborers International Union of North America, Local 1276, AFL-CIO, seeks an election in a unit of all Wage Grade and Wage Leader employees, including temporary employees, employed by Golden Gate National Recreation Area, National Park Service, Department of the Interior, excluding employees at Fort Point and Muir Woods, management officials, professional employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in Executive Order 11491, as amended. 1/ The Activity contends that both the petitioned for unit and the alternative unit are inappropriate as the Wage Grade and Wage Leader employees do not possess a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from the General Schedule employees of the Activity. In addition, it argues that these proposed fragmented units will not promote effective dealings or efficiency of agency operations.

1/ The claimed unit appears as amended at the hearing. As an alternative unit, the Petitioner indicated that it would agree to an Activity-wide unit of all Wage Grade and Wage Leader employees employed by Golden Gate National Recreation Area.

The Activity is one of 39 such parks in the Western Region of the National Park Service, which encompasses the states of Hawaii, California, Arizona and Nevada. 2/ The Activity's superintendent, along with the superintendent at Point Reyes, reports to the General Manager, Bay Area National Parks, who is under the jurisdiction of the Regional Director, Western Region of the National Park Service. 3/ The mission of the Activity is to protect the natural resources within its area of responsibility; to provide recreational facilities and activities; and to identify, preserve, and maintain historical structures and places. To accomplish this mission, the Activity is organizationally composed of six departments: Administration, Interpretation, Park Police, Recreation, Resource Management and Visitor Services, and Maintenance. The Maintenance Department is further divided organizationally into Roads and Trails, Marin County, Buidings and Utilities, City Lands, Fort Mason, Alcatraz, and San Francisco Headlands. In addition, the superintendents at Fort Point and Muir Woods oversee the Interpretation, Resource Management, and Maintenance functions at these locations and are subordinate to the Activity's superintendent. The claimed unit consists of 49 employees, both skilled and unskilled, who are located in the Maintenance Department of the Activity. Six other Wage Grade employees are located at Fort Point and Muir Woods.

The record reveals that the Activity's Wage Grade and General Schedule personnel work together in planning and carrying out "special events" and other activities held in the park for the public. In addition, because the Wage Grade employees work throughout the park, there is frequent contact between them and the General Schedule employees on a day-to-day basis. The record also reveals that in the past 2 1/2 years there have been nine instances of interchange or transfer between Wage Grade and General Schedule personnel and that the working conditions of Wage Grade and General Schedule employees are such that certain employee facilities are shared. Common supervision of Wage Grade and General Schedule employees occurs only at the Activity superintendent level. 4/

2/ The parties stipulated that no previous bargaining history in the Activity exists and that there are no election, certification, or agreement bars to an election in this matter. There currently exist four exclusively recognized units in the Western Region of the National Park Service, two of which were established since 1970. One of the two units is a combined Wage Grade/General Schedule unit, and the other is an all Wage Grade employee unit.

3/ The Bay Area includes the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, Point Reyes, which is another park in the San Francisco Bay Area, and the Western Regional Office of the National Park Service.

4/ The superintendents at Fort Point and Muir Woods supervise Wage Grade and General Schedule employees, as does the Maintenance Department head.

Wage Grade employees are subject to the same personnel policies, practices, and benefits as General Schedule employees. With regard to personnel vacancies, the minimum area of consideration for the announcement of Wage Grade and General Schedule vacancies through GS-8 is the Bay Area. The competitive area for a reduction-in-force is limited to the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, including Fort Point and Muir Woods, but bumping rights of the employees are restricted to the career routes of the affected individuals. 5/ In addition, the Activity's superintendent has sole authority for negotiating a collective bargaining agreement and for hiring, promoting, and granting merit awards.

Based on the foregoing circumstances, and having given equal weight to the three criteria set forth in Section 10(b) of the Order, 6/ I find that the petitioned for unit is not appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition. Thus, in my view, the evidence establishes that the claimed employees do not share a clear and identifiable community of interest that is separate and distinct from other employees of the Activity. In this regard, it was noted that the employees in the claimed unit perform work similar to that done by other employees of the Activity. Moreover, they share with these other employees similar working conditions, and are subject to the same personnel policies, practices, job benefits, and area of consideration for promotions and reductions-in-force. Further, under the circumstances set forth above, a fragmented unit restricted to Wage Grade employees could not, in my view, reasonably be expected to promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. Moreover, for the reasons set forth above, I find that the alternative unit sought by the Petitioner is not appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition as the employees involved do not share a clear and identifiable community of interest. Further, such a fragmented unit could not reasonably be expected to promote effective dealings or efficiency of agency operations. Accordingly, I shall order that the instant petition be dismissed.

Bernard E. DeLury, Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations

5/ In a reduction-in-force, an individual who has held both Wage Grade and General Schedule positions would be able to exercise his seniority bumping right in both categories, whereas the bumping right of an employee who has worked solely as a Wage Grade or as a General Schedule employee would be limited to only one category.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEFENSE GENERAL SUPPLY CENTER
A/SLMR No. 790

This case arose upon the filing of a complaint by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2047, (Complainant), alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by declining to sign and to put into effect an agreement which had been negotiated by duly authorized agents of the Activity Commander.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order when the Activity Commander failed to execute promptly the agreed upon contract. He further concluded that Section 19(a)(1) and (6) was violated because the agreement was not put into effect as required by Section 15 of the Order. In reaching these findings, the Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Activity Commander, at least in his capacity as local Commander, was obligated to sign the agreement once his agents had negotiated it. The Administrative Law Judge noted that the Commander also had been delegated Section 15 authority to review the agreement and commenced this review on the date the agreement was presented to him by his authorized bargaining representative. Accordingly, in the Administrative Law Judge's view, absent sufficient notice of disapproval within 45 days of commencement of that review, the agreement was binding on the parties subject to the provisions of law, the Order and the regulations of appropriate authorities outside the agency.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that the Respondent had violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. In this regard, he noted that, under the circumstances herein, the Activity Commander's signature was required merely as a ministerial formality once the terms had been agreed upon by his authorized negotiators. He also found that where, as here, dual roles are imposed on an Activity Commander, i.e., to negotiate and approve, the two powers are effectively merged and approval for one purpose is approval for both. Therefore, approval as Activity Commander, here rendered by his fully authorized bargaining representative, was also viewed by the Assistant Secretary as approval pursuant to Section 15 of the Order.

In his remedy, the Assistant Secretary directed that the Respondent sign the agreement as agreed to by the negotiating team, retroactive to the date on which they had presented it to the Activity Commander for his approval, and, upon request, place such agreement in effect, subject to the provisions of law, the Order, and regulations of appropriate authorities outside the agency.

DECISION AND ORDER

On August 6, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Samuel A. Chaitovitz issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom, and take certain affirmative actions as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. Thereafter, the Respondent filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the Complainant filed a response to the Respondent's exceptions.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in this case, including the exceptions and supporting brief filed by the Respondent and the response thereto filed by the Complainant, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations, to the extent consistent herewith.

As set forth more fully in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order, the parties commenced negotiations for an agreement in early 1974. The evidence established that the Respondent's negotiating team had full authority to reach agreement on behalf of the Activity Commander. Included on the team was a representative of the Civilian Personnel Office who was a technical advisor to the team on, among other things, compliance with law, the Executive Order and regulations. As the negotiations progressed, the Civilian Personnel Officer advised the Respondent's negotiating team whenever a question arose as to whether a given clause might conflict with law, regulations, or the Order. It is not asserted that such advice ever was disregarded by the Respondent's negotiators. Each item of the agreement was initialed by both teams as agreement was reached until the negotiations were concluded in September 1975. On September 12, 1975, the initialed agreement was forwarded to General Billups, the Activity Commander, with the following note from his chief negotiator: "Attached is the agreement negotiated by myself and Mr. Wenkus [chief negotiator for the Complainant] for the Installation Club System. Upon approval, Mr. Wenkus would like a formal signing ceremony."

General Billups subsequently declined to sign the agreement, stating that he had submitted it to the Civilian Personnel Office for review and had been advised that the agreement conflicted with certain laws, regulations, and the Executive Order.

As noted above, when the agreement was forwarded to General Billups on September 12, 1975, its terms had been approved and initialed by his agents. Also, it is uncontroverted that the Respondent's negotiators had been fully authorized to reach agreement on behalf of the Activity Commander. It is thus evident, and I find, that the Activity Commander's signature was required merely as a ministerial formality once the terms of the agreement had been agreed upon. 1/ I am, therefore, in agreement with the Administrative Law Judge's finding that the Activity Commander was obligated to sign the agreement promptly and his failure to do so constituted a violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. 2/

Further, under the particular circumstances of this case, it is clear the Activity Commander had a dual role. Thus, in addition to being responsible for approving the agreement at the local level as Activity head, he also was the official designated by the Defense Supply Agency (DSA) as responsible for approving or disapproving the agreement pursuant to Section 15 of the Order. 3/ Section 15 states, in part, that an agreement shall be approved by the agency head or his official designee if it conforms to applicable laws, the Order, existing agency policies and regulations, and regulations of other appropriate authorities, but will go into effect if not approved or disapproved within 45 days from the date of its execution. The Respondent argues

1/ Cf. United States Department of the Navy, U.S. Naval Station, Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, A/SLMR No. 504, and Headquarters, United States Army Aviation Systems Command, A/SLMR No. 168.

2/ The Respondent argues that the Activity Commander could not approve the agreement until his Civilian Personnel Office could determine whether its terms conflicted with law, regulations or the Executive Order. However, the record is replete with uncontradicted evidence that the Civilian Personnel Office was represented on the Activity's bargaining team at all times and that it approved every item before the negotiators reached agreement.

3/ The text of Section 15 is set out in footnote 8 of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

that because the Activity Commander never "executed" the agreement at the local level, the same Activity Commander was not obligated to act pursuant to his Section 15 approval authority. It would follow, also, that because the agreement never was "executed," it never went into effect. I cannot accept this argument. As found above, under the particular circumstances herein, the requirement for the Activity Commander's signature was a mere formality after the initial agreement was presented to him on September 12, 1975. Thus, the agreement already had been effectively executed by his authorized agents. In my view, if, after an agreement is fully agreed upon by his properly authorized agents, an activity head is permitted to repudiate the very same agreement under his Section 15 authority, the negotiating process in the Federal sector would be seriously undermined. For this reason, where, as here, dual roles, i.e.-- to negotiate and to approve -- are imposed on the same activity head, I find that the two roles are effectively merged and approval for one purpose is, in effect, approval for both. 4/ Therefore, in the particular circumstances of this case, approval as Activity Commander, rendered by his fully authorized negotiating team, was also tantamont to approval pursuant to Section 15 of the Order. Accordingly, I find that the Respondent additionally violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by refusing to implement the negotiated agreement.

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for the Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the Defense General Supply Center, Richmond, Virginia, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Refusing to sign the negotiated agreement as agreed to on September 12, 1975, with American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2047, covering the employees of the Officers' Open Mess.

4/ It might be argued that, although under the circumstances herein, General Billups was required to perform the ministerial act of signing the agreement as Activity Commander, his responsibility as the Section 15 approving authority specifically requires in the latter role his determination as to whether the agreement conflicts with law, the Order or regulations of appropriate authorities outside the agency. However, Section 15 provides that an agreement will go into effect without such determination if the approving authority fails to act. This leads to the possibility that an effective agreement could contain provisions in conflict with law, the Order, or regulations of appropriate authorities outside the agency. It should be noted, however, that this possibility was recognized by the Federal Labor Relations Council, and dealt with in its Report and Recommendations (1975), which makes it clear that any provision of an agreement which conflicts with law, the Order, or regulations of appropriate authorities outside the agency would be void and unenforceable. See Section VII of the Council's Report and Recommendations (1975).

(b) Refusing to place in effect and be bound by the negotiated agreement as agreed to on September 12, 1975, with American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2047, covering the employees of the Officers' Open Mess, subject to the provisions of law, the Order and the regulations of appropriate authorities outside the agency.

(c) In any like or related manner interfering with, restraining, or coercing its employees in the exercise of their rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purposes and policies of the Order:

(a) Upon request, sign the negotiated agreement as agreed to on September 12, 1975, with American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2047, covering the employees of the Officers' Open Mess, retroactive to September 12, 1975.

(b) Upon request, place in effect and be bound by the negotiated agreement as agreed to on September 12, 1975, with American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2047, covering the employees of the Officers' Open Mess, subject to the provisions of law, the Order and the regulations of appropriate authorities outside the agency.

(c) Post at its facility copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary for Labor-Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms, they shall be signed by the Commanding Officer and shall be posted and maintained by him for 60 consecutive days thereafter, in conspicuous places, including bulletin boards and all other places where notices to employees are customarily posted. The Commanding Officer shall take reasonable steps to insure that such notices are not altered, defaced, or covered by any other material.

(d) Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations, notify the Assistant Secretary, in writing, within 30 days from the date of this order as to what steps have been taken to comply herewith.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

A complaint was filed on January 23, 1976 under Executive Order 11491, as amended, (hereinafter called the Order) by Local 2047, American Federation of Government Employees (herein called the Union or Local 2047 AFGE) against the Defense General Supply Center (herein called DGSC or the Activity) alleging that DGSC violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by improperly refusing to sign and approve an agreed upon collective bargaining agreement because said agreement allegedly violated law and regulations. Accordingly, a Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued by the Regional Administrator for the Philadelphia Region on March 26, 1976.

A hearing was held before the undersigned in Richmond, Virginia. All parties were represented and were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to adduce evidence, and to examine and cross-examine witnesses. All parties were afforded an opportunity to argue orally. Both parties filed briefs, which have been duly considered.

Upon the entire record in this case, including all the testimony and evidence adduced at the hearing and from my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings, conclusions and recommendations.

Local 2047, AFGE, at all times material, represented a unit of employees of DGSC's Officers' Open Mess (hereinafter called O.O.M.). The Commander of DGSC is the Commander of the O.O.M.

During early 1974 the Union and DGSC commenced bargaining for a collective bargaining agreement covering the O.O.M. unit. On March 18, 1974 the parties entered into an agreement concerning the "ground rules" for negotiations. Negotiations then commenced and during September 1974 Lt. Col. Walter J. Barnes was appointed as the Activity's chief negotiator. 1/ At all times material the Union's Chief Negotiator was Adam Wenckus, then President of Local 2047 AFGE. The Activity's negotiating team had full authority to negotiate a collective bargaining agreement, to make concession and to agree to its terms, all on behalf of the base commander. The Activity's negotiating team included representatives of the Office of Civilian Personnel.

1/ Lt. Col. Barnes was apparently officially appointed Chief Negotiator by DGSC's then Commander, General Shelter.

The parties, during negotiations, considered each others proposals and suggestions and as they agreed to each article and section they "signed off" or initialed it and went on to the next. The Activity's negotiating team considered each proposed article and section from the viewpoint of whether it was desirable and whether it violated applicable laws and regulations. The Activity's Chief Negotiator agreed to, approved and intitaled individual articles and sections only after he was satisfied that it was in conformance with applicable laws and regulations. In those cases where there was a question as to whether a contract proposal violated any law or regulation, the matter was fully researched by various members of the Activity's negotiating team and the matter resolved to the satisfaction of the Activity's Chief Negotiator before it was approved. If necessary adjustments and changes in proposals were made to bring them into conformance with laws and regulations, at least to the satisfaction of the Activity's negotiating team.

Finally all the individual articles and sections had been agreed to and copies of the entire agreement were typed and reviewed by the Union Activity Chief Negotiators to make sure it accurately reflected all that was agreed to. Then after the two Chief Negotiators were satisfied it did so reflect what they had agreed to, the contract of approximately 50 pages was on September 12, 1975, forwarded to and received by DGSC Commander, Brigadier General Rufus L. Billups. 2/ A "Routing and Transmittal Slip" addressed to General Billups and signed by Lt. Col. Barnes was attached to the agreement. The transmittal slip stated, "Attached is the agreement negotiated by myself and Mr. Wenckus for the Installation Club System. Upon approval, Mr. Wenckus would like a formal signing ceremony."

Upon receipt of the agreement, General Billups transmitted it to his civilian personnel office to review it for conformance with applicable laws and regulations pursuant to Defense Supply Agency Regulations (DSAR) 1426.1. 3/

2/ General Billups took command of the Activity on or about September 2, 1975.

3/ DSAR 1426.1 IV B.1.i. is the precise section that was relied on. It provides:

The attachments and enclosures referred to in DSAR 1426.1, cited above, were to a Department of Defense (DOD) Directive which is dated October 9, 1974 but was transmitted with a memorandum dated March 17, 1975. The DOD Directive was No. 1426.1 and attachment 2 para B 2b(8) provides in part that upon execution of agreements DOD components will forward them for review to a higher level within the DOD component and the parties should be informed of the results of the review within 30 days of receipt of the agreement. The memorandum of March 17, 1975 clearly referred to Executive Order 11838 which amended Executive Order 11491, and the memorandum provided that the above discussed review should in no event be concluded later than 45 days from the date the agreement is executed by the parties.

At a regular Labor-Management meeting on October 6, 1975 General Billups advised the Union representatives that he could not sign the agreement because it violated some rules and regulations. He was not more specific and did not state, with any specificity which contract clauses violated which laws, rules or regulations. On October 6 the Activity's Office of Civilian Personnel was still in the process of reviewing the agreement.

By letter dated October 8, 1975 the Union charged the Activity was violating the Order by refusing to sign the agreement. By letter dated October 28 the Union charged the Activity with violating the Order by its delay in reviewing the agreement and its violation of Section 15 of the Order.

General Billups sent a memorandum dated November 6, 1975 to Lt. Col. Barnes, with a copy to Local 2047 AFGE, wherein he advised Lt. Col. Barnes that he could not approve the agreement because of violations of "laws/regulations" citing "DSAR 1426.1, IV B.1.i." General Billups also stated that certain portions of the proposed agreement required "editorial changes or clarifications" and that prior to his approval certain portions of the contract would have to be modified in order to conform to applicable "laws, policies and regulations." He then referred to specific portions of the contract and indicated that they violated specific laws and regulations. 4/

General Billups sent a letter to the Union on November 14. It referred to the two unfair labor practice charge letters from the Union, and denied that the Activity violated the Order. It stated further that the agreement had been returned for further negations and will be approved when it is determined the agreement does not violate any law, regulation or agency policy. On November 14 the Activity's Office of Civilian Personnel sent the Union a letter also referring to the Union's October 28th letter. The Activity's letter stated that in accordance with DSAR 1426.1 paragraph IV B.1.i., "an agreement is executed when approved by the Commander..." and further, that pursuant to DOD Directive 1426.1 Attachment 2, paragraph B 2b(8), the 45 day period begins with the Commander's approval. Therefore, the agreement had been returned for further negotiations.

By letter dated January 12, 1976, and referring to the two unfair labor practice charges, the Union stated that the November 14 letter did not state that it was a final position, and it was concluded that a verbal refusal at a January 7 meeting was the Activity's final position. By letter dated January 20 General Billups advised the Union that the November 14 letter sets forth the final position of the command with respect to the 45 day time limit.

Section 203.26(2) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations (29 CFR §203.26(2)) provides:

> "(2) If a written decision expressly designated as a final decision on the charge is served by respondent on the charging party, that party may file a complaint immediately but in no event later than sixty (60) days from the date of such service."

4/ A few of the changes required were apparently editorial and did not refer to specific laws or regulations, for example:

> "Article XI--Overtime
> Section 3--'...administrative work week...' should read '...basic work week...'"

The Activity contends that its letter of November 14, 1975 was such a final decision and therefore the complaint in the subject case, which was filed on January 23, 1976, was not timely filed within the requirements of Section 203.26(2) because it was filed more than 60 days after this final decision. However, the November 14 letter was not, in any way, "expressly designated as a final decision." 5/ Therefore the 60 day requirement of Section 203.26(2) did not commence to run on November 14 and it is concluded that the complaint was timely filed with respect to this Section and was otherwise timely filed.

General Billups testified that he felt his review of the agreement, with respect to its conformance with laws, regulations and policies was final and that the Defense Supply Agency (DSA) would not review the agreement subsequent to his review. 6/

It seems quite clear based,on General Billups' understanding of his review and approval role, and the clear language of DSAR 1426.1 IV B.1.i. 7/ that DSA was delegating to the Base Commander its authority to exercise final review of collective bargaining agreements with respect to conformity with applicable laws, regulations and policies, as permitted by Section 15 of the Order.

5/ The Activity itself did not refer to the November 14 letter as its final decision till its January 20, 1976 letter.

6/ To conclude otherwise would have, in effect,been to create an additional level of review of an already agreed upon contract and would constitute a violation of Section 19(a)(6). See Dept. of Agriculture, A/SLMR No. 519.

7/ This is especially clear when read in conjunction with DOD Directive 1426.1 and its memorandum of March 17, 1975.

Therefore the review of the agreement that General Billups was conducting was, in fact, a Section 15 of the Order review. 8/ Section 15 provides that the 45 day time limitation to conduct such a review is computed from the date of an agreement's execution. In the subject case General Billups, who has been delegated by DSA, the Section 15 review authority, is also the executing authority and he refused to sign the agreement until he had conducted the Section 15 review. Therefore the parties are in the anomalous situation of the 45 day time limitation in Section 15 running from an action, execution, which the reviewing authority would not perform.

The Activity contends therefore that the 45 days had not run and General Billups was therefore privileged to return the contract for alleged failure to conform to laws, regulations and policies. To adopt the Activity's interpretation of the Order and General Billups' rights and obligations, would, in effect do away with the Activity's obligation to execute an agreed upon collective bargaining agreement and to perform any Section 15 review of such an agreement within 45 days.

8/ Section 15 of the Order provides:

"Approval of agreements. An agreement with a labor organization as the exclusive representative of employees in a unit is subject to the approval of the head of the agency or an official designated by him. An agreement shall be approved within forty-five days from the date of its execution if it conforms to applicable laws, the Order, existing published agency policies and regulations (unless the agency has granted an exception to a policy or regulation) and regulations of other appropriate authorities. An agreement which has not been approved or disapproved within forty-five days from the date of its execution shall go into effect without the required approval of the agency head and shall be binding on the parties subject to the provisions of law, the Order and the regulations of appropriate authorities outside the agency. A local agreement subject to a national or other controlling agreement at a higher level shall be approved under the procedures of the controlling agreement, or, if none, under agency regulations."

The policy and scheme of the Order is quite apparent. In the normal course of events the Order envisions the parties, at the local level, agreeing upon and executing a collective bargaining agreement and then, rather promptly, having it forwarded to the head of the agency for a prompt review with respect to whether the agreement conforms to laws, the Order, regulations or policies.

In the subject case the agreement was forwarded to General Billups for his signature, on September 12, 1975, after his duly and fully authorized bargaining representative had approved and agreed to the contract. It is clear that, at least with respect to his position as Activity Commander, General Billups was obliged to execute this agreed upon contract promptly. Had he done so, it should be noted, it would have commenced running the 45 days as provided in Section 15.

It is clear that once the Activity's negotiators had agreed to the contract, General Billups, at least in his capacity as Activity Commander, was obliged to sign the contract, and his failure to do so constituted a violation of Section 19(a)(6) of the Order. See H. Q. Army Aviation Systems Command, A/SLMR No. 168, FLRC No. 72A-30 and Joint Tactical Com. Office, DOD, Fort Mammouth, N.S., A/SLMR No. 396. 9/

9/ It should be noted that during the course of the negotiations the DGSC representative had been examining each proposal in relation to whether it conformed to laws, regulations and policies and only approved an item when satisfied it did so conform. Therefore, in his capacity as Activity Commander, as distinguished from his capacity as a delegated Section 15 reviewing authority, General Billups could not again start to examine whether the contract conformed to laws, regulations and policies. That determination had already been made for him by his bargaining representatives.

Further, immediately upon receipt of the agreement, on September 12, 1975 General Billups did in fact commence the delegated Section 15 review. In these circumstances and since he did not in a reasonable time sign the agreement, it is concluded that the 45 day limit provided in Section 15 of the Order started running on September 12, the date the agreed upon contract was sent to General Billups for the formality of his signature. 10/

The record establishes that on October 6, at a regular labor-management meeting, General Billups advised the Union that he was not approving the agreement because it did not conform to laws, regulations and policies. He was not, to any extent, specific as to which portion of the contract violated which laws, regulations or policies, and further, the agreement was still being reviewed by the Office of Civilian Personnel. In these circumstances it is concluded that the foregoing was not sufficient "disapproval" notice to meet the requirements of Section 15. The record fails to establish any sufficient notice of disapproval of the agreement within 45 days of September 12 and therefore, pursuant to the terms of Section 15 of the Order the subject agreement was binding on the parties subject to the provisions of law, the Order and the regulations of appropriate authorities outside the agency. Thus, when the Activity, in its letter of November 6, stated that it would not approve or put into effect any portion of the agreement until certain changes had been made, including some demands that sections be brought into conformance with Army regulations, it is concluded that the Activity was refusing to comply with the requirement of Section 15, that, absent timely disapproval notice, the contract was binding on the parties, subject to the provisions of law, the Order and the regulations of appropriate authorities outside the agency. It is therefore further concluded that by refusing to comply with the requirements of Section 15, i.e. by refusing to recognize the contract as binding, and by refusing to put it into effect, the Activity refused to bargain in good faith with the Union and therefore engaged in conduct which violated Section 19(a)(6) of the Order.

10/ To hold otherwise would be to permit a party, because of its own unfair labor practice,to extend the 45 day limit for its own benefit. In effect, a party would be benefiting by its own unfair labor practice.

Further, it is concluded that by engaging in the conduct described above, which violated Section 19(a)(6) of the Order, the Activity engaged in conduct which would tend to interfer with and restrain employee rights protected by the Order and therefore, also violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

Recommendations

Having found that the Activity has engaged in conduct which is violative of Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order, I recommend the Assistant Secretary adopt the following Order designed to effectuate the purposes of Executive Order 11491, as amended.

SUMMARY OF DECISION ON GRIEVABILITY OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

ARMY AND AIR FORCE
EXCHANGE SERVICE, HEADQUARTERS,
DALLAS, TEXAS
A/SLMR No. 791

This case involved an Application for Decision on Grievability or Arbitrability filed by American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2921 (AFGE). The AFGE contended that under the negotiated agreement the Activity was obligated to process through the negotiated grievance procedure grievances involving a reduction-in-force (RIF), in which it was alleged that the Activity failed to notify the Applicant of RIF plans, to offer an employee a vacant position after his position was abolished, and to give the required notice period to an employee of a downgrade transfer.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded, and the Assistant Secretary agreed, that the negotiated grievance procedure specifically excludes from its scope matters not personal to the employee and therefore the Applicant may not grieve, in its own right as a union, under the parties' negotiated grievance procedure. Moreover, it was found that the grievance herein was not grievable under the parties' negotiated agreement because it did not involve matters which were subject to the negotiated grievance procedure.

RECOMMENDED DETERMINATION OF GRIEVABILITY OR ARBITRABILITY

Statement of the Case

This is a proceeding pursuant to Sections 6(a) and 13(d) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, to determine whether the grievance involved herein is subject to the grievance procedure of the parties' existing agreement (Jt. Exh. 1). An application for decision on grievability or arbitrability was filed April 22, 1975; a Notice of Hearing on said application issued March 30, 1976, for a hearing on May 18, 1976; and pursuant therein, a hearing was held before the undersigned on May 18, 1976, in Dallas, Texas. Because of delay in receipt of the transcript, the time for filing briefs was extended to June 30, 1976, and the Activity's brief was received on June 29, 1976.

All parties were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses, to introduce evidence bearing on the issues involved and to present oral argument. Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions and recommended determination of grievability:

Preliminary Statement

At the outset, it is necessary to delineate the matters which Applicant asserts are subject to the negotiated grievance procedure. Applicant's original statement of the grievance was set forth in the letter dated February 26, 1975, addressed to Colonel Hart and signed by Ms. Hazel M. McDaniel, President of Local 2921 (Jt. Exh. 6). The February 26, 1975, letter was a common statement of a grievance, albeit by the Union, on behalf of employee Henry M. Pardee.

Colonel Hart's reply (Jt. Exh. 7) stated that the matter involving Mr. Pardee was not grievable under the negotiated grievance procedure for at least three reasons. In addition to the grounds stated, Colonel Hart further stated that even if the matter were grievable, it had been lodged at the improper level.

Applicant's application for decision on grievability or arbitrability (Ass't Sec. Exh. 1) states the grievance as follows:

> "Local 2921 alleges that management violated Article XXIII, Sections 1, 2, 3, and 4 ... in that Mr. Pardee was interviewed for a vacant position on December 16, 1974 ... two days after it was decided to abolish his position. Therefore, management violated the above cited Section of the Bargaining Agreement, and further > management violated Reduction-In-Force Section of the Contract since this action was accomplished without notifying Local 2921. In addition to the above, the downgrading transfer action is in violation of Article XXIII Section 2 ... in that Mr. Pardee was given the proposed downgrading action ... on Friday, January 31, 1975, and was ordered to report to the new position on Monday, February 3, 1975 without the required notice period pursuant to AR 60-21/AFR 147-15 Section 4-15-RIF procedure - USP Employees Subsection C., (5)(b), and (c) ..." 1/ (Ass't Sec. Exh. 1).

At the hearing, Applicant made it quite clear that it was not proceeding on its original statement of grievance which had been, as noted above, a grievance on behalf of employee Henry M. Pardee. 2/ Rather, that Applicant was now grieving as a Union for asserted violations of the Union's rights under the agreement.

Accordingly, the grievance is Applicant's assertion that it, as a union, has grievable rights under Article XXIII, Sections 1, 2, 3, and 4 of the collective bargaining agreement which it may assert in its own right, as distinguished from a grievance asserted by a union on behalf of an employee.

1/ Applicant's reference was in error. Applicant obviously intended to refer to Subsection C.(6)(b) and (c) as there are no subsections under subsection C.(5). (Jt. Exh. 2, pages 4-10).

2/ Applicant acknowledged that Mr. Pardee had a right to review and that he did not choose to ask for review. Section 3 of Article XXXV of the parties' agreement specifically excluded from the negotiated grievance procedure, inter alis, "(20) matters which are properly subject for a request for review." Parenthetically, Activity's denial of grievability of the original grievance on behalf of Mr. Pardee was correct for this reason alone, because Section 3(2) of Article XXXV of the agreement specifically excludes matters which are properly subject for a request for review.

Findings of Fact

1. The collective bargaining agreement is dated, and effective from, December 30, 1971, 3/ (Jt. Exh. 1). Although the agreement was for a term of two years, it has, in accordance with its automatic renewal clause, remained in full force and effect.

2. Article XXIII of the Agreement, entitled "Reduction in Force" provides as follows:

> "Section 1. It is agreed that prior to the issuance of reduction in force notices affecting any employee in the unit, the Employer will advise the Union with respect to the persons and positions affected.
> "Section 2. It is agreed that downgrade or separation of regular full-time employees will be avoided or held to the minimum. Vacant positions in the unit will be used for placement of qualified employees otherwise to be separated, provided that there is current need to fill said vacancies. ... However, reductions in force will be accomplished in accordance with applicable regulations.
>
> "Section 3. The Employer agrees to notify employees prior to transferring them on an involuntary basis. The employee will be given an opportunity to express his dissatisfaction with the transfer either orally or in writing. Upon request by the employee who is transferred involuntarily, the Employer agrees to explain the reason for the transfer.
>
> "Section 4. It is agreed that Union representatives may review records of employees, in accordance with applicable regulations, when specifically designated as an employee(s) representative during > a reduction in force." (Jt. Exh. 1, Article XXIII, pp. 27-28).

3. Exchange Service Personnel Policies, as set forth in Army Regulation No. 60-21, Air Force Regulation No. 147-15 (Jt. Exh. 2), in pertinent part provide as follows:

5. The Director, Personnel Division, by letter dated January 28, 1975, advised the Chief, Headquarters, Personnel Branch, that the RIF plan submitted for job title Merchandising Assistant had been approved as modified; that Mr. Pardee had been identified for downgrade transfer pursuant to RIF to the position of Quality Inspector Sepcialist, UA-6, Duty Station Arlington/Fort Worth; that should Mr. Pardee refuse to accept the downgrade transfer he would be separated for refusal to transfer pursuant to RIF; that Mr. Pardee should be provided

4/ Mr. Pardee did not testify. Mr. Pardee admittedly reported at the Arlington Distribution Fashon Center (Arlington/Fort Worth) on Monday, February 3, 1975. Ms. McDaniel denied having been advised prior to January 31, 1975, with respect to the persons and positions affected, of the reduction in force; however, the Daily Log maintained by Mr. DeVall (Exch. Serv. Exh. 3) for Wednesday, January 29, 1975, states "advised Mrs. McDaniel that Pardee had been selected for downgrade transfer to Fashon Center in Arlington". In addition, Mr. DeVall's Daily Log for January 29, 1975, read "coordinated downgrade transfer of H. Pardee from Catalogue Sales to QA - Report 3 Feb, trans eff. 10 Feb - Downgrade to be projected to 8 April". The Notice dated January 31, 1975, did not instruct Mr. Pardee to report at Arlington/Fort Worth on February 3, 1975; nevertheless, his action in reporting clearly indicates that he was so advised in some manner. Mr. DeVall's Daily Log shows a February 3, 1975, reporting date and whether his "coordination" was with Mr. Pardee directly or through Ms. McDaniel, Mr. Pardee was advised to report, and did report, at Arlington/Fort Worth on February 3, 1975.

Conclusions

Pursuant to the Executive Order, it is obligatory to determine whether Applicant's grievance is subject to the negotiated grievance procedure. As the Federal Labor Relations Council has stated:

"Section 6(a)(5) of the Order provides in pertinent part that the Assistant Secretary shall:

(5) decide questions as to whether a grievance is subject to a negotiated grievance procedure ... as provided in Section 13(d) of the Order.

"Section 13(d) provides that 'questions that cannot be resolved by the parties as to whether or not a grievance is a matter for which a statutory appeal procedure exists, shall be referred to the Assistant Secretary for decision.' Section 13(d) further permits a party to refer to the Assistant Secretary questions "... as to whether or not a grievance is on a matter subject to the grievance procedure in an existing agreement. ...'

"It is clear from the express language in these provisions that in resolving a grievability dispute, if as here, an issue is presented concerning the applicability of a statutory appeal procedure, the Assistant Secretary must decide that question. Further, in any dispute referred to the Assistant Secretary concerning whether a grievance is on a matter subject to a negotiated grievance procedure, the Assistant Secretary must decide whether the dispute is or is not subject to the negotiated grievance procedure ... In making such a determination, the Assistant Secretary must consider > relevant provisions of the Order ... and relevant provisions of the negotiated agreement, including those provisions which describe the scope and coverage of the negotiated grievance procedure, as well as any substantive provisions of the agreement which are being grieved. Further, the Assistant Secretary must also consider '... existing laws and the regulations of appropriate authorities. ..." As noted in the Preliminary Statement, supra, the issue in this case is whether Applicant, as a Union, can grieve in its own right under the negotiated grievance procedure. It must be emphasized that this case does not involve an employee grievance nor an employee grievance brought by a union on behalf of an employee.

Applicant's reliance on the portion of Section 2 of Article XXIII which provides:

> "It is agreed that downgrade or separation of regular full-time employees will be avoided or held to the minimum. Vacant positions in the unit will be used for placement of qualified employees otherwise to be separated, provided that there is a current need to fill such vacancies." (Emphasis supplied), presents no justiciable controversy in this case for the reason that, wholly apart from Applicant's standing or lack of standing to grieve in its own right, the position for which Mr. Pardee was interviewed on December 16, 1974, and on which Applicant relies, was not a position "in the unit". To the contrary, the position was Chief, Communications, a supervisory position outside the bargaining unit. It is recognized that Section 2 of Article XXIII also provides that "... reductions in force will be accomplished in accordance with applicable regulations" and that AR 60-21/AFR 147-15, Section 4-15 C provides that upon a reduction in force USP (non EMP) employees will be considered, inter alia, for "(a) Promotional transfer to a vacant position". Nevertheless, the only contractual obligation on which Applicant's right could be based is the provision of the Agreement that "Vacant positions in the Unit will be used for placement of qualified employees otherwise to be separated". The position of Chief, Communications, not being a position in the bargaining unit, there was no contractual obligation that upon a RIF an affected employee be assigned to such position; nor, of course, was Mr. Pardee separated. Assuming, although the Regulations appear clearly to provide alternatives, that the Regulations provide a right over and above the contractual obligation, such right would be enforceable only in accordance with the Regulations and the collective bargaining agreement as a matter for review.

Section 1 or Article XXIII provides that,

> "It is agreed that prior to the issuance of reduction in force notices affecting any employee in the unit, the Employer will advise the Union. ...", and Section 4 of Article XXIII provides that,

> "It is agreed that Union representatives may review records of employees, in accordance with applicable regulations, when specifically designated as an employee(s) representative during a reduction in force." 5/

5/ In its original statement of the grievance, February 26, 1975, an allegation was made that the Agency "Failed to prepare a RIF Roster" which Ms. McDaniel, representative for Mr. Pardee, requested on or about February 4, 1975, and was told there was no roster (Jt. Exh. 6). This allegation was omitted from the Application for Decision on Brievability or Arbitrability (Asst. Sec. Exh. 1), although there was still a reference to Section 4 of Article XXIII. At the hearing, the testimony of Mr. DeVall indicated that there may have been a misunderstanding inasmuch as the only name on the roster was Mr. Pardee. Nevertheless, for the purposes of this decision, it will be assumed, but not determined, that Ms. McDaniel was not shown the RIF roster upon request, even though the only name on the roster was that of Mr. Pardee.

Section 3 of Article XXIII privides that the Employer agrees to notify employees prior to involuntary transfer; to give the employee an opportunity to express dissatisfaction with the transfer; and, upon request by the employee who is transferred involuntarily, to explain the reason for the transfer. There is no contention by Applicant that there was any violation of any obligation of Section 3 as to Mr. Pardee. Indeed, Agency meticulously complied with all requirements of the Regulations as to Mr. Pardee and, as Section 3 created no right running to Applicant, Applicant can assert no independent violation, i.e., if there were no violation of Section 3 as to Mr. Pardee, there was no violation of Section 3 as to Applicant.

Applicant asserts that the Notice of Proposed Downgrade Transfer of January 31, 1975, was an "issuance of reduction in force" notice within the meaning of Section 1 of Article XXIII; that it was not advised prior to the issuance thereof; 6/ and that it, as a union, may grieve under the negotiated grievance procedure. For the Reasons stated hereinafter, the grievance of Applicant was not subject to the negotiated grievance procedure.

In this case, the position of Merchandising Assistant, Headquarters AAFES, was abolished by Personnel Manning Document for the Catalog Sales Center, effective December 14, 1974. Section 4-12b of the Regulations provides that "Employees will be given as much notice of RIF as possible". There was, as noted, a sharp conflict in testimony as to whether notice of the RIF was given prior to January 28, 1975, when the RIF plan was approved, as modified, by the Director, Personnel Division. While a notice of proposed downgrade transfer is separate and distinct from a notice of downgrade transfer (See, 4-6c, 4-14f(2) and (3), 4-15c (6)(b)), Applicant's assertion that the Notice of Proposed Downgrade Transfer of January 31, 1975, was the first reduction in force notice to it is sufficient to bring it within the language of Section 1 of Article XXIII. There is no dispute that Ms. McDaniel had been designated as Mr. Pardee's representative and, as noted above, it is assumed for the purpose of this decision that Ms. McDaniel was not shown the RIF roster even though only the name of Mr. Pardee would have appeared.

6/ There is evidence that Applicant's President, Ms. McDaniel was advised on January 29, 1975; but there is a sharp conflict as Ms. McDaniel testified to the contrary. In addition, there was a sharp conflict in testimony as to notification of the RIF prior to January 29, 1975, as distinguished from implementation of approved RIF plan. Because the function pursuant to Sections 6(a)(5) and 13(d) of the Executive Order is to determine whether the dispute is or not subject to the negotiated grievance procedure, it is inappropriate to resolve such factual conflicts which go to the merits of the grievance rather than to whether the dispute is subject to the grievance procedure.

Although the activity's chief spokesman in the negotiation of the Agreement, Mr. John W. Bowlin, testified that the Union had sought unsuccessfully in the negotiations to obtain a procedure for union grievances, such contention is but an advocated position, United States Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census, Data Preparation Division, Jeffersonville, Indiana, A/SLMR No. 665 (1976), and, in the final analysis, determination of the issue is dependent on the provisions of the negotiated agreement "including those provisions which describe the scope and coverage of the negotiated grievance procedure, as well as any substantive provisions of the agreement which are being grieved", Department of the Navy, Naval Ammunition Depot, Crane, Indiana, supra, notwithstanding what the activity believed, or even intended, to be the scope of the negotiated grievance procedure.

The tenor of Article XXXV is wholly employee orientated. Although Section 1 refers to "employee grievances and disputes over the interpretation and application of this Agreement" (Emphasis supplied), the definition of "grievance" in Section 2 expressly includes "disputes over the interpretation of this Agreement". Section 5 provides that grievances and complaints not excluded by Section 3 shall be processed in the following manner: Step 1, discussion with the immediate supervisor at which the employee may be represented. Section 6 provides that any matter not settled between the employee and his immediate supervisor as Step 2, if the employee is dissatisfied he must appeal within 5 workdays; Step 3 provides that if the employee is dissatisfied with the Step 2 decision, it may be appealed by him. Section 7 provides that if the grievance is not settled at Step 3 it may be referred to arbitration in accordance with Article XXXVI. Section 8 provides that at each step of the grievance procedure, the Union shall be permitted to call witnesses. Article XXXVI provides that any grievance processed under the negotiated grievance procedure, upon written request by the Union or Employer, shall be submitted to arbitration.

Not only is no provision made for Union grievances; but the provisions of Article XXXV provide for, and permit, only employee action through step three, except that the Union may call witnesses at each step of the grievance procedure.

Only at the arbitration level is the right of the employee limited and even here, while the Union or Employer must request or approve arbitration, Article XXXVI is, by its terms, limited to "any grievance processed under the negotiated grievance procedure" which does not contemplate a union grievance instituted solely under Article XXXVI.

The prohibition of union grievances, as such, is further insured by the exclusions from the negotiated grievance procedure as set forth in Section 3 of Article XXXV which exclusions include,

> "(10) matters not personal to the employee."

A grievance by Applicant, in its own right, obviously is not by its very statement a matter personal to an employee, and is, therefore, excluded from the negotiated grievance procedure. 7/ Less directly, the exclusion of: "(2) Notices of proposed personnel action" and "(20) matters which are properly subject for a request for review", support, but would not mandate exclusion of a union grievance.

Because the negotiated grievance procedure specifically excludes from its scope matters not personal to the employee and by its terms provides for processing of grievances only by an employee, Applicant may not grieve, in its own right as a union, under the negotiated grievance procedure. While creation of a right without a remedy is not favored, it is by no means foreign in the law and where, as here, the terms of the parties' own negotiated grievance procedure excludes Applicant's right to grieve, in its own right, there is no alternative but to conclude that Applicant's grievance is not subject to the negotiated grievance procedure.

7/ It is recognized that the exclusions of Section 3 of Article XXXV of the Agreement are, in substantially identical form, the exclusions from the Agency grievance procedure, Section 3-29 of the Regulations, except the sentence "Employees, may submit grievance on all matters except - ", which appears in 3-29, while the first sentence of Section 3 of Article XXXV reads, "Complaints resulting from the following types of action shall not be grievable under this Article or the AAFES grievance procedure."

Pending implementation of personnel action pursuant to 4-15c, Mr. Pardee was detailed to the same job to which he later was transferred; but this was specifically authorized by, and in accordance with, Regulations (See, 4-10b and c); a detail is not a transfer; is specifically authorized within the local transfer area; and no notice period or personnel action is required for a detail of 30 calendar days or less. The Regulations (4-18) also contemplate and provide for two or more personnel actions relating to one employee at the same time with only the limitation that the actions be processed in the order most advantageous to the employee. The detail of Mr. Pardee was most advantageous to Mr. Pardee (see, for example, 4-8) as he remained at his assigned grade and step pending implementation of the procedures of 4-15c and the date of commencement of salary retention was deferred to April 5, 1975; but even if it were assumed that some right of Mr. Pardee had been violated, the right was Mr. Pardee's, not Applicant's, and his remedy was principally, if not exclusively, by request for review. The negotiated grievance procedure specifically excludes from its scope notices of proposed personnel action and matters which are properly subject for a request for review. Whether an employee, such as Mr. Pardee, could grieve a violation of Sections 1 or 4 of Article XXIII of the Agreement is not before me and no opinion is expressed with regard thereto; but, in any event, Applicant, as a union, has no independent right under the negotiated grievance procedure to grieve asserted violations of an employee's rights .

RECOMMENDATION

In light of the foregoing, it is hereby recommended that the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations find that Applicant's grievance in its own right as a union is not grievable under the parties' negotiated grievance procedure.

SUMMARY OF DECISION ON CHALLENGED BALLOTS
OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

UNITED STATES CUSTOMS SERVICE
A/SLMR No. 792

The subject case involved two challenged ballots which were sufficient in number to affect the results of a self-determination election for professional employees. The two challenged ballots were challenged on the grounds that the individuals involved, a GS-13 Senior Auditor and a GS-12 Auditor, were management officials.

The Administrative Law Judge found, and the Assistant Secretary agreed, that the evidence demonstrated that the aforementioned individuals more closely resembled highly skilled experts or professionals who rendered resource information or recommendations rather than individuals who actively participated in the ultimate determination of policy. In this regard, he noted that while the subject employees performed challenging reorganizational work in an independent work environment and their work products often met with approval, their recommendations were implemented only after review and approval by several levels of management and their role did not extend to the point of active participation in the ultimate determination of policy.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary directed that the ballots of the employees herein be opened and counted and that the appropriate Regional Administrator cause to be served on the parties a Revised Tally of Ballots.

DECISION ON CHALLENGED BALLOTS

On September 20, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Edwin S. Bernstein issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, recommending that the challenges to the ballots of Mr. Alan M. Levit and Mr. Matthew J. Krimski be overruled and that their ballots be opened and counted. Thereafter, the Activity filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. 1/

1/ Under the particular circumstances herein, and noting particularly that the Activity was granted an opportunity to file a reply brief with the Administrative Law Judge, I find that the latter did not abuse his discretion, or prejudice the Activity, by granting an extension of time to the Petitioner for filing a post-hearing brief and by granting the Petitioner's motion to file its post-hearing brief after the extended due date had passed.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in this case, including the exceptions and supporting brief filed by the Activity, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations. 2/

DIRECTION TO OPEN AND COUNT BALLOTS

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the ballots of Mr. Alan M. Levit and Mr. Matthew J. Krimski be opened and counted at a time and place to be determined by the appropriate Regional Administrator. The Regional Administrator shall cause a Revised Tally of Ballots to be served on the parties and take such additional action as required by the Regulations of the Assistant Secretary.

Dated, Washington, D. C.

of Labor for Labor-Management Relations

2/ The Petitioner filed a response to the Activity's exceptions which response was not considered in the determination of the subject case. It is the policy of the Assistant Secretary that when a reply or answering brief is not filed upon an appropriate request of the party involved, as occurred herein, it will not be considered by the Assistant Secretary when making a determination in the matter. See, in this regard, Section 202.14 of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations which provides, in relevant part, that, "No reply brief may be filed except by special permission of the Assistant Secretary."

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding arose under Executive Order 11491 pursuant to a Notice of Hearing on Challenged Ballots issued on May 5, 1976 by the Acting Regional Administrator for Labor-Management Services, Philadelphia Region.

The sole issue is whether or not Mr. Alan M. Levit and

Mr. Matthew J. Krimski are management officials within the meaning of that term as set forth in the Executive Order, as amended.

On January 21, 1976, a secret ballot election was conducted under the supervision of the Washington, D.C. Area Administrator, for a unit consisting of all eligible professional and non-professional employees assigned to the Headquarters Office of the United States Customs Service whose post of duty is within the United States. In that election, the majority of the eligible professional voters voted for a separate unit apart from the non-professional unit. On the question of representation, the National Treasury Employees Union received six votes while seven votes were cast against exclusive recognition. There were three challenged ballots.

The Activity contended that the three employees were "management officials" within the meaning of the term in the Executive Order. The Petitioner disagreed.

By Report and Findings on Challenged Ballots dated April 1, 1976, Acting Regional Administrator Frank P. Willette determined that one employee was properly excluded but found that relevant issues of fact existed concerning the challenged ballots of Alan M. Levit and Matthew J. Krimski and that a hearing should be held to determine these issues.

I conducted a hearing on June 15 and 16, 1976. The Activity and Petitioner were represented by counsel, presented evidence, examined and cross-examined witnesses, and submitted post-hearing briefs. The Intervenor did not appear at the hearing. 1/

Upon the entire record in this case and my observations of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions of law and recommendation:

Mr. Alan M. Levit is a Senior Auditor, GS-510-13 and Mr. Matthew J. Krimski is a Staff Auditor, GS-510-12 in the 1/ By letter dated January 28, 1976 to the Acting Area Administrator, U.S. Department of Labor, the Intervenor stated that it had no further interest in this matter.

Regulatory Audit Division ("RAD") of the National Headquarters Office of the U.S. Customs Service ("Customs").

RAD's function is to develop and coordinate plans and programs for audits of importers and other parties who do business with Customs to determine whether or not the information that they submit to Customs is true and accurate.

RAD was established effective March 30, 1975 when it became one of seven divisions in Customs' Office of Operations. Between June 15, 1973 and March 30, 1975, the regulatory audit mission was conducted by a Customs organizational element called "Headquarters Regulatory Audit" and before June 15, 1973 Customs' regulatory audit function was handled by several headquarters divisions.

The witnesses at the hearing were Mr. Krimski, Mr. Levit and Mr. Walter P. Turek. Mr. Turek is RAD's Director. RAD consists of its Director, an Assistant Director, and three audit groups. Each group consists of an Audit Manager, GS-14, one Senior Auditor, GS-13 and two Staff Auditors, GS-12. In Audit Group 3, the Senior Auditor is Mr. Levit and Mr. Krimski is a Staff Auditor.

Within the headquarters regulatory audit function, all final decisions are made solely by the Director. It is the Director who signs all written materials that leave the Division and go to other divisions in the headquarters or to the regional offices. Where, as frequently occurs, a plan or program involves other divisions, it must be circulated among those divisons for review and is issued under the signature of the Assistant Commissioner for Operations.

Audit policies, programs, and plans issued by RAD over its Director's signature in theory need not be followed by a Regional Commissioner who disagrees. In such a case only the Assistant Commissioner can direct the Regional Commissioner to comply. However, this situation has not arisen.

Audit Group 3's subject areas are Drawbacks, Wool Bonds and Insular Possessions. Mr. Krimski and Mr. Levit have worked at RAD for slightly more than one year. During this time, Mr. Krimski has spent most of his time developing an insular possession audit plan and program and Mr. Levit has done the same in the drawback and wool bonds fields. Mr. Levit has also worked on RAD's budget.

The testimony of all three witnesses indicates that projects are assigned to Mr. Levit, Mr. Krimski and other RAD auditors by Mr Turek usually upon consultation with his assistant director and audit managers. The auditor's job is to do research and then develop an audit program. During the course of the auditor's work on the program, the Director would meet with him at least once a week to discuss the program and give the auditor guidance. The auditor would also confer with his Audit Manager. When the programs had been drafted, they would be reviewed by the audit manager who would suggest revisions, circulated among other RAD auditors for suggestions, and finally reviewed by Mr. Turek for his approval and comments.

Mr. Turek found Mr. Krimski and Mr. Levit to be highly skilled and reliable auditors. He testified that he approved 90 percent of their proposals. Mr. Levit testified that 80 to 90 percent of his recommendations were agreed to while Mr. Krimski's estimate was 75 percent.

At the time of the hearing, Mr. Krimski was in the process of including into his insular possession draft revisions made by Mr. Turek. When this is done, it will go back to Mr. Turek for final approval and then to the Commissioner's office for review. If it passes review, it will go to field auditors for their use in conducting audits.

In the field of drawback, Mr. Levit is also revising his draft based on changes made by Mr. Turek. When Mr. Turek approves it, it will be circulated to the Duty Assessment Division whose director will also be able to revise it. Mr. Levit stated that his draft is "a beginning step to making policy."

In the wool bond area, Mr. Levit drafted a document which recommended criteria for auditing of bonded wool importers, based on a survey of audit practices. The draft was submitted to the audit manager, to the Assistant Director and then to Mr. Turek, all for review and comment. Mr. Turek eventually signed the document and sent it to the Regional Commissioners.

With respect to budget development, Mr. Levit has been involved in gathering data and making recommendations for manpower allotment. In this area, Mr. Turek has retained more control and Mr. Levit's influence is less than in the other areas.

Another major portion of Mr. Krimski's and Mr. Levit's duties involve giving technical guidance and assistance to field auditors in the areas in which they have done research and developed proposals. In this area, they clarify or explain existing policy, check to make sure that policy is being complied with, and sometimes indicate what proposals are being developed. Mr. Turek, Mr. Krimski and Mr. Levit agreed that Mr. Krimski and Mr. Levit have no authority on their own to establish new policy.

Mr. Levit also has represented the Division at meeting of Customs officials from other offices. Similarly, he will state Division policy or procedure if he knows what it is; if not, he will consult with his superiors and provide responses at a later time.

Conclusions of Law

The question of whether or not an employee is a management official has been considered many times by the Assistant Secretary. In the early cases the test utilized was whether or not the functions assigned place the interests of the employee more closely with persons who formulate, determine and oversee policy than with personnel in the unit who carry out the resultant policy. 2/

However, in Department of the Air Force, Arnold Engineering Development Center, Air Force Systems Command, Arnold Air Force Station, Tennessee, A/SLMR No. 135 (February 28, 1972), the Assistant Secretary set forth the following more precise definition and guidelines:

> "When used in connection with the Executive Order, the term 'management official' means an employee having authority to make, or to influence effectively the making of, policy necessary to the agency or activity with respect to personnel, procedures, or programs. In determining whether a given individual influences effectively policy decisions in this context, consideration should be concentrated on whether his role is that of an expert or professional rendering resource information or recommendations with respect to the policy in question, or whether his role extends beyond this to the point of active participation in the ultimate determination as to what the policy in fact will be."

This definition and criteria have been consistently applied in all subsequent cases to determine whether or not an employee is a "management official." 3/

Upon careful consideration of the criteria set forth in A/SLMR No. 135, the above decisions, and the facts herein, I find that Matthew J. Krimski and Alan M. Levit are not management officials within the meaning of that term in the Executive Order.

In almost all of the decisions, the employee was highly skilled, did extremely important work and developed highly original and very reliable work products. Nevertheless, in all but a few of the cases, these employees were found to be highly skilled experts, professionals and resource people rather than policy-makers.

Thus in A/SLMR No. 173, the Assistant Secretary found that several categories of employees were not management officials. In the case of Area Specialists and Planning and Procedure Specialists, their duties, which included recommending modifications of procedures, preparing manuals, and recommending alternate routes, were deemed to be those of experts carrying out policy rather than policy makers. Also, Military Liaison and Security Specialists, who developed technical procedures, programs, procedures and routes, conducted liaison with military organizations, and briefed personnel on procedures, were also held to be non-management experts.

In A/SLMR No. 193, Management Analysts who performed management studies and analyses and made recommendations involving original concepts were found to be experts or professionals rendering resource information or recommendations regarding policies. The Assistant Secretary noted that their recommendations underwent close scrutiny and were not necessarily acted upon without change and that they did not participate directly in the ultimate decision-making process. The same conclusion was reached regarding Program Analysts and Program Analysis Officers who developed plans and programs and made policy recommendations. Their recommendations were found to be subject to review and were not necessarily accepted or acted upon without change.

In A/SLMR No. 266, a Staff Officer and Staff Assistant, whose duties in administering health insurance plans included negotiating contracts, determining training needs, assuring that private insurance carriers carried out national and regional policy, coordinating procedures that carriers and district offices must adhere to, and liaison with health organizations, were found not to be management officials. Their duties, which bore a resemblance to those of Mr. Krimski and Mr. Levit, included providing technical guidance to field offices, making comprehensive reviews and preparing evaluations of field office operations. The Assistant Secretary found that they were resource people who worked within agency policies.

By contrast in the same decision, a Program Evaluation Analyst and a Public Affairs Officer were found to be management officials. The Program Evaluation Analyst conducted special studies, the results of which were incorporated into formal reports and recommendations, visited regional offices and sat in on comprehensive reviews to evaluate the programs, and acted as a liaison between the Regional Administrator and various state Health Insurance Commissioners. The Public Affairs Officer oversaw all public affairs activities in the region and evaluated their effectiveness, acted as Chairman of the Regional Public Affairs Counsel, issued press releases for the Regional Administrator, and had the responsibility of informing the news media of inaccuracies in their stories. The Assistant Secretary noted that his recommendations for improvement were usually followed and that he had daily contact with the Regional Commissioners. It can be seen that both of these employees were operating at levels of contact and responsibility substantially higher than those of Mr. Krimski and Mr. Levit.

In A/SLMR No. 310, Project Directors (General Cartographers) also were found to be experts or professionals rendering resource information rather than management officials. Their duties included participating in the development of a quality insurance program and in the preparation of special technical reports, coordinating, expediting, programing, and assisting the Division Chief, and drawing up standard operating procedures. A similar determination was made regarding a Project Director (Cartographic Engineer) whose duties included making an independent determination of technical action necessary in a particular matter, having wide latitude in expressing his professional knowledge, skills and ideas to plan and carry out assignments, acting as technical advisor to the Office Chief, acting as as advisor to the Incentive Awards Committee, and reviewing proposals and making recommendations as to whether or not equipment should be brought. With respect to both categories, the Assistant Secretary noted that their recommendations underwent close scrutiny and were not necessarily acted upon without change and found that their roles did not extend beyond those of experts or professionals rendering resource information or recommendations regarding policy.

In A/SLMR No. 361, Consumer Affairs Officers planned and directed regulatory programs, directed analytical methods procedures and techniques, advised industry and state and local officials on enforcement policies and coordinated enforcement activities. They also were found not to be management officials.

Although their duties somewhat resembled those of Mr. Krimski and Mr. Levit, the Assistant Secretary emphasized that they basically reviewed in accordance with established programs, that when no guidelines existed they submitted their findings to headquarters for evaluation, and any actions that they initiated were by way of recommendation.

In A/SLMR No. 487, the employees in question were found to be highly trained and skilled professionals who exercised a great deal of discretion and independent judgment and whose advice was usually heeded. However, they were found to be advisory personnel rather than management officials, based upon the finding that their supervisors decided what course of action was to be followed.

In A/SLMR No. 503, Computer Specialists who developed plans and programs and coordinated them in accomplishing program objectives were similarly found not to be management officials. A similar conclusion was reached in A/SLMR No. 596 in which a Budget Analyst GS-14 and a Budget Analyst GS-13 were held not to be management officials. The former employee was responsible for overseeing the effective presentation of HEW's budgets before the Office of Management and the Budget and the Congress. He also drafted budget format guidelines which were followed by HEW agencies, based upon Congressional and OMB instructions. The latter employee developed budget guidelines and served on a management negotiating team, however her recommendations were found to conform to established policy and, standing alone, her membership in a management negotiating team was not sufficient to confer management status upon her.

Similarly in A/SLMR No. 634, several types of employees all were found not to be management officials. One, a chemist, was the only chemist in the division. His supervisors relied upon his expertise in the field of chemistry. He made recommendations regarding the renewal, continuation or change of programs at various universities and laboratories, he participated in budget justification preparation and attended inter-agency and intra-agency meetings. He was found to be a highly trained professional and expert who provided resource information and recommendations.

In A/SLMR No. 645, a Cost Examiner, who developed a cost handbook for the State of North Dakota, who attended management meetings on budget matters, trained employees, and processed and coordinated loan applications was similarly found to be on expert or resource person. The same conclusion was reached regarding a Loan Specialist who acted as a liaison between developers and their counsel and was responsible for the travel budget in his section.

I have found only three cases in which employees have been held to be management officials under the Arnold test - Arnold itself (A/SLMR No. 135), A/SLMR No. 266, which I have discussed above, and A/SLMR No. 565.

In A/SLMR No. 135, the employee was the sole civilian safety engineer directly connected with the Air Force at the installation. As such, he was a member of the Activity's safety council where his opinions were almost invariably followed. Additionally the final product was circulated over his signature.

In A/SLMR No. 565, Senior Regional Analysts and Regional Analysts were found to be management officials. Their duties included evaluating programs and the performance of management officials. In the performance of these duties, they either initiated corrective action or recommended solutions with respect to personnel, budget, manpower and operations policies. They dealt directly with managers on a "one to one" basis and in most instances their recommendations were put into effect without review or approval. In more complex cases, their recommendations were submitted to the Assistant Regional Commissioner for approval but for the most part his approval was a mere formality.

Comparing the decisions to the facts at hand, I find that the duties of Mr. Krimski and Mr. Levit more closely resemble those of highly skilled experts or professionals rendering resource information or recommendations rather than individuals who actively participate in the ultimate determination of what policy, in fact, will be.

The fact that these auditors are doing challenging reorganizational work does not make them management officials. Nor does the fact that they are highly skilled and that their end products are met with approval 75 to 90 percent of the time. Although they work with independence, they nevertheless confer with Mr. Turek and their other supervisors at least once a week and on these occasions they make sure that they are going in the desired direction. Mr. Turek impresses me as an excellent supervisor. He is able to instill enthusiasm into his employees by emphasizing the challenges of their work. This is as it should be. He encourages their recommendations and appears to gently and tactfully suggest his thoughts rather than to directly order. However, in the last analysis, they recommend and he alone in the division approves. This applies to all of their efforts. In the words of Mr. Levit, their efforts are but, "a beginning step to making policy." Before their recommendations become policy they are subject to approval by the one individual with real authority in the Division, Mr. Turek and in most cases their recommendations are subject to approval by others such as other Division Chiefs, the Assistant Commissioner of Operations, and the Commissioner of Customs.

Recommendation

I recommend that the challenges to the ballots of Mr. Allan M. Levit and Mr. Matthew J. Krimski be overruled and that their ballots be opened and counted.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

COMMISSARY, FORT MEADE,
DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY
A/SLMR No. 793

This proceeding arose upon the filing of an unfair labor practice complaint by the National Federation of Federal Employees, Local 1651 (Complainant) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order by attempting to interfere with an employee's right to choose his own representative and violated Section 19(a)(1) and (3) by allowing the active solicitation of membership by the American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE) during duty hours in a unit in which the Complainant had exclusive recognition and a valid negotiated agreement.

The substance of the interference allegation was that a management official told a unit employee that he could not be represented by the Complainant's national representative but only by the Complainant local. The Administrative Law Judge found that, in the context of the case, the statement did not constitute a Section 19(a)(1) violation. In this regard, he noted that the national representative was allowed to continue to represent the employee for the rest of the meeting and that the words used constituted only innocuous sparring.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's finding in this regard and, in doing so, noted that the wording of the parties' negotiated agreement pertaining to the contractual grievance procedure provided that, "Employees who use this procedure may be represented only by the union or by an individual approved by the union." The Assistant Secretary found that management's objection constituted a reasonable and arguable interpretation of the parties' negotiated agreement and, hence, such statement did not constitute a violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

With regard to the second allegation, the Administrative Law Judge found that the Respondent had violated Section 19(a)(1) and (3) of the Order based on the latter's improper assistance to the AFGE. He noted the absence of evidence that the AFGE had made a diligent effort to contact employees by other means, and that the Respondent had sufficiently inquired as to efforts made by the AFGE before granting the AFGE access to its premises. He noted also that there was no showing that the AFGE could not have reached employees through other channels of communication or contact.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations. In doing so, he noted additionally the fact that while the AFGE organizer was a Fort Meade employee, the area of solicitation was a lunchroom restricted for the use of only Commissary employees.

DECISION AND ORDER

On November 30, 1976, Administrative Law Judge George A. Fath issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding, among other things, that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom, and take certain affirmative action as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. Thereafter, the Complainant filed exceptions to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order, and the entire record in this case, including the exceptions filed by the Complainant, 1/ and noting particularly the absence of exceptions by the Respondent, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations, to the extent consistent herewith.

1/ The Complainant's exceptions concerned the Administrative Law Judge's failure to recommend that all signatures gathered from Commissary employees by Local 1622, American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO (AFGE), to support its showing of interest be declared null and void. Issues concerning the adequacy and validity of showing of interest to support a petition are, pursuant to Section 202.2(f) of the Regulations of the Assistant Secretary, within the jurisdiction of the Area Administrator when appropriate challenges are filed. Accordingly, at an appropriate time after the filing of a petition, the Complainant may raise such issues with the Area Administrator in accordance with the Regulations.

The complaint in the instant case alleged, in effect, that the Respondent Activity attempted to interfere with an employee's right to choose his own representative in violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order, and also that it allowed active solicitation of membership by the AFGE during duty hours in the unit in which the Complainant had exclusive recognition and a valid negotiated agreement in violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (3) of the Order.

In agreement with the Administrative Law Judge's conclusion as to the first allegation, I find that the Respondent's statement to an employee at a December 9, 1975, grievance meeting between management and the Complainant to the effect that the national representative of the Complainant local "...can't represent you and you must be represented by the local union" did not improperly interfere with the employee's right to choose his own representative in violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order. In this regard, it was noted that Article 9.1 of the parties' negotiated agreement pertaining to the contractual grievance procedure states that, "Employees who use this procedure may be represented only by the union or by an individual approved by the union." Further, the preamble of the agreement identifies Local 1651 as the "union." In this context, I find that the statement of the Respondent's representative at the December 9 meeting reflected a reasonable and arguable interpretation of the parties' negotiated agreement 2/ and, therefore, was not violative of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order. 3/

With regard to the second allegation in the subject complaint concerning alleged improper assistance by the Respondent, I find, in agreement with the Administrative Law Judge, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (3) of the Order by allowing Mrs. Davis, a member of the AFGE and an employee at Fort Meade, but not an employee of the Commissary, access to the Commissary lunchroom in order to solicit signatures of employees at a time when the AFGE had not filed a representation petition and, thus, was not in equivalent status with the Complainant, the exclusive representative of the Commissary employees. In this regard, it was noted particularly that the parties stipulated that the Commissary lunchroom is a non-work area restricted for the use of Commissary employees. As Mrs. Davis, the AFGE's representative, was not a Commissary employee and, thus, had no right of access to the restricted Commissary employees' lunchroom, in my view, the Respondent's conduct in granting her the right to solicit in such area at a time when no petition had been filed by the AFGE was violative of 19(a)(1) and (3) of the Order. 4/

2/ Moreover, it appears that the Respondent allowed the Complainant's national representative to continue to represent the employee in question at the subject meeting.

(b) In any like or related manner, interfering with, restraining, or coercing its employees in the exericise of their rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

(b) Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations, notify the Assistant Secretary, in writing, within 30 days from the date of this order as to what steps have been taken to comply herewith.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the complaint, insofar as it alleges an independent violation of Section 19(a)(1) based on alleged interference with an employees' right to choose his own representative in a meeting with management, be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

This case arises under Executive Order 11491, as amended (hereinafter called the Order). A Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued by the Acting Regional Administrator for Labor-Management Services, Philadelphia Region, on May 25, 1976, based on a complaint filed on March 1, 1976, by Local 1651, National Federation of Federal Employees (hereinafter called Complainant, Local 1651, NFFE, or the Union) against the Department of the Army, Fort Meade, Maryland (hereinafter called the Activity or the Respondent). The Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued with respect to the alleged violations of Sections 19(a)(1) and 19(a)(1) and (3) of the Order as set forth in the complaint. Briefly stated, the Union complains: (1) that the activity attempted to interfere with an employee's right to choose his own representative in violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the order; and (2) that the activity allowed active solicitation of membership by the American Federation of Government Employees (hereinafter called AFGE) during duty hours in a unit in which local 1651 has exclusive jurisdiction and a valid contract in violation of Section 19(a)(1) and 19(a)(3) of the Order.

A hearing was held on July 7, 1976, at Fort Meade, Maryland. All parties were represented and were given full opportunity to present evidence, examine and cross examine witnesses, argue, and file briefs.

The following findings, conclusions, and recommendations are based upon the entire record including observation and the witnesses, their demeanor, and evaluation of their testimony.

Preliminary Matter

The complainant moved for correction of errors in the record.

The motion is granted and the record is corrected as follows:

1. Page 1-10, line 8, change Section 1903 to Section 19(a)(3).

2. Page 1-42, line 17, change her supervisor to his supervisor.

3. Page 1-58, line 1, change force com to FORCOM. Same change on page 1-95, line 22. FORCOM is the acronym for one of the commands within the Department of the Army.

4. Page 1-79, line 8, change an to and.

Findings of Fact

Fort Meade Commissary is situated in and on Fort Meade, Maryland, an army post. It serves card-carrying active and retired military personnel.

The commissary services are carried on in a main building, commissary annex, four warehouses, and a supply building. Building P43, a part of the commissary complex, is separated from the main commissary by about 50 yards, and it is used by the employees as a breakroom, rest facility, and lunch room.

Local 1651 has had exclusive recognition as the representative of non-supervisory employees of the Fort Meade Commissary since March 7, 1972. There is a collective bargaining agreement between the parties, effective February 6, 1973, for a period of two years which is automatically renewed at the end of that time for an equivalent period. Mr. James Foster, who is now deceased, was President of the Local during the period covered by the complaints.

On December 5, 1975, a petition was filed by the AFGE, Local 1622, with the Department of Labor seeking an election for the unit of commissary employees represented by the NFFE, Local 1651. The petition was voluntarily withdrawn on December 22, 1975.

Violation of Section 19(a)(1)-The Rights of the Employee

On December 9, 1975, there was a meeting between management and the union at the activity, called by Mr. Sam King, a special national representative of NFFE, to discuss the complaint of Mr. Israel Cummins that he was not getting his share of overtime. The meeting was attended by King, Cummins, and Foster for the union, and Charles E. Allen, commissary manager, Mr. Masters, meat market manager, and Mrs. Margaret E. Schwartz, Management-Employee Relation Specialist, for the activity.

As the meeting opened the parties displayed a testiness. Management took the position that Cummins complaint had been resolved informally. Schwartz, noticing that Foster was not present, summoned him from his job, and informed Cummins that King could not represent him and he was to be represented by the local only. She referred to the collective bargaining agreement and asked King whether this was a grievance, grip, complaint, or what. King replied that he did not give a damn about that little book, and that he was there to discuss a problem going on at the activity.

Schwartz denies that she told Cummins that he could not be represented by King. Cummins was not called as a witness so that his version of the incident and his reaction to Schwartz-King dispute is unknown.

Irrespective of the exact words exchanged by the parties, it is found that management questioned the union's capacity to represent Cummins in his presence. Management placed the union in a defensive position. The colloquy between Schwartz and King, give a reasonable interpretation, supports Kings version that Cummins was told he could not be represented by King but had to be represented by the local.

King, in fact, did represent Cummins, and discussed his complaint at that meeting for one hour and ten minutes.

Violations of Sections 19(a)(1) and 19(a)(3)-Activity Assistance To AFGE

At a union meeting on November 20, 1975, Local 1622, AFGE, decided to move to solicit a showing of interest among the employees of the commissary upon which to base a petition for election. It made an unsuccessful solicitation of the employees on their parking lot on December 3, 1975. There was no significant result from the effort. On the following day, Mrs. Rita Davis, a member of AFGE but not a commisssary employee, went to the commissary. She gained admission on her commissary privilege card as the dependent wife of a retired military man. Once inside, she spoke to officers and members of NFFE, as a matter of courtesy, to inform them of her intention to solicit a showing of interest in the filing of a petition. Mrs. Davis testified that these members of NFFE welcomed her and implied that they endorsed and would aid her efforts.

Davis was directed to see Mr. Chester E. Allen, commissary store manager, for permission to talk to people about membership. Davis told Allen of her unsuccessful parking lot solicitation. Allen called Schwartz for an opinion on the legality of the proposal. He testified that Schwartz immediate reaction was yes, they could, as long as they talked to the employees in the break area during non-work time. 1/ Thereupon, Allen escorted Davis to building P43, the employee's lunchroom, where he set up a table in the back of the room out of the "normal traffic of people" and in a proper atmosphere to conduct business. He stated he gave AFGE the same accomodations he regularly gave NFFE.

Davis was joined by Mr. Thomas E. Shoff, the President of the NFFE Local, and together they solicited the employees.

Mr. John William Matrau, a commissary employee, witnessed the solicitation by AFGE and testified at the hearing. He stated that Schwartz was present in the lunchroom speaking to Davis, and, after speaking to him about an union posting he had placed on the bulletin board in the lunchroom, she left. 2/ Matrau showed a clear recollection of events in the lunchroom on December 4, 1975. His demeanor was forthright, and on the whole, his testimony is credited. His testimony that Schwartz was in the lunchroom on the day of the solicitation is accepted as the fact.

Other than the parking lot solicitation on December 3, 1975, there is no evidence that AFGE made any effort to contact the employees away from the activity. The evidence deals with the unfeasibility of various options open to the union through which to contact the employees rather than with actual attempts at contact.

The activity adopted the same approach after the fact of solicitation. It too found various avenues of employee contact by the union outside the activity impractical for a variety of seemingly specious reasons.

It is found that the AFGE did not make a reasonable attempts to contact the employees away from the activity prior to the solicitation on December 4, 1975.

Management had no knowledge and made no inquiries

1/ Schwartz testified that after she received the call from Allen, she called FORCOM for a legal opinion and called Allen back "10 to 17 minutes" later.

2/ Schwartz denies being in the lunchroom on that day. She testified that she did not leave her office all day.

calculated to eliciting information as to unaccessibility of the commissary employees prior to allowing AFGE the use of its services and facilities.

Conclusions of Law

Violation of Section 19(a)(1) - The Rights Of The Employee

The Union relies principally on Army Training Center, Infantry Laundry Facility, Fort Jackson, South Carolina, A/SLMR No. 242 for legal support of the charge that the activity violated Section 19(a)(1) in telling Cummins that he could not be represented by Sam King. That case is clearly distinguishable from this case on the facts.

In the Army Center case, the violative conduct consisted of a supervisor, telling an employee to shut her mouth unless spoken to during a formal meeting. Additionally, the employee was denied a representative of her choice at a meeting called by management. Such obtrusive conduct easily falls within the proscription of Section 19(a)(1).

The conduct complained of in this case does not carry the force or flavor of the prohibitions contained in Section 19(a)(1). The words "King cannot represent you, and you must be represented by the local union" are not harsh or abusive, interferring, restraining, or coercing. In context, the exchange between Schwartz and King is innocuous sparring.

Cummins was represented by King, a representative of his choice, and his complaint regarding his share of overtime was discussed with management on his behalf.

There is no violation of Section 19(a)(1) inhering in the evidence presented in this case, and it will be recommended that the complaint be dismissed.

Violation of Section 19(a)(3) - Activity Assistance To AFGE

Section 19(a)(3) provides:

(a) Agency Management shall not---

(3) Sponsor, control, or otherwise assist a labor organization, except that an agency may furnish customary and routine services and facilities under Section 23 of this Order when consistent with the best interests of the agency, its employees, and the organization, and when the services and facilities are furnished, if requested, on an impartial basis to organizations having equivalent status.

The AFGE did not enjoy equivalent status with the NFFE on the 4th of December 1975, when it solicited the employees of the Fort Meade Commissary. There was an existing contract between the activity and NFFE. A question of representation had not been raised. NFFE enjoyed a favored position.

The principles stated in Department of the Army, v.s. Army Natick Laboratories, Natick Massachusetts, A/SLMR No. 263 are applicable and controlling in this case. A union which does not have equivalent status may not be given the services and facilities of the agency. The activity should not have the power to pick and choose a rival organization to unseat the incumbent. Labor-management relations stability could be placed in jeopardy by an agency or activity using as leverage in the bargaining relationship the power to permit representatives of a rival labor organization on its premises at anytime for campaigning purposes. Under special circumstances a labor organization which does not have equivalent status may be furnished agency or activity services and facilities for an organizational campaign only in circumstances when it can be established that the employees involved are inaccessible to reasonable attempts by the labor organization to communicate with them outside the agency's or activity's premises.

The location of the AFGE campaign, Building P43, is on the activity premises at Fort Meade. The building is occupied and controlled by the activity. It is only incidental to the operation of the commissary that it is also used as an employee breakroom and lunchroom.

The activity pridefully gave AFGE the same use of its facilities for campaigning that it gave to the exclusive representative, NFFE. Based on the testimony, it manifested a singular solicitude for AFGE in providing a place on the activity premises, away from people traffic in the lunchroom, which would be a proper place for the transaction of business.

The equivalent treatment offered AFGE by the activity can be justified only where special circumstances exist. It must be shown that it acted upon evidence that the union made a reasonable but unsuccessful effort to contact the employees away from activity premises and that failure of the union was based on their inaccessibility.

The evidence compels the conclusion that the AFGE launched a crash program to obtain the requisite showing of interest within three days in order to file a petition by December 5, 1975. It made only one effort to reach the employees away from the activity and that was on the parking lot on December 3, 1975. This attempt provided it with the springboard it thought it needed to bound into the activity premises for campaigning on December 4, 1975.

The activity readily accepted the representations of AFGE calculated to show reasonable attempts to contact the employees. Without question, it accepted the proposal, expressed or implied, that the commissary employees were inaccessible away from the premises.

The attempts by the activity and AFGE to justify their actions by methodically finding all traditional outside avenues of employee contact ineffective are not persuasive. These rationalizations, born of necessity, are transparent unrealities and unsupported by evidence. Had such negative attitudes prevailed in union organization from the beginning, the movement would have died with the Knights of Labor.

The activity did not prove the existence of the special circumstances which must underlay the use of activity services and facilities in this case. Based on the evidence it has not been established that the commissary employees were inaccessible outside the activity premises to reasonable attempts by AFGE to contact them.

It is, therefore, found that the activity violated section 19(a)(3), and, accordingly, a cease and desist order is recommended.

A violation of Section 19(a)(3) necessarily tends to interfere with, restrain, or coerce employees in the exercise of their rights assured by the Order, and, where, as here, a violation of that section is found there is also a violation of Section 19(a)(1). See Army and Air Force Exchange Service, Pacific Exchange System, Hawaii Regional Exchange, A/SLMR No. 454. A cease and desist order is recommended against the activity for violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order, as amended.

Prayers For Relief

In addition to praying for relief which naturally flows from violations of Sections 19(a)(1) and (3), the complainant asks for the following:

4. All signatures gathered from Commissary employees by Local 1622 of the American Federation of Government Employees in December of 1975 be declared null and void. No future petition for the Commissary employees at Fort Meade be allowed to use any of the signatures as a part of the showing of interest. Any petition which contains such signatures be dismissed for a defective showing of interest.

5. Management be instructed concerning its duties to keep AFGE Local 1622's representatives out of the commissary area and to deny them the use of any agency facilities while they do not have equivalent status with NFFE Local 1651.

It is recommended that the above prayers for relief be denied on the grounds that the relief prayed is overbroad, anticipatory, and unnecessary to meet the ends of justice in this case.

Recommended Order

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.25(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders the Department of the Army, Fort Meade Commissary, Fort Meade, Maryland, shall:

(b) In any like or related manner, interferring with, restraining, or coercing its employees in the exercise of their rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following affirmative actior in order to effectuate the purposes and provisions of the Order:

(a) Post at its facility copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary for Labor-Management Relations. SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE,
NATIONAL OCEANIC AND ATMOSPHERIC ADMINISTRATION, NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE, WESTERN REGION
A/SLMR No. 794

This case arose upon the filing of a complaint by the National Association of Government Employees, Council of Western Region Locals, (Complainant) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to approve a negotiated supplemental agreement within 45 days, as required by Section 15 of the Order, by disapproving the supplemental agreement and by insisting on the renegotiation of a specific portion of the agreement.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that May 19, 1975, the day the Respondent's Director for the Western Region forwarded the supplemental agreement to the reviewing authority, should be considered the date he was deemed to have executed the supplemental agreement for the purposes of Section 15 of the Order, although, in the circumstances of the subject case, he concluded such execution of the contract was merely a "ministerial act." He further concluded that the Respondent's verbal notification on July 1, 1975, to the Complainant of disapproval by the reviewing authority of a specific clause was sufficiently specific and timely to meet the requirements of Section 15 of the Order. Consequently, he recommended the dismissal of the complaint.

The Assistant Secretary, although agreeing with the Administrative Law Judge that May 19, 1975, was the appropriate date for determining the time limit for agency review under Section 15 of the Order, found that the constructive execution of the supplemental agreement on that date was not merely a "ministerial act" as, by virtue of the terms of the parties' ground rules for negotiating the supplemental agreement, it was required that the Director execute such agreement as a condition precedent to its being in effect. Further, the Assistant Secretary, in agreement with the Administrative Law Judge, found that the Respondent's verbal notification to the Complainant of disapproval by the reviewing authority of a specific item in the supplemental agreement, and the basis therefor, was sufficient to constitute notification of disapproval within the meaning of Section 15 of the Order.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

On October 14, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Samuel A. Chaitovitz issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had not engaged in the unfair labor practices alleged in the complaint and recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. Thereafter, the Complainant filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, including the exceptions and supporting brief filed by the Complainant, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations, to the extent consistent herewith.

The evidence establishes that on March 26, 1975, the parties agreed to ground rules governing the negotiation of a supplemental agreement to a multi-unit negotiated agreement between the National Association of Government Employees and the National Weather Service. These ground rules provided, in part, that "...the employer will not be bound by the negotiated agreement or any portion thereof until the Director, Western Region, has signed the Supplemental Agreement." (Emphasis added.) Under these circumstances, I find that the supplemental agreement herein could not be deemed to be executed until the condition precedent set forth in the ground rules-i.e., the execution of the supplemental agreement by the Director of the Western Region-had been met. Further, while I agree with the Administrative Law Judge's conclusion that the constructive execution date of the supplemental agreement for the purpose of determining the time limit for agency review under Section 15 of the Order 1/ was May 19, 1975, the date on which the Director of the Western Region forwarded the supplemental agreement to the reviewing authority 2/, I do not concur in his conclusion that, in the circumstances of this case, such constructive execution was merely a "ministerial act" as, in my view, by virtue of the terms of the ground rules, it was required that he execute such agreement as a condition precedent to its being in effect. 3/ However, in agreement with the Administrative Law Judge, I find that the Respondent's verbal notification to the Complainant on July 1, 1975, of the disapproval by the reviewing authority of a specific item in the supplemental agreement, and the basis therefor, was sufficient to constitute notification of disapproval within the meaning of Section 15 of the Order. Accordingly, I shall order that the instant complaint be dismissed.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the complaint in Case No. 61-2870(CA) be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

Dated, Washington, D. C.

1/ Section 15 states, in pertinent part, with respect to approval of negotiated agreements by an agency head or his designee that: "...An agreement which has not been approved or disapproved within forty-five days from the date of its execution shall go into effect without the required approval of the agency head and shall be binding on the parties subject to the provisions of law, the Order and the regulations of appropriate authorities outside the agency...."

2/ It was noted that in its brief to the Administrative Law Judge the Respondent stated, in part, "The Director's implied approval by forwarding to NOAA [National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration] for higher level review constitutes execution of the Agreement in the sense conveyed by Executive Order 11491, as amended, Section 15, and in agreement with the negotiated ground rules...."

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This proceeding arises under Executive Order 11491, as amended, herein called the Order. On November 6, 1975 a complaint was filed by National Association of Government Employees, Council of Western Regional Locals, hereinafter called NAGE Western Region Council, the Union or Complainant, alleging that U.S. Department of Commerce, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, National Weather Service, Western Region, hereinafter called the NWS Western Region, the Activity or Respondent, violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to approve a negotiated supplemental agreement within 45 days as required by Section 15 of the Order, by disapproving the supplemental agreement and by insisting that the parties renegotiate the specific portion of the agreement that had been disapproved. Pursuant to the Regulations of the Assistant Secretary of Labor Management Relations, herein called the Assistant Secretary, a Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued on May 24, 1976 by the Acting Regional Administrator for the Kansas City Region.

A hearing was held before the undersigned in Salt Lake City, Utah. Both parties were represented at the hearing and were afforded full opportunity to adduce evidence, call, examine and cross-examine witnesses and argue orally. Both parties filed briefs which have been duly considered.

Upon the entire record in this matter, 1/ including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions of law and recommendation.

Findings of Fact

1. At all times material herein the NAGE Weather Region Council bargaining unit consisting of approximately 550 of the NWS Western Region's employees, most of whom occupy the

1/ The record in this case was closed on September 9, 1976 with the receipt of the corrected deposition of witness Perry Walper.

following positions: electronic technicians, meteorological technicians, meteorologists, hydrologists, and clearical workers.

2. The above-described unit is the only unit within the Activity, and Complainant is the only labor organization.

3. In 1974 the National Association of Government Employees and the National Weather Service entered into a two-year Multi-Unit Agreement which comprehensively governed terms and conditions of employment of employees in four regions of the National Weather Service, including the Activity. Pursuant to Article 3, section 4 and Article 30 of the Multi-Unit Agreement the parties at the Regional level are permitted to negotiate supplemental agreements.

4. On or about March 24, 1975, Lester C. Jordon, Chairman of the NAGE Western Region Council, submitted the Union's original proposals to NWS Western Region management, in compliance with the requirement of Article 3, section 4b of the Multi-Unit Agreement that "Proposals...for the purpose of initiating supplemental agreements shall...be received by each party at least 45 calendar days in advance of the date on which negotiations are to begin." Negotiation of the parties' first supplemental agreement was scheduled for May 14 and 15, 1975.

5. Mr. Jordan also forwarded a copy of the ground rules proposed by management, to which he had agreed on March 26, 1975. These ground rules provided in Article 4 that the employer will not be bound by the negotiated agreement or any portion thereof until the Director, Western Region has signed the supplemental agreement. These ground rules were negotiated before the parties had any knowledge of the amendments to the Order which were signed on February 6, 1975 and which did not become effective until May of 1975.

6. The Union's Article 15, section 3d, 2(c) of the Union's proposed supplemental agreement was the same as Article 15, section 3d, 2(c) of a supplemental agreement between the National Weather Service, Central Region and the NAGE Central Region Council of NWS Locals, which agreement had not been disapproved by the Department of Commerce (hereinafter called D.O.C.) or the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (hereinafter also N.O.A.A.) and in fact had been implemented. This Union proposal was apparently accompanied by a proposed change in Article 15 Section 3d 2(c).

7. Shortly after receipt of the Union's proposals, the N.W.S. Western Region, forwarded them to the N.O.A.A. Personnel Office in accordance with N.O.A.A. Circular 74-36 which provides for "Review of Labor Management Relations Proposals and Agreements" in order to "assure conformance among negotiated agreements concerning N.O.A.A. and D.O.C. policies, regulations and law." Marked on Article 15, section 3d, 2(c) of the proposal at the review at the national level of N.O.A.A./N.W.S. was the following marginal notation by Mr. Perry Walper - "Do not negotiate" and an additional reference to Section 11(b) of the Executive Order. In addition Mr. Grimm of N.W.S. Headquarters commented that he thought the Union's Article 15 section 3, c, 1(e) proposal countermanded the N.O.A.A. Personnel Handbook. These opinions were forwarded to Respondent's representatives well in advance of the commencement of negotiations.

8. On the first day of negotiation, May 14, 1975, the Respondent refused to agree to some parts of the Union's scheduling proposals because of a directive from Dr. George Cressman, N.W.S. Director, of December 20, 1973 which set forth the official N.W.S. interpretation of N.O.A.A. policies as set forth in the N.O.A.A. handbook. No refusal to discuss the proposal occurred and at no time during the negotiations did the Respondent declare the Union's proposals to be non-negotiable, although the Activity did express its reservations as to whether the Union's proposals with respect to scheduling may violate N.O.A.A. policy. The Union sought and received a counterproposal from Respondent, which in large measure adopted the Union's section 3d proposals, with the notable exception of paragraph 2(c). As a result of the Union's opposition to this omission, the parties agreed to treat the item as if they had reached impass and it was not again discussed on May 14.

9. On the second day of negotiations, the Union again raised the subject of scheduling, and resubmitted its proposal, which evoked a counterproposal by the management team. The Union proposed certain modifications, to this counter-proposal and agreement was reached on this basis. 3/ Since all other matters had also been settled, the parties had concluded a complete agreement.

10. The Supplemental Agreement was then typed and prepared for the signature of the Director, N.W.S. Weather Region. It should also be noted that the Director, N.W.S. Western Region, had been fully consulted regarding the final management counterproposal and had approved its substance. His review was basically to be confined to form and grammar, and it was expected that he would forward the Agreement right on to N.O.A.A. The prepared Agreement was forwarded to the Director, N.W.S. Western Region, for his signature on or about May 19, 1975.

11. On May 19, 1975, after perusal by the Director, N.W.S. Western Region, the supplemental agreement was forwarded to the N.O.A.A. Personnel Office for review. On June 3, 1975, Mr. Grimm of N.W.S. Headquarters advised Mr. Walper of N.O.A.A. that, in his opinion, the first sentence of the negotiated provision (Section 3(d)(3)) was contrary to N.W.S. scheduling policy contained in a letter issued December 20, 1973. In addition Mr. Husser of N.O.A.A. verbally advised Mr. Walper that the second sentence of the negotiated provision conflicted with Chapter 11-04 of the N.O.A.A. Personnel Handbook.

3/ The agreed upon Section was numbered Article 15, Section 3(d)(3) and the language apparently was: "After posting, the regular agreed upon guidance schedule will not be changed to deny employees premium pay. Supervisors will not work holidays in place of another non-supervisory employee unless they are working a part of a regular shift rotation or unless after reasonable determination by the Officer in Charge there is no one else to fill in for an excused absence."

12. On June 26, 1975, N.O.A.A. Chief of Personnel, Ralph Reeder, with the drafting assistance of Labor Relations Chief Perry Walper, directed a memorandum to the N.W.S. Western Region Chief, Personnel Management Division in which he stated that the "language of Article 15, section 3,d,3 of the Western Region Supplement" was contrary to the Multi-Unit Agreement, the Director's Memorandum, and Chapter 11-04 of the N.O.A.A. Personnel Handbook. Said memorandum was received at Western Region, N.W.S. Headquarters on June 30, 1975, at 4:29 p.m.

13. The next day, Mr. O.R. Warner contracted Mr. John Strauch of the N.A.G.E. Western Region Council by phone and informed him that N.O.A.A. felt that one provision of the agreement, Article 15 Section 3(d)(3), conflicted with Article 15, Section 3 of Multi-Unit Agreement, Chapter 11 of the N.O.A.A. Handbook, and N.W.S. Director Directive of December 20, 1973 and thus would have to be re-negotiated. Mr. Warner subsequently forwarded to both Mr. Strauch and Mr. Jordan a re-draft of the provision in question.

14. On or about July 18, 1975, Mr. Jordan and Mr. Baertsch discussed the matter of signing and distributing the supplemental agreement without the disputed provision, Mr. Jordan indicating that he would not date his signature. Thereafter Mr. Perry Walper of N.O.A.A. advised Mr. Baertsch that Mr. Jordan must sign. On July 19, 1975, Mr. Jordan signed and forwarded the supplemental agreement submitting with it a letter of protest. Said letter stated the Union's position that all parts of the supplemental agreement became effective 45 days after May 15 and that his signature was affixed only as a means of salvaging, as a practical matter, the remainder of the agreement.

15. On July 21, 1975, N.A.G.E. Counsel reiterated the Union's position in a letter to the Director of the N.W.S., Western Region, Jr. Bedke, and further requested that the Agency provide a "specific statement...of the basis of its apparent disapproval." On July 25, 1975, Mr. Walper of N.O.A.A. Labor Relations responded to this request in a three-paragraph letter listing and enclosing the specific documents deemed "preclusive to acceptance of the language of Article 15, section 3,d,3, of the N.W.S./N.A.G.E. Western Region Supplement."

16. On August 8, 1975 the Union demanded more specificity from the N.O.A.A. representative, Mr. Walper, who referred the Union back to the N.W.S. Western Region for further processing of the matter.

17. On September 1, 1975 Mr. Jordan again demanded that the disputed provision be printed, distributed, and implemented. Mr. Bedke responded on September 9, 1975, stating that the provision "as presently written is not negotiable." Informal and formal unfair labor practice procedures were then pursued.

Conclusions of Law

The facts establish that on May 15 the parties 4/ had reached complete agreement on the supplemental agreement and forwarded it to the Director, N.W.S. Western Region, for his signature. In such circumstances the act of executing the contract is merely a ministerial one and the Activity is given a reasonable time to do so. The Director except in some unusual circumstances, was obliged to execute the Agreement. In the instant case the agreement was typed, prepared and forwarded to the Director on or about May 19 for his signature. The Director reviewed the agreement and, without signing it, forwarded it to N.O.A.A. for its review of the Agreement. In such circumstances where the Director acted promptly in forwarding the agreement to headquarters for review, without his signature, the date he forwarded it was the date he was obliged to sign the agreement and therefore must be considered the date he is deemed to have executed the agreement.

Section 15 of the Order provides that an agreement shall be approved by the head of the agency within 45 days from its execution. If it is not timely approved or disapproved, the agreement automatically goes into effect without such approval and shall be binding "subject to provisions of law, the order and regulations of appropriate authorities outside the agency. In light of Section 15 the Director must be deemed to have signed the agreement on May 19, the date he forwarded it for review. To hold otherwise would be to permit the Director to defer the running of the 45 days and to totally frustrate the purposes of Section 15 of the Order, by refraining from doing an act, the signing of the contract, which he was obliged to do; clearly an unacceptable result.

However, on July 1, 1976, by telephone, a representative of the Activity did advise a member of the Union's negotiating team that the specific item of the Agreement had been disapproved because it violated certain specified portions of the N.O.A.A. Handbook and of the Multi-Unit Agreement. He also advised the Union representative that the Activity, was willing to promptly sit down and negotiate a new clause and he offered to send him a proposed clause. It is concluded that the Activity therefore did, within the requirements of Section 15 of the Order, notify the Union, within 45 days and with sufficient specificity, that headquarters had disapproved the supplemental agreement because the provision in question violated the Agency's rules and the Multi-Unit Agreement. Therefore, this is deemed to be in full compliance with Section 15 of the Order. 6/ Section 15 in no way requires that the disapproval be in writing, merely that the Union be advised of it in a timely fashion and presumably with sufficient specificity to render it meaningful notification. In the instant case, however, after the timely telephonic communciation, Mr. Walper on behalf of the Activity, during the latter part of July 1975, and at the Union's request, advised the Union in writing that the clause in question violated the specific N.W.S. Memorandum of December 20, 1973, the Chapter 11 Section 4 of the N.O.A.A. Handbook and particular portions of the Multi-Unit Agreement.

5/ The entire provision was only 2 sentences long.

6/ In this regard it is concluded that the parties did not waive the requirements nor application of Section 15 of the Order by virtue of either the ground rules or the supplemental agreement. Neither document constituted a clear or unequivocal waiver of the requirements of Section 15. It should be noted that the parties were not even aware of the new amendments to the Order in March 1975 when the ground rules were negotiated.

In light of all of the above, it is therefore concluded that the Activity did comply with the requirements of Section 15 of the Order by advising the Union within 45 days that headquarters disapproved the clause in question. It is further concluded that the Activity did so with sufficient specificity to permit the Union to negotiate a new clause or to challenge the disapproval by the procedures provided in Section 11(c) of the Order. 7/

Finally, it is concluded that subsequent to the timely and lawful disapproval of the disputed clause, the Agency did not, in any way fail to bargain in good faith because it made a new counter proposal. In this regard it should be noted that the record does not establish that the Union made a proposal of its own or that the Activity refused to discuss and negotiate concerning any Union proposal.

In view of all of the foregoing, it is concluded that the Activity did violate Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

RECOMMENDATION

Having found that Respondent has not engaged in conduct prohibited by Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order, I recommend that the complaint herein be dismissed in its entirety.

7/ It is clear that under the scheme of the amendments to the Order, in the type of situation here present, it is not appropriate for an Administrative Law Judge, in an unfair labor practice case to pass upon whether the subject clause of the supplemental agreement did in fact violate the N.O.A.A. Handbook or the Multi-Unit Agreement.

A/SLMR No. 795

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by Katherine I. Rector (Complainant) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (4) of the Order when its agent, the Principal of the Sembach Elementary School, conducted an observation of the Complainant's class on May 23, 1975, and made certain statements to the Complainant during the observation and at a post-observation meeting. The Complainant contended that the date, time and manner of the classroom observation was discriminatory and was in retaliation for filing a complaint against the Activity.

Under all the circumstances, the Chief Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Complainant had not met the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that the Principal's conduct violated Section 19(a)(1) or Section 19(a)(4) of the Order and, therefore, he recommended that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

Noting particularly the absence of exceptions, the Assistant Secretary adopted the findings, conclusions, and recommendations of the Chief Administrative Law Judge and ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This proceeding, heard at Sembach Air Force Base in Sembach, Germany on May 18, 1976, arises under Executive Order 11491, as amended, (hereinafter referred to as the Order) pursuant to a Notice of Hearing issued May 10, 1976 by the Regional Administrator, United States Department of Labor, Philadelphia Region.

The proceeding was initiated by the filing of a complaint by Katherine Rector (hereinafter referred to as the Complainant) against the United States Dependents Schools, European Area (hereinafter referred to as USDESEA or the Activity) on October 10, 1975.

The amended complaint alleged that the Activity violated Sections 19(a)(1) and 19(a)(4) of the Order when its agent, Dr. Timothy Kelley, conducted an observation of the Complainant's class on May 23, 1975 and made certain remarks to the Complainant during the observation and the post-observation conference.

At the hearing both parties were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to adduce evidence, to examine and cross-examine witnesses and to make oral argument.

Upon the entire record in this case, from my observations of all the witnesses and their demeanor, and from all the testimony and evidence adduced at the hearing, I make the following findings, conclusions, and recommendations:

Findings of Fact

Background

Sembach Elementary School, located in USDESEA District III, is one of one-hundred and sixty-seven OEA schools.

The Complainant has been employed by USDESEA for four of her ten years as an educator. From 1972 to June of 1975 she was a teacher at Sembach Elementary School. During the 1974-1975 school year she taught fourth grade.

Mr. Kelley has been a principal for sixteen of his twenty-three years as an educator. At all times relevant to this complaint he was the principal of Sembach Elementary School and, as such, the Activity's agent.

Educator Performance Evaluation Program (EPEP)

In accordance with USDESEA Regulation 690-326, commonly called EPEP, school administrators observe and evaluate teachers' classroom performance. Annually, performance ratings for each teacher are reported on the Standard Federal Civil Service Evaluation Form 1052.

The EPEP provides two methods of observation for use by administrators. One is called the "quick-look observation" which lasts only a minute or two. Its only purpose is to determine what is happening in the classroom. The administrator merely checks off the activity occurring on his AEUE Form 223.

In contrast, the method referred to as the "classroom visitation" lasts as long as thirty minutes and is intended to be evaluative. At least one visit of this type is required each year. Narrative comments are recorded on the reverse side of the AEUE Form 223.

School principals are responsible for explaining the EPEP to educators early in the year, coordinating the application of the EPEP in their schools, promoting post-observation discussions between administrators and teachers, and preparing the official annual performance ratings (DA Form 1052). There is no allegation that Mr. Kelley has not performed these general duties.

Complainant's Merit Promotion

The Complainant filed an application for merit promotion on May 12, 1975 and Mr. Kelley signed an assessment of her potential for merit promotion on May 22, 1975. His final assessment of the Complainant's potential is "average." He marked three of the thirty-seven possible categories "above average" and the remainder "average." No derogatory comments appear on the assessment form.

In April of 1976 the Complainant received a final promotion rating of "Class II Group II." Complainant does not allege that her final rating for promotion is discriminatory.

Complainant's Union Activity

During the 1974-1975 school year the Complainant was faculty union representative. The record establishes that Mr. Kelley was fully aware of the Complainant's active role in the union.

At the time of the alleged discriminatory conduct on May 23, 1975, a prior unfair labor practice charge and a grievance were pending against the Activity.

The unfair labor practice charge had been filed by the Complainant against Mr. Kelley for mentioning her union activities on an official USDESEA transfer form. A settlement was subsequently reached, under the terms of which Mr. Kelley was forbidden to mention any of the employees' union activities on official forms.

The grievance, filed by the Complainant, alleged that the administration was interfering in internal union affairs.

On May 22, 1975, the Complainant received a note from Mr. Kelley dated May 21, 1975. It indicated that Mr. Bean, the Activity's Labor Management Specialist, had called to suggest a time of 10:30 on May 23, 1975 to discuss her unfair labor practice charge. This note also included Mr. Kelly's suggestion of a meeting time on May 27, 1975 to discuss her grievance.

Classroom Observation of May 23, 1975

The following facts are not in dispute. May 23, 1975 was the day before the Memorial Day holiday. Sometime that afternoon, Mr. Kelley, without notice, visited the Complainant's classroom and watched her teach her fourth grade class. They exchanged a few remarks before the class began. Mr. Kelley remained seated in the rear of the room throughout his visit and did not ask to see the Complainant's lesson plan. As he left the classroom he did not speak to the Complainant to arrange a post-observation conference. While such conferences soon after visitations are encouraged, there is no requirement that they be arranged immediately following a visitation.

There is conflicting testimony regarding other aspects of Mr. Kelley's visit. Upon consideration of the testimony relating to the facts and circumstances and my observation of the parties and their demeanor, I find the Complainant's version the more credible recollection of that visit. 1/

Accordingly, I find that Mr. Kelley, upon entering the Complainant's classroom at 2:00 pm, found her alone. As he approached her desk he told her that he was there in order to evaluate her for the merit promotion for which she had applied. The Complainant responded by suggesting that Mr. Kelley refer to previous observations of her performance conducted by Mr. Orlando, the Vice Principal, during the year, the latter being responsible for observing the Complainant, as well as other fourth grade teachers, during the 1974-1975 school year. Mr. Kelley then replied, "Well, I may not make statements regarding your union activities on any form of USDESEA so I must observe you." It is this visit, as well as the quoted statement by Mr. Kelley, which are the gravamina of Complainant's unfair labor practice charge against the Activity. When the bell rang at 2:30 pm signifying the end of the school day, Mr. Kelley left the classroom.

The record indicates that Mr. Kelley and other administrators observed teachers at Sembach Elementary School the entire week of May 19 through May 23 in order to complete the required number of observations before the filing deadline for 1/ Mr. Kelley's testimony regarding the observation of May 23, 1975 was somewhat hesitant and at times inconsistent, reflecting the fact that his recollection may have been affected by the fact that this was one of a number of observations he conducted during that particular time frame. In contrast, Complainant's recollection is based on this single and, to her, obviously important incident.

the Federal Evaluation Form 1052. Other teachers were also observed on May 23, 1975 by Mr. Kelley and others. At least one other teacher was observed as late as 1:40 pm that day. While these observations were also spontaneous, they lasted no longer than a minute or two.

The Complainant acknowledges that a principal has the right to observe any of his teachers. However, she stresses that Mr. Kelley had assigned his vice-principal, Mr. Orlando, grades four through six to observe during the 1974-1975 school year and that Mr. Orlando had observed the Complainant on numerous occasions. Mr. Kelley had assigned himself grades one through three to observe that year. This was the only time that Mr. Kelley observed the Complainant's fourth grade class during the 1974-1975 school year.

Mr. Kelley offered various reasons for his last minute need to observe the Complainant. For example, he testified that it was his policy to observe all of his teachers at least once a year. He also testified that he wanted to be able to answer questions regarding job references truthfully. On the basis of the entire record, I am persuaded that this last minute observation was an attempt to comply fully and strictly with all possible regulations and avoid any future criticism. Thus, it is noteworthy that just before the observation he had signed an assessment of potential for merit promotion for the Complainant. Aware that he had not personally observed her teach that year and possibly in an attempt to avoid that criticism of his evaluation, he performed one last observation on May 23, 1975, just before the school year ended. On cross-examination Mr. Kelley was asked if he had observed Complainant, as he had other teachers, in order to meet the number of observations required by the Federal Evaluation Form 1052. He credibly testified, "No...I felt ill at ease that I hadn't observed her prior to that date so it was my last chance that year so I thought I would avail myself of it." The fact that an unfair labor practice charge was then pending against him may reasonably have increased his anxieties about any potential criticism of his evaluation of the Complainant and may well have encouraged him to observe all possible procedural formalities.

Post-Observation Meeting of May 23, 1975

I find that the meeting during the afternoon of May 23, 1975, was not a formal post-observation conference, but an informal meeting initiated by the Complainant without an appointment.

Both parties testified that the Complainant was visibly upset.

On the basis of the entire record, I find that in the course of this meeting Complainant requested to see Mr. Kelley's written evaluation of his observation; that Mr. Kelley had not made such a written evaluation since he determined that it was not necessary for Form 1052 purposes; that he therefore denied Complainant's request; that Mr. Kelley asked the Complainant if she had received the previously mentioned written message from him regarding Mr. Bean's (the Activity's Labor Management Specialist) phone call, and what the result of the call was; that the Complainant did not consider the question germane to the meeting and so informed Mr. Kelley; that Mr. Kelley asked Complainant whether the suggested date and time for a meeting on her grievance were acceptable; and that Complainant informed Mr. Kelley that she had already discussed this matter with the Superintendent.

Position of the Parties

The Complainant contends that the observation of her class on May 23, 1975 was in retaliation for filing a Complaint against the Activity and, thus, constituted interference with the exercise of her rights in violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order and constituted discrimination in violation of Section 19(a)(4) of the Order.

Complainant further contends that Mr. Kelley's remarks during the observation and post-observation meeting constituted implied threats which foreseeably tended to interfere with the exercise of her rights under the Order in violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order and constituted reprisal for filing a complaint against the Activity, and, as such, violated Section 19(a)(4) of the Order.

The Respondent denies that Mr. Kelley violated either Section of the Order and maintains that the observation was but one of many observations conducted on May 23, 1975 and that the Complainant was not singled out for disparate treatment.

The Respondent further maintains that Mr. Kelley's remarks were merely explanatory statements of fact and not implied threats which foreseeably tended to interfere with the Complainant's exercise of her rights under the Order.

Conclusions of Law

Classroom Observation of May 23, 1975

On the basis of the above findings of fact, I conclude that Mr. Kelley's observation of Complainant's classroom activities neither foreseeably interfered with the Complainant's exercise of any rights under the Order nor discriminated against her in violation of the Order.

The Complainant concedes that Mr. Kelley, as principal, has the right to observe her class but objects to the date, time, manner, type and length of the May 23, 1975 observation as discriminatory.

The record is replete with evidence that the Complainant was not subject to disparate treatment. Thus, while it arguably may not be the best procedure for an administrator to observe a teacher the last half-hour of the school day preceding a holiday, it is not the function of this tribunal to substitute its judgment in such a matter, especially where, as here, there is substantial evidence that other teachers at the school were observed on the same day; that at least one of these teachers was observed as late as 1:40 pm; and the observations on May 23, 1975 concluded a week long effort by Mr. Kelley and his staff to meet the deadline for filing the Federal Civil Service Evaluation Form 1052.

Under these circumstances, I am constrained to find that the classroom observation on May 23 constituted neither disparate treatment nor discrimination against the Complainant.

The Complainant further alleges that Mr. Kelley's manner of conducting the observation was improper and unprofessional. She objects to the fact that he remained seated in the rear of her classroom throughout his observation and that he did not ask to see her lesson plan. I feel constrained to reiterate that it would be an abuse of my function, were I to substitute my judgment in this matter over that of the duly constituted school authority or to rule on the propriety or professionalism of Mr. Kelley's performance of his duties. Absent a showing that the EPEP clearly proscribes such conduct or that this was not Mr. Kelley's usual method of observing teachers, I cannot find that the manner in which Mr. Kelley observed the Complainant's class was discriminatory within the meaning of the Order.

Furthermore, I find that the spontaneous nature of Mr. Kelley's visit was not discriminatory or otherwise objectionable where, as here, other teachers were observed without notice on the same day and the EPEP specifically sanctions this type of observation.

The Complainant objects to the thirty-minute length of her observation when others lasted only a few minutes. I find that this difference is reasonably explained by the fact that this was Mr. Kelley's last and sole opportunity to observe the Complainant before the 1974-1975 school year ended, and that, as discussed hereinabove, a purpose of Mr. Kelley's last-minute visit may have been the avoidance of any criticism that he had evaluated the Complainant for promotion without having personally observed her classroom performance during the school year.

Under these circumstances, and relying particularly on the fact that Complainant was treated essentially in the same manner as other teachers were treated on May 23, 1975, I must conclude that Mr. Kelley's observation of Complainant's class did not foreseeably tend to restrain, coerce or interfere with the exercise of Complainant's rights in violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order, nor did it constitute discrimination against her under Section 19(a)(4) of the Order. 2/

Mr. Kelley's Remarks

While the observation of Complainant's classroom performance did not violate the Order, there remains the issue of whether Mr. Kelley's remarks during the observation and the post-observation meeting on May 23, 1975 violated either Sections 19(a)(1) or 19(a)(4) of the Order.

The Complainant contends that Mr. Kelley's remarks were implied threats directed at her which foreseeably tended to interfere with the exercise of her rights under the Order in violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order. She further contends that the remarks constituted discipline and were made to punish her for filing a complaint in violation of Section 19(a)(4) of the Order.

2/ The record contains evidence that Mr. Kelley destroyed not only a Declaration of Intent form, which he was ordered to destroy as part of the settlement of the prior unfair labor practice charge, but also the Complainant's class observation records (AEVE Form 223) and her conference result records (AEVE Form 227). USDESEA regulations require that the AEVE Form 227 be kept in the school's files for three years and transferred with the teacher. The destroyed records also included performance ratings from administrators at Sembach and Mr. Kelley's own ratings of the Complainant for the preceding two years.

In view of the fact that Complainant's rating for promotion is not an issue in this case since she specifically declined to contest the fairness of her final rating for promotion, I find this evidence not material and find it unnecessary to make any findings of fact or conclusions of law based thereon.

I find that Mr. Kelley's remarks during the observation were no more than explanatory statements of fact made to justify his unexpected visit to the Complainant's classroon. The Complainant credibly testified to the following remarks made at the beginning of the observation. Mr. Kelley told her that he had come to observe her for the merit promotion program for which she had applied. After some discussion, not relevant here, he explained, "I may not make statements regarding your union activities on any form of USDESEA so I must observe you." This was Mr. Kelley's single reference during the observation to the subject matter of the unfair labor practice charge then pending against him. While shrouded in some ambiguity and perhaps lacking in diplomacy or social grace, I find that this isolated remark was no more than an ill chosen conversational ploy employed in a situation and setting which, under the circumstances, may well have been somewhat awkward for both parties. I further find that in the total context in which this isolated remark was uttered and in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, Mr. Kelley's remark during the observation did not constitute an implied threat under Section 19(a)(1) of the Order nor did it constitute discipline under Section 19(a)(4) of the Order.

With respect to the post-observation meeting on the afternoon of May 23, 1975, in the course of which Mr. Kelley asked the Complainant if she had received his note regarding a phone call from Mr. Bean, the Activity's Labor Management Specialist, and whether the proposed date and time for a meeting on her grievance were acceptable, I found, hereinabove, that this meeting was not a conference as contemplated by the EPEP. Rather, it was an informal meeting initiated by the Complainant without a prior appointment. Moreover, Mr. Kelley's inquiry in reference to the pending charge and grievance not only involved purely procedural rather than substantive matters, but was, under the circumstances, reasonable, understandable, and wholly innocuous. Accordingly, I find that Mr. Kelley's inquiry during the post-observation meeting on May 23, 1975, did not constitute an implied threat under Section 19(a)(1) of the Order or discipline under Section 19(a)(4) of the Order.

Conclusion and Recommendation

In conclusion, I find that the Complainant has not sustained her burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that the Activity violated either Section 19(a)(1) or Section 19(a)(4) of the Order by Mr. Kelley's observation of the Complainant's class on May 23, 1975 or by his remark to and inquiry of her during the observation and the post-observation meeting on the same date.

Recommendation

In view of the foregoing findings and conclusions, I recommend that the complaint herein be dismissed in its entirety.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION,
FEDERAL AVIATION ADMINISTRATION,
LAS VEGAS CONTROL TOWER,
LAS VEGAS, NEVADA
A/SLMR No. 796

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, MEBA, AFL-CIO, (PATCO) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order by reprimanding a union representative who, acting with union authority, quoted portions of a facility "briefing sheet" in a letter to a supervisor, copies of which were sent by the PATCO representative to members of the general public. The Respondent contended that the PATCO representative had violated Department of Transportation and Federal Aviation Administration regulations by sending copies of the aforementioned letter to an individual pilot and the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association (AOPA).

The Administrative Law Judge found that the quoted "briefing sheet" was an internal agency communication not available for dissemination to the general public and that the AOPA and an individual pilot were not appropriate authority to whom public appeals could be made within the meaning of Section 1(a) of the Order. He, therefore, concluded, and the Assistant Secretary concurred, that the protection of Section 1(a) of the Order did not extend to the dissemination of such internal agency communications to the general public. Based on these findings, the Administrative Law Judge recommended that the complaint be dismissed.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions, and recommendation and ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

On November 11, 1976, Administrative Law Judge William B. Devaney issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had not engaged in the unfair labor practices alleged in the complaint, and recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. Thereafter, the Complainant filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order, and the entire record in the case, including the Complainant's exceptions and supporting brief, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendation.

Under the particular circumstances herein, I agree with the Administrative Law Judge that the Respondent did not violate Section 19(a)(1) of the Order by issuing an official reprimand to the President of Local 525 of the Complainant. Thus, the evidence established that the "briefing sheet" quoted from by the PATCO Chapter President in the copies of the letter sent to Mr. Robb and the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association was part of an internal agency communication. In my view, the protection of Section 1(a) of the Order does not extend to the dissemination of such non-public information to the general public. 1/

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This case arises under Executive Order 11491, as amended (hereinafter also referred to as "Order"). It was initiated by a written charge filed on March 20, 1975, and complaint filed on June 20, 1975 (Ass't. Sec. Exh. 1). The complaint alleged violations of Sections 19(a)(1) and (5) of the Order as the result of an official reprimand of Mr. Lane Benton Brubaker, Jr., President of Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization (PATCO) Local 525 and PATCO Facility Representative, Las Vegas Tower. By letter dated December 23, 1975, the Regional Administrator dismissed the complaint (Res. Exh. 3); PATCO filed a request for review with the Assistant Secretary; and the Assistant Secretary, by letter dated May 20, 1976 (Ass't. Sec. Exh. 2) granted, in part, the request for review and remanded to the Regional Administrator with directions to reinstate that portion of the complaint alleging a violation of 19(a)(1) and, absent settlement, to issue a notice of hearing on such allegation. The Assistant Secretary stated,

> "In agreement with the Regional Administrator, I find that there is insufficient evidence to establish a reasonable basis for the Section 19(a)(5) allegation contained in the complaint and, consequently, further proceedings on such allegation are unwarranted. However, with respect to the Section 19(a)(1) allegation, I find that a reasonable basis for that portion of the complaint exists inasmuch as, in my view, substantial questions of fact have been raised with regard to, among other things, the general public's accessibility to the information contained in the facility's reading file binder retained in the Control Tower."

A Notice of Hearing on the alleged 19(a)(1) violation issued July 2, 1976, for a hearing on July 27, 1976, in Las Vegas, Nevada (Ass't. Sec. Exh. 4); on July 26, 1976, at the request of counsel for Complainant and for good cause shown, the hearing was rescheduled from July 27, 1976, to September 14, 1976, and an Order Rescheduling Hearing issued August 4, 1976 (Ass't. Sec. Exh. 5) pursuant to which a hearing was duly held before the undersigned on September 14, 1976, in Las Vegas, Nevada.

All parties were represented by counsel, were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses and to introduce evidence bearing on the issues involved and briefs were timely filed by the parties which have been carefully considered. Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions and recommendation:

Findings of Fact

1. On, or about, November 11, 1974, certain new air traffic control procedures were placed into effect at the Las Vegas Tower, known as Terminal Control Area procedures or, as abbreviated, TCA. The Agency, Federal Aviation Administration (FAA), was mandated by Congress to take action to reduce mid-air collision potential and after intensive study the TCA concept was evolved and FAA directed the establishment of terminal control areas at the major terminals throughout the United States whereby all aircraft operating within a TCA are controlled and positive separation between all aircraft in the controlled area is provided. TCA puts restrictions on aircraft because, when flying within a TCA, they have to be under air traffic control; have to follow instructions; and the aircraft are required to have certain equipment that many did not have prior to institution of TCA. Las Vegas was designated as one of the facilities to have a TCA and public hearings for establishment of the TCA at Las Vegas began in 1972, or earlier. Beginning at the same,time procedures for handling the traffic at Las Vegas were developed through a work group made up of controllers and supervisors with guidance from Regional and National FAA headquarters, together with the Facility Air Traffic Technical Advisory Committee (FATTAC).

2. By letter dated December 10, 1974, addressed to Mr. Lynn L. Hink, Chief, Air Traffic Division, Los Angeles, California (Comp. Exh. 1), Mr. Charles S. Robb, a private general aviation pilot, complained about an incident that occurred at the Las Vegas Airport on December 1, 1974, and in general about TCA. His letter stated, in part, as follows:

> "On Sunday, December 1, 1974, at approximately 1330 hours, I departed the Las Vegas airport and TCA on a VFR clearance. Had I complied with the clearance, (especially if it had been at night) I would have struck rising terrain west of the airport. This clearance endangered the lives of six people and placed the aircraft in a hazardous situation.
> "My original clearance was 'right turn off runway 19 to a heading of 290°, climb and maintain 4000' and contact departure control'. I was assigned a departure frequency and transponder code and complied with these instructions. After becoming airborne on a heading of 290° and level at 4000', I requested a left turn to 240° and was assigned 260°. I complied with this new heading and requested a higher altitude because of rapidly rising terrain. Although this request was acknowledged, no new clearance was issued. Because of the danger of the situation, I informed Departure Control that we were leaving 4000' and climbing, and, if necessary, declaring an emergency in order to avoid terrain. The Approach Controller's answer was a classic ATC 'pass the buck'. He completely and obviously, ignored my transmission and came back with a 'contact Departure Control on frequence ----.' At this point we were climbing at 'best rate of climb' speed to avoid a mountain ridge directly in front of us and I switched frequency to the new controller. I informed him that 'we had vacated 4000' and were climbing to avoid terrain and would declare an emergency if necessary.' The new controller immediately cleared us to 'climb through the TCA.' I informed him that our aircraft had, in complying with a VFR, ATC clearance, been placed in a very dangerous situation, and he suggested that I call the next time I was in Las Vegas so that they could pass the information to the people who set up the TCA.

"Everyone in aviation knows that all comments against TCA's are completely ignored by the FAA. ... On this particular day, I sat on the ramp for 5 minutes waiting for clearance, then waited for some time at the runway for takeoff, which has never happened before in Las Vegas. At this time when fuel is supposed to be in short supply, I wonder how many gallons are wasted in TCA's? With the confusion to pilots and increased workload on controllers, how can this procedure be safer?

"Going back to earlier in the day ... when I arrived in Las Vegas, I was kept up at 4000' until I was within a mile of the runway threshhold. This made it necessary to descent 1500' at a rate which is extremely uncomfortable to passengers in an unpressurized aircraft, and also against recommendations for handling of two engines worth approximately $16,000.

"In fairness to Las Vegas, how have I found other TCA's? At San Francisco on clear and unrestricted days and evenings, it has taken up to 30 minutes from my initial call before I can get off the ground because of clearance delays. ... At Los Angeles, I have flown through the VFR corridor over the airport twice because of the large volume of traffic which is compressed into such a small lane, the experience was terrifying. I now insist on radar vectors through the TCA rather than risk the possibility of a mid-air collision in what can best be described as "Slaughter Alley."

"... Controllers and pilots should not have to be subjected to such basically idiotic regulations. How much more precious fuel should we waste for what the FAA calls safety but can, in fact, be just the opposite?" (Comp. Exh. 1).

3. The Regional FAA office contacted Mr. Stuart A. Hayter, Chief of the Airport Traffic Control Tower at Las Vegas, about the Robb letter; requested that he investigate the matter; advised him that the letter was being forwarded; and requested that Mr. Hayter prepare a response for Mr. Hink's signature. Mr. Hayter investigated the incident and prepared three documents: First, a response to Mr. Robb for the signature of Mr. Hink (Comp. Exh. 4). Second, a document entitled "AWE - 500 - Briefing Sheet" (Comp. Exh. 3). Third, a memorandum dated January 15, 1975, to "All Personnel".

The Briefing Sheet was a report from Mr. Hayter to his boss, Mr. Hink, explaining to Mr. Hink the facility's rationale in answering the letter and giving him some background on the complaint of Mr. Robb.

Mr. Hayter put a copy of the Robb letter, his "All Personnel" memorandum, the Briefing Sheet and his draft reply to Mr. Robb (for Mr. Hink's signature) into the general information binder in the ready room on the second floor of the tower building on January 15, 1975, and on, or about the same date transmitted the draft reply to Mr. Robb and the Briefing Sheet to the Regional Office.

4. The "All Personnel" Memorandum stated, in part, as follows:

> "The attached letters are provided for your info; so you can see what we are saying to others about US. Obviously, we can't tell Mr. Robb all we'd like to, tact and diplomacy, but I think he'll get the message.
> . . .
>
> "Keep in mind that Mr. Hink may change any part, or all of it. I hope you can detect the confidence we have in YOU. I know it isn't the easiest job."
>
> "Keep pitchin'! We'll improve." (Comp. Exh. 2)

The paragraph of the "Briefing Sheet" from which Mr. Brubaker quoted reads as follows:

>
> "We are still improving on our system and will continue until we have the best. We have, however, discovered the two major problems causing lack of complete success with our TCA are: (1) Lack of controller proficiency at working the volume of traffic now required by them. Our operation went from Level III volume to Level IV volume over night (almost double). Our controllers are good but just like any controller who goes to a higher level facility, it takes time to peak up his performance to handle the volume of traffic. We're getting there; and (2) our airport is at the botton of a bowl; we're surrounded by high terrain. ...

6. Mr. Brubaker read the material referred to hereinabove (Paragraphs 3, 4 and 5) in the "Read and Initial" binder on January 15, 1975, as did other controllers, and attempted to see Mr. Hayter without success. By letter dated January 27, 1975, addressed to Mr. Hayter (Comp. Exh. 5), Mr. Brubaker, as President of Las Vegas Chapter of PATCO, responded "to your letters in the Facility Read File, pertaining to Mr. Charles S. Robb's flight within the Las Vegas TCA on 1 December 1974." The record shows that the letter was the joint product of several members of Local 525's Executive Board and that Mr. Brubaker was acting in his official capacity as President in signing and transmitting the letter. Nevertheless, as President, Mr. Brubaker signed the letter and a copy was sent, inter alia, to Mr. Charles S. Robb and to the Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association (AOPA). 2/ Mr. Brubaker stated in his letter, in part, as follows:

> "In your AWE-500 Briefing Sheet you state: 'We have, however, discovered the two major problems causing lack of

1/ This was not a public document and it seems inappropriate to set forth any portion other than the single paragraph from which Mr. Brubaker's excerpt was taken.

2/ Mr. Robb had shown copies of his letter of December 10, 1974, to:

> "John Krebbs, 1383 W. Sample Ave., Fresno
> Fresno Gado, J. Patrick, 2401 No. Ashley,
> Fresno AOPA, 7315 Wisconsin Ave;, Bethesda, > Maryland" (Comp. Exh. 1).

Mr. Brubaker sent copies of his letter to:

> "AWE-500 [FAA Regional Office]
> Mr. Darrell Reazin [PATCO Western Regional Vice President]
> Mr. Charles S. Robb
> Senator Howard W. Cannon
> AOPA" (Comp. Exh. 5).

> complete success with our TCA are: (1) Lack of controller proficiency at working the volume of traffic now required of them. (2) Our airport is at the bottom of a bowl; we're surrounded by high terrain'. I deplore your statement that there is a lack of controller proficiency. Your statement is made without justification or backing." (Comp. Exh. 5).

7. The actual FAA response to Mr. Robb was dated January 30, 1975, and was signed by F. Parry Schriver, Acting Chief, Air Traffic Division (Comp. Exh 6).

8. The Las Vegas Tower is locked and entry requires clearance through someone inside the building. Visitors are required to be escorted while in the facility. The controller's ready room is located on the second floor of the tower building and there is a book rack on one end of the room that has slots in which the operational reading binder and the general reading binders are kept. The operational binder has information that pertains to the day-to-day operation of the facility and controllers are required to review it before going on duty. The general reading binder contains general information, not necessarily timely, and controllers read it at their leisure; however, controllers are required to read and initial both binders.

The ready room is also the "break room" where controllers eat, lounge, and watch television. The access door to the facility is controlled by an electronic combination lock and the combination is changed regularly and a day or two before the combination is changed the new combination is put in the general reading binder.

Mr. Hayter testified that in his 20 years with FAA (Facility Chief at Las Vegas since 1972) he had never seen any non-FAA employee reading the general reading binder at Las Vegas or at any other facility; that if he had seen it he would have taken the binder. Mr. James T. Turner, Deputy Chief Controller, assigned to the Las Vegas facility since 1974, testified that he had never observed any non-FAA person reading the general reading binder and is in the ready room about once an hour while on duty. Mr. Douglas B. Cooper, a Team Supervisor at the Las Vegas Tower also testified that he had never observed any non-FAA employee reading the reading binder and that he is in and out of the ready room about every 15 to 20 minutes when assigned to the radar room, although only to eat when assigned to the tower cab. Mr. Cooper also has responsibility for security when on duty and this responsibility includes making certain that only authorized persons are allowed in the building; that he provides a key to persons performing janitorial services; that tours are conducted; and that he never showed persons on tours he conducted the reading binders.

Mr. Jerry G. Parrish, a controller and Vice President of Local 525, testified that he had seen uniformed military personnel and radar technicians looking at the reading binder; Mr. Edward E. Howell, a controller, testified that on one occasion he saw two plumbers, who had been working on the sink, sitting in the ready room on their coffee break and one of them was flipping through the reading binder. Mr. Jack F. Lindley, Jr., a controller, testified that he had seen technicians and Air Force personnel reading material in the reading binder. Mr. Brubaker testified that in June or July, 1976, there was a note in the reading binder that the combination to the outside door was to be changed and a couple of days later there was another note stating "that the combination had been given to the girls that clean up or to the janitors in the facility and for that reason it was necessary to change it again."

9. Mr. Brubaker received an "Official Reprimand" dated March 3, 1975 (Comp. Exh. 7). In the Official Reprimand, Mr. Hayter stated, in part, as follows:

> "This is notice that you are officially reprimanded. You, as a government employee, took the liberty to distribute information contained in internal agency memoranda, specifically my briefing sheet addressed to the Air Traffic Division Chief, AWE-500, to parties outside the Agency without proper authorization from me. This unauthorized communication was your letter dated January 27, 1975, addressed to myself, with copies to Mr. Charles Robb, PATCO and AOPA. ..." (Comp. Exh. 7).

10. Mr. Hayter testified that the unauthorized distribution was limited to Mr. Robb and AOPA (Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association); that there was no objection as to Senator Cannon or Mr. Reazin, Regional Vice President of PATCO.

Although the letter of reprimand contained elements of "an unprotected act by publicly bringing into disrepute the functions of his employer", as noted by the Regional Administrator in his original dismissal of the complaint (Res. Exh. 3), the issue presented by the parties in this proceeding has been limited to the ground stated in the first paragraph of the Official Reprimand, namely, distribution of "information contained in internal agency memorandum; specifically my briefing sheet addressed to the Air Traffic Division Chief, AWE - 500, to parties outside the Agency without proper authorization from me." 3/

The Briefing Sheet was an inter-management communication; was not to be released to the public; and has not been made available to the general public. The Tower itself is not open to the general public. The building is locked and visitors are escorted while in the facility. The reading binder, in which the briefing sheet was placed, is located on the second floor of the Tower in the controller's ready room and the binder's normal place of repose is a slot in the book rack next to the operational binder. The reading binder,as is the operational binder,is for the use of authorized personnel only and the general public is neither authorized nor permitted access to it. I fully credit the testimony of Mr. Hayter that non-FAA personnel are not authorized to read the reading binder; that he had never seen any non-FAA employee reading the general reading binder and that if he saw it he would take the binder from them. I further fully credit the testimony of Messrs. Cooper and Turner, each of whom is frequently in the ready room,

3/ It is fully recognized that on January 27, 1975, Respondent had not responded to Mr. Robb. Mr. Hayter had prepared a draft response for Mr. Hink's signature, but, as Mr. Hayter stated in his "All Personnel" memorandum, "Keep in mind that Mr. Hink may change any part, or all of it." (Comp. exh. 2). Respondent's actual reply to Mr. Robb was dated January 30, 1975; was signed by F. Parry Schriver, Acting Chief, Air Traffic Division; and differed substantially from Mr. Hayter's draft.

Obviously, therefore, Mr. Brubaker, in sending a copy of his letter of January 27, 1975, to Mr. Robb and to AOPA (Aircraft Owners and Pilots Association), was not responding to anything that had been communicated to Mr. Robb or to AOPA.

that they have never observed any non-FAA employee reading the reading binder. Even if the testimony of Messrs. Parrish and Lindley were accepted, that they had seen military personnel and electronic technicians reading the binders, or even if the testimony of Mr. Howell were accepted, that a plumber, present to work on a sink had flipped through the binder; nevertheless, the general public has no access to the material. Not only is access of the general public to the facility limited but when present visitors are escorted and the times when a visitor might be present in the ready room without an escort is extremely limited and even if a visitor on such occasion looked at the binder it certainly cannot be said that such binder, or the information contained therein, was accessible to the general public. To the contrary, such access was not authorized. Mr. Brubaker's testimony "that the combination had been given to the girls that clean up" refutes the inference desired, namely, that janitorial personnel discovered the combination by reading material in the binder; but even if a person authorized to be present for the purpose of cleaning, or for some other authorized activity, and such person has looked at the binder, this does not mean that such information was available to, or accessible to, the general public. Accordingly, I conclude that the general public had no access to material in the general reading binder.

As an employee of Respondent, Mr. Brubaker was subject to the FAA Handbook 3750.4, "Conduct and Discipline" (Res. Exh. 1); to DOT Regulations on Employee Responsibilities and Conduct, 3750.3A (Res. Exh. 2) and 49 C.F.R. Part 99. For example, the Regulations provide,

> "Except as provided in §99.735-11(c) no employee may, for the purpose of furthering a private interest, directly or indirectly, use or allow the use of official information obtained through or in connection with his Government employment, if that information has not been made available to the general public." (49 C.F.R. §99.735-19).
> "... However, an employee shall not ... engage in teaching, lecturing, or writing ... that depends on information obtained as a result of his Government employment, except when that information has been made available to the general public or will be made available on request, or when an appropriately designated > official gives written authorization for use of nonpublic information on the basis that the use is in the public interest. ..." (49 C.F.R. §99.735-11(c)).

Mr. Brubaker obtained the Briefing Sheet through, and in connection with, his Government employment; the information therein reflected the results of Mr. Hayter's investigation of the Robb incident; the Briefing Sheet was a report from Mr. Hayter to his superior; the information contained therein had not been made available to the general public and was not available to the general public on request; and Mr. Brubaker neither requested nor received written authorization to use this nonpublic information. Indeed, Complainant does not deny that Mr. Brubaker's release of nonpublic information was contrary to Respondent's Handbook and Agency Regulations. Rather, Complainant asserts that: a) Section 1(a) of the Executive Order creates a protected right to use such information in appeals to the public; and/or b) Mr. Brubaker's action as a union official immunizes the use of such information. For the reasons set forth hereinafter, Complainant's positions are rejected.

Section 1(a) of the Order, as material, is unchanged from the language of Section 1(a) of Executive Order 10988. In Meehan v. Macy, 392 F.2d 822 (D.C. Cir. 1968), the Court of Appeals had before it the same contention as now raised by Complainant with respect to Section 1(a) and the Court rejected a wholly like contention stating:

> "It suffices in the present case to point out that Executive Order 10988, by its clear language, has no application to appellant's activities. 4/ The pertinent provision, entitled 'Employee-Management Cooperation in the Federal Service' reads as follows:
> > Section 1(a) Employees of the Federal Government shall have, and shall be protected in the exercise of, the right, freely and without fear of penalty or reprisal  to 4/ Appellant Meehan had been, when the matter arose, President of the Canal Zone Police Lodge 1798, American Federation of Government Employees.

> participat[e] in the management of the organization and acting for the organization in the capacity of an organization representative, including presentation of its views to officials of the executive branch, the Congress or other appropriate authority. (Emphasis supplied.)
> The regulation by its terms provides for presentations within official channels, and establishes no special warrant for appeals to the public." (392 F.2d at 829) (Emphasis by the Court.)

Complainant's contention that Mr. Robb and AOPA were "other appropriate authority" is utterly without basis. As the Court stated in Meehan, supra, the pertinent language of Section 1(a) of the Order provides for presentations within official channels and establishes no special warrant for appeal to the public. Moreover, even if it were assumed that circumstances could arise when an appeal to such members of the public as Mr. Robb and/or AOPA might fall within the warrant of Section 1(a), clearly in the circumstances of this case, when Mr. Brubaker released nonpublic information to Mr. Robb and to AOPA on January 27, 1975, there was no warrant for release of such information as Respondent had made no response whatever to Mr. Robb or to the AOPA. Mr. Brubaker was free to present his views, or those of PATCO, within official channels with regard to the Briefing Sheet 5/ and had he done so, his activity would have been protected by Section 1(a) of the Executive Order.

5/ The merits of Complainant's professed concern are not before me. It is obvious that Mr. Brubaker took out of context the "Lack of controller proficiency ..." statement and, indeed, by his purported quotation, without indication of an ommission, grossly misrepresented what Mr. Hayter had, in fact, stated, including, for example, his express statement that "Our controllers are good but just like any controller who goes to a higher level facility, it takes time to peak up his performance to handle the volume of traffic. We're getting there ..." (Comp. Exh. 3).

Complainant's broader contention that, because Mr. Brubaker acted in his capacity as President of the Local Union, his release of nonpublic information is protected concerted activity must be rejected. Kaiser Engineering v. NLRB, ____F.2d____, 92 LRRM 3153 (9th Cir., 1976) and Roanoke Hospital v. NLRB, ____F.2d____, 92 LRRM 3158 (4th Cir., 1976) cited and relied upon by Complainant are not controlling as those decisions involved rights under the National Labor Relations Act, specifically under Section 7 of the NLRA and the rights created by Section 1(a) of the Order, in particular the portion reading, "including presentation of its views to officials of the executive branch, the Congress, or other appropriate authority," has no counterpart in Section 7 of the NLRA. Consequently, the Courts in Kaiser Engineering, supra, and Roanoke Hospital, supra, did not have before them a limitation comparable to that contained in Section 1(a) of the Order and their decisions, construing a very different provision in the NLRA are not in point. On the other hand, as noted above, the Court in Meehan v. Macy, supra, has directly held that the language of Section 1(a) of the Order provides for presentations within official channels and establishes no special warrant for appeals to the public. Mr. Brubaker's rights and obligations under the Order were no different as a union official than as an employee of Respondent.

Mr. Brubaker in releasing nonpublic information was not responding to any comment made to Mr. Robb or to AOPA. Consequently, Mr. Brubaker did not act in any good faith belief that he, as a union official, was defending in the public a criticism of controllers made to the public. As a matter of fact, Mr. Brubaker made no reference to any portion of the draft response to Mr. Robb prepared by Mr. Hayter.

The reprimand, issued to Mr. Brubaker because of his unauthorized distribution of internal agency memorandum did not interfere with, restrain, or coerce Mr. Brubaker in the exercise of any right assured by the Order. Under the circumstances of this case, Mr. Brubaker, as a union official, was not responding to any public criticism of members of PATCO and, therefore, had no greater, or different rights under the Order as a union official than he possessed as an individual employee of FAA. No opinion is expressed, or is to be inferred, as to whether an employee acting in an appropriate representative capacity could ever properly distribute nonpublic internal agency information contrary to agency Regulations. The instant decision goes no further than to decide that Mr. Brubaker's disclosure of such information in this case was not protected by Section 1(a) of the Order and because Mr. Brubaker had no protected right, the reprimand did not violate any right protected by the Order. Accordingly, I shall recommend that the complaint be dismissed.

RECOMMENDATION

In light of the foregoing, Mr. Brubaker's distribution of nonpublic information contrary to agency regulation was not a right protected by Section 1(a) of the Order and the Official Reprimand therefor did not violate Section 19(a)(1) of the Executive Order. Therefore, I recommend that the Complaint be dismissed.

PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY,
NAVAL AIR REWORK FACILITY,

A/SLMR No. 797

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, AFL-CIO (Complainant), alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order when its supervisor made an obscene gesture and coercive statements during discussions with union representatives.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Respondent had not violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order. In this regard, he found that the supervisor's conduct at a meeting with a shop steward and the Recording Secretary of the Complainant did not violate the Order as, under the circumstances, it did not indicate disdain for or a disinclination to recognize the Complainant, bargain, or follow the terms of the negotiated agreement. Nor did the supervisor's conduct interfere with, restrain, or coerce employees in the exercise of rights assured by the Order. Moreover, he found that the supervisor's subsequent conversation with the shop steward was made without threat or promise. Accordingly, he recommended that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

Noting particularly the absence of exceptions, the Assistant Secretary adopted the findings, conclusions and recommendation of the Administrative Law Judge, and ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Preliminary Statement

This proceeding arises under the provisions of Executive Order 11491, as amended (hereinafter referred to as the Order). Pursuant to the Regulations of the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor Management Relations (hereinafter referred to as the Assistant Secretary), a Notice of Hearing on Complaint issued on July 2, 1976 with reference to alleged violations of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order. The complaint, filed by the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, AFL-CIO (hereinafter referred to as the Union or Complainant) alleged that the Naval Air Rework Facility, Department of the Navy, Alameda, California (hereinafter referred to as the Activity or Respondent) violated the Order by an obscene gesture and statements made during discussions with Union representatives.

At the hearing held on September 13, 1976 in San Francisco, California the parties were represented and afforded full opportunity to adduce evidence, call, examine and cross-examine witnesses and argue orally. A brief was received from the Respondent and carefully considered.

Upon the entire record in this matter and from my evaluation of the evidence and observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following:

Since July 1975 the Union's Lodge 739 has been the exclusive collective bargaining representative of various of the Activity's employees. The collective bargaining unit encompass approximately 3000 employees.

Cynthia Waggoner, a warehouse employee, became a shop steward for the Union in the early fall of 1975. On November 25, 1975 while on a mail run from her shop area to another building at the facility, Ms. Waggoner observed an employee working without safety shoes while handling large pieces of sheet metal. Upon inquiry, Waggoner was informed by the individual that he did not have safety shoes but would like to obtain a pair. Waggoner proceeded on her mail run during which she came upon a supply room that stocked safety shoes. The storekeeper informed Waggoner that to get safety shoes an employee must get a requisition from a Mr. Russell. Waggoner contacted Russell and together they obtained the proper requisition form but it was too late in the day for the form to be prepared.

On the following day, November 26, Waggoner presented Russell with the requisition form. Russell had some misgivings about the matter and called Waggoner's branch head, Oliver Smith to obtain approval of the requisition. Smith refused to approve and no further action was taken to obtain the safety shoes.

Later that same day Waggoner received a message from her foreman that Smith wished to talk to her. Waggoner was apprehensive that Smith might view her actions in obtaining the requisition as an attempt on her part to bypass Smith in obtaining the shoes and take disciplinary action against her. Accordingly, Waggoner asked the Union's Recording Secretary, John Minnihan, who was also an employee at the facility, to accompany her to the meeting.

Waggoner and Minnihan then proceeded to Smith's desk which was in an area adjacent to the desks of other supervisory-managerial employees. Waggoner immediately sat at Smith's desk while Minnihan stopped to talk with another person in the room and Smith, quite congenially, asked her what the shoe business was all about. Waggoner fully explained what had transpired and Smith accepted the explanation without any adverse reaction. Smith then inquired as to what Waggoner was doing representing an employee who was not working in Waggoner's assigned union steward area. 1/ Around this time Minnihan came to Smith's desk and introduced himself. Waggoner responded to Smith's question by indicating that the employee requested her to look into the safety shoes matter and it was not a grievance or complaint situation. Minnihan added that under the terms of the collective bargaining agreement Waggoner was free to act as she had. Smith disputed Minnihan's interpretation of provisions of the agreement relating to union representation rights contending that initial contacts by stewards could be made only with employees working in the steward's assigned area. 2/ The disagreement escalated and a heated 1/ Several weeks previously Waggoner had been involved in another situation which concerned an employee outside of her geographical area of union stewardship.

2/ Apparently, the following provision in the agreement was in question:

> "Section 4. Any bargaining unit employee who alleges and feels that he has a grievance or complaint shall normally take the matter up with the shop steward assigned to that area and shall be allowed the necessary amount of time for this purpose. During the investigative process a different steward may be assigned by the union in lieu of the steward regularly assigned to that area...."

argument ensued over the interpretation of the agreement. The argument continued with both Smith and Minnihan angrily insisting that their interpretation of the agreement was correct when Smith made a gesture to Minnihan by extending upward his middle finger from his fist and exclaiming, "you know what you can do with your contract," or words to that effect. Minnihan commented to Smith that he would be careful about making such a gesture if he were Smith whereupon Smith lowered his hand and Waggoner and Minnihan left the room.

Later that same day, close to quitting time, Smith came to Waggoner in her work area and told her that he did not want her to take personally what had occurred during the discussion earlier that day. Smith indicated that the matter was between Minnihan and himself and had nothing to do with her. Smith asked Waggoner why she brought a union representative to the meeting and remarked that he thought they had an open-door policy where communications would be kept open and they would take care of their own problems. 3/ Waggoner did not respond. Smith told Waggoner not to worry, took her hand in his and told her to have a happy holiday (Thanksgiving) and to "take care".

Discussion and Conclusions

With regard to the meeting between Smith, Waggoner and Minnihan at which time it was found that Smith made an obscene gesture and stated "you know what you can do with your contract," or words to that effect, I conclude that such conduct did not constitute a violation of the Order. The circumstances surrounding the conduct, in my view, disclose that Smith was not indicating his disdain for or disinclination to recognize the Union, bargain or follow the terms of the agreement or interfer, restrain or coerce employees in the exercise of rights assured by the Order. Rather, Smith, was merely carried away in vigorously maintaining and advocating his position and rejecting Minnihan's interpretation of the agreement.

The use of vulgar expressions, obscenities and the like while not encouraged, is not uncommon during give and take discussions in labor-management relations either in the private sector or the public sector. Thus, the Assistant Secretary in U.S. Small Business Administration, Central Office, Washington, D.C. A/SLMR No. 631, while evaluating the effect of the use of profanity and abusive language in that case, noted that the United States Supreme Court has applied to the Federal sector similar standards in this area to those found in the private sector. The Assistant Secretary cited Old Dominion Branch No. 497, National Association of Letter Carriers, AFL-CIO, et. al. v. Austin, et. al., 481 U.S. 264 (1974), 86 LRRM 2740, in which case the Court held, in part:

3/ Smith testified that he was referring to an understanding reached a few months previously in a meeting between Smith, various branch supervisors, Waggoner and another newly named steward and the Union President whereby the parties would attempt to resolve among themselves problems which arose in the branch before they developed into more involved matters. If the problem could not be resolved, then assistance would be sought from higher eschelons. This testimony was undenied.

> In this case, of course, the relevant federal law is Executive Order 11491 rather than the NLRA. Nevertheless, we think that the same federal policies favoring uninhibited, robust and wide-open debate in labor disputes are applicable here....
> In light of this basic purpose, we see nothing in the Executive Order which indicates that it intended to restrict in any way the robust debate which has been protected under the NLRA. Such evidence as is available, rather, demonstrates that the same tolerance for union speech which has long characterized our labor relations in the private sector has been carried over under the Executive Order.

In my view the above logic is equally applicable to both Union and employer acts and statements especially where the employer's conduct occurred in the context as found above and, as herein, did not take place in a work area in the presence of numerous rank and file employees.

Turning next to Smith's conversation with Waggoner at the close of the day, I conclude that the facts do not establish a violation of the Order. Thus, Smith was not attempting to dissuade Waggoner from seeking union assistance in the matter but merely attempting to discover why agreed upon procedures, whereby stewards in his branch would attempt to resolve disputes without recourse to higher authority, were not followed. Moreover, the inquiry was made without threat or promise. Accordingly, under all the circumstances herein Smith's conduct did not undermine the Union as alleged by Complainant nor in any other manner violate Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

Recommendation

In view of the foregoing, I recommend the complaint herein be dismissed in its entirety.

A/SLMR No. 798

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by Frank Johnson (Complainant) alleging, in effect, that the Respondent Activity violated Section 19(a)(1) and (2) of the Order by separating him from employment when he was a Trial/Probationary employee because of his union activities and thereby interfering with, restraining, and/or coercing him in the exercise of his rights assured by the Order, as well as discouraging membership in a labor organization by discrimination in regard to hiring, tenure, promotion or other conditions of employment.

The Chief Administrative Law Judge found that the Complainant's separation from his job during his trial employment period was not motivated by the Complainant's union activities in violation of the Order. In this regard, he concluded that the Complainant was not treated disparately and was terminated because of his unsatisfactory work performance. He concluded also that two of the Respondent's supervisors did not make the anti-union remarks which the Complainant attributed to them. Accordingly, he recommended that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the Chief Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions, and recommendation and ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This proceeding, heard in Phoenix, Arizona, on September 2 and 3, 1976, arises under Executive Order 11491, as amended, (hereinafter referred to as the Order) pursuant to a Notice of Hearing issued July 21, 1976 by the Regional Administrator, United States Department of Labor, San Francisco Region.

The proceeding was initiated by the filing of a complaint on December 2, 1975 by Frank Johnson (hereinafter referred to as the Complainant) against the Phoenix Indian Medical Center (hereinafter referred to as the Hospital or the Activity).

The amended complaint alleged that the Activity violated Sections 19(a)(1) and 19(a)(2) of the Order when it separated the Complainant from his position as a janitor and violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order when its agent, Irwin Lomay, made certain remarks to the Complainant.

At the hearing both parties were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to adduce evidence, to examine and cross-examine witnesses and to make oral argument. Post-hearing briefs, received from both parties, have been given close consideration.

Upon the entire record in this case, from my observations of all the witnesses and their demeanor, and from all the testimony and evidence adduced at the hearing, I make the following findings, conclusions, and recommendations:

Findings of Fact

Background.

The Phoenix Indian Medical Center is organizationally a part of the Indian Health Service within the Public Health Service, Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The Center provides total health services to Indian people residing within the area served.

The Center is part of the Phoenix Service Unit which, in addition to the Hospital itself, includes a number of outlying clinics. The Hospital, which employs some 500 persons, is a 191-bed general medical and surgical hospital, with teaching and research activities.

Under the direction of Dr. Nairn, the Hospital is organizationally divided into three primary sections: Hospital Services, Clinical Services, and Administrative Services. The Hospital's Housekeeping Unit is organizationally a part of Administrative Services.

The Complainant, at all times pertinent to this case, was employed in the Hospital's Housekeeping Department as a janitor.

The Complainant was hired on September 15, 1974, subject to a one-year trial period. He worked under the immediate supervision of Mr. Lomay for approximately seven months. Thereafter, from early April 1975 until September 11, 1975 when he was discharged, he worked under the immediate supervision of Mr. Webb, except for weekends when he continued to work under Mr. Lomay.

Complainant's Union Activity.

In April 1975 the Complainant became Chief Steward of Local 1468 of the National Federation of Federal Employees, the exclusive representative of a unit of employees at the Hospital. Except for a few weeks in March 1975, when he was a union steward, the Complainant had not previously held a union position.

The record establishes that the Activity was fully aware of the Complainant's union activities.

The Complainant, by his own admission, never requested nor used official time for union activities until he was transferred to the ground floor. Thereafter, the Complainant requested and was granted approximately two hours of official time a week to perform his official union functions. Supervisor Webb testified that he did not consider the Complainant's requests for official time excessive and added that the President of the Local, who was also under his supervision, used approximately the same amount of official time per week.

Mr. Kulhman, Associate Director of Hospital Services, who has been the principal contact in dealings between the Activity and the Union, testified that he had never received a report from any supervisor regarding a problem with the granting of official time to union stewards.

The Activity presented uncontroverted evidence that the Union and the Hospital management have enjoyed an excellent relationship in recent years with successive contracts in force and frequent informal adjustments of grievances.

Complainant's Job Performance.

On the basis of the entire record, I find a clear pattern of unsatisfactory job performance both before and after April 1975, when the Complainant was appointed Chief Steward.

Prior to April 1975, the Complainant was transferred twice upon the request of Supervisor Lomay. Mr. Lomay credibly testified that the Complainant was first transferred in December 1975 from the fifth floor research area to the fourth floor pediatrics area, "Because of his job performance, it was very poor, and he would talk to a lot of the employees, fellow workers, and he'd get behind in his work. That's the only reason we had to change him."

The record is replete with complaints regarding the Complainant's job performance on the fourth floor. By his own admission the Complainant received an oral reprimand from Mrs. Nez, the Chief Housekeeping Officer, because of the poor condition of rooms he had cleaned on January 14, 1975; used a dust mop in an isolation room on February 7, 1975; left dirty equipment in the janitor's closet on February 8, 1975; and used a telephone in a prohibited area while on duty March 2, 1975.

In addition, Mr. Lomay testified that the Complainant, even after repeated warnings, continued to waste time socializing with fellow employees and a number of children who were patients at the hospital; allowed these children to push his cart of contaminated trash; and continued using the telephone while on duty.

Finally, in early April 1975, the Complainant was transferred from the pediatrics area to the ground floor, because Mr. Lomay feared he was a hazard to the children patients.

The record establishes that specific complaints of the same general nature regarding the Complainant's performance continued during the approximately five months after he became Chief Steward and worked under Supervisor Webb on the ground floor.

Specifically, Mr. Webb testified that he sometimes had to assign other janitors to complete the Complainant's work assignments; he saw the Complainant sitting and talking to a woman who owned the snack bar for thirty minutes one day during working hours; he had received more complaints about the Complainant's work performance than that of any of his other janitors; he was unable to locate the Complainant on several occasions when emergencies arose on his floor; he found the Complainant repeatedly using the telephone while on duty; and he found areas uncleaned, even after he had specifically directed the Complainant to clean them.

While Mr. Webb was not able to specify all of the instances where the Complainant performed poorly by time and date, he did specifically explain them.

On June 26, 1975, the Complainant was informed by Don Davis, Director of Administrative Services, that his job performance was unsatisfactory and if it did not improve he would be discharged during his trial period. Thereafter, Mr. Webb sent a memorandum to Mr. Bell, the Acting Chief Housekeeping Officer 1/, citing a number of specific complaints regarding the Complainant's performance during August 1975.

1/ Mr. Bell succeeded Mrs. Nez in this position after she retired about May 1975.

On September 11, 1975, the Complainant was discharged. Mr. Davis based his decision upon the recommendations of Mr. Webb and Mr. Bell and his consultations with Mr. Lomay and Mrs. Nez. Their consensus was that the Complainant had performed more poorly than other employees under their supervision after as much or more training. The Complainant alleged that he received inadequate training but I find no evidence that he received disparate treatment in this regard.

Evaluation and Separation Procedure.

The Complainant was evaluated in June and July 1975, because hospital regulations (Federal Personnel Manual, Chapter 315, Subchapter 8-3) require that a trial employee's performance be certified as satisfactory or unsatisfactory between the ninth and tenth months of his employment. The Complainant began his ninth month of employment on June 15, 1976.

The record reveals that the granting of career tenure to trial employees is not automatic. In the last two years four other trial employees have been discharged for similar reasons.

On the basis of the entire record it would appear that the Activity failed to follow certain procedural formalities in separating the Complainant from his position. Specifically, the Complainant's recommendation and performance rating report were neither signed nor dated; Mr. Davis made a verbal separation request, rather than the usual written request, to Mr. Cromley, Personnel Officer of the Phoenix Indian Health Services; the separation document (Notification of Personnel Action) was not signed by civil service authorities as required; Mr. Cromley's office failed to inform the Complainant of his appeal rights in its letter of separation; and Activity personnel added two hours of annual leave to the Complainant's record which may not have been justified.

It is, however, also apparent from the record that these procedural errors and deficiencies were in no way related to Complainant's union activities. In the absence of other credible evidence which would, at least in some measure, warrant an inference of union animus or discriminatory motive, these procedural shortcomings are not cognizable under the Executive Order. The question whether such procedural errors may have fatally tainted or invalidated Complainant's discharge should properly be addressed to the Civil Service Commission or such other Governmental entity which is legally authorized to rule and rectify such matters. In and of themselves they do not fall within the ambit and cannot be rectified through the means of the Order.

Mr. Lomay's Alleged Remarks.

There is conflicting evidence regarding alleged remarks made by Mr. Lomay to the Complainant on June 10, 1975 and August 12, 1975.

On June 10, 1975, while on their way to work, the Complainant allegedly told Mr. Lomay how much he liked working with the union and employees' problems. Complainant testified that Mr. Lomay told him he "shouldn't ruffle too many feathers." Mr. Lomay denied ever making such a remark. Rather, Mr. Lomay testified that the Complainant asked him how he could improve his work and that he told the Complainant to utilize his time better and do better work.

On August 12, 1975, while the Complainant and Mr. Lomay were travelling to Sells, Arizona for the funeral of a fellow employee, the Complainant allegedly told Mr. Lomay that Mr. Webb was giving him more work than one person could possibly handle. The Complainant testified that Mr. Lomay told him that "if I [the Complainant] resigned as Chief Steward I wouldn't have the problem and that I'm rocking the boat, so to speak, or causing waves with the management and my situation." In contrast, Mr. Lomay testified that he didn't respond to the statement regarding the Complainant's workload because "I couldn't say anything about that because I'm not his supervisor anymore."

Upon consideration of the facts and circumstances and my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I find Mr. Lomay's version the more credible recollection of their conversations on those two occasions. In this respect it is also noteworthy that the Complainant had several opportunities to raise Mr. Lomay's alleged remarks as issues, yet failed to do so. Thus, there was no mention of these alleged remarks in a letter from the Complainant to the Activity dated September 2, 1975 which charged the Activity with an unfair labor practice; nor were they mentioned during a four-hour meeting on October 8, 1975, which was held for the specific purpose of discussing the Complainant's unfair labor practice charge; or were they even alluded to in the complaint filed December 2, 1975 by the Complainant. Furthermore, the Complainant's explanation for not raising these alleged remarks as issues prior to his interview with a Management Services Administrator several months later was most unconvincing.

Mr. Webb's Alleged Remarks.

The Complainant alleged that Mr. Webb made a statement to Mrs. Alice Boring, Secretary to the Director of the Center, which established a nexus between the Complainant's union activities and his separation.

Mrs. Boring testified that she had heard about the Complainant's bad performance reports from Mr. Davis. Accordingly, she testified, that when she inadvertently met Mr. Webb, the Complainant's supervisor, in the Xerox room, she asked him whether the Complainant's union activities had anything to do with his bad performance reports. She testified that Mr. Webb replied, "Well, it could be, but he wasn't doing his work and all these various reports, but it could have something to do with the union."

In contrast, Mr. Webb testified that, while he may have run into Mrs. Boring in the Xerox room, he did not recall her questioning him about the Complainant's union activities nor did he ever volunteer the alleged remark "because I know, subconsciously, that it has nothing to do with the union as far as his rating was concerned."

There is no evidence in the record to suggest a possible motivation for Mr. Webb's alleged statement. In fact, uncontradicted evidence in the record establishes that Mr. Webb, like Mr. Lomay, was a former union member; Mr. Webb never denied the Complainant's requests for official time; and Mr. Webb invited the Complainant, in his capacity as union steward, to address the employees and recommended him to others for that purpose.

On the other hand, Mrs. Boring's testimony regarding Mr. Webb's alleged remark was somewhat hesitant and inconsistent, reflecting the fact that her recollection was vague and may have been colored by her bad experiences as a union member under an old Hospital administration many years ago.

Under all the circumstances, having considered the testimony of the witnesses and observed their demeanor, I find that Mr. Webb did not make the alleged remark.

Position of the Parties

The Complainant alleges that his separation was discriminatory and motivated by his union activities in violation of Sections 19(a)(1) and 19(a)(2) of the Order.

The Complainant argues that he received poor ratings because of his effectiveness as Chief Steward. The Complainant further argues that his absence from his work site while he was engaged in legitimate union duties provided the basis for a claim by management that he did not utilize his time properly and, therefore, did not perform satisfactorily.

The Complainant primarily relies upon alleged remarks by Supervisors Lomay and Webb regarding his union activities as evidence that his separation was motivated, at least in part, by his union activities.

In contrast, the Activity argues that the Complainant's separation resulted solely from his unsatisfactory job performance. The Activity relies heavily upon its argument that the Complainant demonstrated a pattern of unsatisfactory job performance well before he became chief steward, suggesting that he was discharged for work-related reasons.

Finally, the Activity argues that the Complainant has failed to establish that either Mr. Lomay or Mr. Webb made the statements attributed to them and that without such evidence the Complainant has offered no proof that the separation was motivated by his union activities.

Conclusions of Law

On the basis of the above findings of fact, I conclude that the Complainant's separation from his job as a janitor during his trial period neither foreseeably interfered with the Complainant's exercise of any rights under the Order nor was it motivated by the Complainant's union activities in violation of the Order. I further conclude that Mr. Lomay did not make the remarks attributed to him by the Complainant.

The evidence as a whole establishes a clear pattern of unsatisfactory work performance by the Complainant prior to April 1975 when he was appointed Chief Steward. During that time he was reassigned twice to new floors in an effort to stimulate his performance. Even after the Complainant's final transfer to the ground floor in April 1975, the record establishes that complaints of the same or a similar nature regarding his job performance continued. On June 26, 1975, the Complainant was formally warned that he would be discharged if his performance did not improve. It was only after recommendations from Mr. Webb and Mr. Bell in August 1975 and further consultations with Mr. Lomay and Mrs. Nez that Mr. Davis decided to discharge the Complainant.

The record is replete with evidence that the Complainant was not subject to disparate treatment. The Complainant's performance was evaluated between the ninth and tenth months of his employment because regulations so required, not because of his union activities during the last five months of his employment. The regulations also required that a trial employee's separation be based upon the subjective evaluations of his supervisors, as it was here. Furthermore, the evidence establishes that it is the practice of the Activity to deny career tenure to employees who have not performed satisfactorily during their trial periods.

In addition, I have found that neither Mr. Lomay nor Mr. Webb made the anti-union remarks attributed to them by the Complainant. On the contrary, I have found that labor-management cooperation in recent years has been excellent; that both Mr. Lomay and Mr. Webb are past union members; that the Complainant was never denied official time to perform his representational duties; and that Mr. Webb invited the Complainant in his capacity as a union steward to address the employees and recommended him to others for that purpose.

In this regard, I must reiterate that it is not the function of this tribunal to decide whether the Complainant's separation was justified but only whether it was discriminatory or not. Regarding the latter, I find that the Complainant has failed to meet the required burden of proof.

Conclusion

In conclusion, I find that the Activity did not violate either Sections 19(a)(1) or 19(a)(2) of the Order by separating the Complainant from his position on September 11, 1975 or by reason of Mr. Lomay's alleged remarks to the Complainant.

Recommendation

In view of the foregoing findings and conclusions, I recommend that the complaint herein be dismissed in its entirety.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEFENSE CIVIL PREPAREDNESS AGENCY, REGION I,
MAYNARD, MASSACHUSETTS
A/SLMR No. 799

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the National Association of Government Employees, Local R1-84 (NAGE) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(3) and (6) of the Order by stalling and failing to meet and bargain concerning a new negotiated agreement with the NAGE and thereby permitting another labor organization, the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO (AFGE), a party to the instant proceeding, to file a representation petition for an election in the unit then represented exclusively by the NAGE.

The Administrative Law Judge, while finding no evidence of a violation of Section 19(a)(3) of the Order, concluded that the Respondent, by delaying the start of negotiations for several months without good reason, and by thereafter failing on two occasions to meet the bargaining obligations it itself had set, had not met its obligation under Section 11(a) of the Order to meet and confer at reasonable times with the NAGE. Therefore, he found the Respondent had violated Section 19(a)(6) of the Order.

Noting particularly the absence of exceptions, the Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations and issued a remedial order. With regard to remedy, the Assistant Secretary concluded that, where, as in the instant case, an Activity has been found to have failed to meet at reasonable times for the purpose of consummating a negotiated agreement and, therefore, has been ordered to bargain with the incumbent exclusive representative, such a bargaining order must be carried out for a reasonable time thereafter without regard to whether or not there are fluctuations in the majority status of the incumbent exclusive representative. In his view, such a policy is necessary to give the order to bargain its fullest effect, i.e. to give the parties to the collective bargaining relationship a reasonable time in which to conclude a negotiated agreement free from rival claims. Accordingly, and as it was noted further that the Respondent's improper conduct occurred prior to the filing of the AFGE's representation petition, the Assistant Secretary found also that dismissal of the AFGE's representation petition by the appropriate Regional Administrator would be warranted.

DECISION AND ORDER

On November 16, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Samuel A. Chaitovitz issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom, and take certain affirmative actions as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. No exceptions were filed to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, and noting particularly the absence of exceptions, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, 1/ conclusions and recommendations.

1/ On page 4 of his Recommended Decision and Order, the Administrative Law Judge inadvertently indicated that the second event specified in the Respondent's June 30, 1975, schedule for negotiations was to take place on July 25, 1975, rather than on July 11, 1975. This inadvertence is hereby corrected.

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491 and Section 203.26(a) of the Rules and Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that Defense Civil Preparedness Agency, Region I, shall:

In my view, where, as here, an activity has been found to have failed to meet at reasonable times for the purpose of consummating a negotiated agreement and, therefore, has been ordered to bargain with the incumbent exclusive representative, such a bargaining order must be carried out for a reasonable time thereafter without regard to whether or not there are fluctuations in the majority status of the incumbent exclusive representative. RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

This proceeding arose under Executive Order 11491, as amended, (herein called the Order). Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued on June 26, 1976 by the Regional Administrator for the New York Region on a complaint filed by National Association of Government Employees (herein called NAGE) on October 23, 1975 and an amended complaint filed on November 13, 1975 alleging, in substance, that Defense Civil Preparedness Agency-Region I (hereinafter called the Activity or DCPA-Region I) violated Sections 19(a)(2)(3) and (6) of the Order by stalling and failing to meet and bargain concerning a new contract with the NAGE, Local RI-84 (hereinafter called the Union or NAGE Local RI-84) and by thereby permitting another labor organization, American Federation of Government Employees (hereinafter called AFGE) to file a representation petition. 1/

A hearing was held before the undersigned in Cambridge, Massachusetts. NAGE and the Activity were represented 2/ and afforded full opportunity to be heard, to adduce evidence and to examine and cross-examine witnesses. No witnesses were called, but the NAGE and the Activity entered into an extensive stipulation of facts and submitted a number of joint exhibits. All parties were afforded the opportunity to argue orally and to file briefs; NAGE and the Activity did file briefs which have been duly considered.

Upon the entire record of this case, which is composed of the stipulations of fact and the exhibits produced at the hearing, I make the following findings, conclusions and recommendations:

1/ The Notice of Hearing on Complaint set the hearing for only the allegations that Sections 19(a)(3) and (6) of the Order were violated.

2/ The Notice of Hearing on Complaint was served on AFGE. No representative of AFGE appeared at the hearing.

Findings of Fact

1. DCPA-Region I has its office in Maynard, Massachusetts. The headquarters of the Defense Civil Preparedness Agency 3/ is at the Pentagon in Washington, D. C.

2. Since 1964, and at all times material herein, NAGE Local RI-84 has been the certified collective bargaining representative of a unit composed of all civilian employees of DCPA-Region I.

3. A collective bargaining agreement was entered into between the Activity and the Union on June 12, 1969 and expired by tis own terms on June 11, 1971. By letter dated June 21, 1972 the Personnel Manager of the DCPA Office of Personnel in Washington, the personnel office serving DCPA-Region I, advised the Union that the contract had expired and inviting the Union to submit plans to modify and continue the agreement.

4. During December of 1974 NAGE Local RI-84 submitted a set of contract proposals to the Activity. These proposals through a clerical error were incomplete because they omitted one article contained on page 9. The Activity brought this omission to the Union's attention and the missing proposal was furnished in March 1975.

5. Mr. Clair Beck, DCPA's headquarters' Labor Management Director for Personnel and Employment Services, retired in February 1975 and was replaced by Mr. David York. During the interim Mr. Leon Konicz, who had become Director of the Personnel and Employment Services in Washington had, on January 29, 1975, distributed copies of the Union's proposals to members of his staff, requesting their comments by February 14, 1975. A copy of this memorandum was sent to John McDonald, Administrative Officer of DCPA-Region I.

3/ This agency was formally called the Office of Civil Defense.

6. In February 1975 John E. Davis, National Director of DCPA in Washington, by a memorandum to Allan Zinowitz, Director of DCPA-Region I, named a four-man negotiating team from DCPA-Region I to represent it in the negotiations. Mr. Zinowitz was instructed to advise the Union of the naming of the negotiating team and that they would be meeting in the near future.

7. DCPA Instruction 5850.1 dated December 18, 1974 requires management representatives to undergo formal training prior to entering into negotiations. The Activity's bargaining team attended such formal training on May 27, 28 and 29.

8. Subsequent to March 1975 NAGE Nation Representative Martin Williamson talked to DCPA-Region I Director Zinowitz on two or three occasions during which the matter of the labor negotiations was discussed. During a telephone conversation on May 26, Mr. Zinowitz advised Mr. Williamson that the negotiations would get underway within two weeks.

9. A memorandum dated June 30 was sent from Mr. McDonald to his negotiating team. On its face the memorandum shows it was to be sent to Mr. Leonard Foley, then president of the Union. This memorandum set forth the following schedule for negotiations:

"July 8, 1975	Complete review of all necessary paper work with contract negotiations.
July 25, 1975	Completion of all management suggestions for inclusion in contract negotiation and forwarding to Mr. York of Army Personnel.
July 25, 1975	Mr. York return our recommendation with his comments.
Aug. 1, 1975	Give to Union, management's proposals for inclusion in contract.

Aug. 15, 1975 — Establish dates of pre-negotiation and negotiating meeting with union officials for sometime in September."

10. On July 1, 1975 Mr. Williamson wrote to Mr. Zinowitz referring to their May 26 conversation and the committment that negotiations would get underway in two weeks. Mr. Williamson stated that the Union had not received any counter proposals and stated later in the letter that they would appreciate any action that will start negotiations. 4/

11. By letter dated July 11, 1976 DCPA-Region I Director Zenowitz advised Mr. Williamson that the schedule had been furnished to Mr. Foley. The letter stated "We are trying to expedite negotiations and we are flexible as to earlier dates being established."

12. On August 8, 1975 the comments from the DCPA Washington office on the Activity's proposals were received by DCPA-Region I. The Activity's proposals have not, at any time, been given to the Union.

13. Union President Foley broke his leg during the weekend of August 2 and 3, 1975 and was out of work until at least September 1, 1975.

14. After August 3, but prior to August 18, 1975 Mr. McDonald telephoned Mr. Foley at home and suggested a possible meeting at a motel near Mr. Foley's home. A motel was suggested for negotiations originally scheduled for August 15. The meeting of August 15 as set forth in the schedule was not held.

15. By letter dated August 15 and received August 20 Mr. Williamson complained about the Activity's failure to provide its proposals and the fact that by that day, the day scheduled for a meeting, the Union had no word from the Activity.

4/ Mr. Williamson did not receive a copy of the schedule described above in paragraph 9 until July 11, 1976. He received it from a Union representative, who already had a copy of it.

16. On August 18, 1975 the Activity received a copy of an AFGE representation petition filed in case No. 31-9582(RO) in which AFGE seeks to represent the Activity's employees. It involves the same collective bargaining unit as the one represented by NAGE-RI-84. The signatures of employees in support of AFGE's petition were signed prior to August 12, 1975.

17. Mr. Foley contacted Mr. McDonald periodically from December 1974 to August 1975 inquiring of the status of the contract proposals.

18. On August 21, 1975 a letter was sent which constituted the unfair labor practice change in the subject case.

Conclusions of Law

In Army and Air Force Exchange Service, Kessler Consolicated Exchange, A/SLMR No. 144 the Assistant Secretary stated that the obligation to bargain as provided in Section 19(a)(6) of the Order must be construed in conjunction with Section 11(a) of the Order which provides that the bargaining obligation on the part of both agencies and labor organizations includes an obligation "to meet at reasonable times" and to confer in good faith. In the Army and Air Force Exchange Case, supra, the Assistant Secretary concluded that the respondent's excuses for delaying negotiations in that case, a busy holiday season and an annual inventory, were not sufficient to justify a four month delay in getting meetings started. The Assistant Secretary, in analyzing the bargaining obligation, stated that the objectives of the Order would not be well served where an exclusive collective bargaining representative submitted a complete proposed collective bargaining agreement to the Activity and then had to wait four months for the Activity to decide that it is convenient to start negotiations. Thus he concluded, absent more plausible excuses for this kind of delay, such conduct by the respondent would amount to a refusal to meet at reasonable times and would thus constitute a violation of Section 19(a)(6) of the Order. The Assistant Secertary went on, however, and concluded that in the circumstances there present, "noting particularly that...the Union did not press for immediate negotiations, and once negotiations began they were transacted with sufficient diligence..." there had been no violation of the Section 19(a)(6) of the Order.

The instant case involves a delay on the Activity's part of some nine months and negotiations never did start because of the intervening representation petition filed by AFGE on or about August 18. The issue then basically presented is whether the Activity's delay in starting negotiations from December 1974, when the Union submitted its contract proposal to the Activity, 5/ until about August 18, when AFGE filed its representation petition 6/, constituted a refusal "to meet at reasonable times," as required by Section 11(a) of the Order, and thus constituted violation of Section 19(a)(6) of the Order.

It is concluded that the Activity's excuses for its delay; that it had to train its negotiators, prepare counter proposals, vacations, etc., were not sufficient to justify this type of lengthy delay in starting negotiations. It is true, as present in the Army and Air Force Exchange Service Case, supra, that during the period soon after the proposal was submitted the Union did not press for immediate negotiating. It is very important to note, however, that the Union's president Mr. Foley did periodically call and inquire as to the status of negotiations and NAGE's representative Mr. Williamson called to get negotiations started and finally got a committment in May that negotiations

5/ It is concluded that the Union had submitted a complete proposal contract. The fact that one clause was clerically omitted is deemed insignificant, was not given as reason for any delay, and this ommission was promptly remedied in March 1975, when the Union became aware of the ommission.

6/ The filing of a valid representation petition would, at that time have privileged the Activity's refusal to meet with the Union, until the question concerning representation had been resolved.

would get underway within two weeks. The Activity did not meet this deadline, and the record does not establish any acceptable reason for this delay, nor does it establish that it notified the Union in advance of the change of plans. Further, it must be noted that the Activity unlaterally set a new schedule which was apparently acceptable to the Union in its June 30, 1975 memorandum and then, with no prior notification, failed to comply with its own schedule, i.e., failed to provide the Union with its counter proposals by August 1.

The Activity, in its July 11 letter states that it desires to expedite the negotiations and is flexible as to earlier dates, but the letter was written and received before the Activity failed to meet its own scheduled obligation to provide the Union with counter proposals. Now perhaps, the Union would have been letter advised to more clearly and precisely state its demands that the Activity meet with it to negotiate. However, as discussed above, the Union did keep in contact with the Activity and indicated its continuing interest in the status of negotiations. Thus the Activity can hardly use as an excuse for the long delay, the Union's acquiescence.

It is therefore concluded based on the nine month delay for no good reasons, and the Activity's failure on two occasions at the end of the nine month period to meet bargaining obligations, that it itself set, that the Activity did, prior to the filing of the representation petition by AFGE, fail to meet at reasonable times with the Union and therefore did violate Section 19(a)(6) of the Order.

Section 19(a)(3) of the Order provides that no Activity shall sponsor, control or otherwise assist a labor organization. The Union contends that the Activity violated Section 19(a)(3) of the Order because its delaying and stalling over negotiations aided AFGE in filing its petition. There is no evidence the Activity even knew AFGE was soliciting signatures or organizing; thus the allegation is found to be without merit.

Recommendation

In view of my findings and conclusions stated above, I recommend that the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations find that Respondent did not violate Section 19(a)(3) of the Order and that the allegation of the complaint be dismissed and further that Respondent engaged in conduct which violated Section 19(a)(6) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, with respect to its failure to meet at reasonable times to negotiate a new collective bargaining agreement with NAGE Local RI-84.

I further recommend that the following Order, which is designed to effectuate the policies of Executive Order 11491, as amended, be adopted:

SUMMARY OF DECISION ON GRIEVABILITY OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

U.S. PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D.C.
A/SLMR No. 800

This case involved an Application for Decision on Grievability filed by the Patent Office Professional Association (POPA). The POPA contended that the exclusion of an employee from various formative meetings, which were held in regard to the automation of certain functions of the Scientific Library, was grievable under the parties' existing negotiated agreement. The Activity denied the grievance because, in its view, the grievance was not subject to the negotiated grievance procedure inasmuch as it did not involve the interpretation or application of the negotiated agreement's provisions, and the grievance did not cite the specific agreement provisions allegedly violated.

The Administrative Law Judge found that the grievance herein was not actionable under the negotiated grievance procedure since it did not involve the interpretation or application of the provisions of the negotiated agreement. His finding was based on the restrictive language used in defining the scope of the grievance procedure, the prohibitions contained in Section 13(a) of the Order in 1972 when the parties negotiated the agreement, and the matters which had been processed through the negotiated grievance procedure since 1972. The Administrative Law Judge noted, however, that the failure to cite the specific contractual provisions allegedly violated was insufficient basis for refusing to process the grievance under the negotiated grievance procedure.

Noting particularly the absence of exceptions, the Assistant Secretary adopted the findings, conclusions, and recommendation of the Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION ON GRIEVABILITY

On September 24, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Burton S. Sternburg issued his Recommended Decision on Grievability in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the grievance involved herein was not on a matter subject to the grievance procedure set forth in the parties' negotiated agreement.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision on Grievability and the entire record in the subject case, and noting particularly the absence of exceptions, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions, and recommendation. 1/

FINDING

IT IS HEREBY FOUND that the grievance in Case No. 22-6551(AP) is not on a matter subject to the parties' negotiated grievance procedure.

1/ The evidence established that the instant Application for Decision on Grievability was filed by the Applicant at a time when arbitration, provided for in Article 6, Section 10 of the parties' negotiated agreement, had not been invoked. In this regard, it was noted that the Report on a Ruling of the Assistant Secretary, No. 61 states, in pertinent part, "Where one of the parties to an existing negotiated agreement has filed a grievance, all steps of the grievance procedure provided for in that agreement, including the invocation of arbitration where an arbitration provision exists, must be exhausted before the Assistant Secretary will consider an Application filed pursuant to Section 205.2(a) or (b) of the Regulations." RECOMMENDED DECISION ON GRIEVABILITY

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to an Application for Decision on Grievability Or Arbitrability filed on December 9, 1975, under Section 13 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, by the Patent Office Professional Association, hereinafter called the Union or Applicant, concerning whether or not a particular grievance is on a matter subject to the grievance procedure in the existing negotiated agreement between the Union and the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, hereinafter called the Activity, a Notice of Hearing on Application was issued by the Regional Administrator for the Philadelphia, Pennsylvania Region on July 19, 1976.

The issue to be decided by the undersigned Administrative Law Judge is the scope of the negotiated grievance procedure, i.e. whether it encompasses all grievances or only those grievances predicated on matters and/or subjects included in the negotiated collective bargaining agreement between the parties.

A hearing was held in the captioned matter on August 24, 1976, in Washington, D.C. All parties were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses, and to introduce evidence bearing on the issue involved herein.

Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions and recommendations:

Findings of Fact

The Union and the Activity are parties to a collective bargaining agreement which contains in Article VI a grievance procedure. Section 1. Article VI, - Definition reads as follows:

a. Any matter which affects a member of the Unit personally, which is not resolved to his satisfaction, may be the subject of a grievance under this procedure. Said matters must involve interpretation or application of this agreement and may not cover other matters including those for which statutory appeals procedures exists. Said matters within this agreement include, but are not limited to the following matters:

(1) working conditions and environment;

(2) relationships with supervisors and with other employees and officials;

(3) management decisions in the application of established procedures;

(4) interpretation or application of personnel policies and of employee-management agreements (i.e., application of established policies to an individual employee or to groups of employees); and

(5) personnel policies and practices.

Section 7(b) of Article VI provides as follows:

b. The written grievance as filed by the grievant should contain the following information:

(1) Title and grade of grievant;

(2) Nature of grievance

(3) Corrective action requested and reasons;

(4) Name of designated representative;

(5) A copy of the written response received....

Prior to the execution of the 1972 currently applicable contract between the parties which contained the above quoted grievance provisions the parties followed the grievance provisions set forth in a collective bargaining contract dated July 28, 1966. The grievance provision in the 1966 contract read in pertinent part as follows:

Section 1. - Definition

a. Except as indicated in subsection b., below, any matter which affects a member of the Union personally, which is not resolved to his satisfaction, and which is within the administrative discretion or control of the Office, may be the subject of a grievance under this procedure. Such matters include, but are not limited to the following:

(1) working conditions and environment;

(2) relationships with supervisors and with other employees and officials;

(3) management decisions in the application of established procedures; and

(4) implementation of personnel policies and of employee-management agreements (i.e., application of established policies to an individual employee or to groups of employees).

b. The following matters are not covered by this procedure:

(1) policies, criteria and procedures established by the Federal Government, the Department of Commerce or the Office

(2) personnel actions and other matters which are subject to appeal procedure (e.g. "Appeals from Adverse Action," Administrative Instructions 3-2.9.); and denial of "in-grades," Department of Commerce Administrative Order 202-531.

At the time of the 1972 renegotiation of the contract between the parties the Union sought to incorporate the identical broad grievance procedure provisions contained in the expired 1966 agreement. The Activity declined the Union's proposal to this effect, pointing out the then existing language in Executive Order 11491 which limited the scope of negotiated grievance procedures to the interpretation and application of the provisions of the negotiated agreement. Thus, the Activity proposed that the grievance procedure provision of the contract read as follows:

Section 1. - Definition

a. any disagreement over the interpretation or application of this agreement may be the subject of a grievance under the procedure set forth below.

b. no other matter may be the subject of a grievance under this procedure. ....

Thereafter the Union which wanted language as broad as the language appearing in the 1966 contract finally agreed to incorporate the language quoted above. According to the record the five examples cited in Section 1. a. (1) - 1. a. (5) were taken from the 1966 expired contract and were inserted in the 1972 contract to indicate that the grievance procedure was to be as broad as permitted by the Executive Order.

Mrs. Joan Mavity, the grievant involved herein, was removed from the position of Head, Technical Processes Branch in the Scientific Library on or about July 22, 1974. Thereafter, according to the grievance, Mrs. Mavity has been excluded from various formative meetings which preceded the Library's joining the OCLC network, the initial step in the automation of some of the Library's functions. Mrs. Mavity's grievance was filed under the negotiated grievance procedure contained in the collective bargaining contract between the Activity and the Union and seeks as a remedy authorization to participate actively in such meetings.

The Activity in November 1975, denied the grievance stating in pertinent part as follows:

> As you know, any grievance under the negotiated grievance procedure contained in the agreement between the Office and the Patent Office Professional Association (POPA) must involve interpretation or application of that agreement. Other matters not involving interpretation or application of this agreement may properly be the subject of a grievance under the agency procedure. Mrs. Mavity's June 27, 1975 memorandum neither cites violations of specific parts of the POPA agreement nor cites specific parts of this agreement for which interpretation or application issues require resolution.

In support of its position that is is incumbent upon a grievant to cite specific provisions of the collective bargaining agreement the Activity relies solely on Section 7(b) of Article VI quoted above.

With respect to past practice under the 1972 contract, the record is barren of any evidence indicating that a grievance was ever denied since 1972 because of the failure to cite specific contract provisions. The record is also barren of any evidence indicating that a grievance involving other than interpretation or application of the collective bargaining contract has ever been processed since 1972 under the negotiated grievance procedure.

Discussion and Conclusions

The Activity contends that inasmuch as the grievance does not (1) involve the interpretation and application of the provisions of the collective bargaining agreement, and (2) cite the specific sections of the collective bargaining agreement allegedly violated that the grievance is not actionable under the negotiated grievance procedure.

The Union on the other hand takes the position that any grievance, save those specifically excluded by Executive Order 11491, falls within the scope of the negotiated grievance procedure and that there is no requirement that a grievance set forth the specific contractual provisions allegedly violated in order for the grievance to be actionable under the negotiated grievance procedure. According to the Union it was the parties intention to make the grievance procedure as broad as possible.

With regard to the Activity's second contention relative to the necessity of citing the specific contractual provisions allegedly violated in order to make a grievance actionable under the negotiated procedure, I find insufficient evidence in the record before me to support such contention. Section 7(b) of Article VI relied upon by the Activity in support of its position in this regard makes no mention of such requirement. Indeed all that is required under this section is information concerning the nature of the grievance and corrective action required. Accordingly, and in the absence of any evidence indicating an agreement or practice to the contrary, I find that the omission of citations to the specific contractual provision allegedly violated to be an insufficient basis for refusing to process a grievance under the negotiated grievance procedure.

I do however, find merit in the Activity's first contention, namely, that in order for a grievance to be actionable under the contract grievance procedure such grievance must involve the interpretation and application of the provisions of the agreement. In reaching this conclusion I rely on the negotiations leading up to the execution of the 1972 contract and a literal reading thereof. Thus, the record discloses that prior to 1972 the Union and Activity were parties to a collective bargaining agreement containing an extremely broad grievance procedure. The Union attempted during the 1972 negotiations to retain the broad language of the grievance procedure, but the Activity objected, pointing out the then restrictive language of the Executive Order. In line with the restrictive language of the Order the Activity proposed language that without a doubt made it clear that only disagreements over the interpretation and application of the agreement would be subject to the negotiated grievance procedure. Thereafter the parties compromised on the language contained in the 1972 contract. As noted above such language specifically states that "the matters affecting unit members personally which are made the subject of the negotiated grievance procedure must involve interpretation or application of this agreement and may not cover other matters including those for which statutory appeals procedure exists." In view of this restricted language, the prohibitions contained in the then existing Executive Order and the absence of any evidence indicating that grievances concerning matters outside the negotiated agreement had been processed under the negotiated grievance procedure since 1972, I find that the instant grievance is not actionable under the negotiated grievance procedure since it does not involve an interpretation or application of the provisions of the collective bargaining contract. 1/

1/ While a literal reading of the five examples set forth in Article VI, Sect. 1(a)(1) - 1(a)(5) might possible support an argument to the contrary, such an interpretation would be contrary to the express provisions of the then existing Executive Order.

Recommendation

It is hereby recommended that the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations find the grievance not actionable under the negotiated grievance procedure.

PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

GENERAL SERVICES ADMINISTRATION,
GSA REGION V,
PUBLIC BUILDINGS SERVICE, MILWAUKEE FIELD OFFICE
A/SLMR No. 801

This case arose upon the filing of an unfair labor practice complaint by the General Services Administration, Region V Council of NFFE Locals, National Federation of Federal Employees (Complainant) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(2) and (3) of the Order. The complaint, as amended, alleged essentially that the Respondent improperly assisted the American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE) in violation of Section 19(a)(3) of the Order by not preventing representatives of the AFGE from performing certain alleged improper campaign activities during an election campaign; by permitting the AFGE, contrary to the GSA Administrative Manual, to post a letter on its bulletin board which contained, among other things, a statement that the NFFE had appealed to racial bigotry during the campaign; and by permitting the posting and distribution by the AFGE of another document in locations where the NFFE was not permitted to distribute literature. The complaint also alleged that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(2) of the Order by proposing to suspend an employee because of his NFFE activity; by insisting that the employee's appeal of his suspension must be filed by the AFGE (the accredited representative of his unit) instead of by the employee himself or his chosen representative, and that it be filed under the negotiated procedure instead of the agency procedure; by insisting that an employee's grievance over a reprimand based on another incident be filed under the negotiated procedure in the same manner as noted above; and by issuing a memorandum limiting access to the Activity during non-work time for the purpose of discrimination against an employee because of his membership in the NFFE.

The Administrative Law Judge recommended that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. He found that the Respondent had not improperly assisted the AFGE in violation of Section 19(a)(3) of the Order. In this regard, he determined that it had no knowledge of the alleged improper campaign activities until they were completed and did not sanction or approve them. Further, he found that when the Respondent permitted the posting of a letter by the AFGE after the election it was unaware of possible violation of its regulations and promptly removed this letter when one of its officials pointed out that posting such a letter was improper. He also noted that the letter was in response to objections to the election. No evidence was presented in support of the remaining Section 19(a)(3) allegation.

In dismissing the Section 19(a)(2) allegations, the Administrative Law Judge found that there was no evidence to support the allegation that an employee was suspended because of his activities on behalf of the Complainant, or that he was singled out to encourage or discourage membership in a labor organization. Nor was there evidence of union animus. He found that the insistence that the employee appeal his suspension through the negotiated procedure, represented by the exclusive representative of his unit, did not violate Section 19(a)(2) because it was beyond the Administrative Law Judge's jurisdiction to determine whether the Respondent improperly failed to apply the agency appeals procedure. Moreover, if the Respondent improperly interpreted the scope of the negotiated procedure this was not a clear blatant violation of the agreement in violation of the Executive Order and even if it were a clear breach of the agreement, there was no evidence that the application of the agreement was discriminatory. No evidence was presented to support the allegation that an employee was discriminated against by being required to use the negotiated grievance procedure, rather than the agency procedure in filing a grievance over a reprimand. Finally, the memorandum limiting access to the Activity was not shown to have been discriminatorily applied.

Noting particularly the absence of exceptions, the Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendation and ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

Statement of the Case

This case arises under Executive Order 11491 as amended. It was initiated by a complaint dated and filed October 20, 1975 alleging violations of Sections 19(a)(1),(2), and (3) of the Executive Order. An amended complaint dated November 6, 1975 and filed November 7, 1975 alleged violations of the same Sections of the Executive Order.

As amended, the complaint alleged seven unfair labor practices by the Respondent. It did this by attaching to the complaint copies of two letters, each dated July 5, 1975, one of which was an unfair labor practice charge (see Section 203.2(a)(1) of the Regulations) alleging four incidents of conduct by the Respondent that the Complainant charged were each a violation of Section 19 (a)(2) of the Executive Order. The other attachment to the complaint was an unfair labor practice charge alleging three incidents of conduct by the Respondent that the Complainant charged were each a violation of Section 19(a)(3) of the Executive Order. The amended complaint stated that the charges were discussed with the Respondent and were not resolved (except that one of the seven charges was resolved in part).

The seven alleged unfair labor practices, as stated in the two letters dated July 5, 1975 copies of which were attached to the complaint, were:

I. Alleged Violations of Section 19(a)(3);

A. On May 20, 1975 the Respondent did not prevent representatives of AFGE from entering federal premises (during an election campaign in which an NFEE local was trying to replace an AFGE local as the representative of a unit of Respondent's employees) without clearance and distributing a flyer that contained untrue statements about NFEE, and AFGE made contacts with employees in areas to which NFEE was denied access. In not preventing such AFGE conduct, the Respondent improperly assisted AFGE in violation of Section 19(a)(3).

B. On or about June 5 or 6, 1975 (after the election had been held), Respondent permitted an official of AFGE Local 1346 to post on the AFGE bulletin board a letter that attacked the integrity of NFFE and that accused NFEE of racial bigotry, and this constituted unlawful assistance to AFGE.

C. On or about June 5, 1975 AFGE Local 1346 distributed a bulletin and posted it on the bulletin board. By permitting its distribution in the "Swing Room" (after the election) and placing a slightly different version in the women's lockers (areas in which NFFE was not permitted to distribute literature), the Respondent improperly assisted AFGE.

II. Alleged Violations of Section 19(a)(2).

A. On March 12, 1975 the Federal Protective Service Division proposed to suspend Frank A. Swiatly for five days after singling him out for extraordinary observation because he was an NFFE member and had been acting as an NFFE representative.

B. On May 9, 1975 the Respondent insisted that Mr. Swiatly's appeal of his suspension must be filed by AFGE Local 1346 (the accredited representative of Swiatly's unit) instead of by Swiatly himself or a representative chosen by him, and that it be filed under the negotiated grievance procedure of Local 1346 instead of the agency procedure, thereby discriminating against Swiatly because of his NFFE membership.

C. On June 26, 1975 the Respondent insisted that a grievance based on an official reprimand of Swiatly must be filed by the AFGE Local instead of by Swiatly himself or his chosen representative, and that it be filed under the negotiated grievance procedure instead of the agency procedure, and that this was done to discriminate against Swiatly because of his NFFE membership.

D. On May 27, 1975 the Respondent's Buildings Manager issued a memorandum restricting the hours that "GSA-BMD" employees could have access to or remain in certain areas; that although Swiatly was not a "BMD" employee he "was told" that the memorandum applied to him; that this denied to an NFFE Special Representative access to an NFFE exclusive area in the Federal Building in violation of an NFFE-GSA agreement (covering another unit of employees represented by NFFE for which Swiatly was a Special Representative) and in violation of Section 19(a)(6) of the Executive Order; and that the memorandum was issued to discriminate against Swiatly because of his NFEE membership.

On January 8, 1976 the Respondent filed a response to the amended complaint in some detail in which it denied it had committed any unfair labor practices in violation of Section 19(a)(2) or Section 19(a)(3) of the Executive Order.

On May 10, 1976 the Regional Administrator issued a Notice of Hearing to be held on June 15, 1976 in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Hearings were held in that City on June 15 and June 16. The Complainant was represented by its Chief Union Negotiator and the Respondent by an attorney. Both sides introduced evidence, examined and cross-examined witnesses, and made closing arguments. At the conclusion of the hearing the time for filing briefs was extended to July 19, 1976 and was later further extended for good cause to August 9, 1976. Timely briefs were not filed.

FACTS

Local 1346 of the American Federation of Government Employees is the recognized exclusive representative of certain employees of the Respondent, "including guards and Federal Protective Officers, of the Public Buildings Service, Milwaukee Field Office" of the General Services Administration. Frank A. Swiatly is an employee in that Unit. He is a guard in the Federal Protective Division, General Services Administration, Milwaukee Field Office. He is not a member of that Local or of A.F.G.E. He is a member of a Local of the National Federation of Federal Employees. That Local is represented in collective bargaining by GSA Region 5 Council of N.F.F.E. Locals, the Complainant in this case. The NFFE Local is the representative of other units of employees of Respondent in which Swiatly is not employed, but he is a Special Representative of N.F.F.E. for those units.

Prior to May, 1975 A.F.G.E. Local 1346 was the exclusive representative of the unit of Respondent's employees including Swiatly. About March 1975 a local of the National Federation of Federal Employees filed a petition for an election to determine whether it should replace Local 1346 as the exclusive representative of the employees in that unit. The election was ordered and the campaign was conducted from some time in March to the latter part of May when the election was held. The A.F.G.E. local prevailed and continued to be the exclusive representative. The N.F.F.E. local filed objections to the election. The record in this case does not show what disposition was made of those objections but it does show that at the time of the hearings in this case, June 15 and 16, 1976, Local 1346 was still the accredited and recognized exclusive representative of that unit. The grounds of the objection to the election were not the same as the alleged misconduct in this case.

I, A. The election was held within two or three days after May 20, 1975. On May 20, 1975, at about 11:45 A.M., a representative of the A.F.G.E. came to the building where the members of the unit were employed, and asked to see the building manager. The building was out of the building attending to other duties from 11:30 A.M. to 12:30 P.M. that day. The A.F.G.E. representative and another A.F.G.E. representative went to the "swing room" 1/ where some members of the unit were congregated and spoke to them and showed them a moving picture. The swing room was not one of the places where campaigning was permitted. The record does not indicate, and I do not find, that any representative of management knew the A.F.G.E. men were in the swing room while they were there. After they left, Swiatly told the building manager they had been there and complained about it. There is no evidence, and I do not find, that N.F.F.E. asked for permission or tried to use the swing room for campaigning.

I, B. On June 5 or 6, 1976, after the election had been held, the Building Manager permitted the President of Local 1346 to post on the A.F.G.E. bulletin Board a copy of a letter from National Vice-President of A.F.G.E Kaplan to the L.M.S.A. Area Director concerning the N.F.F.E. objections to the recent election. The union bulletin board is near the time clock area. In that letter Vice-President Kaplan stated that during the campaign he had been advised by an employee in the unit that N.F.F.E. had been appealing to "racial bigotry" and that A.F.G.E. would like "the N.F.F.E. campaign practice of appealing to racial prejudice looked into."

The posting of such statements was contrary to the GSA Administrative Manual. A day or two after it was posted the Building Manager received a telephone call from a GSA Employee Relations Officer in the Regional office in Chicago telling him that posting such a statement was improper and the posted letter should be removed. The Building Manager promptly removed it.

I, C. No evidence was introduced concerning the allegation concerning improper distribution of literature in the swing room and in the women's lockers. 2/

II, A. On February 11, 1975 Seargeant Karnopp, Swiatly's supervisor, came to work at 7:00 A.M. His tour of duty that day began at 8:00 A.M. but he came early to take care of some preliminary matters. Swiatly's tour of duty as a building guard that day was midnight to 8:00 A.M. Some time before 8:00 A.M. Karnopp went around to Swiatly's duty station (at the 24-hour entrance) and saw, or thought he saw, Swiatly asleep. Karnopp took a picture of Swiatly. Karnopp customarily carried a small camera with him to take a picture of unusual situations or situations calling for remedy that he thought could be portrayed pictorially more vividly than verbally. It was not unusual for Karnopp to come to the building outside his tour of duty to observe the job performance of those he supervised. There is nothing in the record to indicate any anti-union animus by Karnopp or any anti-N.F.F.E. animus or any anti-Swiatly animus because of his union position or activities.

On March 12, 1975 it was proposed to suspend Swiatly for five days for sleeping on the job on February 11, 1975, and he was in fact suspended.

II, B. Swiatly attempted to appeal his suspension through the agency-prescribed grievance procedure but was told by the Respondent that he could present it only through the negotiated grievance procedure. The negotiated agreement does not contain a provision concerning the procedures for imposing or grieving or appealing from the imposition of discipline; the section entitled "Management Rights" provides that management has the right in accordance with applicable laws and regulations to take disciplinary action against employees. 3/ The negotiated grievance procedure provides that it shall be the exclusive procedure "for the consideration of grievances over the interpretation, or application, of this agreement. ..." 4/

II, C. There was no evidence introduced concerning the conduct concerning a reprimand alleged as described in item II, C above under Statement of the Case.

II, D. On May 27 the Buildings Manager of the Respondent posted a notice concerning "Building Hours". It prescribed a new policy pursuant to which certain described classes of employees, including Swiatly, would not be authorized to enter most portions of the building more than one hour before their starting time or remain more than thirty minutes after their quitting time except when working overtime. The notice concluded with the statement:

> "If for any reason you feel you cannot comply with this Memorandum, please feel free to discuss your reason with Mr. Walsh or myself."

3/ Exh. C-2, p. 2.

4/ Exh. C-2, Sec. 17-2, p. 21.

Swiatly, athough not employed in a unit represented by N.F.F.E., was a Special Representative of N.F.F.E. for two units it represented one of which consisted of employees located in that building. Swiatly was of the belief that because of that notice he was precluded from entering or being in the building, except during the prescribed hours, to discuss union business with employees represented by N.F.F.E. The N.F.F.E. agreement provided in Section 8.5 of C. Exh. 3, p.9:

> "Visitation Rights. To enable the Union to meet and discharge its obligations and responsibilities under this agreement, authorized representatives shall be permitted to visit places of work of the Employer ... providing prior arrangements are made with ... appropriate official."

Swiatly was an authorized representative of N.F.F.E. for employees in the building. There is no evidence that at any specific time or any specific occasion he was inhibited from exercising rights under that provision. At no time did Swiatly or anyone else seek to make "prior arrangements" under that provision and had it denied, and at no time did Swiatly even attempt to discuss relief from the notice under its last paragraph quoted above.

Discussion and Conclusions

The complaint should be dismissed for the following reasons:

Alleged Violations of Section 19(a)(3)

I, A. The Respondent did not sanction, approve, or close its eyes to A.F.G.E.'s use of the swing room for campaigning in the one isolated instance. It was unaware of it until it was over. Perhaps A.F.G.E. acted improperly in visiting an unauthorized area. If so, its misconduct does not constitute an unfair labor practice by the Respondent in the absence of condoning or closing its eyes to such conduct. It did neither.

The Complainant argued that the Respondent had the obligation under the Executive Order to have supervisory personnel available at all times and properly positioned to prevent campaigning in unauthorized places. I find no such obligation in the Executive Order.

I, B. The Building Manager, after the election, permitted A.F.G.E. to post a letter on its bulletin board which contained, inter alia, a statement that N.F.F.E. had appealed to racial bigotry during the campaign. This was contrary to GSA regulation. The Building Manager was unaware such posting was a violation of regulation. A day or two later, when another official of GSA pointed out to the Building Manager the impropriety of A.F.G.E. posting a letter containing such a statement, the Building Manager promptly removed it.

A simple departure by an agency from its own regulations, of itself, would not contravene any of the proscriptions of the Executive Order. The complaint that this incident was a violation of Sections 19(a)(3) which proscribes sponsoring or otherwise assisting a labor organization is insufficient. In this case the posting was after the election had been held, and the letter was in response to the objections to the election. Permitting a letter containing such a statement was not assistance in the election which had already been held. Nor is it perceived how it otherwise assisted A.F.G.E in violation of Section 19(a)(3).

I, C. No evidence, none at all, was introduced or offered concerning this alleged violation.

Alleged Violations of Section 19(a)(2)

II, A. Sergeant Karnopp, Swiatly's supervisior, saw, or believed he saw, Swiatly asleep on duty. As a consequence, Swiatly was suspended for five days. Karnopp had come to the builidng outside his own duty hours to attend to some chores. Contrary to Complainant's assertion, unsupported by probative evidence, it was not unusual for Karnopp to come to the building outside duty hours, and when he did so, to observe the guards he supervised. There was no probative evidence that Swiatly was singled out for observation; there was not even evidence that he was not asleep. And even if Swiatly was singled out, there was no evidence that he was singled out to encourage or discourage membership in a labor organization. There was no evidence of union animus of Karnopp or anyone else, only speculation by Complainant's representative at the hearing. That is not enough.

II, B. The Respondent and A.F.G.E. Local 1346, Swiatly's representative, had an agreement that included a negotiated grievance procedure. There was also an agency-prescribed grievance procedure. Swiatly attempted to present his grievance over his five-day suspension under the agency grievance procedure. The Respondent took the position that the negotiated procedure was applicable and was exclusive.

The Complainant took the position that the negotiated procedure was not applicable.

With respect to the Complainant's contention that the Respondent improperly failed to apply the agency appeals procedure, the resolution of such dispute is beyond our jurisdiction. United States Postal Service, Berwyn Post Office, Illinois and Dennis J. Brodie, A/SLMR No. 272. And if the Respondent incorrectly interpreted the scope of the negotiated grievance procedure, it was simply a disagreement over the proper interpretation of the agreement and not such a clear, blatant violation of the agreement as to constitute a unilateral change in the agreement in violation of the Executive Order. General Services Administration Region 5, Public Buildings Service, Chicago Field Office and Local 739, N.F.F.E., A/SLMR No. 528; Aerospace Guidance and Metrology Center, Newark Air Force Station and Local Union 2221, American Federation of Government Employees, A/SLMR No. 677. And even if it were a clear breach of the agreement, it would not be a violation of Section 19(a)(2), encouragement or discouragement of membership in a labor organization by discrimination, the only direct violation alleged. There was not a semblence of evidence that the application of the agreement in the manner involved here was discriminatory.

II, C. No evidence, none at all, was introduced or offered concerning this alleged violation concerning a grievance over a reprimand.

II, D. The Building Manager posted a notice restricting access of employees to most parts of the building to the time between one hour before starting time and thirty minutes after quitting time with the proviso that if any employee for any reason could not comply, "please feel free to discuss your reason with Mr. Walsh or myself." Swiatly, a building guard, was told the notice applied to him.

Swiatly was also a Special Representative of N.F.F.E. for a unit of Respondent's employees employed in the building although he was not employed in that unit. The collective agreement between the Respondent and N.F.F.E. covering that unit provided that authorized representatives of N.F.F.E. shall be permitted to visit places of work "providing prior arrangements are made with ... appropriate official." Swiatly felt inhibited by the notice from visiting employees in the unit he represented except during the hours prescribed by the notice. The unfair labor practice charge alleged that the notice was a violation of Sections 19(a)(6) and 19(a)(2) of the Executive Order.

The complaint does not allege that the notice was a violation of Section 19(a)(6) and so such contention is not properly before us. United States Air Force, 380th Combat Support Group, Plattsburg Air Force Base and Mary J. Pemberton, A/SLMR No. 557. But even if it had so alleged, the facts fall far short of sustaining it. Swiatly did not, as the notice suggested, take up with the Building Manager or Mr. Walsh his need for access at other than the prescribed hours. Nor did he or his union ever seek arrangements to visit the building and been denied them. There appears to have been no breach of contract at all, and even if there were it did not remotely resemble the kind of breach described in the GSA Region 5 case, supra, A/SLMR No. 528 or the Newark Air Force Station case, supra, A/SLMR No. 677.

With respect to the contention that the notice constitutes a violation of Section 19(a)(2), there was no evidence it was discriminatorily applied or was otherwise discriminatory.

Since each of the seven alleged unfair labor practices was either factually unsupported or where factually supported did not constitute an unfair labor practice in violation of the cited subparagraph of Section 19(a) of the Executive Order, the complaint should be dismissed.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

EQUAL EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITY COMMISSION
A/SLMR No. 802

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2667 (Complainant) alleging, in substance, that the Respondent had violated Section 19(a)(1) and (2) of the Order by: (1) an annual appraisal of a union official designed to intimidate him and discredit his activities in Local 2667; and (2) a failure to promote the union official because of his union activities.

The Administrative Law Judge recommended that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety on the basis that the Complainant had failed to prove the allegations of its complaint by a preponderance of the evidence. The Administrative Law Judge found the Complainant had shown only that the union official involved, an alternate union steward, had not been selected for promotion to a newly created position for which he and a number of other individuals had been found to be qualified. In this connection, the Administrative Law Judge found no evidence of anti-union animus based principally on his finding that the supervisory personnel involved in the selection process for the newly created position were not aware that the individual involved was a union official during the period in question. With respect to the individual's annual appraisal, the Administrative Law Judge credited the testimony of the supervisor involved that the reference to "employee associations' activities" in the appraisal was not in any way related to union activities.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations and ordered that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to a complaint filed on November 18, 1975, under Executive Order 11491, as amended, by American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2667 (AFL-CIO), (hereinafter called the Union or Complainant), against the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, (hereinafter called the Respondent or Agency), a Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued by the Acting Regional Administrator for the Philadelphia, Pennsylvania Region on August 3, 1976.

The Complaint alleges that the Respondent violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (2) of the Executive Order by virtue of its actions in failing to select employee DAvid Butler for promotion and making references to Mr. Butler's union activities in his annual job performance appraisal.

A hearing was held in the captioned matter on August 26, 1976, in Washington, D.C. All parties were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses, and to introduce evidence bearing on the issues involved herein.

Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions and recommendations.

Findings of Fact

Mr. David Butler, the alleged discriminatee herein, was hired by the Respondent as a GS-4 Voucher Examiner on August 29, 1973. Mr. Butler received a within grade increase to a GS-4, Step 2 on February 3, 1974, and was promoted to a GS-5 Voucher Examiner on April 14, 1974. Subsequently, Mr. Butler was given a within grade increase to a GS-5, Step 2 on April 13, 1975.

In accordance with a collective bargaining agreement in effect between the Union and the Agency, Mr. Butler was designated alternate steward for the Financial Documents Examining Branch, Financial Services Division, Office of Management, on January 9, 1975. Mr. Butler became the regular union steward on May 31, 1975, upon the resignation of Mary Kinzer. According to the record, the only union activity participated in by Mr. Butler as a union official occurred on January 28, 1975, when he accompained temporary employee Gloria Elmore and acting union president Alicia Columna to the Deputy Director's office to inquire about the failure of Miss Elmore to receive a certain paycheck.

On February 26, 1975, Mrs. Willie King, Supervisor, Financial Documents Examining Branch prepared a SF 52, a request for the establishment of a new position entitled GS-6 Voucher Examiner. Following approval of supervisor King's action by the Acting Executive Director, the matter was forwarded to personnel management specialist Harvey Lee for further action. Thereafter, Mr. Lee prepared a vacancy announcement with an opening date of April 7, 1975, and a closing date of May 2, 1975. Anticipating that there would not be available many qualified applicants among the Respondent's employees, 1/ Mr. Lee concurrently prepared a form SF 39, which requested the Civil Service Commission to prepare and submit a list of eligibles from other Government Agencies.

Subsequently, between May 2, 1975, the closing date of the vacancy announcement, and May 23, 1975, the names of three eligible qualified employees were forwarded to the selecting official. Two from the Respondent's installation and one from the Civil Service roster. (Although six names were included on the Civil Service Commission's certification of eligibles, five either declined or failed to respond). Mr. Butler, the alleged discriminatee herein, was one of the two employees from Respondent's installation who was certified as qualified for the announced position. Due to the small number of eligibles available for selection, a second certification was requested and subsequently received from the Civil Service Commission. A Mr. Daniel Dinnin, whose name appeared on the second certification list submitted by the Civil Service Commission, was eventually selected over Mr. Butler for the newly created position, GS-6 Voucher Examiner. The selection was made by Mrs. King. 2/

With respect to employee performance appraisals, the Collective Bargaining Agreement requires that each employee receive an annual performance appraisal. The appraisal is usually given by the employee's immediate supervisor on EEOC Form 173. Supervisor King gave Mr. Butler an appraisal for the period May 1, 1974, to April 30, 1975. In the narrative comment section of the appraisal Supervisor King wrote the following:

1/ According to the credited testimony of Mr. Lee, since most of the employees of Respondent are equal opportunity specialists it is difficult to generate interest in positions such as Voucher Examiner. It is for this reason that Respondent utilized the Civil Service Commission's resources.

2/ The record indicates that the Respondent has in the past made selections for vacancies from list of eligibles containing as few as two names.

Tardiness - Early Morning Leave. Outside influence employee sometimes involve official time and employee associations' activities.

Employee is very orderly with his work.
Employee is very thorough.
Employee has very good writing skills.

When questioned about the meaning of "employee associations' activities" in the appraisal, Mrs. King, whose testimony I credit, stated that she was referring to the continual discussions at Mr. Butler's desk concerning sports and taxes. Other employees, who had admittedly participated in such discussions, ceased such participation upon the request of their respective supervisors.

Both Mrs. King, Mr. Lee and other officials of the Respondent who were involved in either the appraisal of Mr. Butler or the selection for the GS-6 voucher examiner position denied any knowledge of Mr. Butler's union position or activities prior to June or July 1975.

The record is barren of any evidence of union animus. In this latter regard, Mrs. King further testified that it had been her practice to discuss employee problems with both Steward Kinzer and Chief Steward Hilda Davis. According to Mrs. King, Steward Kinzer usually sat in with her when she counseled an employee.

Discussion and Conclusions

Section 203.15 of the Rules and Regulations of the Assistant Secretary for Labor Management Relations imposes upon a complainant the burden of proving the allegations of the complaint by a preponderance of the evidence. The Complainant has failed in this endeavor.

All that has been shown by the Complainant is that Mr. Butler, who had been an alternate union steward, had not been selected for promotion to a newly created position for which he and a number of other people had been found qualified. In the absence of any evidence of union animus or union activity on Mr. Butler's part calculated to meet with disfavor by responsible supervisory representatives of the Respondent insufficient basis exists for a 19(a)(2) finding. This is particularly true where, as here, there is no probative evidence indicating that the supervisory personnel involved in the selection for the newly created position were even aware of Mr. Butler's union position as alternate steward prior to the filing of the charges underlying the instant complaint. Accordingly, and since I credit Mrs. King's denial that the reference to "Associations' activities" in Mr. Butler's annual appraisal was in any way related to union activities, I shall recommend that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

Recommendation

It is hereby recommended to the Assistant Secretary that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNIT
OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION, AND WELFARE, U.S. OFFICE OF EDUCATION, HEADQUARTERS
A/SLMR No. 803

This case involved a petition for clarification of unit (CU) filed jointly by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2607, AFL-CIO (AFGE) and the Activity seeking to clarify the status of the employees of the Activity's Equal Employment Opportunity Office. The Activity took the position that the employees in the EEO Office classified as EEO Specialist and EEO Assistant should be excluded from the unit because they are engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity and that the two clerical employees be excluded from the unit because they are confidential employees by virtue of their typing of and access to confidential EEO matters. The AFGE contended, on the other hand, that all of the employees in question should be included in its exclusively recognized unit.

The Assistant Secretary found, in agreement with the Activity, that the employees classified as EEO Specialist and EEO Assistant should be excluded from the exclusively recognized unit. Thus, he noted that the employees in these classifications have unrestricted access to the Activity's personnel and other confidential files; they assist the Activity's managers in the formulation of the affirmative action plan; they regularly monitor the Activity's personnel actions; and they are involved in training concerning EEO. With respect to the two clerical employees alleged to be confidential, the Assistant Secretary noted that mere access to and typing of confidential material does not warrant excluding an employee from an exclusively recognized unit. However, the Assistant Secretary found that the senior clerical employee should be excluded from the exclusively recognized unit as a confidential employee based on her duties as the personal secretary to the EEO Officer who is responsible for the formulation of agency labor relations policy with respect to EEO matters.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the unit be clarified consistent with his findings.

DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNIT

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer Bridget Sisson. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in this case, including a brief filed by the Activity, the Assistant Secretary finds:

The Activity and the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2607, AFL-CIO, herein called AFGE, seek to clarify the status of the employees of the Equal Opportunity Office of the Headquarters, U.S. Office of Education, Department of Health, Education and Welfare through the subject jointly filed petition. The Activity takes the position that the three Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) Specialists and the EEO Assistant employed in the EEO Office are engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity and, therefore, should be excluded from the exclusively recognized unit. It also contends that the two clerical employees of the EEO Office should be excluded from the unit as they are confidential employees. The AFGE contends, on the other hand, that there is no basis for excluding the employees in question from its exclusively recognized unit.

The record reflects that the AFGE was certified as the exclusive representative for all General Schedule employees of the Office of Education, Headquarters, on August 24, 1970. 1/ The Activity, which is one division of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, is headed by a Commissioner. Under the Commissioner, and responsible to him, are several staff offices, among which is the EEO Office where the employees in question are located. The Director of the EEO Office is responsible for administering the Activity's total EEO Program which is mandated by Executive Order 11478 and the provisions of the Federal Personnel Manual (FPM), Chapter 713. In this regard, the EEO Office oversees the EEO complaint procedure, coordinates and finalizes the Activity's affirmative action plan, monitors the Activity's personnel program, generally with respect to EEO, and provides technical assistance and training to the Activity's employees and management with respect to EEO matters.

As one of its specific functions related to allegations of discrimination, the EEO Office appoints, trains and supervises EEO Counselors, which employees serve part-time as the initial point of contact for EEO allegations and attempt to resolve such charges informally. The EEO Office also appoints and gives assistance to employees who serve part-time as EEO Investigators after a formal complaint alleging discrimination has been filed. 2/ In this regard, at least 30 percent of the investigations are conducted by the EEO Specialists as there is a shortage of EEO Investigators. The EEO Investigators have complete access to the Activity's confidential personnel files and other related confidential records of the Activity in connection with the investigations, and they are responsible for developing a formal investigative file in which there is restricted employee access, but from which much of the confidential information has been sanitized. Based on this investigative file, copies of which are provided to the complainant and his representative, the EEO Officer, with the participation of the EEO Specialists and the EEO Assistant, formulates his recommendations to the Commissioner regarding disposition of the complaint. The record reflects that such recommendations are generally accepted, including recommended discipline of managers who were found to have been engaged in discrimination. While the clerical employees in the EEO Office type, and have access to, both the investigative files and the recommendations made, they do not participate in the decision making process.

In its function of coordinating the Activity's affirmative action plan, the EEO Office assists lower level organizational components in developing their plans and checks such plans upon their submission for procedural and regulatory correctness. Thereafter, the EEO Office compiles the plans and makes the overall recommendations of affirmative action to the Commissioner, which recommendations historically have been accepted. In this regard, the EEO Office is the only Activity function that has access to EEO employment statistics in connection with the development of the affirmative action plan.

1/ The certified unit is described as all General Schedule and professional employees in the Office of Education, Washington, D.C., excluding supervisors, managerial officials, temporary employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, Wage Board employees and guards.

2/ Such complaints may be filed by third-parties such as labor organizations, as well as by employees under the FPM Regulations.

As noted above, the EEO Office also monitors personnel matters generally as well as other Activity actions with respect to EEO. In this connection, the EEO Office receives copies of all promotion actions and plans to receive copies of all personnel actions in the future for monitoring purposes. In addition, all proposed changes in regulations are reviewed by the EEO Office, and the record reflects that it has recommended changes in proposals which have been implemented. Moreover, the EEO Office will occasionally initiate an EEO complaint action based on evidence of discrimination that has been adduced in connection with its general monitoring of personnel.

With respect to training, the record reflects that the EEO Office periodically holds training sessions for new supervisors. Additionally, it participates in the orientation of new employees and it assists in the hiring of minorities by maintaining a minority application file, by making appearances at various minority institutions and by assuring that the areas of consideration for the filling of vacancies are broad enough so as not to discourage minority application. The EEO Office also assists the Activity's Training Office in connection with the upward mobility portion of the affirmative action plan.

The record reflects that all three of the EEO Specialists involved herein spend at least a portion of their time involved in each of the functional areas of EEO. Moreover, the EEO Assistant is being trained in each of the functional areas of EEO and is being given increased responsibility as she progresses in her training. The foregoing responsibilities require that all four of these employees have broad access to the Activity's confidential personnel information and that they be involved in monitoring personnel actions.

With regard to the two clerical employees, the record reveals that they have no access to the Activity's confidential personnel files and they have no responsibility with respect to the Activity's affirmative action plan or its personnel policies and procedures. Both employees spend the majority of their time typing investigative files which are restricted as to access and which contain sanitized documents involving confidential information with respect to employees other than the complainant involved. The record further discloses that the senior clerical (GS-7) also serves as the personal secretary to the EEO Officer. In this connection, she is responsible for typing all memoranda between the EEO Officer and the Labor Relations Officer regarding the EEO Officer's recommendations as to the negotiated agreement and labor relations policies in general. In addition, she types all performance appraisals and keeps the EEO Officer's personal files, which include records of internal grievances, minor discipline concerning members of the EEO staff, and copies of the EEO staff's performance appraisals. Finally, unlike the other clerical, who is a GS-5, she is responsible as the EEO Officer's personal secretary for typing all final recommendations regarding EEO complaints and the affirmative action plan submitted to the Commissioner.

Based on the foregoing circumstances, I find that the EEO Specialists and the EEO Assistant are engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity. Thus, as noted above, the employees in these classifications have unrestricted access to the Activity's confidential personnel files and to other confidential information that may be related to EEO matters. Moreover, they assist the Activity's managers in the formulation of the Activity's affirmative action plan, which affects all of the Activity's employees, and they are responsible for monitoring the Activity's day-to-day personnel actions with respect to EEO. They also regularly participate in the training of the Activity's supervisors, in the orientation of new employees, and in assisting the Activity's Training Officer with respect to the upward mobility portion of the affirmative action plan. Under these circumstances, I shall exclude these employees from the exclusively recognized unit. 3/

With respect to the two clerical employees in the EEO Office, it has been found previously that mere access to, and typing of, investigative files does not warrant the exclusion of an employee from an exclusively recognized unit. 4/ However, with regard to the senior clerical employee in the EEO Office, I find that this employee should be excluded from the unit as a confidential employee based upon her duties as personal secretary to the EEO Officer. Thus, as noted above, the record shows that she serves in a confidential capacity to the EEO Officer, who is responsible for the formulation of agency labor relations policy with respect to EEO matters, and who also is responsible for internal labor relations matters within the EEO Office itself. 5/ Under these circumstances, I shall exclude the clerical employee serving as the EEO Officer's personal secretary from the exclusively recognized unit. However, I shall not exclude the other clerical employee from the exclusively recognized unit as the record does not support a finding that she is a confidential employee. Thus, noting that she merely has access to certain investigative files, I find that she does not act in a confidential capacity to an official engaged in the formulation or effectuation of management policies in the field of labor relations.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION,
GREAT LAKES PROGRAM CENTER,
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

This case arose as a result of an unfair labor practice complaint filed by Local 1395, American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO (Complainant) alleging essentially that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1), (2) and (6) when it did not inform a probationary employee of her right to representation at interviews regarding her conduct, by discriminating against such employee, and by denying the Complainant a right to be represented at interviews between the employee and her supervisor. The complaint also alleged that the Respondent violated the negotiated agreement between the parties.

The Administrative Law Judge recommended dismissal of the complaint on the basis that the record in the instant case showed no evidence of discrimination and that Section 10(e) of the Order had no application to the informal discussions between the above-mentioned employee and her supervisor. With respect to the alleged breach of the parties' negotiated agreement, he concluded that the interviews herein were simply discussions between an employee and her supervisor concerning day-to-day functions and, therefore, were not covered by the negotiated agreement. But even if said discussions were governed by the agreement, the Respondent's contrary view and conduct would amount only to a simple breach of contract not rising to the level of an unfair labor practice.

The Assistant Secretary deferred his decision in the subject case pending the Federal Labor Relations Council's Statement On Major Policy Issue concerning the representational rights of employees under the Order. The Council's statement was issued on December 2, 1976.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations, noting also that the parties' disagreed as to whether the agreement is applicable to the probationary employee and that the proper forum for such disagreement is within the grievance machinery of the parties' negotiated agreement, rather than through the unfair labor practice procedures. Consistent with the major policy statement by the Council, he ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

On March 12, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Milton Kramer issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had not engaged in the unfair labor practices alleged in the complaint and recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. Thereafter, the Complainant filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

On June 30, 1976, the Assistant Secretary informed the Complainant and the Respondent that it would effectuate the purposes and policies of the Order to defer his decision in the subject case pending the Federal Labor Relations Council's resolution of a major policy issue which has general application to the Federal Labor-Management Relations program:

> Does an employee in a unit of exclusive recognition have a protected right under the Order to assistance (possibly including personal representation) by the exclusive representative when he is summoned to a meeting or interview with agency management, and, if so, under what circumstances may such a right be exercised?

On December 2, 1976, the Council issued its Statement On Major Policy Issue, FLRC No. 75P-2, Report No. 116, finding, in pertinent part, that:

> 1. An employee in a unit of exclusive recognition has a protected right under the last sentence of Section 10(e) of the Order to the assistance or representation by the exclusive representative, upon the request of the employee, when he is summoned to a formal discussion with management concerning grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions of employees in the unit; and
> 2. An employee in a unit of exclusive recognition does not have a protected right under the Order to assistance or representation at a nonformal investigation meeting or interview to which he is summoned by management; but such right may be established through negotiations conducted by the exclusive representative and the agency in accordance with Section 11(a) of the Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, including the Complainant's exceptions and supporting brief, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations as modified herein.

The amended complaint alleged essentially that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (2) of the Order when it did not inform a probationary employee of her right to representation at interviews regarding her conduct and by discriminating against such employee. At the hearing in this matter, the Complainant amended its complaint to allege that the Respondent also violated Section 19(a)(6) of the Order by denying the Complainant the right to be represented at formal discussions, within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order, between the Respondent and the employee herein, and that such conduct also violated Article 27, Section b of the parties' negotiated agreement.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded, and I concur, that the record in this case shows no evidence of discrimination and that Section 10(e) of the Order has no application to the informal discussion between the subject employee and her supervisor. With respect to the alleged breach of the negotiated agreement, he further concluded, and I agree, that the interviews herein regarding the aforementioned employee's conduct appear to have been simply discussions between an employee and her supervisor in the course of day-to-day operations of the unit, not covered by Article 27, Section b of the negotiated agreement and that even if they were governed by such Article, the Respondent's contrary view and conduct would constitute a simple breach of the agreement not rising to the level of a flagrant and deliberate breach constituting a unilateral modification of the negotiated agreement. Moreover, the record also demonstrates that the Complainant and the Respondent disagreed whether Article 27, Section b of the agreement is applicable to a probationary employee. In my view, the proper forum for resolving this issue lies within the grievance machinery of the parties' negotiated agreement, rather than through the unfair labor practice procedures. 1/

Accordingly, and for the reasons set forth by the Council in FLRC No. 75P-2, I agree that the Respondent was not obligated to afford the employee herein union representation or to afford the Complainant the opportunity to be represented at the nonformal meetings herein, and, therefore, its conduct in this regard was not violative of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the complaint in Case No. 50-13023(CA) be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This case arises under Executive Order 11491 as amended. It was initiated by a complaint dated March 31, 1975 and filed April 1, 1975 alleging violations of Sections 19(a)(1), (2), and (6) of the Executive Order. The complaint was superseded by an amended complaint dated and filed April 16, 1975. The amended complaint alleged additional facts and alleged that they constituted violations of Sections 19(a)(1) and (2) of the Executive Order. The Respondent filed a Motion to Dismiss dated April 23, 1975; the Complainant filed an Opposition to the Motion to Dismiss dated April 30, 1975; and the Respondent filed a Response to the Opposition dated May 14, 1975. On July 21, 1975, the Regional Administrator issued a Notice of Hearing on the Amended Complaint that alleged violations of Sections 19(a)(1) and (2). The Notice specified that the hearing would be held on October 22, 1975, in Chicago, Illinois.

The Complainant filed with the Regional Administrator a motion dated October 8, 1975 to amend the Amended Complaint and the Notice of Hearing to add violations of 19(a)(6). On October 16, 1975, the Regional Administrator referred the Motion to Amend to the Administrative Law Judge.

The hearing was held as scheduled on October 22, 1975. Both parties were represented by counsel. At the beginning of the hearing the Motion to Amend was granted. At the end of the hearing the time for filing briefs was extended to November 25, 1975. The time for filing briefs was thereafter further extended for good cause to December 12, 1975. Both parties filed timely briefs.

Facts

The National Office of the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO (National Council of Social Security Payment Center Locals) is and at all relevant times has been the exclusive representative of a unit consisting of non-supervisory employees in the Social Security Administration Program Centers. The individual locals at the Program Centers act for the Council at their respective Program Centers. Local 1395, AFGE is the local at the Great Lakes Program Center. Miss Joan M. Jeter was a member of the unit employed at that Program Center.

The National Council of Social Security Payment Center Locals of A.F.G.E. and the Bureau of Retirement and Survivors Insurance of the Social Security Administration (which includes the Payment Centers), have had collective agreements for some time. The current agreement, applicable at all relevant times, became effective March 15, 1974. Article 27, Section b of that agreement provides:

> Whenever the conduct of an employee requires that an interview be conducted which may lead to an official reprimand or more serious action, the supervisor shall inform the employee of his or her right to have a representative present.

Joan M. Jeter was employed as a control clerk by the Respondent in a unit of the Post Entitlement Section of a branch of the Respondent. She was employed on August 5, 1974 as a probationary employee. There was one control clerk in each unit of a Section. From the inception of her employment there were problems about her use or abuse of leave.

After two other supervisors of Jeter's unit, Patricia Ann Spade became her supervisor on December 23, 1974. Prior to January 15, 1975, while Miss Jeter was under the immediate supervision of others than Mrs. Spade, Jeter had had counselling and other meetings concerning her leave. After Spade became Jeter's supervisor, and also before January 15, 1974, Karen Robinson, a union steward, told Spade that any time Spade and Jeter had a meeting, Jeter would be entitled to union representation.

On January 13, 1975, Spade told Jeter to file a particular case. Jeter said she did not want to do so, and Spade told her to do it anyway, and Jeter did. Later that day Jeter went to Spade's desk and told Spade that the reason she had said that she did not want to file the case was because she was going to do so anyway and resented being told to do something she was going to do anyway.

Jeter was on leave on January 14. On January 15, when Jeter returned to work, Spade called her to Spade's desk to sign for her January 14 leave and reminded her of the January 13 incident, told Jeter she would not tolerate insubordination, and that if Jeter should be insubordinate again Spade would recommend disciplinary action. At no time at or prior to the January 15 discussion did Spade anticipate disciplinary action because of the January 13, 1975 incident.

On January 16, 1975 another Spade-Jeter incident arose, this time with more serious results. Joseph A. Jazwinski ("Joe"), the Chief of the Post Entitlement Section, had told the control clerks of the several units in the Section to do certain work at a location in his Section. Later Spade saw Jeter there and told her to perform some other task. Jeter replied that she could not because "Joe" had told her to do what she was doing. Spade told Jeter that Spade had spoken to Joe and he had said it would be appropriate for Jeter to perform the other task. Jeter said she would not stop doing what Joe had told her to do and do what Spade asked unless Joe told her to do so. Spade told Jeter that she was Jeter's immediate supervisor and Jeter should do what Spade told her to do. Spade then went to Joe, told him what had happened, and he said that since Spade was Jeter's immediate supervisor she had authority to direct Jeter's work. Spade went back to Jeter and told her that Joe had again said Jeter should do what her immediate supervisor directed. Jeter said she would not change what she was doing unless Joe told her to do so. Spade asked whether Jeter was refusing to comply with her direct order, and Jeter replied in the affirmative. Jeter then went to Jazwinski, told him what had happened, and Jazwinski told her to comply with the directions of her immediate supervisor. Jeter ultimately did comply with Spade's direction.

The next day Jazwinski was absent. Spade discussed the incident of January 16 with the Branch Chief, the next level above Jazwinski, and stated that she thought some kind of discipline should be imposed on Jeter. The Branch Chief agreed and suggested that in view of the incidents described above and Jeter's leave record Spade should recommend Jeter's dismissal. Spade did so recommend, and on January 24, 1975 Jeter was advised by the Regional Representative of the Respondent that her employment was terminated effective February 7, 1975, and Jeter's employment was so terminated. There were some subsequent developments irrelevant to this case.

Article 27, Section f of the Master Agreement provides that termination of a probationary employee is not an "adverse action" but that the Program Center would to the extent feasible give such an employee two weeks notice of such action.

Spade did not, at her discussions with Jeter on January 15 and January 16, 1975 narrated above, advise Jeter that she had a right to have a union representative present. Had she done so, Jeter would have requested the presence of a union representative.

Contentions of the Parties

The Complainant contends that the discussions on January 15 and 16, 1975 were each "an interview" which might have led to "an official reprimand or more serious action" and that the Respondent was under contractual obligation and obligation imposed by the Executive Order to advise Jeter of her right to have a union representative. It contends that the failure to do so discriminated against Jeter in violation of Section 19(a)(2) of the Executive Order although it concedes that Jeter was not discriminated against because of her union affiliation or activities. It urges that not only was Spade's failure to notify Jeter of her right to union representation a violation of the contractual provision but so flagrant a breach and deliberate departure from the contract as to constitute a unilateral change in the agreement in violation of Section 19(a)(6) of the Order. And it contends that all this interfered with Jeter's exercise of her rights under the Executive Order in violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

The Respondent contends that Article 27, Section b of the Agreement does not have blanket application to probationary employees but as to them is limited by other provisions of the Agreement and by federal regulations. It argues also that the discussions of January 15 and 16, 1975 were not the kind of discussions or interviews contemplated by Article 27, Section b of the Agreement or by Section 10(e) of the Executive Order.

Discussion and Conclusions

The contention that this case presents a violation of Section 19(a)(2) must be rejected.

It is conceded that the alleged discrimination here, if there was one, was not predicated on or motivated by union affiliation or union activity or anti-union animus. In Norfolk Naval Shipyard, Case No. 22-5283(CA) and in Norfolk

Naval Shipyard, Case No. 22-5518(CA) I concluded that for discrimination to fall within the proscription of Section 19(a)(2) of the Executive Order there must be some nexus between the alleged discrimination and union conduct or affiliation or activity of relevant animus. The Complainant urges that those decisions are unsound and should be reconsidered. But the latter of those cases has been affirmed by the Assistant Secretary (A/SLMR No. 548) and the former is pending before the Assistant Secretary in limbo pending resolution of other issues in that case by the Federal Labor Relations Council. 1/ In these circumstances I am bound by the decision in A/SLMR No. 548 and a request for reconsideration of its rationale is not properly addressed to me.

But more fundamentally, the record in this case shows no discrimination. There is no evidence of record, but only assertions of counsel, that Miss Jeter was treated any differently than other employees in similar circumstances.

The discussions between Jeter and Spade on January 15 and 16, 1975 appear to have been simply discussions between an employee and her supervisor in the course of day-to-day operations of the functions of the unit, not covered by Article 27, Section b of the Master Agreement. But even if they were governed by that provision of the Agreement, the Respondent's contrary view and conduct would consitute a simple breach of contract not rising to the level of a flagrant and deliberate breach constituting a unilateral modification of the Agreement. Cf. General Services Administration, Region 5, Public Building Service, A/SLMR No. 528, ALJ Decision p. 7.

The Complainant's reliance on National Labor Relations Board v. J.Weingarten, Inc., 95 S.Ct. 959, 43 L. Ed. 2d 171 and International Ladies' Garment Workers Union v. Quality Manufacturing Company, 95 S.Ct. 972, 43 L. Ed. 2d 189 is misplaced for a variety of reasons. First, decisions under the National Labor Relations Act are not binding precedent in cases under the Executive Order. Second, that case was predicated on Section 7 of the National Labor Relations Act; there is no counterpart of that provision in the Executive Order. And third, in those cases the Supreme Court did not hold that the National Labor Relations Board's interpretation and application of that Section involved in those cases was the required interpretation and application but held only that it was a permissible interpretation as had been its contrary interpretation over a period of thirty years. 2/

Finally, the last sentence of Section 10(e) of the Executive Order has no application here. The conversations between Jeter and Spade on January 15 and 16, 1975 were not "formal discussions between management and employees" within the meaning of that section; as observed above they were merely conversations (although probably not ordinary) between an employee and her supervisor in the course of performing the day-to-day operations of their unit. Nor did they concern "grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions." 3/

It may be that Spade's reactions were officious, that Jeter acted with sincerity, and that the termination of her employment was a rather severe result of her derelictions. I make no findings and reach no conclusions concerning such matters. They are beyond the purview of Executive Order 11491 as amended. That Order is not a panacea for the world's inequities.

RECOMMENDATION

The complaint should be dismissed.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY, NORFOLK NAVAL SHIPYARD
A/SLMR No. 805

These cases involve unfair labor practice complaints filed by the International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, AFL-CIO, and the Tidewater Virginia Federal Employees Metal Trades Council (Complainants) alleging that the Department of the Navy, Norfolk Naval Shipyard (Respondent) violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by unilaterally establishing a policy of using radar to enforce the speed limits within the Norfolk Naval Shipyard. The cases were transferred to the Assistant Secretary pursuant to Section 206.5(a) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations after the parties had submitted a stipulation of facts and exhibits to the Regional Administrator for Labor-Management Services.

The Respondent took the position that it was not obligated to meet and confer with the Complainants because the new policy did not change an existing condition of employment and that, even assuming there was a change in employment conditions, prior consultation was not necessary because the establishment of the policy involved was a management right under Sections 11(b) and 12(b) of the Order and there was no request for bargaining concerning impact and implementation.

The Assistant Secretary found that the Respondent's conduct was not violative of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. In this regard, he noted that the subject policy did not affect or change employee terms and conditions of employment and that the evidence showed that the Respondent's action did not change the existing traffic regulations at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard. Accordingly, he ordered that the complaints be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

This matter is before the Assistant Secretary pursuant to Regional Administrator Kenneth L. Evans' Order Transferring Case to the Assistant Secretary of Labor, dated October 8, 1976, in accordance with Section 206.5(a) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations.

Upon consideration of the entire record in the subject cases, including the parties' stipulation of facts, accompanying exhibits and briefs, the Assistant Secretary finds:

The complaints herein allege that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, by establishing a policy of using radar to enforce the speed limits within the Norfolk Naval Shipyard without meeting and conferring with the Complainants.

The Respondent contends that it was not obligated to meet and confer with the Complainants because the new policy did not change an existing condition of employment. It further contends that prior consultation was not necessary even assuming that there was a change in employment conditions because the establishment of the policy involved was a management right under Sections 11(b) and 12(b) of the Order.

Moreover, it asserts that the Complainants did not request bargaining on the impact and implementation of the matter. The Complainants, on the other hand, maintain that the Respondent was required to meet and confer concerning the establishment of the new policy in accordance with Section 11(a) of the Order. Further, if the new policy involved was viewed as a management right under the Order, the Respondent was nevertheless obligated to meet and confer concerning the impact and implementation of such policy.

The facts, as stipulated by the parties, are essentially as follows:

The International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, AFL-CIO, and the Tidewater Virginia Federal Employee Metal Trades Council are the exclusive representatives of certain employees of the Respondent. On December 1, 1971, the Respondent published NAVSHIPYDNOR INSTRUCTION 5560.1B (Instruction 5560.1B) which contained the regulations and procedures controlling pedestrian and motor vehicle traffic within the Norfolk Naval Shipyard and the penalties which may be assessed for violations thereof. On December 8, 1975, without consulting with the Complainants, the Respondent published a notice, NAVSHIPYDNOR NOTICE 5560, effective on the date issued, informing all motor vehicle operators within the Norfolk Naval Shipyard that radar would be used on a random basis by the Police Protection Branch to enforce posted speed limits. No provision of Instruction 5560.1B relating to speed limits of the penalties for violation thereof was changed in any way by virtue of the December 8, 1975, notice.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

As noted above, the Respondent contends that it was not required to meet and confer with the Complainants concerning the establishment of the new policy because such policy did not change an existing condition of employment. The Respondent contends further that the establishment of the policy involved is a reserved management right under the Order and is not subject to bargaining and that there was no request to bargain on the impact and implementation of such policy.

It is undisputed that the Respondent's decision to use radar to enforce the speed limits in the Norfolk Naval Shipyard did not affect or change employee terms and conditions of employment. Thus, the evidence establishes that the Respondent's action did not change Instruction 5560.1B. Nor did it, in any way, change the traffic regulations of the Norfolk Naval Shipyard, including the posted speed limits and the penalties assessed for violation of the speed limits. Under these circumstances, I find that the Respondent was not required to meet and confer with the Complainant concerning the new method of enforcing the existing policy, and that its failure to do so did not constitute a violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. Accordingly, I shall dismiss the subject complaints.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the complaints in Case Nos. 22-6637(CA) and 22-6690(CA) be, and they hereby are, dismissed.

Dated, Washington, D.C.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE,
OGDEN SERVICE CENTER, AND INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE, et. al.
A/SLMR No. 806

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the National Treasury Employees Union, et. al. (Complainants) alleging that the Respondents violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by virtue of their unilateral elimination of certain portions of the Multi-Center Agreement (MCA) upon its expiration and, after such elimination, by attempting to deal directly with unit employees through a memorandum sent to all unit employees from the Internal Revenue Service Commissioner concerning the expiration of the agreement. In this regard, the Respondents viewed those portions of the MCA eliminated after its expiration to be "institutional benefits" which terminated upon the MCA's expiration, while the Complainants asserted that such benefits, once negotiated, became personnel policies and practices which survive the expiration of the agreement, and any unilateral changes were, therefore, violative of the Order. With respect to the Commissioner's memorandum, the Respondents, noting the standard enunciated by the Federal Labor Relations Council in Naval Air Station, Fallon, Nevada, FLRC No. 74A-80 (1975), contended that the Commissioner was obligated to inform employees of the status of the agreement; that the memorandum was purely factual in nature; and that the memorandum must be read in context of an earlier letter written to the same unit employees by the President of the National Treasury Employees Union. Moreover, the Respondent asserted that because of a grievance filed at the Detroit Service Center over the memorandum, the Assistant Secretary, under Section 19(d) of the Order, has no jurisdiction. The Complainants contended, on the other hand, that the memorandum constituted an attempt to deal directly with unit employees, thereby subverting the exclusive representative in violation of the Order. Additionally, the Complainants alleged that Section 19(d) should not bar consideration of the unfair labor practice complaint as the grievance in question was filed at only one Service Center under the MCA, and as the issues of the grievance, in Complainant's view, were not the same as the issues of the complaint.

The Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge concluded that the aspect of the complaint alleging improper unilateral termination of certain "institutional benefits" contained in the MCA be dismissed. Thus, he agreed with the Respondents that only those references to the union were eliminated and, therefore, no personnel policies and practices were altered by the Respondents' actions. With respect to the allegations concerning an alleged improper attempt by Respondents to deal directly with unit employees, the Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge recommended finding a violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) as, in his view, the Commissioner's memorandum improperly undermined the National Treasury Employees Union. In this connection, he dismissed Respondent's argument that under Section 19(d) the Assistant Secretary had no jurisdiction in this aspect of the complaint, noting that the grievance was filed at only one Service Center covered under the MCA.

Contrary to the Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge, the Assistant Secretary concluded that a violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) should be found with respect to the first aspect of the complaint concerning the alleged improper unilateral termination of certain portions of the MCA, and that the aspect of the complaint concerning Respondents' alleged improper attempt to deal directly with unit employees should be dismissed based on Section 19(d) of the Order. Thus, with respect to the first aspect of the complaint, the Assistant Secretary concluded that only those rights and privileges which are based solely on the existence of a written agreement -- e.g., checkoff privileges -- in effect terminated with the expiration of a written agreement, while all other rights and privileges continue in effect until such time as they are modified or eliminated pursuant to negotiations or are changed after a good faith bargaining impasse has been reached. With respect to the second aspect of the complaint, noted above, the Assistant Secretary found that both the complaint and the issue raised by the grievance filed at the Detroit Service Center concerned the language of the Commissioner's memorandum, and both sought withdrawal of such memorandum. In this regard, the Assistant Secretary concluded that while technically the grievance was filed at only one Service Center under the MCA, any resolution of the grievance would have been applicable to all of the Service Centers under the MCA.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the Respondents take certain affirmative actions with respect to the violations of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) and that the complaint, insofar as it alleges additional violations of the Order, be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

On September 3, 1976, Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge Francis E. Dowd issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom and take certain affirmative actions as set forth in the attached Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. The Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge further found other allegations of the complaint not to be violative of the Order, and recommended that they be dismissed. Thereafter, both the Respondent and the Complainant filed exceptions and supporting briefs with respect to the Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, including the exceptions and supporting briefs filed by the Respondent and the Complainant, I hereby adopt the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge, to the extent consistent herewith. 1/

The Complainant alleged, as one aspect of its complaint, that the Respondent Internal Revenue Service, hereinafter called IRS, and the various IRS Service Centers that are parties to the Multi-Center Agreement (MCA) with the National Treasury Employees Union, hereinafter called NTEU, and its local chapters holding exclusive recognition with such Service Centers, violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, by virtue of their elimination of certain portions of the MCA upon its expiration. In this regard, the Respondent contends that it eliminated only those portions of the MCA which were "institutional benefits," that is those benefits which, in the Respondent's view, pertained to the exclusive representative's rights as an organization and, therefore, terminated with the agreement's expiration. The NTEU, on the other hand, asserts that such rights, once negotiated, became personnel policies and practices and other matters affecting working conditions and, therefore, any unilateral changes with respect to such matters were violative of the Order. 2/ In another related aspect of the unfair labor practice complaint, the NTEU charged that a memorandum dated May 29, 1975, from the Commissioner of the IRS to all employees of the Service Centers included under the MCA, in effect, constituted an improper attempt to deal directly with unit employees and, thereby, subvert the NTEU in violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. The Respondent contends, on the other hand, that all direct communications with unit employees regarding the bargaining relationship of the parties are not violative of the Order under the standard enunciated by the Federal Labor Relations Council in Naval Air Station, Fallon, Nevada, FLRC No. 74A-80 (1975), and that: (1) the IRS

1/ In its exceptions, the Respondent noted several inadvertent errors by the Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge in his Recommended Decision and Order. The name of Respondent's Counsel was inadvertently indicated as "William Myers" rather than "Merle Meyers." On page 4, line 1, "charges" was shown as "changes," and on the same page, line 25, the sections of the Order alleged to have been violated should have been "19(a)(1) and (6)" rather than "19(b)(1) and (6)." On page 5, A/SLMR No. "448" was inadvertently cited as "440." On page 6, line 13, "On" was shown as "In" and, on the same page, lines 19-20, the words "or negotiate directly with unit employees or to threaten" were repeated unnecessarily. Finally, on page 6, A/SLMR No. "395" was cited as "385." Noting the absence of any objections by the Complainant, these inadvertencies are hereby corrected.

2/ The NTEU also complained that a subsequent refusal by the Respondent to bargain over such matters constituted an independent violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. However, I find that, under the circumstances herein, any such refusal is inseparable from the initial alleged unilateral changes in working conditions.

Commissioner was fulfilling his obligation to inform employees of the status of the agreement; (2) the memorandum was purely factual in nature; and (3) the memorandum must be read in the context of an earlier letter written to the same unit employees by the President of the NTEU. The Respondent also claims that under Section 19(d) of the Order the Assistant Secretary has no jurisdiction in this matter as a grievance was filed under the MCA covering the same issues as are involved in the instant complaint at the Detroit Service Center.

The Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge recommended that the aspect of the complaint alleging improper unilateral termination of certain "institutional benefits" contained in the MCA be dismissed. Thus, he found that, "...a unilateral change of terms and conditions of employment which are mandatory subjects of bargaining would be in violation of the Respondent's duty to bargain in good faith." However, it was his view that "...personnel policies and practices were not eliminated or changed, but that only the reference to the Union in the agreement was eliminated." Therefore, he found insufficient evidence to establish that there was, in fact, a unilateral change in terms and conditions of employment in derogation of the duty to bargain in good faith. With respect to the aspect of the unfair labor practice complaint concerning an alleged improper attempt by the Respondent to deal directly with unit employees, the Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge recommended that a violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order be found. In this regard, he concluded that the dissemination of the IRS Commissioner's memorandum improperly undermined the NTEU as it created the impression that the NTEU was bargaining in bad faith; it directly encouraged bargaining unit employees to sympathize with the Respondent's negotiation position; its basic thrust depicted the NTEU as being unreasonable in negotiations; and it created the impression that unit employees should look to the Respondent alone for benefits.

With respect to the Section 19(d) issue raised by the Respondent, the Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge, noting the Assistant Secretary's finding in Internal Revenue Service, Southeast Service Center, Chamblee, Georgia, A/SLMR No. 488, that Section 19(d) does not apply where the issue of the grievance differs from that raised in the unfair labor practice, found that, "Since the memorandum is only one aspect of the instant case, it is my view that jurisdiction in the matter would be retained by the Assistant Secretary." He also agreed with the NTEU's position that a single grievance filed at the Detroit Service Center would not bar consideration of the unfair labor practice complaint with respect to the other Service Centers under the MCA.

The essential facts of the case, which are not in dispute, are set forth in detail, in the Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and I shall repeat them only to the extent necessary.

With respect to the first aspect of the unfair labor practice complaint noted above, I find, contrary to the Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge, that the unilateral elimination of those agreement provisions characterized by the Respondent as "institutional benefits" accruing to the union qua union was violative of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. Thus, in my view, only those rights and privileges which are based solely on the existence of a written agreement -- e.g., checkoff privileges -- in effect, terminated with the expiration of a negotiated agreement. 3/ On the other hand, other rights and privileges accorded to exclusive representatives continue in effect until such time as they are modified or eliminated pursuant to negotiations or changed after a good faith bargaining impasse has been reached. 4/ Under these circumstances, I find that the Respondent Service Centers' unilateral elimination of other agreement provisions related to the NTEU's rights, such as posting privileges, etc., 5/ constituted an improper unilateral change in personnel policies and practices in violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. 6/

With respect to the second aspect of the unfair labor practice complaint, noted above, I find, contrary to the Associate Chief Administrative Law Judge, that as a grievance was filed under the MCA at the Detroit Service Center over the same issue, I am precluded by Section 19(d) of the Order from consideration of this aspect of the unfair labor practice complaint. 7/ Thus, the issue raised by the grievance clearly was the same as that raised by the instant unfair labor practice complaint, i.e., the alleged improper effect on the NTEU resulting from the distribution of the May 29, 1975,memorandum from the Commissioner of the IRS to unit employees. In this regard, it was noted that both the grievance and the unfair labor practice complaint sought the withdrawal of the memorandum as a remedy. Moreover, although technically the grievance was filed only at one Service Center under the MCA, any resolution of that grievance would have been applicable to all of the Service Centers under the MCA, especially given the remedy sought by the grievant. Accordingly, as this issue in the unfair labor practice complaint has been raised previously under a negotiated grievance procedure, I shall order that this aspect of the unfair labor practice complaint be dismissed.

4/ In this latter regard, see U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Philadelphia District, A/SLMR No. 673.

5/ Cf. Internal Revenue Service, Office of the Regional Commissioner Western Region, A/SLMR No. 473, and Los Angeles Air Route Traffic Control Center, Federal Aviation Administration, A/SLMR No. 283.

6/ The parties to the MCA agreed to extend their dues withholding agreement by a special agreement. It appears that other "institutional benefits" contained in the negotiated agreement were, in fact, terminated by the Respondent.

7/ Based on this determination, I find it unnecessary to rule on the merits of this aspect of the unfair labor practice complaint.

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the Internal Revenue Service, Ogden Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Fresno Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Austin Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Kansas City Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Cincinnati Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Atlanta Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Memphis Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Brookhaven Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Philadelphia Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Data Center; and Internal Revenue Service, National Computer Center, shall: 8/

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Making unilateral changes in personnel policies and practices after the expiration of a negotiated agreement containing such personnel policies and practices in the absence of a bargaining impasse.

(b) In any like or related manner interfering with, restraining, or coercing employees in the exercise of their rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purposes and policies of Executive Order 11491, as amended.

(a) Post at the facilities of the Internal Revenue Service, Ogden Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Fresno Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Austin Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Kansas City Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Cincinnati Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Atlanta Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Memphis Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Brookhaven Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Philadelphia Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Data Center; and Internal Revenue Service, National Computer Center copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms, they shall be signed by the Directors of the above-noted activities and shall be posted and maintained by them for 60 consecutive days thereafter, in conspicuous places, including all bulletin boards where notices to employees are customarily posted. The Director of each of the above-noted activities shall take reasonable steps to insure that such notices are not altered, defaced,or covered by any other material. 9/

8/ Any unilateral change herein was made at the level of which exclusive recognition was held. Accordingly, the order herein involves only the various Centers named in the complaint.

9/ The evidence establishes that the parties to the expired MCA executed a new negotiated agreement dated July 18, 1975. Under these circumstances, I find that the remedial order herein adequately remedies the unfair labor practice found to have occurred.

(b) Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations, notify the Assistant Secretary in writing within 30 days from the date of this order as to what steps have been take to comply herewith.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the complaint, insofar as it alleges additional violations of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to a complaint filed on November 24, 1975 under Executive Order 11491, as amended, by the National Treasury Employees Union, NTEU Chapters 066, 067; 070; 071; 072; 073; 078; 082; 097; 098 and 099, hereinafter called the Union, against, the Internal Revenue Service, Ogden Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Fresno Service Center, Internal Revenue Service, Austin Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Kansas City Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Cincinnati Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Atlanta Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Memphis Service Center, Internal Revenue Service, Brookhaven Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Philadelphia Service Center; Internal Revenue Service, Data Center; Internal Revenue Service, National Computer Center; and the Internal Revenue Service, hereinafter called the Respondent, a Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued by the Regional Administrator for the Philadelphia Pennsylvania, Region on March 19, 1976.

The complaint alleged in substance, that the Respondent violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Executive Order by virtue of the following actions: unilaterally altering and amending existing personnel policies by reinstating selected provisions of a collective bargaining agreement which was to expire by its own terms; dealing directly with employees in the bargaining unit by the issuance of a directive to employees the language of which violates the neutrality required by the Order and attempts to subvert the Union as the exclusive representative by appealing to employees to look to the agency rather than the Union for rights; by refusing on June 4, 1975 to negotiate concerning the changes in personnel policies announced on May 28, 1975; and by conducting surveillance activities of the Union at its meetings.

A hearing was held in the captioned matter on May 4, 1975, in Washington, D.C. All parties were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses, and to introduce evidence bearing on the issues involved herein. Thereafter, the parties submitted briefs.

Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, the exhibits and other relevant evidence adduced at the hearing, and the briefs, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions and recommendations:

Statement of Facts

On February 18, 1975, the parties herein began negotiating a multi-center collective bargaining agreement to cover employees working at various IRS Service Centers, the IRS Data Center and the IRS National Computer Center. The agreement covered approximately 30,000 employees, and was to replace a previous agreement due to expire on April 13, 1975.

After approximately 32 bargaining sessions the parties by mutual consent on April 11 and April 26, 1975, respectively signed two separate memoranda extending the agreement. The latter extension provided that the agreement would remain in existence until negotiations were completed or either party declared impasse and that it would terminate at midnight of the fifth (5th) calender day after receipt by either party of notice of termination.

On May 27, 1975 Union President Vincent L. Connery notified the IRS that it considered negotiations at an impasse, thereby terminating the latter memorandum of agreement effective June 2, 1975. On this same date President Connery distributed a letter to all employees at the centers involved announcing that the Multi-Center negotiations had reached impasse. This letter noted that "...since the negotiations have terminated, the existing contract will expire on June 1, 1975. Once the contract ends all grievances will be processed under the agency grievance procedure and not the negotiated procedure which includes binding arbitration." The letter went on to urge employees who had any problems concerning matters affecting their job to file a formal grievance no later than June 1, 1975 and warned that "[o]nly the contract provides the right to review by an impartial abitrator who issues a decision that is binding on management."

Throughout the week of May 26, 1975 the Union distributed literature, conducted special chapter meetings, picketed, solicited signatures on petitions for Congress, and generally advised employees of their rights once the existing agreement expired.

By letter dated May 28, 1975 the Respondent informed the Union that "your unilateral decision and right to terminate the agreement and thus give up the institutional benefits contained therein will of course be honored. There are other benefits in the agreement which will accrue to individual employees. We wish to advise you that it is our intent to continue these benefits to employees intact." The Respondent attached a detailed list of the provisions which it intended to continue. A review of the list indicates generally that it continued terms of employment which related directly to individual employees and discontinued any provisions of the agreement which ran directly to the Union.

Thereafter, Commissioner Donald C. Alexander sent a memorandum to all employees, IRS Data Center, dated May 29, 1975 which made several observations, including the following:

> ...even though NTEU has decided to terminate the current Agreement, Service management has no intention of making changes on its own in rights and benefits which you and other employees have enjoyed under that Agreement.
>
> while NTEU's termination of the Agreement means that the Union gives up certain benefits which it has been entitled to under the Agreement, all contract provisions applicable to you as an employee will be observed by management. (See attached detailed list.)

> you should not be misled by changes that our current bargaining position means we intend to treat you as anything less than first-class employees.
>
>
> Service management stands ready to resume negotiations.
> * * *
> Finally I want to thank you for the efforts which all of you have made over the years..."

The May 29, memorandum was issued to all 30,000 unit employees without any prior notice to, or discussing with the union.

After learning of Commissioner Alexander's May 29 memorandum the Union promptly demanded to meet with Respondent to negotiate over what it considered changes in working conditions contained in the memorandum. Its June 2, 1975 letter to Mr. Billy J. Brown informed Respondent that it was prepared to meet on June 3, 1975, to negotiate an agreement applicable to all employees for the period necessary to complete the impasse procedure. Thereafter, the parties met on June 4, 1975, at which meeting the Union reiterated its request to negotiate any changes in working conditions during impasse. Respondent informed the Union that it would not negotiate over working conditions during impasse and the meeting ended.

The complaint in this case also involves an allegation of section 19(b)(1) and (6) based upon an incident arising out of a union meeting which was held on May 26, 1975, after work and off IRS property. The result of that meeting allegedly became known to management on the morning of May 27, 1975 when a steward who was present at the meeting told her supervisor what had occurred at the meeting. The Respondent claims that the information it obtained about the meeting was volunteered and at the hearing produced Section Chief Lois Smith to whom the information was given. However, the Respondent refused to produce the identity of the steward who gave such information to Smith. Therefore, the Union asserting that it has established a prima facie case of surveillance moved to have Smith's testimony stricken from the record or in the alternative to have the surveillance issue remanded for further hearing to require the production of the employee steward who allegedly furnished the information of what accured at the meeting.

Discussion 1/

It well established that once a bargaining representative has been designated by a majority of the employees in an appropriate bargaining unit, an agency is obligated to deal with the elected representative exclusively concerning personnel policies, practices and other matters affecting working conditions. This agency obligation carries with it a correlative duty not to bypass the exclusive representative, and not to treat with others.2/ Agency disregard for the exclusive representative and dealing directly with employees undermines and demeans the elected employee representative, thereby violating rights granted by the Cf. Veterans Administration, V.A. Center, supra; U.S. Army Training Center, supra. For an agency in such circumstances to disregard the exclusive representative selected by a majority of employees and to communicate with employees directly concerning personnel policies, practices, and working conditions in the unit directly erodes the exclusive representative's status under the Order and violates essential principles of exclusive recognition cf. U.S. Army Training Center, supra.

1/ At the hearing Respondent raised the issue of whether under Section 19(d) of the Order the Assistant Secretary has jurisdiction to entertain the instant unfair labor practice complaint since at least one grievance has been filed concerning the distribution of the May 29 memorandum of Deputy Commissioner Alexander. It is established that Section 19(d) does not deprive the Assistant Secretary of jurisdiction where the issues joined differ from those in controversy in an unfair labor practice case. Internal Revenue Service; Southeast Service Center, A/SLMR No. 440 (1974). Since the memorandum is only one aspect of the instant case, it is my view that jurisdiction in the matter would be retained by the Assistant Secretary. Moreover, as the Union argues, the single grievance filed in the Detroit Service Center would necessarily preclude only consideration of whether or not to assume jurisdiction over that aspect of the case and would not bar a determination regarding the remainder of the complaint herein.

In Naval Air Station, Fallon, Nevada, FLRC No. 74A-80 (1975) the Federal Labor Relations Council established a two-pronged test to decide when a direct communication between agency management and unit employees violates the Order. In this regard the council stated:

> "On determining whether a communication is violative of the Order, it must be judged independently and a determination made as to whether that communication constitutes, for example, an attempt by agency management to deal or negotiate directly with unit employees or to threaten or negotiate directly with unit employees or to threaten or promise benefits to employees. In reaching this determination, both the content of the communication and the circumstances surrounding it must be considered."

Therefore the actual content of the May 29 memorandum as well as the circumstances under which it was transmitted must be weighed to assess its propriety. An analysis based on the Council's test dictates a finding that dissemination of the IRS Commissioner's memorandum undermined the union's bargaining position in violation of the Order.3/

The memorandum on its face creates the impression that the union was bargaining in bad faith and had irresponsibly broken off negotiations. Also, it characterized the Union's appeal to the Federal Service Impasses Panel as "breaking off negotiations...terminating the present Multi Center Agreement..." The use of such language ignored and concealed the fact that the Union was exercising its legal rights pursuant to the April 24, 1975 Memorandum of Agreement and the Rules of the Federal Service Impasses Panel 4/ to take such action. Similarly, in stating that "NTEU... is terminating the present Multi Center Agreement" Respondent created an appearance that the Union was unilaterally eliminating the existing agreement ignoring the fact that in the April 24, 1975 Memorandum of Agreement the parties agreed that the existing MCA would expire five days after either party notified the other of their intent to appeal to the Impasses Panel. Therefore, the MCA expired on June 2, 1975 as a result of the mutual agreement of the parties. Thus, for the IRS to inform 30,000 unit employees nationwide that "NTEU... is terminating the Multi Center Agreement" placed the Union in a false light, necessarily undermining its status as exclusive representative.

The language of May 29 memorandum could also be construed to mean that the Union was bargaining in bad faith. On the second page of his memorandum Commissioner Alexander states:

> "Where Center employees have special problems and concerns, they deserve-- and as far as management is concerned, will receive-- contract provisions tailored to fit their situation. Service management stands ready to resume negotiations."

This statement clearly implies that the Respondent was fully willing to negotiate a fair and appropriate agreement for Center employees, and that the delay and controversy was totally the product of the Union's unreasonable refusal to negotiate. Such a direct message to employees, regardless of its truth, demeaned the Union in the eyes of the employees it was elected to represent. Moreover, it implies that the Union in its negotiations has evidenced a contrary position, namely, a lack of interest in the special problems and concerns of center employees and an unwillingness to tailor contract provisions to fit the situation.

Further, the May 29 memorandum violated the Order by directly encouraging all bargaining unit employees to sympathize with Respondent's negotiation position, and to pressure the Union to alter its negotiation position at the bargaining table. In Naval Air Station, Fallon, Nevada, supra the Council ruled that the activity violated the Order by posting a letter without prior union approval, critical of actions taken by the union President. In finding a violation of the Order the Council stated:

4/ 5 C.F.R. Section 2471.1 (a) states:
§2471.1 who may initiate.

> "...the content, intent and effect of the letter can reasonably be equated with an attempt to bargain directly with employees and to urge them to put pressure on the union to take certain actions." Id at 4.

The basic thrust of the May 29 memorandum is to depict the Union as unreasonable, bad faith negotiators who unilaterally terminated the existing Agreement, misrepresented Respondents bargaining position to employees, and stalled negotiations, despite the fact that "service management stands ready to resume negotiations." By contrast the Union was pictured with the image of irresponsibility while Respondent is portrayed as a reasonable, generous, and appreciative employer charitably reinstating"...rights and benefits which you and other employees have enjoyed under the Agreement..." Moreover, the memorandum reassures all 30,000 unit employees that Respondent regards them as "first class", that the Union has misrepresented management's bargaining position, that management is sensitive to the "special problems and concerns" of Center employees, and that it "stands ready to resume negotiations". Such an obvious attempt to gain employee support and to influence employees into pressuring the union to alter its negotiation stance violates the Order and the recent dictates of Naval Air Station, Fallon, Nevada supra.

In addition, the May 29 memorandum creates the obvious impression that employees should look to Respondent alone for benefits, and that the Union is not needed. The memorandum stated:

> While NTEU's termination of the Agreement means that the Union gives up certain benefits which it has been entitled to under the Agreement, all contract provisions applicable to you as an employee will be observed by management. (See attached detailed list.)

The total impact of the Commissioner's message to unit employees could not have been more clearly articulated that, as IRS employees, there is no need to join the Union and pay dues; and, although the Agreement will soon expire we will maintain all the provisions that apply to you as an employee. In selectively eliminating those provisions characterized as

"union...benefits", while reinstating "employee...rights and benefits", Respondent created the obvious appearance of conferring benefits directly on employees, at the same time informing all unit employees that they could enjoy these benefits without the assistance and expense of the Union. Such a direct communication to every unit employee constitutes,6/ in my view, a direct message in violation of the Order.

It is a well settled principle in both federal and private sector labor law that an employer may not lawfully change personnel policies, practices, or working conditions without first providing the collective bargaining representative with advance notice of the proposed changes, and allowing it an opportunity to negotiate concerning the proposed change. A failure to comply with these requirements constitutes a violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.7/

It is equally well settled in the private sector that once a collective bargaining agreement has expired an employer must give notice and a opportunity to negotiate prior to changing any of the established conditions of employment. This principle it would appear applies with the same force in federal sector situations.

6/ NASA, Washington, D.C. and Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center, Houston, Texas, A/SLMR No. 457 (1974), cited by Respondent in its brief is clearly distinguishable from the instant case for in the instant case, the question is not one of bargaining but agency interference with an established bargaining relationship.

7/ Veterans Administration Hospital, Charleston, South Carolina, A/SLMR No. 87 (1971; National Labor Relations Board, A/SLMR No. 246 (1973); California National Guard, State Military Forces, A/SLMR No. 348 (1974); Veterans Administration, Veterans Administration Center, Hampton, Virginia, A/SLMR No. 395 (1974); Veterans Administration Hospital, Wadsworth Hospital Center, A/SLMR No. 388 (1974); Army and Air Force Exchange Service, A/SLMR No. 451 (1974); Department of the Army, Rock Island Arsenal, A/SLMR No. 527 (1975); Department of Agriculture, A/SLMR No. 555 (1975); General Services Administration, Region 3, A/SLMR No. 583 (1975); U.S. Army Electronics Command, Fort Monmouth, N. J., A/SLMR No. 653 (1976).

In the instant case the Union argues that Respondent radically altered twenty-four separate working 8/ conditions without giving notice to the Union and that the resultant effect of this action was to demean the Union in the eyes of the bargaining unit employees in violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order. On the other hand, the Respondent claims that the May 29 memorandum appropriately maintained "employee benefits" contained in the expired MCA, and properly eliminated union "institutional benefits". Thus, it contends that it could lawfully continue or discontinue all provisions in the expired MCA based upon the above-stated theory without notifying the Union in advance, and without any obligation to negotiate.

While not all benefits contained in the expired agreement survive its termination, there are, of course, those which do. Nowhere, in case law have I been able to find an analogy to the institutional benefit characterization used by Respondent. However, contractual items which are mandatory subjects of bargaining clearly survive the hiatus which sometime exists between the expiration of one agreement and arrival at a new one. The Union argues that the abolition of twenty-four personnel policies no matter how they are characterized is unlawful. I am inclined to agree that such a unilateral change of terms and conditions of employment which are mandatory subjects of bargaining would be in violation of the Respondents duty to bargain in good faith. The threshold question then becomes..what mandatory subjects of bargaining without notice have been changed? In the instant case the Union conceded in its May 27 letter that the grievance and arbitration procedure did not survive the expiration of the agreement, leading one to believe that the terms or conditions of employment which were allegedly unilaterally changed had been the subject of some discussion at one of the earlier 32 bargaining sessions.

8/ Examples of provisions eliminated by Respondent include: Article 5 Section 3(A)-(D) provisions for administrative time to union representatives and affected employees to prepare grievances; Article 5 Section 2(C), which required the posting of Union Steward rosters on Center Bulletin Boards; Article 12 Section 1 and 2(A) concerning grievance preparation for meeting with management; Article 12 Section 7, the abolition of Respondent's promise to distribute copies of the Agreement; Article 12 Section 6 which allowed the Union to address new employees and training classes; portions of Article 19 Section 3 dealing with employee health and safety; and portions of Article 30, Section 4(C), 6(B) and Article 32, Section 8 allowing employee appeals of disciplinary actions, adverse actions, and grievances to arbitration.

A review of the changes shows that personnel policies and practices were not eliminated or changed, but that only the reference to the Union in the agreement was eliminated. Further, there was no visible change as predicted by the Union regarding the use of the grievance procedure, for indeed, at least one grievance was filed and has been processed, although not to the complete satisfaction of the Union. Furthermore, even relying on the cases cited by the Union, it could not be established that the elimination of the arbitration machinery of the contract was an unlawful unilateral change during the hiatus in the agreement. Accordingly, I find that there is insufficient evidence to establish that by the May 29 memorandum the Respondent unilaterally changed terms and conditions of employment in derogation of its duty to bargain in good faith.

Based on the above rationale I also reject the Union's contention that Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order in refusing to negotiate on June 4, 1975 over a change in working conditions during impasse. Moreover, the record evidence is in my view insufficient to establish that Respondent refused to bargain in good faith over working conditions in effect during the impasse.

Also based on the record evidence, Complainant's contention that Respondent independently violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order by engaging in surveillance activities is rejected. With respect to establishing a violation, Complainant has the burden of proof and must do more than to simply allege that whenever an agency receives knowledge about what was said at a Union meeting, it must be inferred that such knowledge was obtained illegally, thus shifting the burden to the agency to explain how it obtained such knowledge. I do not accept this theory and I do not believe it was incumbent upon the Respondent herein to offer a witness, as it did, to explain how it obtained such knowledge. Therefore, I would recommend dismissal without even relying on the testimony of Smith. I have, however, evaluated her testimony and I accept it fully. Indeed, I found Smith to be an entirely credible witness who honestly testified that one of her employees, who also was a Union steward, voluntarily came to her not to report on what happened at a Union meeting but, rather, to apologize in advance for what she was going to have to do as a Union steward, i.e., file a large number of grievances before the contract expiration date--such instruction incidentally having been given at the Union meeting. In these circumstances, and as I ruled at the hearing,

I believe no useful purpose would be served by requiring the witness to reveal the name of the employee.9/ Contrary to Complainant's assertion that it established a prima facie case of surveillance, I find that on the contrary that no evidence of surveillance or of any attempts to create the impression of surveillance were established on this record.

In summary, I have concluded that Respondent has not engaged in conduct violative of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order with respect to surveillance of Union meetings. I have further concluded that Respondent has not engaged in conduct violative of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by unilaterally changing working conditions or by refusing to bargain in good faith over working conditions during the existing impasse. However, I have concluded that Respondent has engaged in conduct violative of Section 19(a) (1) and (6) by issuing the May 29th memorandum undermining the Union's bargaining postion.10/

Recommendations

Having found that Respondent has engaged in certain conduct which is violative of Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order, I recommend that the Assistant Secretary adopt the following Order designed to effectuate the purposes of Executive Order 11491, as amended. In respect to other conduct alleging surveillance and lack of good faith bargaining in violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order, it is recommended that the Complaint be dismissed.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH,

A/SLMR No. 807

These cases involve unfair labor practice complaints filed by the National Federation of Federal Employees (Complainant) and the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO (Complainant) alleging that Respondent violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by unilaterally issuing and implementing Personnel Manual Circular 752-8 (Circular) which temporarily suspended agency hearings for adverse action proceedings resulting from position classification determinations. Specifically, the Complainants contend that, although they have been accorded national consultation rights under Section 9 of the Order, the Respondent substantively changed a personnel policy by issuing the Circular without first notifying the Complainants, or giving them an opportunity to comment thereon. The Respondent, on the other hand, contends that there was no change in the personnel policy with the issuance of the Circular, but rather an application of the existing personnel policy.

The Complainants held national consultation rights within the Agency. Effective September 4, 1974, HEW Personnel Instruction 752-1 afforded employees the right to a pre-decision hearing in adverse action proceedings based upon position classification determinations, except in certain circumstances. Among other exceptions, the Personnel Instruction contained the following exception: "When a hearing is impracticable by reason of unusual location or other extraordinary circumstances." On July 16, 1975, without prior consultation with either Complainant, the Respondent issued a Circular announcing the determination that, "an extraordinary circumstance has developed which warrants invoking, on a temporary basis and until further notice, the exception to the provision of a ... hearing ... for all proposed changes to lower grade resulting from position classification determinations...."

Under all of the circumstances, the Administrative Law Judge found that the Respondent's actions did not constitute a substantive change in personnel policy, and, therefore, the Respondent was not obligated to consult with the Complainants concerning the issuance of the Circular. The Administrative Law Judge noted that the agency regulation at issue clearly gives the Respondent the authority to deny a hearing by merely declaring the existence of extraordinary circumstances. Accordingly, he recommended that the complaints be dismissed.

Noting particularly the absence of exceptions by either Complainant, the Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

The claimed violations of Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of Executive Order 11491 were submitted to the undersigned by a joint stipulation of facts.

Complainants held national consultation rights at all relevant times. HEW Personnel Instruction 752-1, effective September 4, 1974, gave employees the right to a pre-decision hearing in adverse action proceedings based upon position classification determinations, except in certain circumstances. The exception here at issue is: "when a hearing is impracticable by reason of unusual location or other extraordinary circumstance" (752-1-20.B. 6a(1)(a)). Personnel management evaluation surveys conducted by HEW and/or CSC led to a determination that, at 14 HEW locations involved, 322 of 1061 positions reviewed were overgraded. From 60% to 70% of these positions were at GS-12 and above. As of July 14, 1975, HEW employed 13 examiners for the conduct of hearings on grievances and adverse actions. Five of these regularly handled pre-decisions hearings in adverse actions. 1/

Without prior consultation with either labor organization, HEW on July 16, 1975, issued Personnel Manual Circular No. HEW 752-8. An "advance copy" of the Circular was made available to each union on July 18. It announced the determination that "an extraordinary circumstance has developed which warrants invoking, on a temporary basis and until further notice, the exception to the provision of a...hearing...for all proposed changes to lower grade resulting from position classification determinations for which the advance notice of adverse action is issued (i.e. dated) on or after July 21, 1975." This was the first occasion on which that exception was used at the Departmental level.

As grounds for this determination, the Circular observed that there existed an unusual number of classifications requiring corrective action, and that the corps of examiners was already working under a heavy grievance caseload, making it impossible for them to conduct adverse action hearings for such a number of cases on a timely basis, thus creating unreasonable delays in the decision-making process of both the classification and grievance systems. The Circular also noted that assignment of examiners to grievance cases is required by Civil Service regulations, whereas Department hearings on proposed changes to lower grades resulting from classification determinations are not mandated by statute, Civil Service regulation or executive order. In addition, a decision to downgrade remained appealable to the Civil Service Commission, with provision for a Commission hearing.

1/ The Stipulation indicates that only four adverse actions were held in Fiscal Years 1974 and 1975. It also stated that no inference should be drawn that only four changes to lower grade were proposed during that period.

Neither labor organization sought consultation respecting the Circular. NFFE filed a charge alleging violation of Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) on July 25, 1975, and a complaint on August 28. AFGE filed a similar charge on September 29 and a complaint on December 24. In essence, the Unions contended that HEW's issuance of Circular 752-8 constituted a substantive change in personnel policy which was accomplished without prior notice to, or consultation with, the labor organizations it had accorded national consultation rights. HEW's response was that its decision to suspend such hearings was merely an application of current published personnel policy, which provided for denial of a hearing in extraordinary circumstances, rather than a substantive change in policy.

The Issue Presented

Whether Respondent's decision that "extraordinary circumstances" existed so as to warrant suspension of the right to a pre-decisional hearing in adverse actions based on position classification determinations was a substantive change in personnel policy requiring consultation, or simply an application of published policy which recognized such an exception.

Contentions of the Parties

The thrust of the Unions' argument, taken from the text of the regulation, is that the "extraordinary circumstances" exception is directed to the employee, in the particular circumstances of his/her case, and is not intended to permit wholesale abrogation of the right of all employees to such hearings. NFFE argues, in addition, that the phrase at issue should be restricted in its permissible application to unpredictable and uncontrollable "acts of God", and ought not be permitted to cover the predictable and controllable acts of HEW management. In essence, it contends that such wholesale and unprecedented use of the exception constitutes, in fact, a substantive change in personnel policy.

Conclusion

National consultation rights is a virtually unexplored concept. Section 9(b) of the Order gives a labor organization accorded such status the right to be notified of "proposed substantive changes in personnel policies" that affect employees it represents, and to submit comments for the agency's consideration. It further grants such a labor organization the the right to suggest changes in personnel policies, whether in meetings or in writing, and to have its views carefully considered. At the outset it is clear that the scope of an agency's duty to consult on a national basis is severely circumscribed: it must only give notice of proposed changes in substantive personnel policies, and it must, with respect to any personnel policy matter, always be prepared to re-receive and consider carefully the views of the labor organization.

Section 2412.1 of the Rules of the Federal Labor Relations Council (5 CFR 458) defines substantive personnel policy as a "standard or rule which (a) creates and defines rights of employees..., including conditions relating to such rights; (b) sets a definite course or method of action to guide and determine procedures and decisions of subordinate organizational units on a personnel or labor relations matter; and (c) is formulated within the discretionary authority of the issuing organization and is not merely a restatement of a course or method of action prescribed by higher authority." (emphasis mine). The right to a pre-decision hearing outlined in HEW Personnel Instruction 752-1, including the exceptions listed in 752-1-20 B6(a)(1), meets this definition and thus constitutes a substantive personnel policy. The fact that the Council's definition explicitly includes a reference to the conditions relating to such right supports the Agency's argument that it simply applied the existing personnel policy and did not alter it. On the face of the Order and the Rules it would appear that the Agency was free to announce the presence of those extraordinary circumstances which were always recognized as potential cause for denying employees whose positions it proposed to downgrade the pre-decision hearing to which they were otherwise entitled.

The decision in this case did, in fact, represent a massive change from past practice under that regulation. It was provoked by an unprecedented set of circumstances. The Unions correctly argue that wholesale deprivation of the "right" to a hearing which had been consistently honored in the past was underway on July 21, 1975. The past practice of uniformly providing pre-decision hearings was totally scuttled for an indefinite term. It does not follow, however, that this sharp change in practice was a change in policy.

As I read the scheme of the Order, exclusively recognized labor organizations have the right to be notified of, and to bargain about, changes in employment practices. 2/ On the other hand, national consultation rights attach to personnel policies, i.e., the standard or the rule. It may be argued that HEW, under the regulation at issue, has carte blanche to provide or deny a hearing, depending upon whether, in given circumstances, it finds it convenient or inconvenient, advantageous or disadvantageous. It simply declares the existence of extraordinary "circumstances" when it is disinclined to go through a hearing.Where the regulation is so drafted as to give it a free hand it has a free hand. Its actions are not circumscribed. The published policy clearly gives it great latitude; in fact there are no fetters on its discretion. Nothing in the Order requires that there be constraints. That is a matter to be resolved by consultation or, in other circumstance, collective bargaining. Here the Agency's decision to abandon its practice of affording pre-decision hearings conformed to its published personnel policy, which always permitted escape from that practice when a hearing was "impracticable by reason of..... extraordinary circumstance. "

2/ Section 11 of the Order provides an effective means for an exclusive representative to deal with regulations which an Agency may assert are a bar to negotiations. Such disputes can be taken to the Council, which has published criteria for determining whether "compelling need" for such regulations.

Recommendation

Having concluded that HEW's action did not constitute a substantive change in personnel policy, it follows that there was not duty to notify the Complainants of the proposed issuance of HEW Personnel Manual Circular No. HEW 752.8. I therefore find that no violation of Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) occurred, and I recommend that the complaints be dimmissed. 3/

3/ The issue framed by the pleadings is confined to the question whether HEW had, in the circumstances, a duty to notify the Unions of the action it proposed to take and to afford them an opportunity for prior consultation. HEW, in addition to answering this contention, broadly argues that it was not otherwise required to consult about this subject matter. Although unnecessary to my decision, I feel constrained to observed that Section 9(b) confers on Complainant the right at anytime to present its views on personnel policy matters, and to have them carefully considered. Thus no substantive change in personnel policy was necessary as a precondition to consultation. Rather it was necessary to trigger the requirement of notice of proposed changes and opportunity to comment on those proposals. Duty to consult with respect to existing, published policies existed at all times.

SUMMARY OF SUPPLEMENTAL DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR, BUREAU OF RECLAMATION,
YUMA PROJECTS OFFICE,
YUMA, ARIZONA
A/SLMR No. 808

On June 21, 1974, the Assistant Secretary issued his Decision and Order in A/SLMR No. 401 in which he found that Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order based upon its conduct in unilaterally changing the competitive areas for reduction-in-force during the pendency of an RA petition. In the remedy, the Assistant Secretary ordered the Respondent to, among other things, reinstate the areas of competition for reduction-in-force to that which existed prior to the unilateral change, reevaluate all layoffs made subsequent to the unilateral change, reinstate any employee incorrectly laid off, and reimburse any such employee for any loss of pay occasioned by his layoff.

On September 17, 1976, the Federal Labor Relations Council (Council) issued its Decision on Appeal in FLRC No. 74A-52, remanding the case to the Assistant Secretary for reconsideration and appropriate action consistent with its decision. In remanding the case to the Assistant Secretary, the Council enunciated certain principles which it believed properly controlled in the subject case. Thus, in the Council's view, during the pendency of an RA petition in the reorganization circumstances here involved, an agency is obligated to continue recognitions and adhere to the terms of existing agreements to the maximum extent possible until the representation matter is resolved. Further, the Council found the remedy ordered by the Assistant Secretary, insofar as it pertained to the requirement that the Respondent reestablish the previous areas of consideration for reduction-in-force and reevaluate all layoffs subsequent to the unilateral change in such areas of consideration, was precluded by the provisions of Section 19(d) of the Order as such remedies were attendant upon the appeals procedures before the Civil Service Commission.

Upon reconsideration of the above case, the Assistant Secretary found, consistent with the guidelines established by the Council, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by, during the pendency of an RA petition, unilaterally establishing new competitive areas for the purpose of reduction-in-force without affording the exclusive representative an opportunity to meet and confer concerning the procedures involved and the impact resulting from the decision to alter the areas of consideration for the reduction-in-force. The Assistant Secretary, consistent with the Council's decision, also found that a status quo ante remedy was inappropriate herein. Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary required the Respondent to cease and desist from the conduct found violative of the Order and to take certain affirmative actions.

SUPPLEMENTAL DECISION AND ORDER

On January 7, 1974, Administrative Law Judge Burton S. Sternburg issued his Report and Recommendation in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices. In essence, the complaint in the instant case alleged that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1), (3) and (6) of the Executive Order by unilaterally changing the established competitive areas governing reduction-in-force and, thereafter, by refusing to confer with the Complainant for purposes of discussing the latter's pending complaint without the presence of rival union representatives.

On June 21, 1974, in A/SLMR No. 401, the Assistant Secretary found that Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order based upon its conduct in unilaterally changing the competitive areas for reduction-in-force during the pendency of an RA petition. In this regard, the Assistant Secretary noted that prior decisions of both the Assistant Secretary and the Federal Labor Relations Council (Council) held that when an RA petition is filed in good faith the petitioning agency should be permitted to remain neutral and await the decision of the Assistant Secretary with respect to that petition and be given a reasonable opportunity to comply with the consequences which flow from the representation decision before incurring the risk of an unfair labor practice finding. It was the Assistant Secretary's view that absent evidence of overriding exigency (not present in the instant case), which would require immediate changes in personnel policies and practices and matters affecting its employees' working conditions during the pendency of an RA petition, the petitioning agency has an obligation to remain neutral and maintain the status quo with respect to the personnel policies and practices and matters affecting the working conditions of employees who are covered by its RA petition. Further, under the particular circumstances of this case, the Assistant Secretary rejected the finding of the Administrative Law Judge that Respondent's conduct violated Section 19(a)(6) of the Order. In this regard, noting that the basis for the RA petition was the asserted inappropriateness of the existing units due to the reorganization and that the petition was filed in good faith, the Assistant Secretary found that during the pendency of such petition, the Respondent was under no obligation to meet and confer with the Complainant which may or may not have continued to represent an appropriate unit based on the outcome of the RA petition. Finally, in fashioning a remedy for the violation found, the Assistant Secretary ordered the Respondent to, among other things, reestablish the areas of competition for reduction-in-force to that which existed prior to the unilateral change, and re-evaluate all layoffs made subsequent to the unilateral change, reinstating any employees who were incorrecly laid off. The Respondent also was ordered to reimburse any such employee for any loss of pay occasioned by his layoff.

On September 17, 1976, the Federal Labor Relations Council (Council) issued its Decision on Appeal in FLRC No. 74A-52 remanding the case to the Assistant Secretary for reconsideration and appropriate action consistent with its decision. In remanding the case to the Assistant Secretary, the Council enunciated certain principles which it believed properly controlled in the subject case. Thus, in the Council's view, during the pendency of an RA petition in the reorganization circumstances here involved, an agency is obligated to continue recognitions and adhere to the terms of existing agreements to the maximum extent possible until the representation matter is resolved. Further, the Council found the remedy ordered by the Assistant Secretary, insofar as it pertained to the requirement that the Respondent reestablish the previous areas of consideration for reduction-in-force and re-evaluate all layoffs subsequent to the unilateral change in such areas of consideration, was precluded by the provisions of Section 19(d) of the Order as such remedies were attendant upon the appeals procedure before the Civil Service Commission.

The essential facts, which are not in dispute, have been fully discussed in the earlier decisions in this matter. Therefore, I shall repeat them only to the extent deemed necessary for the following discussion.

Prior to August 20, 1972, the Lower Colorado River Projects Office, Blythe, California, and the Yuma Projects Office, Yuma, Arizona, were two of the several sub-regional or field office components of Region III of the Bureau of Reclamation of the Department of the Interior. The Complainant was the exclusive representative of the nonprofessional employees of the Lower Colorado River Projects Office and was party to a negotiated agreement covering such employees. Local 640, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW) was, at all times material herein, the exclusive representative of the employees of the Yuma Projects Office (with the exception of those involved in the engineering function) and also was party to a negotiated agreement covering such employees. Competitive areas for reduction-in-force purposes for these two offices were: (a) the Lower Colorado River Projects Office, Blythe, California, including field offices involved in dredging activity, and (b) the Yuma Projects Office, Yuma, Arizona. 1/

On August 20, 1972, the Lower Colorado River Projects Office and the Yuma Projects Office were merged. The functions of the Lower Colorado River Projects Office and the employees working therein were assigned administratively to the Yuma Projects Office. As a result of the Respondent's concern over the question of employee representation created by the merger, on September 29, 1972, a meeting was held with representatives of the Complainant and the IBEW. At this meeting, the Respondent suggested, among other things, that: (a) the Complainant should represent the dredging employees inasmuch as they retain their identity as a distinct identifiable unit, and (b) other former employees of the Lower Colorado River Projects Office, which it contended had been assimilated into the Yuma Field Office, and shop pools located at Yuma, should be considered as an accretion to the existing unit represented by the IBEW. Both the Complainant and the IBEW informed the Respondent that they were not agreeable to those suggestions.

Thereafter, the Respondent unilaterally decided that it would be appropriate to maintain separate competitive areas with regard to the dredging operation and for the remainder of the Yuma project. Consequently, in early December 1972, it made a verbal recommendation to this effect to its regional office in Boulder City, Nevada. Thereafter, by letter dated December 21, 1972, it made a formal request to the Commissioner, Bureau of Reclamation, Washington, D.C. to establish new competitive areas. On January 4, 1973, the Respondent filed an RA petition. The Respondent's request to change its competitive areas was approved by the Commissioner, Bureau of Reclamation, on January 12, 1973. On January 23, 1973, a "Lower Colorado Region Supplement to the Federal Personnel Manual" was issued establishing the requested new competitive areas with respect to any future reduction-in-force for the Lower Colorado Region. In pertinent part, it set forth the following competitive areas:

"(5) Yuma Projects Office, Yuma, Arizona, (all of the Yuma Projects Office, except the dredging function)" and

"(6) Yuma Projects Office, Yuma, Arizona, (all of the dredging function assigned to Yuma Projects Office)."

Thereafter, in February 1973, the Respondent determined that a reduction-in-force in the dredging program was imminent. In this connection, it held separate meetings with the IBEW and the Complainant on 1/ Under the reduction-in-force procedure in effect at the Lower Colorado River Projects Office, any employee, including those in the field office possessing the requisite seniority and skills, could bump any employee working within the Lower Colorado River Projects Office. Similarly, a project-wide reduction-in-force procedure existed with respect to the Yuma Projects Office.

March 1, 1973, and March 2, 1973, respectively, to discuss the impending reduction-in-force. At these meetings, the Complainant and the IBEW officially were informed of the changes in the competitive areas. Thereafter, on March 12, and April 26, 1973, respectively, general and specific reduction-in-force notices were issued specifying the effective dates thereof as March 26 and June 10, 1973.

In applying the principles enunciated by the Council to the instant case, it is clear that inherent in an agency's obligation to continue recognition during the pendency of its RA petition is the obligation to meet and confer with exclusive representatives, to the extent consonant with law and regulations, concerning personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions of employees in the exclusively recognized bargaining units. Consequently, if matters related to the decision to establish areas of consideration for purposes of reduction-in-force are appropriate subject matters for bargaining, the Respondent herein was obligated to meet and confer with the Complainant prior to altering the established areas of consideration for reduction-in-force purposes. It has been held previously that while the decision to effectuate a reduction-in-force action is a matter upon which there is no obligation under the Order to meet and confer, such reservation of decision making and action authority does not bar negotiations, to the extent consonant with law and regulations, concerning the procedures involved and the impact of the reduction-in-force decision on the employees adversely affected by such decisions. 2/ In the instant case, it is undisputed that during the pendency of its RA petition the Respondent unilaterally established competitive areas for the purposes of a reduction-in-force. As noted above, on March 2, 1973, the Respondent met with the Complainant and, for the first time, informed the latter of the changes in the competitive areas. In my view, the announcement to the exclusive representative of the established fact of the changes in competitive areas without affording such exclusive representative a timely opportunity to meet and confer in this regard was inconsistent with the Respondent's obligation, as set forth by the Council, to continue recognition to the maximum extent possible until the representation matter was resolved. Thus, the evidence establishes that at no time between December 1972, when the Respondent recommended to its regional office that the area for consideration for reduction-in-force be altered, and March 2, 1973, when the Respondent notified the Complainant that the area for consideration for reduction-in-force had been altered, and set forth the details of the forthcoming reduction-in-force action, did the Respondent notify the Complainant, or give the latter an opportunity to meet and confer concerning the procedure involved and the impact resulting from the decision to alter the area of consideration for a reduction-in-force action. Under these circumstances, therefore, I find that Respondent failed in its obligation to meet and confer in good faith with the Complainant in violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. 3/

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Changing the areas of competition for purposes of reduction-in-force within the Yuma Projects Office without first notifying Local 1487, National Federation of Federal Employees, the exclusive representative of certain employees in the Yuma Projects Office, and affording such representative the opportunity to meet and confer, to the extent consonant with law and regulations, concerning the procedure involved and the impact of the decision to change the areas of competition.

(b) In any like or related manner, interfering with, restraining, or coercing employees in the exercise of their rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purposes and policies of Executive Order 11491, as amended:

(a) In the future, notify Local 1487, National Federation of Federal Employees, the exclusive representative of certain employees in the Yuma Projects Office, and afford such representative the opportunity to meet and confer, to the extent consonant with law and regulations, prior to changing personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions of unit employees.

(b) Post at its Yuma Projects Office, Yuma, Arizona, copies of the attached Notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms, they shall be signed by the Project Manager or other appropriate official in charge of the Yuma Projects Office, Yuma, Arizona, they shall be posted and maintained by him for 60 consecutive days thereafter, in conspicuous places, where notices to employees are customarily posted. The Project Manager or other appropriate official shall take reasonable steps to insure that such notices are not altered, defaced, or covered by any other material.

(c) Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations, notify the Assistant Secretary, in writing, within 30 days from the date of this order, as to what steps have been taken to comply herewith.

3/ cation of Section 19(d) of the Qrder. Therefore, under the foregoing circumstances, I find that a status quo ante remedy is inappropriate.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the complaint, insofar as it alleged other violations of Section 19(a)(1), and (3) and (6) of the Order, be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

DECISION ON APPEAL FROM ASSISTANT SECRETARY DECISION

Background of Case

This appeal arose from a decision and order of the Assistant Secretary who, acting upon a complaint filed by Local 1487, National Federation of Federal Employees (hereinafter referred to as "NFFE"), determined that the establishment by the Bureau of Reclamation, Yuma Projects Office (hereinafter referred to as "YPO" or "the activity") of new competitive areas during the pendency of an RA petition improperly interfered with its employees' rights assured by the Order in violation of section 19(a)(1).1/

The pertinent factual background of this case, as found by the Assistant Secretary, is as follows: Before a reorganization, the Lower Colorado River Projects Office (LCRPO) and the YPO were two separate field components within Region 3 of the Bureau of Reclamation of the Department of the Interior (hereinafter referred to as "the agency"). Nonsupervisory, nonprofessional employees of the LCRPO were represented by NFFE. The exclusive representative of the nonsupervisory employees (minus those in the engineering function) within the YPO was Local 640, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers (IBEW). For reduction-in-force (RIF) purposes, the designated competitive areas for the two offices were (1) the LCRPO plus field offices involved in dredging activity, and (2) the YPO.

1/ Section 19(a)(1) of the Order provides as follows:

(a) Agency management shall not—

(1) interfere with, restrain, or coerce an employee in the exercise of the rights assured by this Order . . . .

Pursuant to a reorganization involving the merger of the LCRPO and the YPO, the functions of the LCRPO and the employees working therein were officially transferred to the YPO. The employees performing certain operations at the LCRPO were assimilated into similar operations of the YPO. Unlike the rest of the employees involved, the employees engaged in the operation of dredges for the Colorado Project (comprising "field offices") were transferred as an organizational entity to the YPO, but their work functions and work locations remained unchanged. Thus, this latter group associated with the dredging operations was not intermingled with any existing YPO personnel and their supervisor-employee relationships remained unchanged except that managerial direction came from the head of the YPO.

Subsequent to the reorganization, the activity held a meeting with representatives of NFFE and IBEW to determine the effects of the merger of the two offices into the YPO on employee representation. Neither union accepted an activity proposal that dredging employees continue to be represented by NFFE and the balance of former LCRPO employees be represented by IBEW, and the activity itself filed an agency representation (RA) petition seeking an election in an overall unit consisting of all eligible General Schedule and Wage Board employees at YPO and certain other employees at a facility not involved herein.[2/] During the same period of time, the activity unilaterally determined that separate competitive areas should be maintained for (1) dredging operations employees assigned to the YPO and (2) the balance of the YPO. A formal request to this effect was made by the activity to the Commissioner, Bureau of Reclamation. This request was approved, and an agency supplement to the Federal Personnel Manual (FPM) was issued establishing the new competitive areas. The activity thereafter determined that a RIF was necessary in the dredging program and notified NFFE and IBEW of the changes in the competitive areas and discussed the impending RIF in separate meetings with those unions. The activity then proceeded to conduct the RIF.

NFFE filed an unfair labor practice complaint, which was subsequently amended to allege section 19(a)(1), (3) and (6) violations of the Order, arising out of the activity's unilateral changing of the established competitive areas governing reduction-in-force and, thereafter, refusing to confer with NFFE for purposes of discussing the latter's pending complaint without the presence of rival union representatives. Concurrently, a group of employees who had been affected by the RIF filed appeals with the Civil

2/ This petition was dismissed after the filing of the instant NFFE complaint by the Assistant Secretary on the grounds that it did not raise a question concerning representation because "the reorganization . . . did not substantially or materially change the scope or character of the units involved and that, therefore, such units remain viable and identifiable . . . ." (United States Department of Interior, Bureau of Reclamation, Lower Colorado Region, A/SLMR No. 318.) No appeal was taken to the Council from this decision.

Service Commission (CSC) Regional Office alleging violations of their reduction-in-force rights and challenging the establishment of the new competitive areas. On appeal, the CSC's Board of Appeals and Review (BAR), affirming the Regional Office's determination, found that the establishment of the new competitive areas had been accomplished pursuant to CSC regulation (FPM chapter 351, section 4-2b(2)).

The Assistant Secretary, in his decision, first addressed the application of section 19(d) and found that it would not be dispositive of this matter.[3/] He stated, in this regard:

> . . . In its decision, the BAR acceded to the [agency's] exception to review by the BAR of an appeal of the "labor-management issue" raised in the subject case. The BAR noted, in this regard, that "the testimony developed in connection with the Unfair Labor Practice Complaint pertaining to the reasons for separate competitive areas is not relevant in the adjudication of the propriety of the competitive areas as established." In view of the foregoing, I find that Section 19(d) of the Order would not be dispositive of this matter. . . .

Finding the unfair labor practice issue properly before him, the Assistant Secretary held, in pertinent part, that the activity's action in changing competitive areas was violative of section 19(a)(1) of the Order. In reaching this conclusion, the Assistant Secretary noted particularly that his decision and the Council's decision in AVSCOM[4/] stood for the proposition that when an RA petition is filed in good faith, the petitioning agency should be permitted to remain neutral and await the decision of the Assistant Secretary with respect to that petition and be given a reasonable opportunity to comply with the consequences which flow from the representation decision before incurring the risk of an unfair labor practice finding. The Assistant Secretary thereafter concluded:

3/ Section 19(d) provides:

> (d) Issues which can properly be raised under an appeals procedure may not be raised under this section. Issues which can be raised under a grievance procedure may, in the discretion of the aggrieved party, be raised under that procedure or the complaint procedure under this section, but not under both procedures. Appeals or griev ance decisions shall not be construed as unfair labor practice decisions under this Order nor as precedent for such decisions. All complaints under this section that cannot be resolved by the parties shall be filed with the Assistant Secretary.

4/ Headquarters, United States Army Aviation Systems Command, A/SLMR No. 168, 1 FLRC 473 [FLRC No. 72A-30 (July 25, 1973),-Report No. 42].

In this regard, I agree with the Administrative Law Judge's conclusion that the [activity] did not act in accordance with the foregoing rationale. Thus, the evidence establishes that it did not remain neutral and await the decision of the Assistant Secretary after the filing of its RA petition but, rather, during this period it chose to establish new competitive areas. In my view, absent evidence (not present in the instant case) of an overriding exigency, which would require immediate changes in personnel policies and practices and matters affecting its employees' working conditions, during the pendency of an RA petition, the petitioning agency has an obligation to remain neutral and maintain the status quo with respect to the personnel policies and practices and matters affecting the working condition of employees who are covered by its RA petition. To allow otherwise would permit a petitioning agency to interfere with its employees' right to a free and untrammeled election which is being sought by the RA petition. Moreover, I concur with the view of the Administrative Law Judge that an agency should not be permitted to engage in conduct during the pendency of its RA petition which could cast suspicion on the appropriateness of the existing bargaining unit or units involved or a union's representative status, and which, in and of itself, possibly could establish a basis for the RA petition. Based on these considerations and as the evidence does not establish that the [activity's] conduct herein was based on an overriding exigency which required immediate action, I find that the [activity's] establishing of new competitive areas during the pendency of its RA petition improperly interfered with its employees' rights assured by the Order in violation of Section 19(a)(1).

As to the obligation owed by the activity to NFFE during the pendency of the RA petition, the Assistant Secretary rejected the finding of the Administrative Law Judge that the activity's conduct violated section 19(a)(6),[5/] stating:

Thus, as noted above, the [activity] had an obligation during the pendency of its RA petition to remain neutral and to maintain the status quo with respect to personnel policies and practices and matters affecting the conditions of employment of employees covered by the RA petition. However, in view of the basis for the RA petition--i.e., that the existing units were inappropriate as a result of a reorganization--and the fact that the evidence establishes that such petition was filed in good faith, I find that during its pendency the [activity] was under no obligation to meet and confer with [NFFE] which may or may not have continued to represent an appropriate unit based on the outcome of the RA petition. [Footnotes omitted.]

5/ The Assistant Secretary likewise dismissed the section 19(a)(3) complaint.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the YPO cease and desist from changing the competitive areas for purposes of a RIF during the pendency of its RA petition or in any like manner interfering with, restraining, or coercing its employees in the exercise of rights assured by the Order. Further, the Assistant Secretary ordered the activity to reestablish the competitive areas which existed prior to the reorganization and reevaluate layoffs made subsequent to the changes; reinstate with backpay any employees found to be incorrectly laid off following the aforementioned evaluation; and post notices to this effect at the YPO.

The agency appealed the Assistant Secretary's decision to the Council, alleging that the decision presented major policy issues, and NFFE filed an opposition to the appeal. The Council accepted the agency's petition for review, concluding that under section 2411.12 of its rules of procedure (5 CFR 2411.12), major policy issues are raised by the decision of the Assistant Secretary concerning: (1) the conclusion of the Assistant Secretary with respect to the applicability of section 19(d) of the Order in the circumstances of this case; and (2) the obligations, in the circumstances of this case, of an agency under the Order during the pendency of a representation petition with respect to the personnel policies and practices and matters affecting the working conditions of employees who are covered by the petition. The Council also determined that the agency's request for a stay met the criteria for granting a stay as set forth in section 2411.47 (c)(2) of its then current rules (now 5 CFR 2411.47(e)(2)), and granted the request.

The agency and the union filed briefs on the merits with the Council as provided for in section 2411.16 of the Council's rules (5 CFR 2411.16). Amicus curiae briefs were filed by the Department of the Treasury, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, and the National Treasury Employees Union, as provided for in section 2411.49 of the Council's rules (5 CFR 2411.49).[6/]

As already mentioned, there are two major policy issues raised by the Assistant Secretary's decision in the present case concerning respectively: (1) the conclusion of the Assistant Secretary with respect to the applicability of section 19(d) of the Order in the circumstances of this case; and (2) the obligation, in the circumstances of this case, of an agency under the Order during the pendency of a representation petition with respect to the personnel policies and practices and matters affecting the working conditions of employees who are covered by the petition. These issues are discussed below.

6/ In its appeal, the agency requested permission to present oral argument before the Council. Pursuant to section 2411.48 of the Council's rules (5 CFR 2411.48), this request is denied because the positions of the participants in this case are adequately reflected in the entire record now before the Council.

1. Applicability of Section 19(d).

At issue here is the application of section 19(d) of the Order in the circumstances of this case, specifically the application of the first sentence of that section: "Issues which can properly be raised under an appeals procedure may not be raised under this section." Stated otherwise, the issue is the correctness of the Assistant Secretary's conclusion that section 19(d) of the Order would not be dispositive in the present case.

The first sentence of section 19(d) by its terms precludes the Assistant Secretary from considering, as an unfair labor practice, an issue which can properly be raised under an appeals procedure. As to this provision of the Order, the Council, in its 1971 Report and Recommendations which recommended other changes in section 19(d), stated:7/

> The existing requirement that when an issue can be raised under an established appeals procedure, that procedure is the exclusive procedure for resolving the issue is not affected by this recommendation. [Emphasis added.]

Thus, the policy reflected in the Order is that an issue which can properly be raised under established appeals procedures may not be raised under the unfair labor practice complaint procedures established by the Order. Further, such an established appeals procedure is the exclusive procedure for the total resolution of the issue, including the disposition of the issue on the merits as well as the fashioning of any remedies which may be appropriate. The question then becomes whether, in the circumstances of a given case, the issue sought to be resolved in an unfair labor practice, including its attendant remedies, could have properly been invoked under an appeals procedure. If so, section 19(d) precludes the Assistant Secretary from permitting the disposition of such issue or the fashioning of such attendant remedies under section 19 in an unfair labor practice proceeding.

In the instant case it is clear that the affected employees could, as they did, properly raise under an established appeals procedure (in this instance, the RIF appeals procedure) the issue as to whether the competitive areas established by the agency and the subsequent reduction-in-force actions were accomplished in compliance with applicable CSC regulations. The established appeals procedure was therefore the exclusive procedure available to the employees to raise that issue and to seek appropriate remedies including a determination that the actions taken should be cancelled because the competitive areas were improper, which cancellation would result in the restoration of the employees to their previous positions with backpay.

7/ Labor-Management Relations in the Federal Service (1975), at 57.

Since the issue of whether the establishment of the competitive areas and the running of the reduction-in-force were in accord with CSC regulations was an issue exclusively reserved for the appeals procedure under section 19(d) of the Order, such issue could not be raised before the Assistant Secretary. With respect to the unfair labor practice proceeding, the issue before the Assistant Secretary herein was brought by the union, not the employees, and the issue before him only pertained to rights directly or indirectly accorded the union under the Order. That issue, as addressed by the Assistant Secretary, concerned the obligation owed by the activity to the unions involved herein during the pendency of the representation proceeding: specifically whether the activity was obligated to remain neutral and maintain the status quo with respect to personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions during this period. While the Civil Service Commission had jurisdiction over the employees' appeals, it was without jurisdiction under an appeals procedure to decide the union's unfair labor practice complaint that its rights (as contrasted to employees' rights) under the Order had been violated—a matter within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Assistant Secretary.8/ Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary's determination that section 19(d) was not dispositive of the merits of the alleged unfair labor practice complaint filed by NFFE was proper and must be affirmed.

8/ This is not to say that the Civil Service Commission, in resolving issues properly raised under an appeals procedure, may not consider the relevance of provisions of the Order to the resolution of issues before it. This is implicitly recognized in that portion of section 19(d) which provides that decisions under appeals procedures should not be construed as unfair labor practice decisions under the Order nor as precedents for such decisions. Thus, the CSC has indicated in its prior issuances that "[a] claim of unfair labor practice made as part or all of an appeal or grievance will be considered and acted upon as part of the merits of the case being decided, as heretofore. . . . However, there would be no decision as to whether an unfair labor practice had been committed, nor would any precedent be established in the area of unfair labor practices." (Attachment 1 to FPM Letter 711-36, "Technical Advice and Information on Amendments to Executive Order 11491" (November 8, 1971), at 9.) Where the Commission considers the relevance of provisions of the Order to the resolution of issues before it and further, determines that an authoritative interpretation of E.O. 11491, as amended, is required before the Commission can reach a decision in the matter before it, the Commission should seek such interpretation from the Council. Neither such consideration of the relevance of the Order nor the determination as to whether an authoritative interpretation of the Order is required precludes the Assistant Secretary from resolving related questions concerning obligations under the Order as they pertain to the union's rights (as contrasted to employees' rights), not otherwise cognizable under an appeals procedure, when raised by the union in an unfair labor practice proceeding arising out of the same circumstances.

However, while the Assistant Secretary could properly consider as unfair labor practices the issues relating to the obligation owed by the agency to the unions involved in a representation case, as stated above, the remedies attendant on the appeals procedures, apart from the disposition of the issue on the merits, are also subject to the proscription of section 19(d). More particularly, in the instant case, the issue of whether the competitive areas and the running of the reduction-in-force were consistent with CSC regulations was for exclusive disposition through the appeals procedure. Likewise, any attendant remedy, viz., that the affected employees should be restored to their previous positions with backpay, is exclusively for determination through the appeals procedure. Thus, where an appeals procedure is available, pursuant to section 19(d), an unfair labor practice complaint may not be used as an alternate method for obtaining redress for the employees who properly have access to the appeals procedure. Otherwise, the very conflict in proceedings sought to be averted by section 19 would potentially obtain. Therefore, if, in the resolution of unfair labor practices, the Assistant Secretary were to decide that violations of section 19 had occurred, then pursuant to section 19(d), his remedies may extend only to remedies which could not have been invoked in an appeals procedure. In other words, if an unfair labor practice were found by the Assistant Secretary, the Assistant Secretary could not, consistent with the requirements of section 19(d), direct, as he did in this case, the reestablishment of the competitive areas, the reevaluation of layoffs made, and the reinstatement with backpay of any employee incorrectly laid off.9/ Thus, these remedies imposed by the Assistant Secretary in the instant case, even assuming a proper finding of an unfair labor practice, were inconsistent with section 19(d) and must be set aside.

2. Obligation of an agency.

As stated above, the Assistant Secretary, relying principally upon his decision and the Council's in AVSCOM, concluded in substance that:

> . . . absent evidence . . . of an overriding exigency, which would require immediate changes in personnel policies and practices and matters affecting its employees' working conditions, during the pendency of an RA petition, the petitioning agency has an obligation to remain neutral and maintain the status quo with respect to the personnel policies and practices and matters affecting the working conditions of employees who are covered by its RA petition.

9/ While without authority to direct such remedies, the Assistant Secretary has authority, pursuant to section 6(b), to utilize other remedies for unfair labor practices; that is, he may require a party to cease and desist from the violations of the Order and require it to take affirmative action insofar as such affirmative action deemed appropriate with respect to the union does not conflict with remedies which derive from the appeals procedure.

We are of the opinion that the Assistant Secretary improperly applied the AVSCOM decision of the Council in the present case.

In the AVSCOM case, as the Council recently explained at length in the DSA case,10/ the situation was essentially as follows:

> On July 1, 1971, a reorganization was effected within the Army Aviation Systems Command (AVSCOM), whereby 49 of 53 Headquarters employees represented in a separate unit by AFGE were combined with 35 employees from a nearby inactivated Depot unit represented by the Operating Engineers, into a newly formed subordinate element of AVSCOM Headquarters. This reorganization occurred while negotiations between AVSCOM and AFGE were in progress; and its anticipation prompted Army to file a petition with the Assistant Secretary in which Army contended that a single overall unit was now appropriate and requested an election to determine which of the two unions represented that unit. [Footnote omitted.] During the pendency of that petition, AFGE and AVSCOM continued to negotiate and in October 1971 reached full accord. However, AVSCOM refused to sign the agreement until the Assistant Secretary resolved the representation issue. AFGE thereupon filed a 19(a)(6) complaint by reason of AVSCOM's refusal to sign the agreement.
> In May 1972, the Assistant Secretary issued his decision in the representation case, dismissing the petition on the ground that there was insufficient basis for the activity's claim that separate units were no longer appropriate. (No appeal was taken to the Council from that decision.) Thereafter, in June 1972, the Assistant Secretary issued his decision in the unfair labor practice case, finding that, because the existing units remained viable, Army's refusal to sign the October 1971 agreement violated 19(a)(6). As a remedy, the Assistant Secretary ordered Army to sign the agreement upon request and to post the customary notice. Army appealed to the Council, objecting not to the 19(a)(6) finding or the required signing of the agreement, but to the posting requirement.
>
> In its AVSCOM decision, issued in July 1973, the Council upheld the posting requirement in the circumstances of that appeal. However, the Council also addressed the underlying dilemma faced by agency management in the course of such a reorganization, and the derivative responsibilities of the Assistant Secretary under the Order. In more detail, the Council stated at pp. 5-6 of its decision:
> > . . . [W]e recognize the serious dilemma which agency management is in when faced with circumstances such as those present in this case. That is, as a result of the reorganization of AVSCOM, the

10/ Defense Supply Agency, Defense Property Disposal Office, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Aberdeen, Maryland, A/SLMR No. 360, FLRC No. 74A-22 (December 9, 1975), Report No. 88, at 5-6 of Council decision.

Army had a doubt as to the continued appropriateness of the existing units, and sought to resolve that doubt by the filing of a petition with the Assistant Secretary. As stated above, if the existing units had been found to be inappropriate due to the reorganization of AVSCOM, the Army would not have been obligated to sign the contract. In fact, to have signed it could, at least potentially, have subjected it to a charge that it had violated section 19(a)(3) of the Order. Yet, because the existing units were subsequently found to be appropriate, the Assistant Secretary held that the Army was obligated to sign the negotiated agreement. Since there were no other allegations of misconduct involved in this case, the disposition of the representation issue was determinative of the disposition of the 19(a)(6) complaint.

In our view, this type of a dilemma or risk places an undue burden on an agency. That is, where an agency has acted in apparent good faith and availed itself of the representation proceedings offered in order to resolve legitimate questions as to the correct bargaining unit, and where no other evidence of misconduct is involved, an agency should not be forced to assume the risk of violating either section 19(a)(3) or section 19(a)(6) during the period in which the underlying representation issue is still pending before the Assistant Secretary.

Rather, we believe that procedures can and must be devised which will permit an agency to file a representation petition in good faith, to await the decision of the Assistant Secretary with respect to that petition, and to be given a reasonable opportunity to comply with the consequences which flow from the representation decision, before that agency incurs the risk of an unfair labor practice finding. Since it does not violate the Order to raise a question concerning representation in good faith, the procedures employed to effectuate the purposes of the Order must permit an agency to do so without risking an unfair labor practice finding.

Accordingly, while we leave to the discretion and judgment of the Assistant Secretary the determination as to the precise procedures which will best accomplish this result, we direct that his procedures be reviewed and revised so that, in the future, agencies will be permitted to await his decision on a representation petition without incurring the risk of an unfair labor practice finding. [Underscoring in part supplied.]

Thus, the Council's decision in AVSCOM stands for the proposition that, to avert the risk of an unfair labor practice finding, an agency must be permitted to file a representation petition, in good faith; to await the decision of the Assistant Secretary with respect to that petition; and to be given a reasonable opportunity to comply with the consequences which flow from the representation decision. However, nothing in AVSCOM supports the Assistant Secretary's conclusion in the instant case that "absent evidence . . . of an overriding exigency," the petitioning agency has an obligation to maintain the status quo during the pendency of the RA proceeding. Indeed, the status of existing personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions is not even addressed in the Council's AVSCOM decision.

Rather, the controlling principle as pertains to the status of personnel policies and matters affecting working conditions, following an agency reorganization, was subsequently explained by the Council in the report accompanying E.O. 11838. In that report, the Council discussed the agency's obligation while awaiting resolution of representation issues which arose because of an agency reorganization, stating:[11/]

> . . . [E]xisting recognitions, agreements, and dues withholding arrangements should be honored to the maximum extent possible consistent with the rights of the parties involved pending final decisions on issues raised by reorganizations. [Emphasis supplied.]

Applying this principle in the DSA case, the Council noted:[12/]

> [U]ntil any . . . issues raised by the reorganization are decided (e.g., questions concerning representation, unit questions, or the like), the . . . employer is . . . enjoined, in order to assure stability of labor relations and the well-being of its employees, to maintain recognition and to adhere to the terms of the prior agreement, including dues withholding, to the maximum extent possible. [Footnote omitted.]

Therefore, following a reorganization and during the pendency of a representation petition, the obligation of an agency under the Order, with respect to personnel policies and practices and matters affecting the working conditions of employees who are covered by the petition, is not to maintain the status quo absent evidence of an overriding exigency, as held in the present case by the Assistant Secretary, but instead to maintain recognition and to adhere to terms of the prior agreement to the maximum extent possible until the representation matter is resolved.

With respect to the precise nature of the obligation to maintain recognition and to adhere to the terms of the prior agreement to the maximum extent possible until the representation issues raised by the reorganization are resolved, this means that consistent with the circumstances of the reorganization and with the necessary functioning of the agency, an agency must continue to recognize the status of an incumbent labor organization as the exclusive representative of the employees; adhere to the terms of existing agreements; and otherwise maintain existing personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions to the extent consistent with the bargaining obligation under section 11(a) of the Order. Where the agency, as a direct result of the reorganization and consistent with the necessary functioning of the agency, must make changes in otherwise negotiable personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions, then the agency must notify the incumbent union or unions of those proposed changes and, upon request, negotiate on those matters covered by section 11(a) of the Order. Similarly, if work forces must be realigned as a result of a reorganization, the incumbent labor organization or organizations must be so advised and negotiations must be conducted, upon request, as to appropriate arrangements for employees adversely affected by the impact of such realignment, as expressly sanctioned in section 11(b) of the Order.

11/ Labor-Management Relations in the Federal Service (1975), at 51.

12/ Defense Supply Agency, Defense Property Disposal Office, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Aberdeen, Maryland, note 10, supra, at 15 of Council decision.

These requirements under the Order are intended carefully to balance the interests of the employees in continued representation during the critical period after a reorganization, when their conditions of employment will most likely be facing serious change, and the needs of the agency in fully adapting to the changed circumstances which ordinarily derive from an agency reorganization. Such bargaining obligation manifestly does not prevent changes by the agency in personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions brought about by and flowing out of the reorganization, and necessary to the functioning of the agency, but merely requires negotiation by the parties before those changes are undertaken in conformity with the provisions of section 11(a). Moreover, such obligation will not impede, but rather will implement, the efforts of the agency in carrying out its mission, by reason of the substantial impact on the well-being of the employees which the Order recognizes as vital to the efficient administration of the Government. Thus, this requirement best serves the interests of the employees, the union, and the agency, and most importantly, protects the paramount interest of the public.

We recognize that in AVSCOM the Council stated, and we affirm herein, that an agency should not be forced to violate its neutrality during the period in which the underlying representation question is pending; that is, risk committing an unfair labor practice, or, for that matter, risk improperly affecting the results of a representation election, because of its response to negotiating demands made by a labor organization whose continuing representational status has been called into question by the reorganization. Certainly, as the Council indicated in AVSCOM, an agency could decline to negotiate and execute a comprehensive new agreement with such a labor organization until the representational questions are resolved through the Assistant Secretary's procedures. However, balanced against this principle is the need, in circumstances where, during the pendency of the representational procedures, management concludes that it is not possible to maintain the personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions, for the previously existing representative to speak for the employees with respect to the intended change and the impact of such change on the employees. Otherwise, during this critical period either no changes would be possible in personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions thereby perhaps interfering with the necessary functioning of the agency, or changes could be made and the employees would lack a spokesperson when, as mentioned, their conditions of employment will most likely be facing serious change. Accordingly, an agency must meet the above-described negotiation obligation and, absent other circumstances such as bad faith, the meeting of such obligation shall not be a basis for a finding of an unfair labor practice or grounds for setting aside the election.

Applying these considerations in the instant case, it is clear that, if NFFE was not informed of the agency's proposed change in competitive areas, or if NFFE was so informed but the agency, upon request, refused to bargain thereon with NFFE, the agency must be deemed to have violated its obligation to negotiate under the Order.

However, the findings of the Assistant Secretary, which were based on principles held inapplicable to the present case, failed to address these critical and dispositive factors. Accordingly, we must remand the case to the Assistant Secretary for reconsideration and determination as to whether the agency violated its bargaining obligation as set forth herein.

Conclusion

In summary, as to the Assistant Secretary's holding with respect to the applicability of section 19(d) in this case, the Assistant Secretary properly determined that disposition of NFFE's complaint concerning the agency's unilateral change of competitive areas during the pendency of a representation proceeding was not precluded by section 19(d) of the Order. However, even assuming the agency were properly found to have committed an unfair labor practice in this regard (under the standard set forth below), the Assistant Secretary was prohibited by section 19(d) from imposing remedies which were attendant upon the appeals procedure before the CSC, such as the restoration of the affected employees to their previous positions with backpay. Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary's order imposing such remedies must be set aside.

As to the obligation of the agency during the pendency of the representation proceeding, in the reorganization circumstances here involved, such obligation, contrary to the conclusion of the Assistant Secretary, was not to maintain the status quo absent evidence of an overriding exigency, but to continue recognitions and adhere to the terms of existing agreements to the maximum extent possible until the representation matter is resolved, i.e., consistent with the circumstances of the reorganization and with the necessary functioning of the agency, an agency must continue to recognize the status of an incumbent labor organization as the exclusive representative of the employees; adhere to the terms of existing agreements; and otherwise maintain existing personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions to the extent consistent with the bargaining obligation under section 11(a) of the Order. However, while we set aside the Assistant Secretary's finding that the agency, in the absence of an overriding exigency, violated the Order by its failure to maintain the status quo, we remand the case to the Assistant Secretary to determine if in changing the competitive areas, the agency maintained the previously existing conditions to the maximum extent possible and met its obligation to negotiate with respect to any changes in competive areas. Further, if an unfair labor practice is found, the Assistant Secretary shall direct a remedy consistent with the principles enunciated herein.

Therefore, pursuant to section 2411.18(b) of the Council's rules of procedure, we set aside the Assistant Secretary's decision and order and remand the case to him for appropriate action consistent with our decision herein.

By the Council.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES, AFL-CIO, NATIONAL OFFICE
A/SLMR No. 809

This case involves an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the Social Security Administration, Bureau of Retirement and Survivors Insurance (Complainant) alleging that the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, National Office (Respondent) violated Section 19(b)(1) and (6) of the Order by refusing to concur with the Complainant's request to arbitrate the question of who is responsible for the cost of a transcript in an advisory arbitration hearing. In this regard, the Complainant contended that the parties' negotiated agreement provides for them to share the cost of court reporting services. On the other hand, the Respondent contended that the parties' negotiated agreement provides for the Complainant to pay the cost of court reporting services. Pursuant to a stipulation of facts by the parties, the Administrative Law Judge transferred the case to the Assistant Secretary without the issuance of a Recommended Decision and Order. While such action by the Administrative Law Judge was considered to be inappropriate under the Regulations, under the particular circumstances herein, the Assistant Secretary considered the case to be properly before him for decision.

The Assistant Secretary found that the Respondent's conduct was not violative of Section 19(b)(1) and (6) of the Order. In this regard, he noted that the gravamen of the instant dispute involves the parties' conflicting interpretation of their negotiated agreement which was not sufficiently unambiguous on the matter and that the Respondent's action was not a patent breach but, rather, was a good faith interpretation of the agreement. The Assistant Secretary noted further that alleged violations of a negotiated agreement which, as here, concern differing and arguable interpretations of such agreement, as distinguished from alleged action which constitute a clear, unilateral breach of the agreement, are not considered to be appropriately within the unfair labor practice forum but, rather, may be considered under Section 13(d) of the Order which provides for resolution of such disputes. Accordingly, he ordered that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

DECISION AND ORDER

This matter is before the Assistant Secretary pursuant to Administrative Law Judge John H. Fenton's June 24, 1976, Order forwarding the record in this matter to the Assistant Secretary for decision. 1/ Upon consideration of the entire record in this case, including the parties' stipulation of facts and accompanying exhibits and briefs filed by both parties, the Assistant Secretary finds:

The complaint herein alleges that the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, National Office (Respondent) violated Section 19(b)(1) and (6) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, by refusing to concur with the request of the Social Security Administration, Bureau of Retirement and Survivors Insurance (Complainant) to arbitrate the question of who is responsible for the cost of court reporting services in an advisory arbitration hearing. In this regard, the Complainant contends that the provision of Article 29 (Arbitration) of the parties' negotiated agreement which states, in part, that, "The arbitrator's fee and all expenses shall be borne equally by both parties," includes sharing the cost of court reporting services. It contends further that as the parties disagree as to what is the correct interpretation of the agreement regarding payment for court reporting services at an advisory arbitration hearing, the matter should be brought to arbitration for resolution. The Complainant also asserts that it properly processed a grievance under Article 28 (Grievance Procedure) of the agreement concerning the subject dispute which the Respondent has refused to acknowledge or accept. The Respondent, on the other hand, takes the position that Article 27 (Disciplinary and Adverse Action) of the negotiated agreement provides for advisory arbitration in certain adverse action proceedings in accordance with the procedure set forth in the arbitration article of the agreement and in lieu of a hearing held by an examiner under the Civil Service Commission Regulations. The Respondent maintains that Article 29 is silent in regard to the cost of transcripts and that Article 27, which incorporates higher level regulations, provides for the Complainant to supply and pay for transcripts at an advisory arbitration hearing. The Respondent also contends that the Complainant never processed a grievance under the required procedures of the negotiated grievance procedure and, therefore, no grievance on the matter involved has been appropriately filed.

The facts, as stipulated by the parties, are essentially as follows:

The Respondent is the current exclusive representative for all nonsupervisory employees at the Complainant's six regional offices located in New York City, Philadelphia, Birmingham, Chicago, Kansas City (Missouri), and Richmond (California). The parties entered into their current negotiated agreement on March 15, 1974. The National Council of Social Security Payment Center Locals (Council) administers the day-to-day functions of the negotiated agreement at the Complainant's six regional offices pursuant to the constitution approved by the Respondent and each of its locals.

The Council and the Complainant were parties to an advisory arbitration hearing held during the months of June and July 1974. The advisory arbitration hearing concerned the proposed discharge of an employee who, along with the Council, requested advisory arbitration in lieu of an examiner's hearing, pursuant to Article 27 of the negotiated agreement. On May 24, 1974, without the approval or authorization of the Respondent or the Council, the Complainant issued a $10,000 purchase order to Thyra D. Ellis and Associates, International (Ellis and Associates) to transcribe the advisory arbitration hearing. By letter dated June 27, 1974, Ellis and Associates requested the Council to guarantee payment for one-half the cost of the court reporting service. On or about July 1, the Council informed Ellis and Associates and the Complainant that it would not guarantee one-half the cost of transcribing the advisory arbitration hearing as it was the Complainant's responsiblity to pay the total cost of the reporting service. The Respondent suggested that Ellis and Associates look to the Complainant for a 100 percent payment guarantee. On or about July 2, 1974, the Complainant advised the Respondent that it would assume the responsibility for the payment of the court reporting service, but advised that it expected to be reimbursed by the Respondent for one-half of the total cost. The Respondent again refused to pay any portion of the court reporting cost stating that it was not its responsibility and restated its position upon receipt of the bill from the Complainant for one-half the cost. Both before and after the close of the hearing in the advisory arbitration matter, the Complainant requested that the parties submit the payment dispute to arbitration, but the Respondent stated that it was unaware that a grievance had been filed on the matter and refused to proceed to arbitration.

1/ There is no provision in the Assistant Secretary's Regulations which provides that an Administrative Law Judge may transfer a case to the Assistant Secretary without the issuance of a Recommended Decision and Order. However, notwithstanding the Administrative Law Judge's procedural error in directly transferring this case to the Assistant Secretary, the case was considered properly before the Assistant Secretary for decision in light of the agreement of the parties herein that the matter be submitted to the Assistant Secretary and the ensuing delay that would result from strict adherence to the Regulations. See, in this regard, Environmental Protection Agency, Region VII, Kansas City, Missouri, A/SLMR No. 668.

FINDINGS AND CONCLUSIONS

As noted above, the Complainant contends that the Respondent labor organization violated Section 19(b)(1) and (6) of the Order by refusing to arbitrate the question of who is responsible for the cost of court reporting services in an advisory arbitration hearing.

Under the circumstances outlined above, I find that the Respondent's refusal to proceed to arbitration was not violative of the Order. Thus, in my view, the gravamen of the instant dispute involves the parties' conflicting interpretation of their negotiated agreement. It is clear that the Respondent refused to comply with the Complainant's request to submit the dispute concerning their conflicting interpretations of the negotiated agreement to arbitration. While it is arguable that the Respondent's refusal to proceed to arbitration constituted a breach of its negotiated agreement, such conduct, in my view, did not constitute a violation of Section 19(b)(1) and (6) of the Order. It has been held previously that a breach of a negotiated agreement can be found to constitute an unfair labor practice where the conduct involved is sufficiently flagrant and persistent. 2/ In the instant case, it is clear from the parties' conflicting interpretations that the negotiated agreement was not sufficiently unambiguous on the matter and that the Respondent's conduct was not a patent breach, but, rather, was based on a good faith interpretation of the agreement. Alleged violations of a negotiated agreement which, as here, concern differing and arguable interpretations of such agreement, as distinguished from alleged actions which would constitute a clear unilateral breach of the agreement, are not considered to be appropriately raised within the unfair labor practice forum. 3/ Rather, as the dispute herein is over the Respondent's refusal to submit a particular issue to arbitration based on the latter's interpretation of its negotiated agreement, in my judgment, resolution of such a dispute may be attained under Section 13(d) of the Order which provides, in part, that "... questions as to whether or not a grievance is on a matter subject to the grievance procedure in an existing agreement, or is subject to arbitration under that agreement, ... may be referred to the Assistant Secretary for decision." In this connection, Part 205 of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations provides a procedure by which either party to a negotiated agreement may file an application seeking a determination by the Assistant Secretary as to whether or not an appropriately filed grievance is on a matter subject to the grievance or arbitration procedure in an existing agreement.

3/ Cf. Department of the Army, Watervliet Arsenal, Watervliet, New York, A/SLMR No. 624.

As the evidence herein was insufficient to establish that the Respondent's conduct with regard to its interpretation of the agreement was violative of Section 19(b)(1) and (6) of the Order, I shall order that the instant complaint be dismissed.

A/SLMR No. 810

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 3157 (Complainant) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (2) of the Order by transferring the Complainant's president because of his union activity.

The Administrative Law Judge found that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) when a supervisor issued a memo to the local president wherein a transfer was threatened. Although the Administrative Law Judge credited the supervisor's testimony to the effect that his comments and threat of transfer were directed to the local president as an individual as opposed to those activities carried on as union president, the Administrative Law Judge found that a literal reading of the memo failed to make such intention clear. The Administrative Law Judge recommended dismissal of the Section 19(a)(2) allegation finding that the evidence failed to show that the Respondent's action in transferring the local president was not based upon legitimate agency considerations.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge and ordered that the Respondent cease and desist from the conduct found violative and that it take certain affirmative actions.

DECISION AND ORDER

On November 30, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Burton S. Sternburg issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom and take certain affirmative action as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. Thereafter, the Complainant filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. The Respondent subsequently filed an answering brief to the Complainant's exceptions.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, including the exceptions and supporting brief filed by the Complainant, and the answering brief to

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Agricultural Marketing Service, Grain Division, New Orleans, Louisiana, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Interfering with, restraining, or coercing Alfred Bjorkgren in the exercise of his rights assured by the Order by threatening him with a possible transfer because of his activity on behalf of American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 3157.

(b) In any like or related manner interfering with, restraining, or coercing its employees in the exercise of rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purposes and policies of the Executive Order:

(a) Post at the New Orleans Office of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Agricultural Marketing Service, Grain Division, copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms, they shall

2/ Following the issuance of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order, the Respondent filed a motion to dismiss with the Assistant Secretary on the basis that the local union president had appealed his subsequent discharge for failure to report to his new assignment to the Federal Employee Appeals Authority (FEAA) and, thus, Section 19(d) of the Order served to remove the instant proceeding from the jurisdiction of the Assistant Secretary. In my view, the issues involved herein concerning a threat of transfer and the basis for the transfer of the president of the Complainant are properly before the Assistant Secretary. Thus, while the issue of the discharge of the local union president is before the FEAA having been raised under a statutory appeals procedure, Section 19(d) of the Order would not dispose of the issues related to the transfer which were properly raised prior to the discharge under Section 19(a) of the Order. Under these circumstances, the Respondent's motion to dismiss is hereby denied.

(b) Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations, notify the Assistant Secretary, in writing, within 30 days from the date of this order as to what steps have been taken to comply herewith.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to an amended complaint first filed on June 21, 1976, under Executive Order 11491, as amended, by Local 3157, American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, (hereinafter called the Union or AFGE), against the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Agricultural Marketing Service, New Orleans Grain Division Field Office, (hereinafter called the Respondent or Activity), a Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued by the Assistant Regional Director for the Kansas City, Missouri, Region on September 13, 1976.

The complaint alleges that the Respondent violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (2) of the Executive Order by virtue of its actions in transferring Union President Alfred Bjorkgren to the Sacramento, California field office in retaliation for his union activities.

A hearing was held in the captioned matter on September 30, 1976, in New Orleans, Louisiana. All parties were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses, and to introduce evidence bearing on the issues involved herein.

Findings of Fact

Alfred H. Bjorkgren, the alleged discriminatee herein, has been employed by the Respondent in the New Orleans area for some twenty-one years. 1/ In July of 1973, Mr. Bjorkgren was elected president of Local 3157, AFGE, which is the exclusive representative of the employees in the Respondent's New Orleans Field Office. Thereafter, during the ensuing three years, Mr. Bjorkgren, who had never filed a grievance or formal complaint, became extremely active and filed numerous complaints, grievances and unfair labor practice charges and complaints in an attempt to improve workign conditions. Most of the grievances, complaints and ULP's filed by Mr. Bjorkgren in his capacity as union president dealt with the hours of work and tours of duty, which at times involved 16 hour work days. Mr. Bjorkgren also played an important role in an extensive "media"

1/ At the time of the events underlying the instant complaint Mr. Bjorkgren was a GS-9 grain inspector.

campaign designed to inform the public of the problems and working conditions of the employees in the New Orleans field office. 2/ According to the stipulation of the parties, it appears that the "media" campaign started about December 1975.

In addition to New Orleans, Respondent operates numerous grain and commodity inspection stations throughout the United States, among which is Sacramento, California. Several years ago, pursuant to the request of California officials, Respondent abandoned its Sacramento field office and entered into a cooperative arrangement with the State of California whereby all inspections were to be carried out by California State employees under the supervision of one Federal inspector. The arrangement did not work out and in the Spring of 1975, California proposed that the parties go back to the original system whereby both the State and the Federal Government would each have their separate offices staffed with their own employees. The new arrangement put the Respondent in the position of having to restaff its Sacramento office from scratch since the federal employees formerly working in Sacramento had been promoted, retired, etc. Additionally, since the Sacramento office would be faced with the supervision of the California inspectors in the performance of grain, bean and rice grading and also be the appeal body from grading standards imposed by the experienced California inspectors, the Respondent determined that the inspector in the Sacramento office would have to have extensive experience in all phases of inspection and grading.

On December 4, 1975, Respondent issued "Vacancy Announcement 1773" for an "Agricultural Commodity Grader, Grade GS-9" to be located in Sacramento, California. The area of consideration for the vacancy was "nationwide." Only two employees, neither of whom was deemed qualified, responded to the announcement. Thereafter, Mr. George Lipscomb, the Assistant Branch Chief of the Inspection Branch, who was responsible for filling the vacancy, asked the Rice Inspection Section to canvass the field offices which grade rice and determine the names of anyone who could potentially qualify for the Sacramento position. The various field offices which grade rice were canvassed on 2/ Mr. Bjorkgren's extensive union activities are acknowledged by Respondent in a joint stipulation submitted by the parties.

January 8, 1976, and a report thereon was subsequently sent to Mr. Lipscomb. Upon receipt of the list from the field offices which contained some forty to fifty names, Mr. Lipscomb called the supervisor from each field office and discussed the qualifications of the respective employees appearing on the list. The list of candidates was eventually narrowed down to three individuals who were deemed qualified for the Sacramento vacancy, Mr. Bjorkgren, Mr. Hebert and Mr. Morgani. 3/

Upon discovering that Mr. Bjorkgren, the Union President, was one of the three remaining eligibles for the Sacramento position, Mr. Lipscomb went to the Division Director's office and informed him of such fact and the possible repercussions should he be the person selected for transfer. After a brief discussion it was decided to proceed without regard to the union affiliation or activities of the three eligibles and request Personnel to supply the retention rights, i.e. seniority, of the three individuals.

On February 4, 1976, Mr. Bjorkgren had a meeting with field office supervisor Harlan Ryan, wherein Mr. Ryan, among other things, reprimanded Mr. Bjorkgren for conducting union business on government time and telephones. On February 5, 1976, Mr. Ryan directed a memorandum to Mr. Bjorkgren wherein he summed up their conversation of the day before. 5/ In addition to discussing Mr. Bjorkgren's alleged union activity on Government time the memorandum went on to state:

> I also discussed with you the chronic complaining, lack of loyalty and pride in the D partment and conducting yourself in such a way as to embarrass the Department. I also discussed the harassment tactics that have been at least, in part, your doing.

3/ According to the record other employees on the list were eliminated because they did not have extensive experience in all three commodities.

4/ According to the record, it had always been the Agency practice to effect involuntary transfers on the basis of retention rights.

5/ A copy of the memorandum was sent to Mr. Lipscomb.

> I discussed with you the hours of work and suggested that I might recommend a lateral transfer to a market that would have hours that would be more to your liking. 6/

When Mr. Lipscomb received a copy of Mr. Ryan's February 5, 1976, Memorandum he immediately consulted with the Respondent's Labor-Management Relations Officer with respect to advisability of considering Union President Bjorkgren, who was one of the three eligibles, for the Sacramento vacancy. After concluding that they had no choice but to go through with their original plan to select the individual for the Sacramento vacancy on the basis of lowest seniority, Mr. Lipscomb on February 12, 1976, requested the Personnel Division to submit a report of the retention status of the three qualified individuals. 7/ The Personnel Division on March 4, 1976, submitted its report which showed that Mr. Bjorkgren had the lowest retention standing of the three employees involved. Mr. Lipscomb then called in each of the three eligible employees and asked if they were interested in a voluntary transfer. When each of the employees declined, Mr. Lipscomb selected Mr. Bjorkgren based upon his low retention standing and a formal letter to this effect was mailed on April 30, 1976. The initial date of transfer, July 4, 1976, was subsequently postponed to August 29, 1976. Mr. Bjorkgren did not report to Sacramento as scheduled.

Up at least to the time of the instant hearing no permanent assignment has been made to Sacramento. The Respondent has been carrying out its inspection duties at Sacramento on the basis of details and other temporary assignments. One of the other two qualified employees has spent only one month at Sacramento.

6/ Mr. Bjorkgren responded by letter dated February 19, 1976 and denied Mr. Ryan's allegations, pointing out, among other things, that his criticism of the hours of work and other activities which annoyed Mr. Ryan were solely in his capacity of Union President.

7/ According to Mr. Lipscomb, the activity was concerned that the deletion of Mr. Bjorkgren's name from the list of eligibles could be grounds for a complaint from the remaining two qualified employees should it turn out that they had more seniority and were required to involuntarily transfer to Sacramento.

With respect to the qualifications required for the Sacramento vacancy, the Complainant takes the position that qualified inspectors could be trained to do the required inspections at Sacramento in a two month period. On the other hand, Mr. Conrad Herdon, former Chairman of the Board of Appeals and Review in Washington, D.C. which is comprised of experts in the field and makes the final rulings on the "grading of grain" creditably testified that "to be proficient in grading beans, rice, or grain, to perform at a journeyman level takes approximately two years experience."

Other than the February 5, 1976 memeorandum from Mr. Ryan to Mr. Bjorkgren, the record is devoid of any evidence of independent 8(a)(1) violations or union animus. In fact, according to the uncontroverted testimony of Mr. Lipscomb over the past years a number of employees who had held various high positions in the Union such as president, vice-president, treasurer, etc., had been promoted to higher positions without incident. Additionally, according to the credited testimony of Mr. Lipscomb over the past three years there have been approximately 100 involuntary transfers within his area of supervision.

Discussion and Conclusion

Section 203.15 of the Rules and Regulations of the Assistant Secretary imposes upon a complainant the burden of proving the allegations of the complaint by a preponderance of the evidence. The Complainant has failed in this endeavor.

While it is true that the decision to transfer Mr. Bjorkgren occurring shortly after the February 5, 1976, memorandum of Mr. Ryan threatening to take such action makes he case suspicious, I can not based upon the evidence as a whole conclude that the transfer was motivated in part by Mr. Bjorkgren's activities as president of the Union. In reaching this conclusion I note that other active union adherents and/or officers have been promoted without incident, the fact that involuntary transfers were a usual occurrence in the grain division, the absence of any probative evidence indicating that the extensive evaluation of possible eligibles made by the Respondent prior to reducing the list to three inspectors was deliberately tailored to Mr. Bjorkgren's qualifications, and the absence of any basis indicating that the Respondent's original decision to fill the Sacramento vacancy with a fully experienced inspector was not based upon legitimate Agency considerations.

Accordingly, I am constrained to recommend that the 19( )(2) allegation of the complaint based upon the involuntary transfer of Mr. Bjorkgren to Sacramento be dismissed in its entirety.

However, with respect to the February 5, 1976 memorandum from Mr. Ryan to Mr. Bjorkgren wherein a transfer is threatened I find such memorandum to constitute coercion and restraint within the meaning of Section 19(a)(1) of the Executive Order. While I credit Mr. Ryan's testimony to the effect that his comments and threat of transfer were directed solely at Mr. Bjorkgren's activities as an individual as opposed to those carried on as Union president, the fact remains that a literal reading of the memorandum fails to make such intention clear. Accordingly, I conclude that in issuing the memorandum of February 5, 1976, wherein Mr. Bjorkgren was threatened with a possible transfer because of his activities as Union president, Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Executive Order and recommend the adoption of the order set forth below.

March 24, 1977

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

NATIONAL TREASURY EMPLOYEES UNION,
CHAPTER 162, NTEU; CHAPTER 172, NTEU; and JOINT COUNCIL OF CUSTOMS CHAPTERS, NTEU
A/SLMR No. 811

This case involved three unfair labor practice complaints filed by the Department of the Treasury, U.S. Customs Service, Chicago Region, alleging that the Respondents, the National Treasury Employees Union, Chapter 162, NTEU; Chapter 172, NTEU; and Joint Council of Customs Chapters, NTEU, (NTEU), violated Section 19(b)(4) of the Order by picketing the Terminal 2 Building and the International Arrivals Terminal Building at O'Hare International Airport on September 29, October 2, and October 8, 1976.

Under the expedited procedures provided in Section 203.7(b)(1) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations, a preliminary hearing was held, and on the basis of the record and the decisions of the Assistant Secretary and the Federal Labor Relations Council (Council) in National Treasury Employees Union, A/SLMR No. 536, FLRC No. 75A-96, the Administrative Law Judge found the Labor-Management Services Regional Administrator had met the burden of showing that there was reasonable cause to believe that the picketing had violated Section 19(b)(4) of the Order. Subsequent thereto, pursuant to Section 203.7(b)(6) of the Regulations, a Notice of Hearing before the Chief Administrative Law Judge was issued. Thereafter, the parties executed a stipulation waiving the ordering of an evidentiary hearing on the complaints and agreeing that the record should consist of the entire record made in the course of the preliminary hearing.

In his Recommended Decision and Order, the Chief Administrative Law Judge concluded that under the precedent of the IRS case, in which the Assistant Secretary and the Council had held that Section 19(b)(4) prohibits all picketing in a labor-management dispute in the Federal Sector, he was constrained to find that the picketing in the instant cases was violative of the Order. In this connection, he noted that the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, in National Treasury Employees v. Paul J. Fasser, Jr., et al Civil Action No. 76-408- (D.D.C. 1976), had vacated the Assistant Secretary's Order in A/SLMR No. 536 on the ground that an absolute ban on all picketing in the precise fact situation in the IRS case was overly broad and violative of the First Amendment of the Constitution. Although, in his view, the holding of the District Court would be equally applicable to the factual circumstances in the instant case, he concluded that its decision, which was at the time of his Recommended Decision and Order still subject to appeal, was not yet the law of the forum and, thus, the decisions of the Assistant Secretary and the Council constituted binding precedent.

Subsequent to the issuance of the Chief Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order, the Government withdrew its appeal from the decision of the District Court in the IRS case. Thereafter, the Council issued a Statement on Major Policy Issue, FLRC No. 76P-4, in which it delineated the permissible or nonpermissible areas of picketing, to be determined on a case-by-case basis. In this regard, it set forth as the standard for whether Section 19(b)(4) had been violated in specific cases "whether, under the particular circumstances of the case, the picketing interfered with or reasonably threatened to interfere with the operation of the Government agency involved" and, further, it indicated those matters the Assistant Secretary should develop in the record and consider in arriving at his conclusions in specific cases.

The Assistant Secretary, under the particular circumstances of the instant cases, concurred in the findings of the Chief Administrative Law Judge with respect to the nature and effect of the picketing on the Complainant's operation and, in accordance with the guidelines set forth by the Council in FLRC No. 76P-4, found that the Respondent's picketing fell within the permissible limits under Section 19(b)(4) of the Order. Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the complaints be dismissed in their entirety.

DECISION AND ORDER

On November 17, 1976, Chief Administrative Law Judge H. Stephan Gordon issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled consolidated proceeding, finding that the Respondents had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that they cease and desist therefrom and take certain affirmative actions as set forth in the attached Chief Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. Thereafter, the Complainant and the Respondents filed exceptions and supporting briefs with respect to the Chief Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

Upon consideration of the Chief Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject cases, including the exceptions and supporting briefs filed by the Complainant and the Respondents, I hereby adopt the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Chief Administrative Law Judge, only to the extent consistent herewith. 1/

1/ Pursuant to Section 203.7(b)(6) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations, a Notice of Hearing was issued by the Regional Administrator on October 26, 1976. Thereafter, the parties executed a stipulation waiving the ordering of an evidentiary hearing on the complaints in the instant cases. In this regard, they agreed that the record herein should consist of the entire record, including all exhibits, affidavits and other documents admitted into evidence, made in the course

The instant complaints allege that the Respondents violated Section 19(b)(4) of the Executive Order by improperly sponsoring picketing on September 29, October 2, and October 8, 1976, of the Complainant at the Terminal 2 Building and the International Arrivals Terminal Building of O'Hare International Airport, Chicago, Illinois.

As indicated above, pursuant to Section 203.7(b)(1) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations, a preliminary consolidated hearing was conducted before Administrative Law Judge Burton S. Sternburg for the purpose of determining whether there existed reasonable cause to believe that a violation of Section 19(b)(4) of the Order had, in fact, occurred. On October 26, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Sternburg issued his Decision and Order in which he found reasonable cause to believe that the Respondents had violated Section 19(b)(4) of the Order, and ordered the Respondents to cease and desist from such conduct pending disposition of the complaints. 2/

The facts of the instant cases, which essentially are not in dispute, are set forth in detail in the Chief Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order, and I shall repeat them only to the extent necessary.

The record reveals that on September 29, October 2, and October 8, 1976, the Respondents peacefully picketed the Complainant 3/ for the purpose of informing the public of the problem they were having with negotiations for a new agreement; the picketing lasted for approximately

1/ of the preliminary hearing on the instant complaints before Administrative Law Judge Burton S. Sternburg on October 14, 1976.

2/ Thereafter, the Respondents filed a Complaint for Injunctive Relief and Declaratory Judgment in the United States District Court for Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division (Civil Action No. 76C4030). On November 1, 1976, that District Court temporarily restrained and enjoined, among others, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations as well as the Regional Administrator from taking any action against the Respondents for engaging in peaceful picketing until further order of that Court. In his Recommended Decision and Order, the Chief Administrative Law Judge noted that he had been advised administratively that the U.S. District Court did not consider its order to include other administrative proceedings under the Executive Order, including the determination of the instant cases.

3/ The evidence establishes that the mission of the Complainant, including its operation at O'Hare International Airport, is to assess and collect customs duties on imported merchandise, to prevent fraud and smuggling, and to control carriers, persons, and articles entering and departing the United States.

two hours on each date and involved approximately 15 to 25 pickets during those periods; the picket signs related to the labor-management dispute and bore the legends: "Search Us: - Still No Contract;" "Customs Declaration - NTEU Contract Now;" the picketing was peaceful at all times and caused no interference with the operations of any airlines, the Complainant, deliveries or passengers; the picketing occurred at an entrance at the upper level of the International Arrivals Building where passengers generally embark and disembark; and the Complainant's quarters are located on the lower level of this building, which space is paid for by the airlines or donated by the City of Chicago. Two airline representatives and two custom brokers, upon inquiry, were assured by the Complainant that there would be no disruption of its services.

At the consolidated hearing before Administrative Law Judge Sternburg, the parties stipulated, and in their exceptions in the instant proceedings, the Respondents admitted that the picketing which occurred on September 29, October 2, and October 8, 1976, was, in fact, sponsored by the Respondents and occurred in the context of a labor-management dispute which existed between the Complainant and the Respondents and, further, that the Respondents had every intention of picketing in the future.

The Chief Administrative Law Judge found that the picketing engaged in by the Respondents was for the purpose of informing the public of the problem the Respondents were having with the Complainant with regard to the negotiations for a new agreement, that it was clearly designed to inform the public of the pending labor-management dispute, that such picketing was completely peaceful, and that it did not interfere in any manner with the operations of the Complainant or any other entity located on the premises where the picketing occurred. Nor did it interfere with the ingress or egress of the general public to these premises or with any deliveries or any other normal operations on the premises. He further found that the Complainant's mission at O'Hare International Airport was not of such a sensitive nature as to require that different criteria should be applied than had been applied in National Treasury Employees Union, A/SLMR No. 536, FLRC No. 75A-96. In that case, the Assistant Secretary and the Federal Labor Relations Council (Council) had held, respectively, that Section 19(b)(4) prohibited all picketing in a labor-management dispute in the Federal Sector. Noting that the holding of the IRS case was applicable herein and constituted binding precedent in the instant proceedings, the Chief Administrative Law Judge found the Respondents had violated Section 19(b)(4). In this connection, the Chief Administrative Law Judge noted and discussed in detail the decision of Judge Gerhard Gesell of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, in National Treasury Employees v. Paul J. Fasser, Jr., et al, Civil Action No. 76-408 - (D.D.C. 1976), in which the District Court vacated the Order of the Assistant Secretary in A/SLMR No. 536 on the ground that an absolute ban on all picketing was, in the context of "the precise fact situation presented," overly broad and violative of the First Amendment of the Constitution. He noted that if Judge Gesell's decision in the IRS case be considered binding precedent, then "in my opinion, his holding in the IRS case ... would be equally applicable to the case at bar," 4/ but that, in the circumstances applicable at the time of his decision herein, while the IRS case could be appealed to the U.S. Circuit Court, "Judge Gesell's decision would not become the law of the forum unless and until it is affirmed by the reviewing court." Accordingly, the Chief Administrative Law Judge concluded that for purposes of his decision he was constrained to follow the scheme of the Executive Order, and, under the circumstances, as well as the timing of the instant case, accept as binding precedent the prior decisions of the Assistant Secretary and the Federal Labor Relations Council in the IRS case that the prohibitions contained in Section 19(b)(4) of the Order are absolute and prohibit all picketing by a labor organization in a labor-management dispute.

On January 4, 1977, subsequent to the issuance of the Chief Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order in this matter, the Government withdrew its appeal from the decision of the District Court in the IRS case. Thereafter, on January 5, 1977, the Council issued a Statement on Major Policy Issue, FLRC No. 76P-4, in which it noted, among other things, that the District Court had determined that the application of Section 19(b)(4) to the precise fact situation in the IRS case contravened the First Amendment of the Constitution and, consistent with that decision, delineated the permissible or nonpermissible areas of picketing. In this regard, the Council stated that it had concluded that it would "accomplish the delineation of picketing which is permissible or nonpermissible under Section 19(b)(4) on a case-by-case basis, 4/ The Complainant excepted to the Chief Administrative Law Judge's "specific rejection of the Complainant's argument that the mission of the U.S. Customs Service at O'Hare International Airport is of so sensitive a nature that different criteria should be applied than to the operations, functions, and mission of the IRS", and to his conclusion that the testimony as well as the evidentiary material introduced by the Complainant "convinces me that the two situations are virtually identical and the same criteria should be applied". It asserts that the thrust of its argument was not the difference between the missions of the two agencies, but that in the IRS case, the facts of record were essentially limited to the picketing activities per se and not against the background of the IRS mission. It contends that its functions are so sensitive that the picketing of the Respondents constituted an actual or threatened interference with its mission performed at the O'Hare International Airport. However, in agreement with the Chief Administrative Law Judge, I find that the evidence does not support a conclusion that the Complainant's activities at the O'Hare International Airport are so sensitive in nature as to warrant a different conclusion in this regard than in the IRS case.

utilizing the adjudicatory procedures established in sections 4(c)(1) and 6 of the Order." In this connection, it set forth as the standard for whether Section 19(b)(4) had been violated in specific cases, "whether, under the particular circumstances of the case, the picketing interfered with or reasonably threatened to interfere with the operation of the Government agency involved, in violation of section 19(b)(4) of the Order." The Council stated that the Assistant Secretary in his consideration of such matters should "fully develop in the record and carefully consider the precise Government interest sought to be protected and such matters as the sensitivity of the governmental function involved, the situs of the picketed operation, the number of pickets, the purpose of the picketing, the conduct of the pickets, and any other facts relevant to the exact nature of the picketing and the Government organization concerned," and "shall determine whether the picketing involved in the particular case interfered with or reasonably threatened to interfere with the operation of the affected Government agency and thereby violated section 19(b)(4) of the Order." 5/

Under the particular circumstances of the instant cases, including the findings of the Chief Administrative Law Judge, and in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the Council's Statement on Major Policy Issue , FLRC No. 76P-4, I find that in the instant cases the Respondent's picketing falls within the Council's definition of "permissible picketing" under Section 19(b)(4) of the Order. In this regard, the evidence establishes that the picketing by the Respondents was peaceful and was limited to relatively short periods on each day it occurred; the number of pickets was not excessive; the picketing was for the purpose of informing the public of its labor-management dispute with the Complainant; and the picketing did not interfere with the operation of the Complainant. Nor do I find in the record sufficient evidence to support a finding that the picketing reasonably threatened to interfere with the operation of the Complainant. Further, as noted above, I find that the evidence fails to establish that the Complainant's functions involved at the O'Hare International Airport were so sensitive that the Respondents' picketing would per se be so injurious and disruptive as to justify an absolute ban against all picketing.

Accordingly, based on the Council's rationale contained in FLRC No. 76P-4, as applied to the facts found in the instant cases, I find the picketing engaged in by the Respondents falls within permissible limits and I shall order that the complaints herein be dismissed in their entirety.

5/ On January 24, 1977, based on the District Court's holding and the rationale contained therein, the Council's rationale contained in FLRC No. 76P-4, and the facts as found in A/SLMR No. 536, the Assistant Secretary dismissed the complaint in that case in its entirety. See A/SLMR No. 783.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the complaints in Case Nos. 50-13182(CO), 50-13184(CO), and 50-13190(CO), be, and they hereby are, dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

These cases, having been consolidated for hearing by the Regional Administrator for the Chicago, Illinois Region, came to me on a Notice of Hearing on Complaint dated October 26, 1976, alleging violations of Section 19(b)(4) of Executive Order 11491, as amended (hereinafter called the Executive Order.

On the basis of these complaints which were filed by the Department of the Treasury, U. S. Customs Service, Chicago Region (hereinafter called Complainant) on September 29, October 2 and October 8, 1976, respectively, the Regional Administrator, Labor-Management Services Administration, U. S. Department of Labor (hereinafter called the Petitioner), issued a Notice of Preliminary Hearing on October 13, 1976, alleging that the National Treasury Employees Union, Chapter 162, NTEU; Chapter 172, NTEU; and the Joint Council of Customs Chapters, NTEU (hereinafter collectively called the Respondents) had engaged in conduct violative of Section 19(b)(4) of the Executive Order. 1/

Pursuant to such Notice of Preliminary Hearing a hearing was held on October 14, 1976 before Administrative Law Judge Burton S. Sternburg, resulting in Decision and Order, dated October 26, 1976, wherein Judge Sternburg found reasonable cause to believe that a violation of the Executive Order had occurred and ordered Respondents, among other things, to cease and desist from such conduct pending disposition of the consolidated complaints.

Subsequently, Respondents filed a Complaint for Injunctive Relief and Declaratory Judgment in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division (Civil Action No. 76C4030), and on November 1, 1976, that Court temporarily restrained and enjoined, among others, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations as well as the Regional Administrator from taking any action against Respondent for engaging in peaceful picketing until further order of that Court. The breadth of the temporary restraining order of the U. S. District Court caused me some concern whether I was empowered to proceed with the case at bar. However, having recently been administratively advised

1/ Section 19(b)(4) provides that a labor organization shall not "...picket an agency in a labor management dispute; or condone such activity by failing to take affirmative action to prevent or stop it."

that the U. S. District Court did not consider its order to include other administrative proceedings under the Executive Order, including the determination of the case at bar, and in view of the expedited procedures inherent in these proceedings, I feel constrained to decide this matter as expeditiously as possible and without the benefit of a further determination by the U. S. District Court.

On October 29, 1976, November 1, 1976, and November 3, 1976, the respective parties executed a stipulation wherein they waived an evidentiary Hearing on the Complaint in these matters and agreed that the record herein shall consist of the entire record, including all exhibits, affidavits, and other documents admitted into evidence, made in the course of the Preliminary Hearing on Complaint before Administrative Law Judge Sternburg on October 14, 1976.

On November 8, 1976, Respondents and Complainant filed additional briefs and on the same date Petitioner adopted by reference the brief previously submitted to Judge Sternburg. These briefs have been duly considered.

Findings of Fact

The facts in these consolidated cases do not appear to be in dispute. On the basis of the entire record, including a careful perusal of the transcript made at the Preliminary Hearing and the evidentiary material introduced at that hearing, I find, in essential concurrence with Judge Sternburg, that:

(1) Respondents sponsored picketing at the Terminal 2 Building and the International Arrivals Terminal Building, O'Hare International Airport, Chicago, Illinois, on September 29, October 2, and October 8, 1976.

(2) The picketing occurred in the context of a labor-management dispute.

(3) On September 29, 1976, approximately fifteen persons began picketing in a circle at 9:30 a.m. on the upper level outside of Terminal Building No. 2, some fifteen to twenty feet from the entrance of United Airlines. At approximately 10:30 a.m., upon being informed of an unwritten airline rule that picketing was to take place only in front of an affected airline, the pickets, at the request of a policeman, voluntarily complied and moved to a different location on the upper level of the International Arrivals Building. The picketing was confined to an area some ten feet from the nearest entrance to the building and ceased at approximately 11:30 a.m.

(4) On October 2, 1976, approximately twenty to twenty-five individuals began picketing at 11:30 a.m. on the upper level of the International Arrivals Building. The picketing which ended at about 1:30 p.m., was confined to a location some ten to fifteen feet from the entrance to the building.

(5) On October 8, 1976, some fifteen to twenty individuals picketed on the upper level of the International Arrivals Building from approximately 10:15 a.m. to 12 noon. Although the pickets were originally located some ten to fifteen feet from one of the two upper level entrances to the building, they subsequently moved to a location between the two entrances. In so doing they were forced to walk across one of the entrances. When, on this single occasion, they passed the building entrance, the pickets walked individually with their respective signs held down.

(6) The picket signs related to the labor-management dispute and the picketing was for the purpose of informing the public of the problem that NTEU was having with the negotiations for a new contract.

(7) The picket signs bore the following legends: "Search Us: - Still No Contract"; "Customs Declaration - NTEU Contract Now."

(8) The picketing was peaceful at all times and caused no interference with the operations of any airline, Complainant, deliveries or passengers entering or departing the buildings.

(9) Upon observing the pickets, two airlines representatives and two customs brokers inquired of Complainant regarding any possible disruption of services. All were assured that there would be no disruption.

(10) Although Complainant is located at the lower level of the International Arrivals Terminal Building, all picketing took place at the upper level which is generally used by embarking and disembarking passengers.

(11) The space occupied by the Complainant at the O'Hare International Airport is paid for by the airlines or donated by the City of Chicago.

Issues

1. Did the picketing violate Section 19(b)(4) of the Order?

2. Does the case at bar factually fall within the guidelines enunciated by Judge Gesell of the U. S. District Court for the District of Columbia in NTEU v. Fasser, et al., Civil Action No. 76-408 (D.C.D.C. September 22, 1976)?

3. Is the aforementioned decision by Judge Gesell the law of the forum and, as such, binding precedent?

Conclusions of Law

The scope of the Executive Order with respect to the prohibition against picketing contained in Section 19(b)(4), including my personal apprehension concerning its breadth, has been fully discussed in the respective decisions issued in Internal Revenue Service v. National Treasury Employees Union, Case No. 22-5976(CA), July 7, 1975; A/SLMR No. 536, July 29, 1975; FLRC No. 75A-96, March 3, 1976. These decisions make it eminently clear that, in the opinion of the Assistant Secretary as well as the Federal Labor Relations Council, the respective reviewing bodies within the framework of the Executive Order, the prohibitions contained in Section 19(b)(4) of the Executive Order are absolute and prohibit all picketing by a labor organization in a labor-management dispute. Any further discussion or explication of these decisions and holdings would serve no further purpose and, indeed, would be redundant. This is especially so because the case at bar is factually virtually indistinguishable from the IRS case, supra. Thus, the type of picketing engaged in by Respondents is similar to that in the IRS Case in that: (1) the legends on the picket signs were unambiguous and inoffensive and were clearly designed to inform the public of a pending labor dispute; (2) the picketing was completely peaceful and did not interfere in any manner with the operations of Complainant or any other entity located on the premises where the picketing occurred nor did it interfere with the ingress or egress of the general public to these premises; and (3) the picketing was not designed to nor did it interfere with any deliveries or any other normal operation of the premises where the picketing occurred. In this respect, I must specifically reject Complainant's argument that the mission of the U. S. Customs Service at O'Hare International Airport is of so sensitive a nature that different criteria should be applied than to the operations, functions, and mission of IRS. A careful perusal of the testimony, as well as the evidentiary material introduced by Complainant, convinces me that the two situations are virtually identical and the same criteria should be applied.

On the basis of the foregoing, the conclusion is inescapable that the holding of the Assistant Secretary, as well as of the Federal Labor Relations Council are totally applicable to the case at bar and that, on the basis of these holdings, the picketing engaged in by Respondents was violative of Section 19(b)(4) of the Executive Order.

However, an ancillary and more difficult question is raised by the fact that on September 22, 1976, Judge Gesell of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, issued a decision in the IRS case, supra, wherein he vacated the Order of the Assistant Secretary on the ground that an absolute ban on all picketing was, "in this particular instance" and in the context of "the precise fact situation presented" in that case, overly broad and violative of the First Amendment to the Constitution. In a carefully crafted, studious, and in my estimation, persuasive opinion, Judge Gesell, on the record before him, specifically declined to declare the picketing prohibition of the Executive Order unconstitutional. Indeed, Judge Gesell held that "Executive Order 11491 can constitutionally prohibit any picketing, whether or not peaceful and informational, that actually interferes or reasonably threatens to interfere with the operation of the affected Government agency." Moreover, as Judge Gesell points out, some types of peaceful informational picketing could, under given circumstances, including the sensitivity of a particular governmental function, be so disruptive and so injurious to the Government, that a total ban could be appropriately imposed. The application of such criteria and the development of further guidelines, Judge Gesell quite appropriately leaves to the circumstances of future and more complete records as well as to the expertise of the Federal Labor Relations Council which "may, if it chooses, develop through rulemaking proceedings a record delineating more precisely the nature of the Government interest to be protected under various circumstances." What Judge Gesell does decide quite clearly and emphatically is that, under the precise fact situation found in the IRS case, the Assistant Secretary's Decision and Order is overly broad and unduly intrudes upon free expression in violation of the First Amendment of the Constitution. In the Judge's opinion, "the interests of the Federal Government in the smooth, efficient functioning of IRS Service Centers can be adequately protected by a more limited order."

Thus, while Judge Gesell's decision in the IRS case is deliberately very limited in scope, it nevertheless has a direct bearing on the case at bar. For, as I have already found, the factual situation of the instant case, whether by accident or design, is indistinguishable from the facts in the IRS case. A more detailed attempt on my part to distinguish the facts of the two cases could well be interpreted as an exercise in sophistry and to have no other purpose than to circumvent Judge Gesell's holding in the IRS case. Nor, for the same reason, is it necessary to engage in a lengthy discussion whether the nature of the picketing or the mission and function of the Complainant fall within those examples cited by Judge Gesell which would permit a total ban on picketing. First, the record is devoid of even a scintilla of evidence that the picketing did have any adverse effect on Complainant's operations ; second, the fear that the City of Chicago may, because of the picketing, in the future deprive Complainant of facilities at O'Hare International Airport is so speculative and so unsupported by the record, that no finding could be based thereon; and third, as already noted above, I cannot find on the record before me that the mission of Complainant is so sensitive or so different from that of the Internal Revenue Service so as to bring it within the permissible prohibition against picketing outlined by Judge Gesell. In short, if Judge Gesell's decision is, indeed, binding precedent, than, in my opinion, his holding in the IRS case would be equally applicable to the case at bar.

This, of course, raises the rather difficult question whether Judge Gesell's decision in the IRS case has become the law of the forum and must be applied to the instant case. As Respondents point out in their excellent brief, there is a great paucity of case law or commentaries on this issue of stare decisis. The few cases which Respondents cite do indeed support the argument that decisions of Federal Courts, whether at the District Court or Circuit Court level, are binding on administrative agencies, including Administrative Law Judges, within respective jurisdictions. See Stacy Manufacturing Company v. Internal Revenue Service, 237 F.2d 605 (6th Cir. 1956); Vazquez v. Ribicoff, 196 F. Supp. 598 (D.C. Puerto Rico, 1961); Flores v. H.E.W., 228 F. Supp. 877 (D.C. Puerto Rico, 1964). Indeed, in the Flores case, supra, the Court noted that in the absence of a reversal or modification of the District Court's decision, "the refusal or failure to follow such decisions in the future cases appears to be contemptuous."

However, in examining these cases one common factor becomes readily apparent, i.e., that the Court decisions allegedly ignored by H.E.W. had never been appealed by it, and thus, became the law of the forum and binding on H.E.W. in subsequent cases. Thus, in the Vazquez case, supra, the Court specifically noted that "the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare never sought a review thereof [the prior decision relied upon] by any higher tribunal and it must be considered the law of this forum on the subject." Similarly, in the Flores case, supra, the Court appeared to premise its holding of stare decisis on the fact that its prior decision was never appealed when it noted that "if an Agency is dissatisfied with any ruling or decision of this Court, it should seek its reversal or modification by the legal media provided by our laws for the review thereof."

The situation in the case at bar is complicated by the fact that the period for filing an appeal from Judge Gesell's decision has not yet expired and I have not been able to ascertain whether any of the Defendants in that case intend to file an appeal in the Circuit Court for the District of Columbia. Nor have I been able to discover any case law which addresses the applicability of the doctrine of stare decisis during the period between a lower court's decision and the filing of an appeal, or, indeed, during the pendency of such an appeal. However, in view of the considerable reliance the Courts appear to place on the absence of an appeal in the cases cited above, I must conclude that if the IRS case were to be appealed to the Circuit Court, Judge Gesell's decision would not become the law of the forum unless and until it is affirmed by the reviewing court. Carrying this reasoning one step further, I must also conclude that during the period wherein an appeal may be perfected, the decision of the District Court cannot as yet be regarded as the law of the forum. Therefore, with the utmost deference to Judge Gesell and, though the issue is certainly not free of doubt, I am constrained to consider myself bound by the precedents established by those bodies which are the reviewing authorities of my decision under the scheme of the Executive Order. Moreover, since these reviewing authorities, i.e., the Assistant Secretary of Labor and the Federal Labor Relations Council, have previously determined in the IRS case that the prohibition of Section 19(b)(4) of the Executive Order constitutes an absolute ban on all picketing during any labor controversy, their holdings are applicable to the instant case, especially since, as found above, the two cases are virtually indistinguishable on their facts. Therefore, since Respondents admittedly did engage in this prohibited activity, their conduct was violative of Section 19(b)(4) of the Executive Order. I note that such a finding is not necessarily prejudicial to Respondents. By the time the contemplated exceptions to my decision reach the Assistant Secretary, the procedural uncertainty regarding an appeal from Judge Gesell's decision in the IRS case, supra, will, by necessity, have been resolved and the Assistant Secretary will then have an opportunity to review this case in the light of such resolution.

There remain two ancillary questions regarding the applicability of the doctrine of stare decisis. In view of my determination of the issue, supra, they do not necessarily require a specific resolution, but the parties, as well as the Assistant Secretary may wish to consider them in case exceptions are filed to this recommended decision.

The first of these questions concerns the issue of venue. Respondents' contention that Judge Gesell's decision in the IRS case, supra, is indeed the law of the forum and therefore applicable to the instant case, is, of course, premised on the assumption that the District Court for the District of Columbia is the only proper forum wherein the Assistant Secretary's as well as the Federal Labor Relations Council's decision can be reviewed on the Constitutional question presented. It must be noted, however, that the conduct occurred in Chicago; that certain of the parties conduct their business in Chicago; and that it was the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division which issued a temporary restraining order and enjoined the Assistant Secretary and the Regional Administrator of the U. S. Department of Labor from taking any action against Respondents for engaging in peaceful picketing until further order of that Court. Under these circumstances it remains somewhat speculative and problematical whether or not the U. S. District Court for the District of Columbia or the U. S. District Court for the Northern District of Illinois will be the appropriate forum for any further resolution of the Constitutional question inherent in this case and explicated by Judge Gesell in the IRS case. If, indeed, the U. S. District Court for Northern Illinois is the proper forum for such a resolution, then the decision of Judge Gesell in the IRS case is certainly not the law of the forum and, while entitled to considerable deference and consideration, not binding on the parties in this case. I am not unmindful of the fact that Respondents have indicated in their brief that "should the case at bar ultimately require appeal to U. S. District Court, such an appeal of an A/S Order would inevitably be filed in the Federal Courts of the District of Columbia." Moreover, by virtue of §1391(e) of Title 28 U.S.C.A. 2/ Respondents may well be successful in bringing such an action in the U. S. District Court for the District of Columbia.

However, under all the circumstances of this case, there remains a possibility that the eventual forum for a resolution of any Constitutional issues which may arise and may require resolution, would, either by action of the court or the parties, be different from that in the IRS case, supra.

A second related question is whether the above cited precedents should be applied to the instant case. Although

2/ This section provides: "a civil action in which each defendant is an officer or employee of the United States or an agency thereof acting in his official capacity or under color of legal authority, or an Agency of the United States, may, except as otherwise provided by law, be brought in any judicial district which: (1) a defendant in the action resides, or (2) the cause of action arose;...."

the U. S. District Court for Puerto Rico in the above-cited cases is most emphatic in its holdings regarding the applicability of the law of the forum, it must be noted that, at the time these cases were decided, that particular Court consisted of a single judge. By necessity, all other cases filed in that Court would, of course, be decided by the same judge. In contrast, the U. S. District Court for the District of Columbia consists of twenty-some judges. Since it is, of course, speculative to which judge of that Court a future case may be assigned, it remains equally speculative whether Judge Gesell's decision in the IRS case would be binding on or would be followed be his colleagues on the bench.

On the basis of the above, I am further constrained to follow the scheme of the Executive Order and, under the circumstances, as well as the timing of this case, accept as binding precedent the decisions of the Assistant Secretary and the Federal Labor Relations Council in the IRS case, supra.

I therefore find that the Regional Administrator has fully met the required burden of proof and that Respondents, by picketing Complainant's premises in connection with a labor-management dispute, has violated Section 19(b)(4) of Executive Order 11491.

Recommended Order

In view of the fact that my recommendation for a more limited order in the IRS case was rejected by the Assistant Secretary, and having found that Respondents have engaged in conduct violative of Section 19(b)(4) of the Executive Order, I recommend that the Assistant Secretary adopt the order as set forth which is designed to effectuate the policies of the Executive Order.

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of the Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the National Treasury Employees Union, its officers, agents, and representatives shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Picketing the U. S. Customs Service, or any other agency of the Government of the United States, in a Labor-management dispute, or from assisting or participating in any such picketing.

(b) Condoning any such activity by failure to take effective affirmative action to prevent or stop it.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purposes and provisions of Executive Order 11491, as amended:

(a) Post at its national and local business offices, at its normal meeting places, and at all other places where notices to members and to employees of the U. S. Customs Service are customarily posted, including space on bulletin boards made available to the National Treasury Employees Union by agreement or otherwise by the U. S. Customs Service, copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms they shall be signed by the President of the National Treasury Employees Union and shall be posted by the National Treasury Employees Union for a period of 60 consecutive days in conspicuous places, including all places where notices to members and to employees of the U. S. Customs Service are customarily posted. Reasonable steps shall be taken by the National Treasury Employees Union to insure that said notices are not altered, defaced, or covered by any other material.

(b) Submit signed copies of said notice within 14 days of the date of this Decision and Order to the U. S. Customs Service for posting in conspicuous places where it customarily posts information to its employees. The U. S. Customs Service shall maintain such notices for a period of 60 consecutive days from the date of posting.

(c) Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations notify the Assistant Secretary, in writing, within 20 days from the date of this order to what steps have been taken to comply herewith.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION,
FEDERAL AVIATION ADMINISTRATION,
INDIANAPOLIS AIR ROUTE TRAFFIC CONTROL CENTER,
WEIR COOK AIRPORT,
INDIANAPOLIS, INDIANA
A/SLMR No. 812

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, M.E.B.A., AFL-CIO, alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (2) of the Order when a supervisor struck or otherwise disciplined a unit employee when he attempted to invoke a provision of the negotiated agreement.

The Administrative Law Judge found that the Respondent's actions in striking the unit employee and threatening to move him to another work area violated Section 19(a)(1) and (2) as such actions had the obvious consequence of chilling the assertion of agreement rights by warning those employees who would pursue their rights that they do so at their peril. Further, such treatment of an employee for invoking his rights is to discriminate against him in a condition of employment.

Noting particularly the absence of exceptions, the Assistant Secretary adopted the findings and conclusions of the Administrative Law Judge that the Respondent's conduct improperly interfered with the employee's protected right under the Order to assist a labor organization. However, as there was no evidence of discrimination on the part of the Respondent with regard to hiring, tenure, promotion, or other conditions of employment as to the unit employee involved, the Assistant Secretary found that the Respondent's actions were not violative of Section 19(a)(2) of the Order. Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the Respondent cease and desist from the conduct found violative of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order and that it take certain affirmative remedial actions.

DECISION AND ORDER

On December 8, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Peter McC. Giesey issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom, and take certain affirmative actions as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. No exceptions were filed to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, and noting particularly the absence of exceptions, I hereby adopt the findings, 1/ conclusions and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge, except as modified herein.

The Administrative Law Judge found that the Respondent had violated Section 19(a)(1) and (2) of the Order by its actions which had the effect of chilling the assertion of contract rights and denigrating the exclusive representative. Under the circumstances of this case, I find, in agreement with the Administrative Law Judge, that the Respondent's conduct herein interfered with, restrained, or coerced employees in the exercise of their right assured by the Order to assist a labor organization in violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order. However, as there was no evidence of discrimination on the part of the Respondent with regard to hiring, tenure, promotion, or other conditions of employment as to the unit employee involved, I find no basis on which to find a violation of Section 19(a)(2) of the Order.

1/ On page 2 of his Recommended Decision and Order, the Administrative Law Judge indicated that the date on which the controllers were working in the Traffic Control Center was June 18, 1975, rather than December 18, 1975. This inadvertence is hereby corrected.

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the Department of Transportation, Federal Aviation Administration, Indianapolis Air Route Traffic Control Center, Weir Cook Airport, Indianapolis, Indiana, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

a. Interfering with, restraining, or coercing its employees in the exercise of rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended, by disciplining or threatening to discipline employees for exercising their right assured by the Order to assist a labor organization.

b. In any like or related manner interfering with, restraining, or coercing employees in the exercise of their rights assured by the Executive Order.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purposes and policies of the Executive Order:

a. Post at the Indianapolis Air Route Traffic Control Center, copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms, they shall be signed by the Chief of the Indianapolis Air Route Traffic Control Center and shall be posted and maintained by him for 60 consecutive days thereafter in conspicuous places, including all places where notices to employees are customarily posted. The Chief shall take reasonable steps to insure that such notices are not altered, defaced, or covered by any other material.

b. Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations, notify the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations in writing within 30 days from the date of this order as to what steps have been taken to comply herewith.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the complaint, insofar as it alleges violation of Section 19(a)(2) of the Order be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

Recommended Decision and Order

This is a proceeding brought under the terms of Executive Order 11491, as amended (hereafter, "the Order") by Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, M.E.B.A., AFL-CIO ("The Union"). The Union asserts that respondent violated section 19(a)(1) and (2) of the Order when an employee who is a member of the bargaining unit was struck or otherwise disciplined by a supervisor when he invoked a section of the collective bargaining agreement then in effect.

A hearing was held in Indianapolis, Indiana on August 3, 1976. Briefly, the record shows the following circumstances.

Statement of the Case

Mr. Robert Cunning testified that, on June 18, 1975, he was working at the Traffic Control Center as Dayton High Altitude Manual Controller ("Day Hi Sector"). Working directly with him in Day Hi was Robert Ellis, Radar Controller. At about 10:45 p.m., Mr. Cunning stated that traffic "started to build" and he felt that a tracker was needed to assist Ellis in controlling the aircraft in his section. Cunning requested a tracker.

Team Supervisor Howard Brandt had just assumed supervision of the Center at 10:35. He came to the Dayton Hi position and, according to Cunning, asked Ellis and Cunning what he was expected to do-that he "didn't grant annual leave."1/ Brandt then left.

About five minutes later, Brandt returned to the Day Hi Sector, having heard that Mr. Ellis had invoked article 55 of the collective bargaining agreement. 2/ Cunning testified

1/ An apparent reference to the fact that the center was short one controller who had been granted several hours leave by another supervisor.

2/ This article provides, in relevant part;

> In the event of a difference in professional opinion between the employee and the supervisor, the employee shall comply with the instructions of the supervisor and the supervisor shall assume responsibility for his own decisions.

that Brandt "made [a] comment" indicating that he believed that Cunning, rather than Ellis, had invoked article 55, asked "can't you handle the job, you want to work the low side?" At the same time, or moments earlier, according to Cunning, Brandt brought his hand, in which he was holding some papers down and across Cunning's right shoulder. Ellis and Cunning both testified that Cunning then said "don't hit me again," to which Brandt replied, "I didn't hit you, I swatted you."

According to Brandt, shortly after assuming supervision, he walked past Cunning and Ellis and was "yelled at to come back" to the Day Hi Sector because they wanted some relief. He returned to that position, looked at the board, and determined that Ellis had five aircraft on radar and Cunning had five on manual. He went on picking up position logs (slips of paper approximately 8-1/2 inches by 3 inches), when "they yelled again for me to return, something to the effect that Article 55 was being invoked." He then walked into a position between the two controllers and "Mr. Cunning swerved around to the left and the sheets of paper were there on his shoulder." Brandt asserts that Cunning said, "don't hit me again" and he replied,"I didn't hit you." After that, Brandt testified that "words kept flying and I saw nothing to add to it, so I left...."

Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law

All witnesses were credible. Predictably, some memories are more precise than others. I find that the events occurred substantially in accordance with the testimony of Ellis and Cunning.

It is commonly understood that air traffic controllers and their supervisors work under some stress at most times and, frequently, under stress which average men and women would find impossible to bear. They are special persons with important responsibilities for the lives and safety of many.

The circumstances in this case, in my opinion, emphasize the importance-and difficulty inherent-in maintaining an atmosphere of quietly efficient cooperation in a stressed atmosphere where the persons involved must work short handed.

Management's (Brandt's) annoyance indicated by ironic humiliation - "can't you handle the job...? "-and his striking, swiping, swatting or brushing Cunning in frustration, are both understandable in a business where decisions must be lighting swift and deadly accurate. There is no room for error or human frailty in air traffic control. In the world of industrial reality, however, such perfection is rarely achieved. The record in this case demonstrates that reality.

It is of no concern here whether some, all or none of the parties were correct or incorrect in the various professional judgments implied by their words and actions. Here an employee attempted to invoke the protection of his collective bargaining agreement. Rightly or wrongly, his invocation cannot be dealt with by management in a manner which "has the obvious consequence of chilling the assertion of contract rights by warning those who would persue their [rights] that they do so at their peril." Department of the Navy, Puget Sound Naval Shipyard, Bremerton, Washington A/SLMR No. 582, FLRC No. 76A-13. Such action violates the provisions of Section 19(a),(1) of the Order.

Similarly, because the action was taken at the workplace, in the presence of other, uninvolved employees, the words and actions of the supervisor indicate disdain for the collective bargaining agreement. Where the collective bargaining agreement is treated thus, the bargaining agent is made to appear weak and ineffectual. In my opinion, to treat an employee in this manner for invoking his rights is to discriminate against him in a condition of employment within the meaning of Section 19(a),(2) of the Order. In short, to demonstrate to the employees that the attempt to exercise rights under a collective bargaining agreement will have embarrassing effects-or no effect - is to demonstrate that membership in an organization whose sole purpose is collective bargaining is at least as useless as the agreement is disrespected.

Recommended Order

It is recommended that the Assistant Secretary issue an order in the following form;

Pursuant to section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and section 203.26(b) of the Rules and Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the United States Department of Transportation, Federal Aviation Administration, Indianapolis Air Route Traffic Control Center, Indianapolis, Indiana, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Interfering with, restraining or coercing its employees in the exercise of rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended, by disciplining or threatening to discipline employees for invoking their rights under the effective collective bargaining agreement.

(b) Discouraging membership in Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, M.E.B.A., AFL-CIO by taking action which demonstrates to employees that they may invoke their rights under the collective bargaining agreement negotiated by such labor organization only at the peril of disciplinary action or the threat of same.

(c) In any like or related manner interferring with, restraining or coercing its employees in the exercise of rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following actions to effectuate the purpose of this order.

(a) Post at its Indianapolis Route Traffic Control Center copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix," on forms furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms, they shall be signed by a responsible management official and shall be posted and maintained by him for 60 consecutive days thereafter, in conspicuous places, including all places where notices to employees are customarily posted. Care shall be taken that such notices are not altered, defaced or covered by any other material.

(b) Notify the Assistant Secretary of the steps taken in compliance with this order, in writing, within 30 days of the date of this order.

PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF HOUSING AND URBAN DEVELOPMENT,
GREENSBORO AREA OFFICE,
GREENSBORO, NORTH CAROLINA
A/SLMR No. 813

This case arose as a result of a petition filed by an individual seeking to decertify the Intervenor, American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 3409 (AFGE) as the exclusive representative in a unit of all nonprofessional employees in the Greensboro Area Office. The AFGE contended that there exists a current negotiated agreement which constituted a bar to the petition. It argued that the petition was untimely inasmuch as it had not been filed during the valid challenge period pursuant to the Assistant Secretary's Regulations but, instead, had been filed during the period of an extension of the negotiated agreement.

The record indicated that the AFGE and the Activity entered into a negotiated agreement on July 20, 1973. The agreement had a duration of 3 years with automatic 3-year renewals unless either party requested renegotiations. The AFGE made such a request and the parties extended their agreement to November 29, 1976, although no negotiations actually took place. The instant petition was filed during the extension period.

The Assistant Secretary noted that it has previously been held that where, as here, a negotiated agreement provides for automatic renewal unless a party requests renegotiations, a party's request to renegotiate serves to terminate such a negotiated agreement, even if, in fact, no negotiations subsequently take place. Further, where the parties execute an extension agreement to serve merely as an interim arrangement during a period of further negotiations, such an agreement may not operate as an agreement bar to a petition otherwise timely filed. Under these circumstances, the Assistant Secretary found that when the AFGE requested renegotiations, such request served to terminate the negotiated agreement three years from its original date of approval on July 20, 1973. Accordingly, as there was no agreement bar, the Assistant Secretary ordered an election in the unit found appropriate.

DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer Otis Chennault. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in this case, the Assistant Secretary finds:

The Petitioner, Martin O. Wisecup, an employee of the Activity, seeks the decertification of American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 3409, herein called AFGE, as the exclusive representative of employees in a unit consisting of:

> All employees of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Greensboro Area Office, Greensboro, North Carolina, excluding all professional employees, temporary employees with appointments of 90 days or less, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, guards and supervisors as defined in the Order.

The AFGE contends that its existing negotiated agreement constitutes a bar to the instant petition. In this regard, it argues that the petition was untimely as it was not filed within the valid challenge period provided for in Section 202.3(c) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations but, instead, was filed during the period of an extension of the basic agreement between the AFGE and the Activity. 1/ The Petitioner, on the other hand, asserts that by its terms the negotiated agreement terminated three years from the date of its approval, notwithstanding the extension agreed to by the AFGE and the Activity for the purpose of renegotiations, and that, once terminated, there was an opportunity for a petition to be filed.

The record indicates that the Activity and the AFGE executed a negotiated agreement on July 20, 1973. On that same date, higher agency management indicated that several changes were needed before the agreement could be approved pursuant to Section 15 of the Order. At the hearing in this matter, the AFGE and the Activity stipulated that such changes were, in fact, made on July 20th and that the parties received telephonic approval of their agreement on that date. The agreement was to remain in effect for three years from the date of approval and was subject to automatic renewal for an additional three years unless either party gave written notice of its desire to renegotiate the agreement. 2/

On May 20, 1976, the AFGE made a timely request to renegotiate. The AFGE and the Activity agreed to several extensions of time for the purpose of renegotiating the agreement although no negotiations actually took place. The instant petition was filed on September 27, 1976, and on October 4, 1976, the Activity notified the AFGE that it could not enter into renegotiations inasmuch as a valid question concerning representation had been raised. The parties did, however, agree to extend the terms of their agreement to November 29, 1976.

The Assistant Secretary has held previously that where, as here, a negotiated agreement provides for automatic renewal unless a party requests renegotiations, a party's request to renegotiate serves to terminate such a negotiated agreement, even if, in fact, no negotiations subsequently take place. 3/ Further, it has been held that where the parties execute an extension agreement to serve merely as an interim arrangement during a period of further negotiations, such an agreement may not operate as an agreement bar to a petition otherwise timely filed as such a temporary, stopgap arrangement does not constitute a final, fixed term agreement and lacks the stability sought to be achieved by the agreement bar principle. 4/ Consistent with this rationale, I find that when, on May 20, 1976, the AFGE made a timely request for renegotiations, such request served to terminate the parties' negotiated agreement three years from its original date of approval on July 20, 1973. The instant petition, filed on September 27, 1976, was, therefore, timely filed. Accordingly, I shall direct an election in the following unit which I find appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under Executive Order 11491, as amended:

> All employees of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, Greensboro Area Office, Greensboro, North Carolina, excluding all professional employees, temporary employees with appointments of 90 days or less, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, guards and supervisors as defined in the Order.

DIRECTION OF ELECTION

An election by secret ballot shall be conducted among employees in the unit found appropriate as early as possible, but not later than 60 days from the date below. The appropriate Area Administrator shall supervise the election subject to the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. Eligible to vote are those in the unit who were employed during the payroll period immediately preceding the date below, including employees who did not work during that period because they were out ill, or on vacation or on furlough, including those in the military service who appear in person at the polls. Ineligible to vote are employees who quit, or were discharged for cause, since the designated payroll period and who have not been rehired or reinstated before the election date. Those eligible shall vote whether or not they wish to be represented by the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 3409.

1/ Section 202.3(c) states, in pertinent part: "When an agreement covering a claimed unit has been signed and dated by the activity and the incumbent exclusive representative, a petition for exclusive recognition or other election petition will be considered timely when filed...not more than ninety (90) days and not less than sixty (60) days prior to the terminal date of an agreement having a term of three (3) years or less from the date it was signed and dated by the activity and the incumbent exclusive representative;...."

2/ In this connection, Article XXII, Section B of the parties' agreement provided that: "Either party may give written notice to the other, not more than 90 nor less than 60 days prior to the 3 year expiration date, and each subsequent expiration date for the purpose of renegotiating this agreement. The present agreement will remain in full force and effect during the renegotiation of said agreement and until such time as a new agreement is approved."

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF TREASURY,
INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE,
BROOKHAVEN SERVICE CENTER
A/SLMR No. 814

This case arose as a result of a complaint filed by the National Treasury Employees Union and the National Treasury Employees Union, Chapter 099 (Complainant) alleging that the Department of Treasury, Internal Revenue Service, violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to inform the Complainant prior to implementing a change in a Standard Position Description (SPD) at its Brookhaven Service Center (Activity) and that said change in position description was issued and implemented by the Respondent on or about October 1974, without informing the Complainant.

The Assistant Secretary concluded, contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, that the Respondent did not violate Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. He noted that the issuance of the new SPD herein was excepted from the obligation to bargain under Section 11(b) of the Order. He noted further that when an agency takes an action that falls within the ambit of Section 11(b), there remains an obligation to give reasonable notice to the exclusive bargaining representative so that it may have ample opportunity to request that the agency bargain regarding the procedures involved and the impact of the decision prior to its implementation. This obligation arises, however, only when agency management takes action that affects a change in existing terms and conditions of employment. The Assistant Secretary found that the facts herein showed no such change. In this regard, he noted the first hand testimony of a Section Chief and Program Manager that control clerks in the Adjustment Branch had been using an Integrated Data Retrieval System (IDRS) on a regular basis since November 1972. Also, he found that there was direct testimony by two Adjustment Branch control clerks who had been using IDRS prior to October 1974. Furthermore, no testimony by any witness who had personal knowledge was given, nor was any witness called or identified, who could attribute any change in IDRS duties as a result of the new SPD. Under these circumstances, and absent any change in the actual duties performed by control clerks in the Adjustment Branch of the Activity, the Assistant Secretary concluded that the Respondent was under no obligation to notify or inform the Complainant prior to issuing the aforementioned SPD and ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

On June 9, 1976, Administrative Law Judge William B. Devaney issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain alleged unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom and take certain affirmative actions as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. Thereafter, the Respondent filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the Complainant filed an answering brief to the Respondent's exceptions.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in this case, including the Respondent's exceptions and supporting brief and the Complainant's answering brief, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions 1/ and recommendations, as modified herein.

This case arose as a result of a complaint filed by the National Treasury Employees Union and the National Treasury Employees Union,

1/ In view of the disposition herein, I find it unnecessary to pass upon the Administrative Law Judge's conclusion that it is sufficient to name the Activity in a complaint in order to adjudicate the alleged violation of the Order, even though the conduct alleged as the basis of the complaint was committed by an unnamed subordinate installation of the named Activity.

Chapter 099 (Complainant) alleging that the Department of Treasury, Internal Revenue Service (Respondent) violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to inform the Complainant prior to implementing a change in a Standard Position Description at its Brookhaven Service Center, and that said change in position description was issued and implemented by the Respondent on or about October 1974, without informing the Complainant.

The Brookhaven Service Center, hereinafter called the Activity, is part of the North Atlantic Region of the Internal Revenue Service and performs basic taxpayer auditing and processing. It is administratively divided into four divisions, one of which is the Taxpayer Service Division. The Taxpayer Service Division has an Adjustment Branch which is subdivided organizationally into the "IMF" and "BMF" Sections. All branches and divisions of the Activity employ control clerks.

The record shows that Mr. Donald Somersat has been the Section Chief and Program Manager of the "BMF" Section of the Adjustment Branch since September 5, 1971, and, on occasion, has served as the Acting Branch Chief of the entire Adjustment Branch. The record shows also that Somersat has direct and first hand knowledge of employee duties and work assignments in both the "IMF" and "BMF" Sections. In November 1972, an Integrated Data Retrieval System (IDRS) 2/ became operational at the Activity and control clerks in the Adjustment Branch of the Taxpayers Service Division began to use the IDRS to perform certain of their duties. The record reveals that Somersat personally instructed supervisors to provide the control clerks in the Adjustment Branch with on-the-job training for the IDRS and that clearance to utilize the IDRS by control clerks in the Adjustment Branch had been obtained since November 1972, at which time they began to use IDRS on a regular basis. On November 27, 1972, the Activity issued a Standard Position Description (SPD) for the position of Control Clerk, GS-301-04, applicable to control clerks throughout the Activity. It did not contain IDRS duties.

In March 1973, the National Treasury Employees Union, Chapter 099 (NTEU 099) was certified as the exclusive bargaining representative at the Activity. 3/ On April 13, 1974, NTEU 099 and the Activity entered into a negotiated multi-center agreement which became effective on July 1, 1973. In the summer of 1974, a control clerk in the "IMF" Section of the Adjustment Branch, Ms. Antoinette Bettinelli, complained to the NTEU local representative, Ms. Anne Tamney, that the November 27, 1972, SPD was inaccurate for Adjustment Branch control clerks. Tamney advised Bettinelli that she could consult the NTEU area representative or her supervisor about the problem and see what might be worked out. Similarly, in the early part of September 1974, another control clerk in the "IMF" Section of the Adjustment Branch, Mr. Vito LaMonica, approached his immediate supervisor and complained about the inadequacy of the aforementioned SPD and suggested to his supervisor that it be written to clarify the duties he was performing. Thereafter, Somersat authorized LaMonica's supervisor to work with him in revising the November 27, 1972, SPD. LaMonica rewrote the SPD in order to update it to include his current duties and sent his draft through his supervisor to Somersat who reviewed it. Somersat found that the draft accurately set forth the then current duties and responsibilities of control clerks in the Adjustment Branch and sent the draft to an Activity Position Classification Specialist where it was compared to Civil Service Commission standard codes, found acceptable, and adopted.

2/ The IDRS is a clerical operation using machine codes which enable control clerks to obtain and research cases.

3/ At that time, the National Treasury Employees Union, Chapter 099 was designated as the National Association of Internal Revenue Employees, Chapter 99.

The record shows further than on October 4, 1974, the Activity issued an SPD, entitled Control Clerk, GS-301-4, which was made effective on that date and was made applicable only to the Taxpayers Service Division, Adjustment Branch, in any section or unit. The October 4, 1974, SPD is substantially similar to the former SPD, except for the mention of IDRS duties. The Respondent concedes that it gave no notice to the Complainant of the new SPD prior to its implementation and, in this regard, the record shows that the Complainant learned of the implementation of the new SPD from employees on or about October 25, 1974. In a letter to the Complainant local's president dated December 13, 1974, the Activity contended that the change effectuated by the October 4, 1974, SPD was "a clarification and particularization in the description of the duties of the affected employees without any change in those duties, working conditions or in the grade level...." At the hearing, Adjustment Branch control clerks Bettinelli and LaMonica testified that they had been performing IDRS duties before and after the issuance of the new SPD and were unable to attribute any change in their IDRS duties as a result of the issuance of the SPD on October 4, 1974. No control clerk in the Adjustment Branch was either personally identified or called as a witness in this matter who had not used IDRS prior to October 4, 1974.

The Administrative Law Judge found that the Respondent violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by the unilateral institution of the October 4, 1974, SPD without giving the Complainant prior notice and an opportunity to negotiate over its impact and/or implementation. I disagree. In my view, the decision to issue the October 4, 1974, SPD was excepted from the Respondent's obligation to bargain under Section 11(b) of the Order. 4/ Also, as previously stated in earlier decisions, where, as here, an agency takes an action that falls within the ambit of Section 11(b) of the Order, there remains an obligation to give reasonable notice to the exclusive bargaining representative so that it may have ample opportunity to request that the agency bargain regarding the procedures involved and the impact of the decision prior to its implementation. 5/ This obligation arises, however, only when agency management takes action that effects a change in existing terms and conditions of employment. 6/ The facts herein show no such change. Thus, the undisputed evidence herein establishes that control clerks in the Adjustment Branch had been performing IDRS duties prior to the modification of the SPD. In this connection, the record shows that control clerks in the Adjustment Branch had clearance to utilize the IDRS since November 1972, at which time they began to use the IDRS on a regular basis. Additionally, there was direct testimony by two control clerks in the Adjustment Branch that they used the IDRS prior to the issuance of the October 4, 1974, SPD and Somersat gave first hand testimony that control clerks had been using IDRS in the Adjustment Branch prior to October 1974. There was no testimony by any witness who had personal knowledge that Adjustment Branch control clerks did not perform IDRS duties prior to October 4, 1974. Nor was any witness called or personally identified who could attribute any change in IDRS duties as a result of the new SPD. Under these circumstances, absent any evidence of a change in the actual duties performed by the control clerks in the Adjustment Branch brought about by the October 4, 1974, SPD, I find that the Respondent was under no obligation to notify or inform the Complainant prior to issuing the SPD in question. Accordingly, I find that the Respondent's conduct herein was not violative of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the complaint in Case No. 30-6126(CA) be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This case arises under Executive Order 11491, as amended (hereinafter also referred to as the "Order"). It was initiated by a complaint filed April 11, 1975, alleging violations of Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. The Complaint alleged that the Internal Revenue Service failed to inform Complainant prior to implementing a change in a Position Description at its Brookhaven Service Center; that said change in Position Description was issued and implemented by Respondent on or about October, 1974, without informing Complainant. A Notice of Hearing on the alleged 19(a)(1) and (6) violations issued December 12, 1975, and, pursuant thereto, a hearing was held before the undersigned in Holtsville, New York, on January 13, 1976. At the request of Complainant, and for good cause shown, time for submission of briefs was extended to and including March 29, 1976.

All parties were represented at the hearing and were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses and to introduce evidence bearing on the issues involved. Extremely able, comprehensive and most helpful briefs were timely submitted by both parties and have been carefully considered. Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following Findings of Fact, Conclusions and Recommendation:

Findings of Fact

The operative facts are not seriously in dispute. On November 27, 1972, Brookhaven Internal Revenue Service(IRS) issued a position description for "Control Clerk GS-301-04 Brookhaven Service Center Any Division" (Jt. Exh. 8). This position description ("PD") applied to control clerks throughout the Service Center. In November, 1972, an integrated data retrieval system ("IDRS") became operational at the Brookhaven Service Center and throughout the Internal Revenue Service. Beginning in November, 1972, control clerks in the Adjustment Branch of the Taxpayer Service Division began to use IDRS to perform certain duties of their positions and it was a general practice to furnish all Adjustment Branch Control Clerks with authorization of clearance to use IDRS and to issue "passwords" to enable entry to the system.

Duites of a control clerk in the Adjustment Branch were always more varied than the duties of control clerks in other Branches. For example, Ms. Bettinelli described her duties in the Processing Branch as "pipe line" which involved fixed procedure; while in Adjustments there is constant change and a variety of jobs. As conversion to IDRS progressed, the control clerks in the Adjustment Branch used IDRS more and more to perform their work. During the summer of 1974, Ms. Bettinelli complained to NTEU Representative Anne Tamney that the PD for Adjustment Branch Control Clerks was inaccurate and Ms. Tamney advised her "what avenues were open to her." Somewhat later, in September, 1974, another Adjustment Branch Control Clerk, Mr. LaMonica, complained to his supervisor that the PD was inaccurate and suggested that the PD be revised. With the assistance of his supervisor, Mr. LaMonica drafted a revised PD for Adjustment Branch Control Clerks which was subsequently adopted, effective October 4, 1974 (Jt. Exh. 9).

The October 4, 1974, PD is "Control Clerk GS - 301 - 04 Brookhaven Service Center, Taxpayer Services Division, Adjustment Branch, Any Section, Any Unit" and the Position Description has a further heading "IDRS Unit Clerk". Respondent concedes that it gave no notice to Complainant of the new PD prior to its implementation. Indeed, Complainant learned of the unilateral implementation of the new PD from employees on or about October 25, 1974. Control Clerks in the Adjustment Branch were given copies of the new PD, signed by Mr. LaMonica, at some time after October 4, 1974, but the record does not disclose the date of the distribution. The PD was not reviewed with each Adjustment Branch Control Clerk and no clerk, other than Mr. LaMonica, signed item 12, certifying that the PD "is a complete and accurate description of the duties and responsibilities of my position".

There is some testimony that, prior to the new PD being made effective on October 4, 1974, some Adjustment Branch Control Clerks were not using IDRS. Two Adjustment Branch Control Clerks, Ms. Bettinelli and Mr. LaMonica, both of whom were using IDRS prior to October 4, 1974, testified that, to their knowledge, some Adjustment Branch Control Clerks were not using IDRS before October 4, 1974; however no adjustment Branch Control Clerk who had not used IDRS prior to October 4, 1974, was either identified or called as a witness. 1/ There was

1/ A letter from a former Adjustment Branch Control Clerk, Mrs. Joan Blanchfield, marked for identification as Complainant's Exhibit 1, was rejected and placed in the Rejected Exhibit file. This rejected exhibit has not been considered beyond noting that Mrs. Blanchfield, had she appeared as a witness, would have testified that she used IDRS before she received the new PD.

also some testimony, in particular by Mr. LaMonica, that after October 4, 1974, the amount of IDRS work increased. Ms. Bettinelli quite candidly stated that the workflow determined the amount of IDRS utilization and that she could not say that increase in IDRS work coincided with the new PD becoming effective.

There are two sections in the Adjustment Branch. Mr. Donald Somersat, Section Chief in the B.M.F. Adjustment Section, testified that to his knowledge all clerks were performing IDRS functions prior to the new PD becomming effective on October 4, 1974; but on cross examination stated that his personal knowledge was limited to his section (B.M.F.) and as to the other section he could only speak of his knowledge as an acting branch chief.

In late November, 1974, Chapter 099 President Richardson advised NTEU National Field Representative Lipton of the new PD and on December 2, 1974, Messrs. Richardson and Lipton met with Calvin Litwack, Chief of the Brookhaven Employee Management Relations Section. Mr. Lipton testified that he told Mr. Litwack that Complainant was appalled that the new PD had been implemented without notice to Complainant; that Mr. Litwack responded that Respondent had no obligation to give notice of a PD change and that Complainant could not negotiate impact because there was no impact; that he, Lipton, responded that Respondent could not unilaterally tell Complainant there was or was not an impact, that that was a decision for Complainant to make.

On December 4, 1974, Messrs. Lipton and Richardson met with Director Seufert and Mr Litwack. Mr. Lipton testified that he again asserted that he felt there had been a violation of Complainant's rights; that Respondent was obligated to notify Complainant of such changes (the new PD) and, upon request, to negotiate. Mr. Lipton testified that Director Seufert stated that he disagreed and the meeting terminated.

Mr. Litwack agreed fully with the substance of Mr. Lipton's testimony except that he testified that Mr. Lipton did not indicate anything concerning the impact of the new PD; that Mr. Lipton spoke only to the fact that under the Order and his interpretation of Article (Section) 11, we had to show the PD to the Union prior to implementation; that had Mr. Lipton raised some impact question he would have considered it. Mr. Litwack further testified that Mr. Lipton wanted some guarantee that in the future every PD would be shown to Complainant before implementation.

On December 13, 1974, Acting Director Copeland wrote President Richardson, with a copy to Mr. Lipton, as follows:

> "In our meeting of December 4, 1974 you and Mr. Lipton requested our position on whether we were obligated under the Multi-Center Agreement and/or Executive Order 11491 as amended to consult with you prior to the change of [PD] ... It is our interpretation of the Executive Order and the Multi-Center Agreement that this change is a reserved right of management under Section 11 B of the Order and, furthermore, since there was no conceivable impact on the employees involved, we were under no obligation to give you prior notification of this change. For your information, the change in question which was effected on October 4, 1974, was purely a clarification and particularization in the description of duties of the affected employees without any change in those duties, working conditions or in the grade level.
> "However, since you have raised this matter, I would be pleased to receive any comments or suggestions you would care to make. You can be assured that we will make every effort to adhere to our obligations both under the Executive Order and the Multi-Center Agreement in a true spirit of bilateralism." (Comp Exh. 1)

Mr. Lipton testified that the only response to Acting Director Copeland's letter of December 13, 1974, was the charge filed herein.

On April 11, 1975, all Adjustment Branch Control Clerks filed classification Appeals seeking to upgrade their positions to GS-5; and in October, 1975, the Adjustment Branch Control Clerks filed grievances under the Multi-Center Agreement challenging the accuracy of the October 4, 1974, PD. 2/

2/ Each grievance was identical (Jt. Exh. 7); the Subject was stated as "Inaccurate P.D. Employee dignity"; and the relief sought was: "Include all duties and responsibilities being performed by employees in employment including job knowledge and skill required."

In March, 1973, Complainant Chapter 099 was certified as the exclusive bargaining Representative at the Brookhaven Service Center (NTEU was then known as the National Association of Internal Revenue Employees); on April 13, 1973, the parties executed a Multi-Center Agreement (Jt. Exh. 1); and on July 8, 1975, executed a successor Multi-Center Agreement (Jt. Exh. 2).

RESPONDENT'S MOTIONS TO DISMISS

Respondent has moved that the Complaint be dismissed on two grounds. First, that the parties named in the complaint are not obligated to bargain with Complainant which will be referred to as "Joinder of Parties"; and second, that the Complaint should be dismissed pursuant to Section 19(d) of the Order and/or pursuant to the Assistant Secretary's Ruling No. 49 and/or pursuant to the Collyer case principles which will be refereed to as "Section 19(d).

a) Joinder of Parties. The Complaint in this case names as Agency and/or Activity,

> "Department of Treasury, Internal Revenue Service" 3/

The address shown is "1111 Constitution Avenue, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20224" and the person to contact is shown as "Billy J. Brown, Director, Personnel Division". In Item F, "Internal Revenue Service" is shown as the Agency of which the Activity is a part. The basis of the complaint is stated, inter alia, as "The Internal Revenue Service failed to inform ... prior to implementing a change in Standard Position Description ... Brookhaven Service Center. ..." The Preamble to the Multi-Center Agreement (Jt. Exhs. 1 and 2) states, in part,

> "... this Agreement is made and entered into by and between the Internal Revenue Service representing the Centers listed in Appendix A ..." (Brookhaven Service Center is listed in Appendix A).

From the outset, beginning with the meeting with Mr. Litwack on December 2, 1974, the meeting with Director Seufert on December 4, 1974, the letter of Acting Director Copeland, dated December 13, 1974, the response of Respondent, dated May 8, 1975 to Compliance Officer Conti (Ass't. Sec. Exh. 1-C) and Respondent's letter to Compliance Officer Goldberg, dated August 4, 1975 (Ass't. Sec. Exh. 1-C), Respondent was fully aware that the Complaint involved the IRS Brookhaven Service Center, indeed, Respondent's letter dated August 4, for example, specifically so states.

Nevertheless, Respondent asserts that the Brookhaven Service Center is not named as a Respondent; that Brookhaven is the activity which granted exclusive recognition; that only Brookhaven, and not the Department of the Treasury or the Internal Revenue Service, could be found to owe any bargaining obligation, and that, in reliance on National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), A/SLMR No. 457 (1974), FLRC No. 74A-94 (Report No. 84, 1975); and Department of the Navy and U.S. Civil Service Commission, A/SLMR No. 529 (1975), FLRC No. 75A-88 (Report No. 93, 1976), the complaint must be dismissed.

I do not find the NASA or the Department of the Navy cases, supra, relied upon by Respondent, to have involved the threshold question presented in this case, namely, whether there is jurisdiction to proceed against alleged unfair labor practices committed by an unnamed subordinate installation of a Department (Agency) and of an Activity (Internal Revenue Service) named in a complaint under the Order. In practical effect the issue is whether it is sufficient to name an Activity in a complaint in order to remedy an alleged unfair labor practice committed by an unnamed subordinate instillation of the named Activity. For the reasons stated hereinafter, I conclude that it is sufficient to name the Activity in a Complaint in order to adjudicate the alleged violation of the Order, even though the conduct asserted as the basis of the complaint was committed by an unnamed subordinate installation of the named Activity.

Section 2(a) of the Order defines "Agency" as:

> "(a) 'Agency' means an executive department, a Government corporation, and an independent establishment ..."

Section 2(f) of the Order defines "Agency Management" as:

> "(f) 'Agency management' means the agency head and all management officials, supervisors, and other representatives of management having authority to act for the agency on any matters relating to the implementation of the agency labor-management relations program established under this order."

3/ The Regional Administrator added Brookhaven Service Center in the caption of the Notice of Hearing (Ass't. Sec. 1A).

Section 19 provides that:

> "Sec. 19. Unfair labor practices. a)
>
> Agency management shall not -
> (1) interfere with, restrain, or coerce an employee in the exercise of the rights assured by this Order;
>
> * * * *
> (6) refuse to consult, confer, or negotiate with a labor organization as required by this Order."

For the purpose of jurisdiction under Section 19(a) of the Order, it would be sufficient to name the executive department (Agency), in this case Department of Treasury, since, for the purpose of Section 19(a), "Agency management" means "the agency head and all management officials ... having authority to act for the agency in any matters relating to the implementation of the agency labor-management relations program established under this Order."

However, Section 203.3 of the Regulations provides, in part, that:

> "(a) A complaint ... shall contain the following:
> "(2) The name, address, and telephone number of the activity, or agency ... against whom the complaint is made."

Section 201.14 of the Regulations provides that:

> "'Activity' means any facility, geographical subdivision, or combination thereof, of any agency as that term is defined in section 2 of the order ..."

Section 201.21 of the Regulations provides that:

> "'Party' means any... activity or agency: ... (b) named in a complaint ..."

In the instant case, it is clear that the complaint identifies the agency as Department of Treasury and the activity as Internal Revenue Service. The definition of "Activity" in Section 201.14 of the Regulations is sufficiently broad as to constitute the Internal Revenue Service an "Activity" of the Department of Treasury whether viewed as a "facility" or "geographical subdivision" or "combination thereof" of the Executive Department ("Agency" within the meaning of Section 2(a) of the Order and Section 201.11 of the Regulations). Thus, the complaint alleges that Internal Revenue Service violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to inform Complainant prior to implementing a change in a PD at Brookhaven Service Center. Brookhaven Service Center, a subordinate subdivision of the Internal Revenue Service, is not named in the complaint; but Brookhaven Service Center is a part of the Internal Revenue Service and, as the Internal Revenue Service, an activity, is a party, a bargaining order would lie, should a violation be found, at least against Brookhaven Service Center even if, pursuant to the NASA and Department of Navy cases, supra, and Department of the Treasury, Internal Revenue Service, A/SLMR No. 550 (1975), such order could not extend beyond the scope of the duty to bargain. Cf. Department of the Navy, Supervisor of Shipbuilding, Conversion and Repair, Pascagoula, Mississippi, A/SLMR No. 390 (1974) (NAVSHIPS, which had no bargaining obligation, issued an instruction to SUPSHIPS, which did have a bargaining obligation, and implementation of the NAVSHIPS instruction violated the Order. In order to remedy the 19(a)(6) violation, the order ran to SUPSHIPS).

The purpose of the portions of the Regulations dealing with the content of a complaint is to insure notice to the agency or activity of the facts constituting the alleged unfair labor practice in order that the right of the agency or activity to due process of law be insured. In this case, the complaint clearly and concisely set forth the very specific allegation asserted to have constituted the violation; identified the particular PD at the Brookhaven Service Center which was asserted to have been changed without prior notice to Complainant; stated the time when the change was alleged to have been made; and Respondent, by its response to the complaint, demonstrated that it was fully advised of the violation alleged. Of course, the converse is not time. Thus, if a complaint names only a subordinate activity, neither the activity nor the agency is a party, Iowa State Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Office, Department of Agriculture, A/SLMR No. 453 (1974), and a complaint which fails to state clearly and consicely the facts constituting the alleged unfair labor practice is subject to dismissal pursuant to Section 203.3(3) of the Regulations.

Moreover, even though the Council reversed the decision of the Assistant Secretary in the NASA case, supra, that the Agency (the Activity was held not to have violated either 19(a)(1) or (6)) could not be found in violation of 19(a)(6) because there was no bargaining obligation, but that an independent 19(a)(1) violation by Agency not premised on the existence of a bargaining relationship between Agency and the Union could be found, a contrary result might well be warranted where, as here, the activity, Internal Revenue Service, on behalf of various Service Centers, did negotiate and enter into the Multi-Center Agreements. If not sufficient to constitute a bargaining relationship to support, if appropriate, a 19(a)(6) order against the Internal Revenue Service,and this is not necessary for decision at this point, Internal Revenue Service's direct involvement in the labor-management relations program under this Order would, consistent with the decision of the Assistant Secretary in NASA, supra, as well as the analysis of the Council in NASA, supra, permit a 19(a)(1) order if an independent 19(a)(1) violation were found.

Accordingly, Respondent's Motion to Dismiss on this ground is denied.

b) Section 19(d)

Classification appeals were filed, but the unfair labor practice asserted could not properly be rasied under that procedure and neither the unfair labor practice nor the facts giving rise to it were raised or asserted in the appeals procedure, Veterans Administration, Veterans Benefits Office, A/SLMR No. 296 (1973); Department of Navy, Aviation Supply Office, A/SLMR No. 434 (1974). Grievances were filed contesting the accuracy of the PD but neither the unfair labor practice issue nor the facts giving rise to it were raised by the grievances. Accordingly, as the unfair labor practice issue was not raised under a grievance procedure, Section 19(d) does not constitute a bar.

Intertwined are Respondent's contentions that, pursuant to the principles of Collyer Insulated Wire, 192 NLRB No. 150 (1971), Arnold Co. v. Carpenters District Council, 417 U.S. 12, 15 (1974), the Assistant Secretary's Ruling No. 49; Norfolk Naval Shipyard, A/SLMR No. 548 (1975), and Veterans Administration Center, A/SLMR No. 335 (1974), as the issuance of the 1974 PD was not a patent breach of contract but, rather, constituted a good faith effort by Respondent to implement the terms of the Agreement, etc., jurisdiction should be declined and the complaint dismissed. Respondent's contentions have been well and forcefully argued. It is apparent that, in a sense, there is a contract nexus; and it is true that there is an appeals procedure and a grievance procedure, both of which were exercised; but the unfair labor practice asserted, i.e., a duty to give Complainant prior notice before implementing a change in a PD and/or a duty to meet and confer, upon request, with respect to the impact of such change in a PD, was not subject to the appeals procedure and neither the unfair labor practice nor the facts giving rise to it were asserted or raised through the grievance procedure. 4/ As Section 19(d) leaves to the discretion of the aggrieved party the choice of forum, it would be inappropriate under Section 19(d) to decline jurisdiction where Complainant has elected the complaint procedure. Internal Revenue Service, Southeast Service Center, A/SLMR No. 448 (1974). This is especially true where, as here, there is no clear cut contractual right to prior notice assured Complainant under the terms of the collective bargaining agreement. To the contrary, the unfair labor practice alleged is bottomed on an obligation imposed by the Order and is not based on disagreement over the interpretation of an existing collective bargaining agreement. Therefore, Respondent's motion to dismiss on this ground is denied.

4/ Article 32, Grievance Procedure, provides, in part, as follows:

> Section 1 "B. The Union agrees to submit virtually all contract related matters to the negotiated grievance procedure ... and to use sparingly unfair labor practice procedures. ...
>
> Section 2 "A grievance is a request for personal relief in any matter of concern or dissatisfaction to an employee, a group of employees or the Union, which is subject to the control of the Employer. ...
>
> Section 3 "A. ... In any case, the Union may initiate a grievance when it believes that rights assured it under the terms of this Agreement have been denied." (Jt. Exhs. 1, 2)

CONCLUSIONS

Complainant does not contend that Respondent had any duty to negotiate its decision to institute IDRS or to negotiate its revision of the PD. Complainant does assert that Respondent had a duty under Section 11(a) and (b) of the Order to notify Complainant prior to implementing the new PD; to negotiate, upon request, concerning the impact, if any, of the new PD; and that the unilateral action of Respondent violated Sections 19(a)(6) and (1) of the Order.

Respondent admits that it did not notify or inform Complainant prior to issuing its October 4, 1974 PD, asserts, in essence, that a duty to notify Complainant prior to implementation of a reserved right of management exists only where there is impact; that the October 4, 1974 PD was merely a particularization and clarification of an existing position description which did not have demonstrable impact or negotiable terms and conditions of employment of affected employees; and, accordingly, it did not violate 19(a)(6) and (1) of the Order by failing to give Complainant notice of the new PD prior to its implementation. 5/

5/ The Complaint alleges only that Respondent violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) by unilaterally instituting the October, 1974 PD without giving Complainant prior notice and an opportunity to negotiate over the impact and/or implementation of the new PD. The complaint did not allege a refusal to negotiate impact and/or implementation on December 2, 1974, December 4, 1974, or any other date. At the hearing, Complainant sought to amend the complaint to allege a refusal, upon request, to negotiate impact. In agreement with Respondent, Complainant's request to amend the complaint to include the further allegation that Respondent violated Sections 19(a)(6) of the Order when it failed "to negotiate upon timely request" is denied. Moreover, the record does not show any failure or refusal to negotiate impact upon request. To the contrary, Mr. Litwack testified that the December 2, 1974, meeting concerned only the failure to give Complainant notice prior to implementation of a new PD; that Mr. Lipton did not indicate anything concerning impact; and that had impact been raised he would have considered it. Mr. Lipton, in agreement, testified that he asserted on December 2, 1974, that he was appaled that the new PD had been implemented without notice to Complainant; that Respondent could not unilaterally tell Complainant there was or was not an impact, that that was a decision for Complainant to make. Mr. Lipton further testified that on December 4, 1974, he complainaed to the Director that the unilateral issuance of the PD violated Complainant's rights; that

There is considerable merit in Respondent's contentions. In full agreement with Respondent, each case must be decided on its own merits. This case involves the specific question as to whether Respondent violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by its unilateral implementation of its PD of October 4, 1974. A disturbing aspect of this case is that the duties of Adjustment Branch Control Clerks began to change in November, 1972, or shortly thereafter, with the introduction of IDRS and the record shows that Complainant had knowledge of such change in duties at least by the summer of 1974 but took no action until after it learned of the unilateral issuance of the new October 4, 1974 PD. Obviously, Respondent can, and does, contend that the new PD simply spells out what Adjustment Branch Control Clerks had been doing for nearly two years. Nevertheless, for reasons stated hereinafter, it has been concluded that issuance of the new PD was, itself, a change which affected existing working conditions.

The duty to give notice prior to making effective a change reserved to management by the Order cannot be wholly divorced from impact. On the other hand, the exclusive bargaining representative must be afforded a meaningful opportunity to meet and confer on the impact of such action on adversely affected unit employees, Army and Air Force Exchange Service, Pacific Exchange System, Hawaii Regional Exchange, A/SLMR No. 454 (1974), and a failure to notify the exclusive bargaining representative of a change affecting personnel policies and practices or other matter affecting working conditions is a violation of Section 19(a)(6), Veterans Administration, Veterans Center, Hampton, Virginia, A/SLMR No. 385 (1974; Veterans Administration, Wadsworth Hospital Center, Los Angeles, California, A/SLMR No. 388 (1974). In the Wadsworth Hospital Center case, supra, the Assistant Secretary, with regard to a questionnaire, stated:

> "... I find that the Complainant's conduct with respect to the first questionnaire [accepted without objection] and

Respondent was obligated to notify Complainant of such change and, upon request, to negotiate. The letter of Acting Director Copeland, dated December 13, 1974, confirmed the focus of the meeting of December 4, 1974, and concluded with the statement, "However, since you have raised this matter, I would be pleased to receive any comments or suggestions you would care to make. ..." Mr. Lipton testified that the only respense to the December 13, 1974, letter was the charge filed herein. Accordingly, the record fails to show a refusal to negotiate upon the request of Complainant.

> with respect to other communications [also accepted without question] did not estop the Complainant from asserting its right under the order to be afforded notice and an opportunity to meet and confer regarding the matters contained in the second questionnaire which, in my view, involved personnel policies and practices and concerned matters affecting working conditions within the meaning of Section 11(a) of the Order.
> "Accordingly, I conclude that the above-described conduct by the Respondent constituted an improper bypass and undermining of the status of its employees' exclusive representative and, therefore, was violative of the Order. ..."

In the Veterans Administration Center case, supra, the Assistant Secretary stated:

> "... Respondent's failure to inform the Complainant of the decision to promote Category Two employees and its action in promoting such employees without advising the Complainant until after the promotions had, in fact, occurred, undermined the Complainant and served to disparage it in the eyes of the unit employees. Consistent with the principles set forth above, I find that this disregard and by-pass of the exclusive representative was in derogation of the exclusive representative's rights established under the Order and, thereby, constituted a violation of Section 19(a)(6) of the Order."

A position description directly affects personnel policies and directly affects working conditions. In this case, the October 4, 1974 PD was a new position description which differed from the 1972 standarized PD in two significant respects. First, the Adjustment Branch Control Clerks were severed from the standarized PD which had applied throughout the Service Center. Second, IDRS duties, knowledge of technical data processing words and phrases, etc., were added to the PD. With full recognition that, as Mr. Somersat testified, all Adjustment Branch Control Clerks probably were cleared to perform and probably performed some IDRS functions prior to October 4, 1974; nevertheless, the 1972 PD did not require the performance of IDRS duties and the record shows that some Adjustment Branch Control Clerks were not regularly performing IDRS duties prior to October 4, 1974. The October 4, 1974 PD potentially affected movement of control clerks to the Adjustment Branch and set forth different duties, skills, etc., on which performance of incumbent Adjustment Branch Control Clerks would be evaluated. Accordingly, the new PD did involve personnel policies and practices and did concern matters affecting working conditions within the meaning of Section 11(a) of the Order and its unilateral issuance by Respondent constituted an improper bypass and undermining of the status of Complainant and deprived Complainant of any meaningful opportunity to meet and confer on the impact of such action in violation of Section 19(a)(6) of the Order. Army and Air Force Exchange Service, supra; Veterans Administration, Wadsworth Hospital Center, supra; Veterans Administration, Veterans Administration Center, supra. Respondent's improper failure to meet and confer with Complainant prior to issuance of its October 4, 1974 PD also derivatively violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order. Army and Air Force Exchange Service, supra.

In concluding that Respondent violated the Order by failing to give Complainant notice of the new PD prior to its implementation, I have given careful consideration to Respondent's contention that there was no impact on affected employees and, accordingly, no duty to bargain. I agree completely with the decision of Judge Sternburg, In the Matter of: Northeastern Program Center, Bureau of Retirement and Survivors Insurance, Social Security Administration, Case No. 30-6595(CA)(May 28, 1976), where the exclusive bargaining representative has notice of a change in position description and the sole change in duty occurs in the written job description and not in the job itself, that if there is no impact there is no duty to bargain. But the issue here is not simply whether there was a duty to bargain on impact. The threshold issue here is whether the new position description involved personnel policies and practices and concerned matters affecting working conditions within the meaning of Section 11(a) of the Order as to which Complainant was entitled to notice prior to implementation. Agency action may well involve personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions as to which the exclusive bargaining representative is entitled to notice prior to implementation where, as in Veterans Administration Center, supra, bargaining on impact is not reasonably foreseeable; or may, as here, involve action as to which there may or may not be impact on which the exclusive bargaining representative may request bargaining on impact and implementation. The right of Complainant under the Order to be afforded notice and an opportunity to meet and confer regarding the new PD must be measured by whether it involved personnel policies and practices and concerned matters affecting working conditions within the meaning of Section 11(a) of the Order and not by whether there was, or was not, a duty to bargain on impact issues. Not only is notice to the exclusive bargaining representative required prior to action by agency management which involves personnel policies and practices and affects working conditions, whether or not there is a duty to bargain on the action, but such notice is a necessary cornerstone of the right of the exclusive bargining representative to a meaningful opportunity to consult and confer on impact issues. As recognized in Army and Air Force Exchange Service, supra, without notice of contemplated action there can be no meaningful opportunity to consult and confer on impact. To equate the duty to give prior notice, as Respondent urges, to the duty to bargain on impact would emasculate the obligation to deal with the exclusive bargaining representative concerning personnel policies and practices or other matters affecting working conditions and would erode the obligation to bargain on impact issues prior to implementation by permitting agency management to bypass the union by its unilateral determination as to impact, a result which would be inimical to the purpose and spirit of the Order.

As the violation alleged, and found, concerned solely the violation of Sections 19(a)(1) and (b) by the unilateral institution of the October 4, 1974 PD without giving Complainant prior notice and an opportunity to negotiate over the impact and/or implementation; as Complainant concedes that the Respondent had no duty to negotiate its revision of the position description; and as the new position description has been in effect since October 4, 1974, and both grievances and classification appeals were filed with regard thereto, it would be inappropriate to recommend withdrawal of the October 4, 1974 position description pending negotiation on impact, particularly as the record shows that Complainant did not request negotiations on impact in December, 1974, when it met with Respondent. In addition, as the 19(a)(1) and (6) violations found resulted wholly from the failure of the Brookhaven Service Center to give Complainant notice of the new position description prior to its implementation at the Brookhaven Service Center, and consistent with the decisions discussed hereinabove with respect to bargaining obligation, the recommended order will run only to the Internal Revenue Service's Brookhaven Service Center.

RECOMMENDATION

Having found that Respondent Internal Revenue's Brookhaven Service Center engaged in conduct which was in violation of Section 19(a)(6) and derivatively of Section 19(a)(1) of the Executive Order by unilaterally instituting its October 4, 1974, position description without giving Complainant prior notice and an opportunity to negotiate over the impact and/or implementation thereof, I recommend that the Assistant Secretary adopt the following order:

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY, MARE ISLAND NAVAL SHIPYARD, VALLEJO, CALIFORNIA
A/SLMR No. 815

This case involved a petition filed by the Engineers and Scientists of California seeking a unit of all Nuclear Engineering Technicians employed by the Activity. The Activity contended that the petitioned for unit was not appropriate as the claimed employees do not possess a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from other employees of the Activity. Further, the Activity asserted that such a unit would result in the artificial fragmentation of the Activity and would not promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations.

Applying the three criteria found in Section 10(b) of the Order, the Assistant Secretary found that the unit sought was not appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition. In this regard, the Assistant Secretary noted that the employees petitioned for have substantial interaction and interchange with other employees of the Activity, especially other technicians, and that other employees of the Activity are subject to the same personnel policies and practices. Under these circumstances, he concluded that the evidence established that the claimed employees do not share a community of interest separate and distinct from other employees of the Activity, and that such unit would not tend to promote effective dealings or efficiency of agency operations. Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the petition be dismissed.

Petitioner

DECISION AND ORDER

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer George R. Sakanari. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in this case, including a brief filed by the Activity, the Assistant Secretary finds:

1. The labor organization involved claims to represent certain employees of the Activity.

2. The Petitioner, Engineers and Scientists of California, seeks an election in a unit of all Nuclear Engineering Technicians at the Activity. 1/ The Activity contends that the claimed unit is inappropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order because the sought employees do not enjoy a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from other employees of the Activity, i.e., other technicians, and because such a unit would result in artificial fragmentation of the Activity and would not promote effective dealings or efficiency of agency operations.

The Activity's mission is to provide logistics support for assigned ships and service craft; to perform authorized work in connection with construction, conversion, overhaul, repair, alteration, drydocking, and outfitting of ships and craft; to provide services and material to other activities and units; and to perform manufacturing, research, development and test work, as directed by the Department of the Navy.

1/ The unit description contained in the petition specified by classification numerous exclusions in addition to the normal exclusions. In view of the disposition herein, I find it unnecessary to pass upon such exclusions.

The Shipyard is subdivided into 8 major offices and 8 departments which report directly to the Shipyard Commander. The eight offices consist of: Ship Management, Radiological Control, Data Processing, Quality Assurance, Management Engineering, Industrial Relations, Combat Systems and Dispensary. The eight departments consist of: Planning, Production, Public Works, Supply, Comptroller, Administrative, Nuclear Engineering, and a special staff entitled Nuclear Managers.

The record discloses that the overwhelming majority of employees classified as Nuclear Engineering Technicians work in the Nuclear Engineering Department. The Nuclear Engineering Department is responsible for all nuclear reactor plant matters, such as plant modifications, refueling, construction and testing, and accomplishes other technical activity, such as documents, work controls, evaluation of work performance and material. Most of the employees of the Nuclear Engineering Department are professional engineers in a variety of disciplines, with a lesser number of technicians. The Department is subdivided into: the Nuclear Reactor Engineering Division, the Nuclear Fluid Systems and Mechanical Engineering Division, the Nuclear Control Engineering Division, the Nuclear Test Engineering Division, the Nuclear Quality Engineering Division, and the Nuclear Radiological Engineering Division, all under the direct supervision of a Head Nuclear Engineer. The Nuclear Engineering Technicians in these departments perform a variety of subprofessional nuclear technical work, either independently or as an assistant to an engineer.

The Shipyard has granted exclusive recognition to the Federal Employees Metal Trades Council of Vallejo for a unit consisting primarily of Wage Grade employees, but also including some General Schedule employees in the positions of Physical Science, Electrical, and Mechanical Engineering Technicians. The Planners and Estimators, Progressmen and Schedulers Association, Local No. 5, also has been granted exclusive recognition for certain Wage Grade employees at the Activity. Additionally, the Petitioner, has been granted exclusive recognition for a unit consisting of all professional employees at the Activity.

The record reveals that there are approximately 772 nonsupervisory technical employees at the Activity, including the Nuclear Engineering Technicians. Additionally, there are approximately 704 other General Schedule, nonsupervisory personnel at the Activity who are unrepresented and not included in the unit requested, but who do not fall into the category of technical employees. At the time of the hearing in this matter, there were approximately 33 employees classified as Nuclear Engineering Technicians.

The record shows that in the performance of their duties Nuclear Engineering Technicians work throughout the Shipyard and have considerable contact with employees of other departments. Thus, during the time the Nuclear Engineering Technicians are in the Shipyard area or working aboard a ship, they experience substantial interaction with other employees of the Shipyard, especially the Electrical Technicians of the Production Department and with technicians assigned to the Radiological Control Office. Moreover, other technicians are assigned to the Nuclear Engineering Department. Thus, the Mechanical Engineering Technicians are assigned to the Nuclear Reactor Engineering and the Nuclear Quality Engineering Divisions. Nuclear Engineering Technicians in the Nuclear Engineering Department perform technical duties of the same general type as non-nuclear engineering technicians, and, in the course of performing their duties, enjoy significant integration of operations with Metallurgists, Welders, Radiographers, and persons performing non-destructive tests either shipboard or in the shop areas. Furthermore, Nuclear Engineering Technicians function in departments outside the Nuclear Engineering Department. 2/

In addition to revealing significant interaction of personnel between the Nuclear Engineering Department and other departments of the Shipyard, the record also reveals a significant degree of tranfer of technicians between nuclear and non-nuclear fields. Thus, certain employees hired as technicians in non-nuclear departments have subsequently transferred into the Nuclear Engineering Department to become Nuclear Engineering Technicians. Nuclear Engineering Technicians have also transferred to non-nuclear departments as technicians in other engineering disciplines. These transfers in and out of the Nuclear Engineering Department and in and out of the Nuclear Technician classification have occurred as the result of, but not limited to, merit promotion procedures. The record also reveals evidence that many of the Nuclear Engineering Technicians have held some job title other than technician before they entered the Nuclear Engineering Department. In this regard, it appears that many employees gained the designation Nuclear Engineering Technician after on-the-job training in the Nuclear Engineering Department, and that prior to this training they were employed in such classifications as Electronics Specialists, Marine Engineer Inspectors, Test-Specialists, etc., before joining the Nuclear Engineering Department.

All unrepresented General Schedule employees of the Activity are covered by the same personnel policies and procedures, including policies concerning safety, merit promotion, annual leave, emergency leave, sick leave, holidays, adverse actions, disciplinary appeals, grievances, reduction-in-force, equal employment opportunity, position management, basic work week, hours of work, work breaks, overtime, emergency recall, duty travel, employee details, and other Post privileges. Further, the record reveals that all of the Activity's personnel programs and policies are centrally administered through the Industrial Relations Office.

Based on the foregoing, I find that the unit sought herein is not appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. In this regard, it was noted particularly that Nuclear Engineering Technicians have significant interaction and interchange with non-nuclear technicians, that all technicians are covered by the same personnel policies and practices, that these policies are centrally administered, and that all technicians share the same general mission and overall supervision. Under these circumstances, I find that Nuclear 2/ The Nuclear Repair Superintendent of the Production Department supervises two Nuclear Engineering Technicians.

Engineering Technicians do not have a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from certain other employees of the Activity. Further, I find that a unit composed exclusively of Nuclear Engineering Technicians would artifically fragment the Activity, and would not tend to promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. Accordingly, I shall dismiss the petition.

This case arose as a result of an amended unfair labor practice complaint filed by the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 3506 (Complainant) alleging, in effect, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to negotiate with the Complainant concerning the impact and implementation of a management decision to establish a new Staff Attorney Support program in the Regional Offices of the Bureau of Hearings and Appeals.

The Administrative Law Judge recommended that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. In reaching this conclusion, he found that the Respondent timely advised the Complainant of the establishment of the Staff Attorney position and that the Complainant failed to request bargaining concerning the impact and implementation of the institution of the program after it was notified that the Staff Attorney program was going to be instituted.

Noting particularly the absence of exceptions, the Assistant Secretary adopted the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge. Accordingly, he ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This case arises under the provisions of Executive Order 11491, as amended (hereinafter called the Order). American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 3506 (hereinafter called the Union or AFGE Local 3506) filed a complaint on November 10, 1975 alleging that the Bureau of Hearings and Appeals, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Dallas, Texas (hereinafter called the Activity or BHA Region 6) violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of Order by failing to bargain with the Union about the decision to establish a new attorney position and the job description, and about the impact and implementation of the decision to use such an attorney position. The Union withdrew the portion of the complaint alleging that the Activity violated Section 19(a)(6) by its failure to consult "regarding the decision to establish the Staff Attorney Support Program." The withdrawal letter stated further that "the other allegations remain a part of my complaint." The Regional Administrator for Labor Management Services for the Kansas City Region issued a Notice of Hearing on Complaint on July 22, 1976.

Pursuant to the Notice of Hearing on Complaint a hearing was held before the undersigned in Dallas, Texas. Both parties were represented at the hearing, were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses, and to introduce evidence. Both parties were advised of their right to argue orally and to file briefs. Both parties filed briefs, which have been duly considered.

Upon the entire record in this case, from my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, and from all of the testimony and evidence adduced at the hearing, I make the following findings, conclusions and recommendations:

Findings of Fact

1. AFGE Local 3506 was certified and recognized on July 29, 1974 as the exclusive collective bargaining representative for a unit composed of all BHA Region 6 non-professional employees, including GS-6, 7 and 8 Hearing Assistants.

BHA Region 6 has its regional office in Dallas, Texas and has several field offices. There are approximately 84 Hearing Assistants employed in Region 6.

2. During the summer of 1974 the Regional Personnel Office of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (DHEW) conducted a classification survey. Because they received no report on their survey a group of Hearing Assistants instituted a classification appeal with the Civil Service Commission on about February 28, 1975.

3. At about this same time the Bureau of Hearings and Appeals decided to consider the establishment of a Staff Attorney Support Program to provide professional assistance to Administrative Law Judges in order to achieve higher case production and to reduce a national case backlog.

4. In March 1975 the Regional Personnel Office and the BHA Region 6 Assistant Chief Administrative Law Judge Winfrey received notification that the BHA was considering this program and copies of proposed position descriptions for the new attorney positions. They were requested to submit comments to BHA.

5. On March 21, 1975, Assistant Chief Administrative Law Judge Winfrey sent a memo to AFGE Local 3506 President Sandy Palmer advising her of the proposed employment of legal assistants and that there may be some overlapping of duties between those the Hearing Assistants and the proposed job description of the legal assistants.

6. Mrs. Palmer and Danny Hill, another Union official, went to the Regional Personnel Office and asked Mr. Tommy Long, the Activity's Labor Management Specialist, for a copy of the proposed position description for the attorney position. Mr. Long advised Union officials Palmer and Hill that because the proposed job description came from the central office, he did not feel he could give them copies of it, but he did allow them ample opportunity to examine it. Mrs. Palmer, after examining the job description advised Mr. Long that the job seemed similar to hers and that they were concerned about the position description and how it would affect the Hearing Assistants and that they should be given an opportunity to negoitate and consult about it.

Mr. Long replied that the Union didn't have national recognition and that management was not obligated to consult about a new program being instituted at the national level. The record is not quite clear concerning this conversation but it is found that apparently Union officials Palmer and Hill were asking to bargain and consult about the proposed job description and its contents because it would affect the Hearing Assistants position. Mr. Long was responding to that question. It is concluded that the record does not establish that the Union, at that time, was requesting to bargain at the BHA Region 6 level about the implementation and impact of the Staff Attorney Support Program. 1/

7. During the latter part of May 1975 Union President Palmer asked one of the Activity's position classifiers for a copy of the staff attorney's job description. The position classifier looked but was unable to find a copy of the job description and thus could not provide Union President Palmer with a copy.

8. The Attorney Assistant job description in its final form was submitted to the Civil Service Commission for its approval. The Civil Service Commission notified the DHEW and BHA that it approved the position description on June 5, 1975.

9. The Regional Personnel Office was then sent copies of the approved description. The program was scheduled to begin in late July or early August 1975. The Activity advised the Union President, telephoncially, in the latter part of July 1975 that the Staff Attorney Program was to commence and that they were going to hire 15 Staff Attorney to begin training in Dallas in August 1975 and that they would be assigned to field offices around September 15, 1975.

10. The record does not establish that any time after May the Union requested a copy of the approved job description of the Staff Attorney position.

1/ In this regard it should be noted that any such request would have been premature because the job description ahd not been finally drafted and the exact duties of the attorney assistant had not been decided upon. In fact the job description was substantially changed from the form in which it was proposed in March 1975.

11. The Union's unfair labor practice charge letter is dated July 30, 1975.

12. The Activity provided the Union with a copy of the approved job description during August 1975, 2/ before any Staff Attorneys reported to the field offices on or about September 15, 1975.

13. The record fails to establish that AFGE Local No. 3506 ever requested to bargain with representatives of BHA Region 6 concerning the Region's implementation of the Staff Attorney 3/ Program and its impact on Hearing Assistants.

14. The record establishes that the Staff Attorney position, both with respect to its position description and how those filling those positions are acutally performing, in many instances overlaps the Hearing Assistant position, both in respect to its position description and how many filling those positions are actually performing. Therefore it has resulted, and my foreseeably result, in a change and reduction in the duties that many Hearing Assistants are actually performing. 4/

1. The creation of the Staff Attorney position and the duties assigned it foreseeably had an impact on the Hearing Assistant position.

2. It is concluded that DHEW and BHA were privileged under Section 11(b) of the Order to establish the Staff Attorney position without first bargaining with AFGE Local 3506 concerning this decision. It seems clear that

2/ The record indicates that the Union had already received a copy of the approved Staff Attorney job description prior to this date, from sources outside of management.

3/ The Staff Attorney position is not in the unit represented by AFGE Local 3506.

4/ There was much evidence with respect to some classification surveys and whether the creation of the Staff Attorney position will or might result in a downgrading of the Hearing Assistant Position. The record is sufficient to find that because, as found above, the new staff attorney position has resulted in a change and reduction in the duties of many Hearing Assistants, it might very well result in the downgrading of the Hearing Assistant position.

when Section 11(b) provides that the Activity does not have to bargain concerning "...the numbers, types and grades of positions or employees assigned to an organizational unit....," it covers the type of decision arrived at in the subject case to establish the Staff Attorney position. 5/

3. It is concluded further than an integral and inseparable part of the Section 11(b) privilege to unilaterally decide to establish the Staff Attorney position, is the right to unilaterally determine the precise duties the Staff Attorney is to perform and prepare a position description that reflects this. Accordingly it is concluded that the Order did not require that BHA Region 6 bargain with AFGE Local 3506 with respect to the position description for the Staff Attorney position. 6/

4. Even though the unilateral decision to establish the Staff Attorney position and the unilateral preparation of the position description were privileged by Section 11(b) of the Order, nevertheless BHA Region 6 was obliged by the Order to bargain with AFGE Local 3506 with respect to their implementation and impact on the Hearing Assistants. cf. Great Lakes Naval Hospital, A/SLMR No. 289; Marine Corps Supply Center, Barstow California, A/SLMR No. 692.

5. Once the final decision to establish the Staff Attorney position was made and the job description approved, the Activity timely advised the Union of the foregoing. Further during August 1975, the Activity furnished the Union with a copy of the final position description weeks before any Staff Attorneys reported to field offices for work. It is therefore concluded that the Activity gave the Union notice of the Staff Attorney Program sufficiently in advance of its implementation and in sufficient detail to meet the Activity's obligation under the Order. cf. Great Lakes Naval Hospital, supra.

5/ The Union does not contend the Activity violated the Order by failing to bargain concerning the decision to establish the Staff Attorney decision.

6/ In this regard it must be further noted that the decision to establish the Staff Attorney position and the actual preparation of the position description was made by the BHA headquarters and not by BHA Region 6.

6. The Union failed to request to bargain with BHA Region 6 about the impact and implementation of the Staff Attorney position after it was notified that the Staff Attorney Program was finally going to be instituted. 7/

7. In light of the foregoing, noting the absence of any timely request by the Union to bargain about the impact and implementation of the Staff Attorney Program, it is determined that the Activity did not fail or refuse to bargain about the impact and implementation of the Staff Attorney Program and therefore, it is further concluded that the Activity did not violate Section 19(a)(1) of the Order. 8/ Great Lakes Naval Hospital, supra; Marine Corps Supply Center, Barstow California, supra.

Recommendation

In view of all of the foregoing it is recommended that the Assistant Secretary dismiss the complaint in this case.

7/ The only possible request to bargain was made by the Union was in March 1975, before the program was finally decided upon and before the position descriptions were prepared in final form and approved. At such time the request was premature. Also, the request was really to bargain about the contents of the position description and not about its impact and implementation.

8/ The Section 19(a)(1) allegation was in fact in the nature of a Section 19(a)(6) refusal to bargain.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DALLAS REGIONAL OFFICE,
U.S. SMALL BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION
A/SLMR No. 817

This case involved an RA petition filed by the Dallas Regional Office, U.S. Small Business Administration (Activity-Petitioner) seeking to clarify an existing bargaining unit represented exclusively by the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2959 (AFGE), and asserting a good faith doubt as to the continuing majority status of the AFGE in any unit or units found appropriate. The Activity-Petitioner contended that, as a result of a 1973 reorganization, certain employees in the existing bargaining unit assigned to the Regional Office were moved to a new building six miles away, while other employees in the bargaining unit, assigned to the District Office, remained in the same location. As a consequence of the reorganization, the character and scope of the existing bargaining unit were so altered as to render it inappropriate, and that there now exists two separate bargaining units, each of which is appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. The AFGE contended, on the other hand that, although the 1973 reorganization resulted in the physical separation of certain of the employees in the bargaining unit, the character and scope of the unit was not altered so as to destroy the community of interest shared by such employees, and that the existing unit continues, after the reorganization, to promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations.

The Assistant Secretary found that the exclusively recognized unit represented by the AFGE continued, after the reorganization, to remain appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. In this regard, he noted that subsequent to the reorganization, the employees in the exclusively recognized unit continued to perform the same duties, under the same immediate supervision; continued to enjoy a common mission, common overall supervision, common personnel policies and practices administered by the same personnel office; and shared the same areas of consideration for promotions and reduction-in-force procedures. Under these circumstances, the Assistant Secretary found that the employees in the exclusively recognized unit continued to enjoy a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from other employees of the Activity, and that the unit continued, after the reorganization, to promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. The Assistant Secretary also found that there was sufficient evidence to support a good faith doubt by the Activity-Petitioner as to the AFGE's continuing majority status in the existing exclusively recognized unit, and that it would effectuate the purposes and policies of the Order to afford the unit employees the opportunity to express their desires with respect to the continued exclusive representation of such unit by the AFGE. In this regard, the Assistant Secretary noted that there are currently no unit employees who have authorized dues deduction; there have been substantial changes in the complement of employees in the unit; there has been a recent history of difficulty experienced by the Activity-Petitioner in contacting the AFGE, and securing responses to proposed changes in operating and personnel policies; the AFGE has failed to supply the Activity-Petitioner with a list of officers or individuals authorized to act for the AFGE in the absence of its President; and the AFGE has not processed any grievances for a substantial period of time.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary directed that a election be conducted in the appropriate unit.

DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer Joel D. Reed. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in the subject case, the Assistant Secretary finds:

The Dallas Regional Office, U.S. Small Business Administration, hereinafter called the Activity or the Activity-Petitioner, filed the instant petition contending that as a result of a reorganization on October 21, 1973, a bargaining unit of its employees presently represented exclusively by the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2959, hereinafter called the AFGE, was divided into two separate organizations which now constitute separate appropriate bargaining units. In addition, the Activity-Petitioner seeks an election in each of the new bargaining units, contending that it has a good faith doubt of the continuing majority status of the AFGE as the representative of such employees, either in the two bargaining units it contends are now appropriate, or in the existing bargaining unit. Contrary to the Activity-Petitioner, the AFGE contends that, although the reorganization resulted in the physical separation of certain of the employees in the bargaining unit, it did not so alter the character and scope of such unit as to destroy the community of interest shared by the employees. Additionally, the AFGE argues that, despite the physical separation of some of the employees, the bargaining unit continues to promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations.

The mission of the Activity-Petitioner is to service and promote small businesses within the geographical area of the Dallas Region, which includes the states of Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arkansas, and Louisiana. In achieving its mission, the Activity-Petitioner is responsible for the administration of numerous programs, including financial assistance, and the training and assistance of businessmen in successfully establishing and maintaining small businesses. The record reveals that on August 13, 1970, the AFGE was certified as the exclusive representative of certain employees of the Activity-Petitioner in a bargaining unit described as:

> "Including all graded nonprofessional accountants, administrative and clerical personnel, and all graded professional attorneys and accountants. Excluding, all independent supervisors and management personnel, (except clerical personnel), all employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and guards as defined in the Order." 2/

In achieving its mission, the Activity-Petitioner is organized into a Regional Office and several District Offices, among which is the Dallas District Office. The Dallas District Office was located physically in the same place as the Regional Office, and the certified bargaining unit involved herein encompassed employees of both offices.

The record discloses that as a result of a reorganization, effective October 21, 1973, the Regional Office and the District Office of the Activity-Petitioner were physically separated, and the Regional Office was moved to a new building approximately six miles away. Further, on March 31, 1975, the "cashier function," consisting of approximately 40 employees, was transferred to Denver, Colorado. Finally, the Marshall, Texas, District Office was closed in July 1976, and its 14 employees were transferred to the Dallas District Office.

The record further discloses that prior to the reorganization and separation of the two offices, although the employees assigned to the Regional Office performed administrative and staff functions and employees assigned to the District Office performed program functions, there was some degree of overlapping of functions among the employees assigned to these offices. Thus, it appears that a small number of employees performed both program and staff/administrative functions. Subsequent to the reorganization in 1973, no new functions or responsibilities were added but, rather, there was a more complete separation of functions of the employees assigned to the respective offices. Thus, the staff/administrative functions were made solely the responsibility of the employees assigned to the Regional Office, and the program functions were assigned only to the District Office employees. With this minor exception, all employees continued, after the reorganization, to perform the same duties, under the same immediate supervision. Further, the evidence establishes that all of the employees involved continued to enjoy, the same mission, the same overall supervision, the same personnel policies and practices administered by the same personnel office, and the same areas of consideration for merit promotion and reduction-in-force procedures. In addition, the Regional Director continued, after the reorganization, to exercise final authority with regard to the adjustment of grievances and all other aspects of labor relations matters within the region. 3/

1/ The name of the Activity-Petitioner appears as amended at the hearing.

2/ Although a copy of the certification of representative was not introduced into the record, I hereby take official notice of such certification.

Under all the foregoing circumstances, I find that the exclusively recognized unit represented by the AFGE continues, after the reorganization, to remain appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. In this regard, it was noted particularly that, subsequent to the reorganization, the employees in the exclusively recognized unit continue to perform the same duties under the same immediate supervision, and that they continue to enjoy a common mission, common overall supervision, common personnel policies and practices administered by the same personnel office, and share the same area of consideration for promotion and reduction-in-force procedures. Accordingly, I find that the employees in the exclusively recognized unit continue to enjoy a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from other employees of the Activity. 4/ Further, I find that the exclusively recognized unit continues, after the reorganization, to promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. In this regard, it was noted that the ultimate authority for personnel and labor relations matters continues, subsequent to the reorganization, at the level of recognition of the existing exclusively recognized unit, and it would appear that agency operations would not experience additional costs, utilization of agency resources, or loss of productivity as a result of the continued existence of the unit. Moreover, I reject the contentions of the Activity that the establishment of two units in the place of the already existing unit would result in increased effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. Rather, in my view, under the particular circumstances herein, the establishment of two new units would result in unnecessary fragmentation, and could not reasonably be expected to promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. 5/

With regard to the contention of the Activity-Petitioner that it has a good faith doubt concerning the AFGE's continued majority status, the record reveals that since its establishment there have been substantial changes in the complement of the recognized unit. Thus, in March 1975, approximately 40 employees were transferred from the Activity to Denver, and in July 1976, approximately 14 employees were transferred from the defunct Marshall, Texas, District Office to the Activity.

3/ Although the record discloses that the Regional Director retains the ultimate authority in labor relations matters, it further reveals that the District Director, both before and after the reorganization, was authorized to negotiate with labor organizations having exclusive recognition for employees in the District.

4/ Cf. Small Business Administration, Region II, New York, New York, A/SLMR No. 759.

5/ Cf. Naval Aerospace and Regional Medical Center, Pensacola Florida, A/SLMR No. 603, FLRC No. 76A-18.

Further, the evidence establishes that during the past several years the Activity has experienced difficulty in making contact with the AFGE and in securing adequate responses from the AFGE. Thus, during the past several years there has been only sporadic and infrequent response by the AFGE to propose changes in the Activity's operating and personnel practices. Further, the Activity has experienced difficulty in contacting officials authorized to act for the AFGE during the absence or unavailability of the AFGE's President, and when the Activity-Petitioner requested a list of officials or individuals authorized to represent the AFGE, such list was not provided. The record further discloses that for a substantial period of time prior to the filing of the petition herein, the AFGE has not filed any grievances, either on behalf of employees, or in its own behalf. Finally, in October 1975, during an appropriate period, all members of the AFGE then authorizing dues deductions, cancelled such authorizations, and the record reveals that at the time of the hearing herein, no employees in the unit had authorized dues deductions.

When viewed in their totality, I find that the above-noted circumstances are sufficient to support a good faith doubt by the Activity-Petitioner as to the AFGE's continuing majority status and that it will effectuate the purposes and policies of the Order to afford the unit employees the opportunity to express their desires with respect to continued exclusive representation by the AFGE. 6/ Particularly noted in this regard were the above-noted facts that there are currently no unit employees who have authorized dues deductions; there has been a recent history of difficulty experienced by the Activity in contacting the AFGE and securing responses to proposed changes in operating and personnel policies; the AFGE has failed to supply the Activity with a list of officers or individuals authorized to act for the AFGE in the absence of its President; and for a substantial period of time the AFGE has not processed any grievances, either on behalf of individual members of the bargaining unit, or on its own behalf.

Accordingly, I shall direct an election in the following unit:

> All professional and nonprofessional employees of the Regional Office and the District Office, U.S. Small Business Administration, Dallas, Texas, excluding management officials, confidential employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, guards and supervisors as defined in the Order. 7/

6/ Cf. Federal Aviation Administration, Great Lakes Region, Chicago Airports District Office, A/SLMR No. 250.

7/ The unit description incorporates several "cosmetic changes" suggested by the parties at the hearing. In this regard, the parties stipulated that as the Administrative Aide to the District Director and the Program Assistant and the Clerk-Stenographer in the Office of the Regional Director were confidential employees and should be excluded from the unit, the classification of "confidential employees"

It is noted that the unit found appropriate includes professional employees. The Assistant Secretary is prohibited by Section 10(b)(4) of the Order from including professional employees in the unit with employees who are not professional unless a majority of the professional employees votes for inclusion in such a unit. Accordingly, the desires of the professional employees as to inclusion in the unit with nonprofessional employees must be ascertained. I shall, therefore, direct separate elections in the following groups:

> Voting group (a): All professional employees of the Regional Office and the District Office, U.S. Small Business Administration, Dallas, Texas, excluding all nonprofessional employees, management officials, confidential employees, employees engaged in Federal Personnnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, guards, and supervisors as defined in the Order.
> Voting group (b): All nonprofessional employees of the Regional Office and the District Office, U.S. Small Business Administration, Dallas, Texas, excluding all professional employees, management officals, confidential employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, guards, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

The employees in the nonprofessional voting group (b) will be polled whether or not they desire to be represented by American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2959.

The employees in the professional voting group (a) will be asked two questions on their ballots: (1) whether or not they wish to be included with the nonprofessional employees for the purpose of exclusive recognition, and (2) whether or not they wish to be represented for the purpose of exclusive recognition by the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2959. In the event that the majority of the valid votes of voting group (a) are cast in favor of inclusion in the same unit as the nonprofessional employees, the ballots of voting group (a) shall be combined with those of voting group (b).

Unless a majority of the valid votes in voting group (a) are cast for inclusion in the same unit as nonprofessional employees, they will be taken to have indicated their desire to constitute a separate unit, and an appropriate certification will be issued indicating whether or not the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2959, was selected by the professional employee unit.

7/ should be added to the unit exclusions. In addition, a question was raised as to the inclusion of temporary employees in the unit. However, as there was insufficient evidence in the record regarding this matter, I make no determination as to the eligibility of temporary employees to vote in the election.

The unit determination in the subject case is based, in part, then, upon the results of the election among the professional employees. However, I will now make the following findings in regard to the appropriate unit:

1. If a majority of the professional employees votes for inclusion in the same unit as nonprofessional employees, I find that the following employees will constitute a unit appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition within the meaning of Section 10 of the Order:

> All professional and nonprofessional employees of the Regional Office and the District Office, U.S. Small Business Administration, Dallas, Texas, excluding management officials, confidential employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, guards and supervisors as defined in the Order.

2. If a majority of the professional employees does not vote for inclusion in the same unit as the nonprofessional employees, I find that the following two groups of employees constitute separate units appropiate for the purpose of exclusive recognition within the meaning of Section 10 of the Order:

> (a) All nonprofessional employees of the Regional Office and the District Office, U.S. Small Business Administration, Dallas, Texas, excluding all professional employees, management officials, confidential employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, guards and supervisors as defined in the Order.
> (b) All professional employees of the Regional Office and the District Office, U.S. Small Business Administration, Dallas, Texas, excluding all nonprofessional employees, management officials, confidential employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, guards and supervisors as defined in the Order.

DIRECTION OF ELECTION

An election by secret ballot shall be conducted among the employees in the unit found appropriate, as early as possible, but not later than 60 days from the date below. The appropriate Area Administrator shall supervise the election subject to the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. Eligible to vote are those in the unit who were employed during the payroll period immediately preceding the date below, including employees who did not work during that period because they were out ill, or on vacation or on furlough, including those in the military service who appear in person at the polls. Ineligible to vote are employees who quit or who were discharged for cause since the designated payroll period and who have not been rehired or reinstated before the election date. Those eligible shall vote whether or not they desire to be represented for the purpose of exclusive recognition by the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2959.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY,
DEFENSE MAPPING AGENCY,
SAN ANTONIO TOPOGRAPHIC CENTER,
FORT SAM HOUSTON, TEXAS
A/SLMR No. 818

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2174, AFL-CIO (AFGE) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to bargain over the temporary promotion of an employee and by failing to bargain over the impact of this promotion on unit employees. In this regard, the AFGE contended that the promotion was violative of the Defense Mapping Agency's (DMA) Merit Promotion Plan, which was incorporated into the parties' negotiated agreement, and, thus, constituted a unilateral change in working conditions.

The Administrative Law Judge found that in the settlement of an Equal Employment Opportunity complaint the subject employee was given a temporary promotion for 120 days and subsequently a permanent promotion. In this regard, he noted that the DMA Merit Promotion Plan, which was an existing condition of employment, specifically excepted and did not apply to temporary promotions of less than 120 days. The Administrative Law Judge, therefore, concluded that the temporary promotion did not constitute a unilateral change of working conditions and was not violative of the Order. The Administrative Law Judge further concluded that the issue of the subsequent permanent promotion was not properly raised in the proceeding. In this connection, he noted that the permanent promotion was not specifically alleged as improper in the pre-complaint charge, complaint, or amended complaint, and no attempt was made by the AFGE to amend the complaint to include such an allegation. Accordingly, he recommended that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

Noting particularly the absence of exceptions, and that the AFGE had failed to request to bargain over the impact of the temporary promotion although it had ample opportunity to do so, the Assistant Secretary adopted the findings, conclusions, and recommendation of the Administrative Law Judge.

DECISION AND ORDER

On December 20, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Samuel A. Chaitovitz issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had not engaged in the unfair labor practices alleged in the complaint and recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. No exceptions were filed to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in this case, and noting particularly that no exceptions were filed, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, 1/ conclusions and recommendation. 2/

1/ Although the Administrative Law Judge did not make a finding with respect to whether the Complainant requested bargaining over the impact of the temporary promotion of Mr. Aquila McGrew, the record reflects that the Complainant had ample opportunity to make such request and failed to do so.

2/ The Administrative Law Judge determined that the issue of the permanent promotion of Mr. McGrew was not properly raised in the instant proceeding. Under these circumstances, I find it unnecessary to pass upon the Administrative Law Judge's findings at footnote 5 of his Recommended Decision and Order with respect to whether the Respondent's actions in this regard were violative of Section 19(a)(6) of the Order.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to a complaint filed September 16, 1975 and amended on February 2, 1976, 1/ under Executive Order 11491,

1/ The charge letter is dated June 30, 1975.

as amended (hereinafter called the Order) by American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2174, AFL-CIO, (hereinafter called the Union and AFGE Local 2174) against Department of the Army, Defense Mapping Agency, San Antonio Topographic Center, Fort Sam Houston, Texas (hereinafter called the Activity; DMA, San Antonio Office; and the Respondent) a Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued by United States Department of Labor Assistant Regional Director for the Kansas City Region on July 30, 1976.

A hearing was held before the undersigned in San Antonio, Texas. Both parties were represented and afforded a full opportunity to be heard, to introduce evidence and to examine and cross-examine witnesses. Both briefs, which have been duly considered.

Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions of law and recommendations:

Findings of Fact

1. AFGE, Local 2174, was, at all times relevant in this matter, the exclusive bargaining representative of all of the Activity's personnel in the following recognized bargaining units: (a) the non-professional, non-supervisory GS and WG employees employed by the DMA San Antonio Office, with duty stations at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, excluding all professional employees, management officials, all employees engaged in Federal Personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, supervisors and guards, as defined in the Order, and (b) the professional unit which includes all permanent, non-supervisory, non-management, professional employees (GS-1370 and GS-1372 series) of the activity, as described above. Excluded are all supervisors, management officials (to include Project Directors, GS-1370 series), employees engaged in Federal Personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, guards, and all non-supervisory employees other than those in the GS-1370 and GS-1372 series.

2. The DMA San Antonio Office is a branch of the Defense Mapping Agency Topographic Center located in Washington, D.C. (hereinafter referred to as the Washington Topographic Center). The overall agency is the Defense Mapping Agency, also headquartered in Washington, D.C. (hereinafter referred to as HQ-DMA or DMA-Washington).

3. In September, 1974, Mr. Aquila McGrew, an employee of Activity, filed an Equal Employment Opportunity complaint under applicable Defense Mapping Agency procedures, alleging discrimination based on his race, because he was not selected for a position as a GS-12 Supervisory Cartographer at the DMA San Antonio Office.

4. By letter dated January 9, 1975, Colonel Raymond A. Whelan, Director of the Washington Topographic Center, without deciding there was merit to Mr. McGrew's allegations, ordered the Director of the DMA-San Antonio Office to promote Mr. McGrew to a temporary GS-12 position in an attempt to informally settle the complaint.

5. The current negotiated agreement between the parties was signed by the parties on July 23, 1975 and approved on September 3, 1975. No other agreement was received in evidence. It provides, at Article XXI, that vacancies at the GS-12 level and above will be governed by the DMA Merit Promotion Plan.

6. On January 13, 1975, DMA-San Antonio Office's Director, Lieutenant Colonel F. L. Hanigan, was advised of the January 9, 1975 order of the Director, Washington Topographic Center. LTC Hanigan arranged for a meeting with the Union's President, Mr. Mariano Gonzalez, and those unit employees who would be concerned about the promotion action. The meeting was held on the same day, Monday, January 13, 1975.

7. At the meeting LTC Hanigan advised those present of the order given him to promote Mr. McGrew. Those present were concerned about the decision and questioned its appropriateness under established Merit Promotion procedures. A main concern voiced by AFGE Local 2174, during this meeting and subsequent weeks, was with the legality of the proposed action. When questioned as to the authority or reason for Mr. McGrew's promotion, LTC Hanigan, other than responding that it was to settle a discrimination complaint, gave no other authority, basis or explanation for the promotion and would discuss it no further. 2/

2/ LTC Hanigan apparently did not discuss the matter further because he had not been fully advised with respect to the decision to promotion and the reasons for that action.

8. LTC Hanigan, by letter dated January 15, 1975, offered Mr. McGrew the promotion for his acceptance. The promotion was accepted the same day. The temporary promotion for 120 days of Mr. McGrew was finally effected February 23, 1975. In the interim, between January 15 and February 23, the decision to promote Mr. McGrew was retracted by the Washington Topographic Center because it was learned such an action would violate the DMA's Merit Promotion Program, but it was later reinstated by HQ-DMA. This temporary promotion was terminated on June 22, 1975. Mr. McGrew was to receive priority consideration for the next GS-12 vacancy. 3/

9. At no time during the meeting of January 13, 1975, or at any time thereafter, did Complainant's representatives request to discuss the "impact" of Mr. McGrew's temporary promotion, or subsequent permanent promotion, on bargaining unit employees.

10. A hearing on Mr. McGrew's allegation was held before a Civil Service Commission Hearing Examiner. He recommended to DMA-HQ that Mr. McGrew be promoted to a GS-12 position. He did not recommend that the promotion be retroactive to 1974, the date of the alleged discrimination, because there was not sufficient information to make qualifications comparisons and therefore he could not conclude that "but for" the racial discrimination, Mr. McGrew would have gotten the job. DMA-HQ followed the CSC Hearing Examiner's recommendations.

11. By letter dated March 17, 1976, Vice Admiral S. D. Cramer, Jr., Director, HQ-DMA, ordered the permanent promotion of Mr. McGrew to a GS-12 Cartographer, a Project Director. The promotion would be retroactively effective to January 10, 1976. The action to promote Mr. McGrew was taken on April 8, 1976.

12. Neither the temporary position nor the permanent position into which Mr. McGrew was promoted was either posted or advertised and other employees were not solicited or invited to apply for the positions. Normally permanent promotions to the GS-12 position are posted and advertised and employees are solicited to apply and are considered.

13. The permanent GS-12 Project Supervisor position into which Mr. McGrew was promoted was not an existing vacancy but was one created specially for this situation. It is clearly not a supervisory position, nor from the record is it a management position within the meaning of the Order. It is a position specifically excluded from the units represented by AFGE Local 2174.

3/ This basically means that except under unusal circumstances he would be promoted to the next GS-12 position vacant.

14. Defense Mapping Agency Instruction 1405.2 (DMAINST 1405.2) sets forth the DMA Merit Promotion Program. It provides for advertising positions to be filled and methods for selecting among the applicants. However paragraph 3(b)(2) provides that the Merit Promotion Program shall not apply to temporary promotions for less than 120 days.

15. Applicable Civil Service Commission (CSC) Regulations provide authority for informal settlement of discrimination complaints (5 CFR 713.217). Further, these regulations require that the agency, in resolving complaints of discrimination, shall require any remedial action authorized by law determined to be necessary or desirable to resolve the issues of discrimination and to promote the policy of equal opportunity, whether or not there is a finding of discrimination (5 CFR 713.221(c)). Finally, these regulations provide that, if discrimination in promotion is found, but there is insufficient showing that, but for such discrimination, the complaining employee would clearly have been promoted, then the complainant must be extended priority consideration for a position vacancy for which he is qualified (5 CFR 713.271(b)).

Conclusions of Law

The basic issues presented in this case are did the Activity violate Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to bargain with AFGE Local 2174 concerning to both the temporary and subsequent permanent promotion of Mr. McGrew and did the Activity further fail to bargain concerning the impact of Mr. McGrew's promotions. In regard to the foregoing additional issues which must be resolved are whether Mr. McGrew's permanent promotion is properly to be considered in this matter and whether the Activity's promotions of Mr. McGrew constituted unilateral changes in working conditions.

The Activity contends that because Mr. McGrew's promotions, both temporary and permanent, were decided upon and ordered either by the Washington Topographic Center and/or by HQ-DMA, that it, DMA-San Antonio Office, was not responsible for the promotions, was in no position to bargain about the promotions and therefore could not have violated the Order and was not the proper party to be charged. This contention is rejected. If in fact the promotions were changes in working conditions and the Activity was obliged to bargain about such changes, it could not be freed from that obligation by its own higher authority. 4/ If the Activity's own higher authority orders the Activity to act in such a way so as to require the Activity to violate its obligations as required by the Order, the Activity must be deemed to be responsible for its failure to comply with the requirements of the Order. The working and managing relationship between the Activity and its own higher authority is a matter that they must arrange and settle between themselves. Clearly it would be inappropriate under the Order to determine or set relationships among internal agency management. Rather we are limited to determining whether a party, in this case the Activity, is living up to its obligations as set forth in the Order.

With respect to the temporary promotion of Mr. McGrew, it is concluded that the DMA's own Merit Promotion Program, which was an existing condition of employment, specifically excepted and did not apply to temporary promotions of less than 120 days. Therefore the promotion of Mr. McGrew, which was accomplished without meeting the requirements of the Merit Promotion Program, was excepted from the Merit Promotion Program's procedures, did not constitute a unilateral change in working conditions and therefore did not constitute a violation of Section 19(a)(6) of the Order.

The Amended Complaint in this matter which was filed on February 2, 1976, basically alleged that the Activity violated Section 19(a)(6) of the Order by the way it handled the temporary promotion of Mr. McGrew. It did not raise the permanent promotion which was first raised in the letter of March 17, 1976 to Mr. McGrew, because it was made after the amended complaint was filed. The letter to the parties from the Regional Administrator dated July 30, 1976 advised the parties to adduce evidence at the hearing with respect to whether there was a refusal to bargain with AFGE Local 2174 concerning Mr. McGrew's "promotion." The question of the permanent promotion was fully litigated at the hearing. AFGE Local 2174 did not at any time move to amend the complaint to include any allegation involving the permanent promotion of Mr. McGrew. In these circumstances, because the Activity's conduct with respect to the permanent promotion of Mr. McGrew was not alleged or discussed in the charge, complaint or amended complaint in this case and because the complainant has made no motion to amend the complaint to include it, I am constrained to conclude in light of Department of the Activity's the Treasury, U.S. Customs Service, A/SLMR No. 739, that the issue is not properly before me and can not be considered on its merits. 5/

4/ Except in the limited situation of regulations meeting the "compelling need" test as set forth in Section 11 of the Order. This exception is not relevant to the case.

In light of the foregoing therefore, the only issues before me deals with whether the Activity violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order with respect to its handling of the temporary promotion of Mr. McGrew and, as heretofore discussed, it is concluded that the Activity did not violate the Order with respect to the temporary promotion of Mr. McGrew.

RECOMMENDED ORDER

In view of the foregoing it is recommended that the Assistant Secretary dismiss the complaint in its entirety.

SAMUEL A. CHAITOVITZ
Administrative Law Judge

Dated: December 20, 1976
Washington, D.C.

5/ If this aspect of the case, on its merits, were before me, I would conclude that the decision to permanently promote Mr. McGrew was not violative of the Order because the decision, although a departure from the Merit Promotion Program, was made pursuant to Civil Service Commission Regulations and in accordance with the recommendation, after hearing, of a Civil Service Commission Hearing Examiner. However, it would have been further concluded that Section 19(a)(6) of the Order was violated because AFGE Local 2174, was not given sufficient notice of this decision to permit it to request to meaningfully bargain about the impact of this decision.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION
OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

U.S. ARMY CORPS OF ENGINEERS
A/SLMR No. 819

This case arose when the National Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, AFL-CIO (MEBA) filed a petition seeking an election in a unit of all licensed marine engineers employed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in all Corps of Engineer Districts in the continental United States. The Activity took the position that the petitioned for unit was not appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. The Intervenor, National Federation of Federal Employees (NFFE), maintained that the only appropriate units would be those which include all employees of each of the Activity's districts. The Activity and the MEBA stipulated that all of the Activity's licensed marine engineers were supervisors within the meaning of Section 2(c) of the Order. However, in this regard, the NFFE contended that not all of the licensed marine engineers were supervisors as defined in the Order and, accordingly, some of the nonsupervisory licensed marine engineers were included in three of its exclusively recognized district units where its negotiated agreements constituted bars to any election for nonsupervisory licensed marine engineers in these districts.

The Assistant Secretary found that all of the licensed marine engineers were supervisors as defined by Section 2(c) of the Order. Further, the Assistant Secretary noted that he had previously found that the MEBA had traditionally represented units of licensed marine engineers under Executive Order 10988 and in the private sector and that a unit of supervisory licensed marine engineers sought by the MEBA was permissible under Section 24(2) of the Order. As the NFFE was granted intervention status in this proceeding based on its contention that some of the licensed marine engineers were not supervisors under the Order and thus were included in its three exclusively recognized district units, he revoked the NFFE's intervention status in the instant case inasmuch as the NFFE did not qualify as an intervenor in this proceeding (to represent supervisors) within the meaning of Section 202.5(a) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations.

Based on all the circumstances, the Assistant Secretary found that the unit claimed by the MEBA--all licensed marine engineers employed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in Corps of Engineer Districts in the continental United States--was appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition. In this regard, he found that the claimed employees constituted a homogeneous grouping of employees with a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from the other employees of the Activity in that they were all supervisors as defined by Section 2(c) of the Order and possessed similar skills, functions, job classifications and license requirements; that they have transferred between various vessels within the districts and between the various other districts of the Activity; and that they are subject to the same labor relations programs which are set forth in Activity-wide personnel regulations. The Assistant Secretary found further that such a unit would promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. In this regard, he noted that the claimed unit would meet the objectives of the Order as explicated by the Federal Labor Relations Council in its 1975 Report and Recommendations as such a unit not only would result, in effect, in the consolidation of the existing units of licensed marine engineers within the Activity, but would prevent further fragmentation of bargaining units, thereby promoting a more comprehensive bargaining unit structure. Thus, he noted that the Activity has 21 districts which employ licensed marine engineers, that 8 of these districts have exclusively recognized units, and that 8 of the remaining 13 districts employ 4 or fewer licensed marine engineers. With respect to effective dealings, he found that negotiations encompassing the more comprehensive unit sought by the MEBA may permit the parties to address a wider range of matters of critical concern to a greater number of the claimed employees who are unique within the Activity and who have the same concerns and problems. Further, he found that negotiations in less fragmented bargaining unit structures established at higher organizational levels would result in efficiency of agency operations in terms of cost, productivity and use of resources by allowing the Activity, as well as the MEBA, to concentrate efforts on a single negotiated agreement, rather than dissipating resources in negotiating possibly 21 separate agreements with respect to the wide range of problems unique to this group of employees. Moreover, in this regard, he noted that the Office of the Chief of Engineers plays a significant role in the coordination of personnel programs and policies, including the negotiation of agreements, and, accordingly, would be an appropriate bargaining level for a functional Activity-wide grouping of employees.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary directed that an election be conducted in the petitioned for unit.

DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer Carol M. Rollins. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in this case 1/, including briefs filed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, hereinafter called the Activity, the MEBA and the National Federation of Federal Employees, hereinafter called NFFE, the Assistant Secretary finds:

1. The labor organizations involved claim to represent certain employees of the Activity.

2. In its petition, the MEBA seeks an election in a unit consisting of all licensed marine engineers employed by the U.S. Army Corps

1/ Subsequent to the close of the hearing, the Petitioner, National Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, AFL-CIO, hereinafter called MEBA, filed a motion to reopen the record for receipt of newly discovered evidence and the Activity objected to said motion. The motion is hereby denied and the proffered evidence has not been considered in the disposition of this matter.

of Engineers in all Corps of Engineers' Districts in the continental United States, excluding employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, guards, and other supervisors as defined in Executive Order 11491, as amended. 2/ At the hearing, the MEBA stated that it would accept as an alternative unit, "all licensed marine engineers on dredges and tugs who are supervisors and all licensed marine engineers on dredges and tugs or other crafts who are not supervisors as determined by the Assistant Secretary."

The Activity takes the position that the petitioned for unit is not appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. The NFFE maintains that the only appropriate units would be those which include all employees of a particular district, which units would include certain of the licensed marine engineers whom the NFFE contends are nonsupervisory employees.

The Activity and the MEBA stipulated that all of the some 188 licensed marine engineers employed by the Activity within the continental United States are supervisors within the meaning of Section 2(c) of the Order. 3/ Contrary to the Activity and the MEBA, the NFFE contended that not all the licensed marine engineers are supervisors as defined in the Order and, in this regard, some of the nonsupervisory licensed marine engineers are included in its three exclusively recognized district units at Mobile, Alabama, St. Paul, Minnesota, and Vicksburg, Mississippi. Therefore, the NFFE claimed that its negotiated agreements in these Districts constituted bars to any election for the nonsupervisory licensed marine engineers in these districts. 4/

The Activity is entrusted with, among other things, the planning, design, construction, operation and maintenance and acquisition or disposal of real estate necessary for the development of the nation's water resources and the improvement of rivers, harbors and waterways

2/ The unit appears essentially as amended at the hearing.

3/ The Assistant Secretary found in Department of the Navy, Military Sealift Command, A/SLMR No. 245, that the MEBA traditionally represented units of licensed marine engineers (of the Activity involved therein) under Executive Order 10988, and in the private sector. Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary found therein that the unit sought by the MEBA, consisting of supervisory licensed marine engineers, was permissible and appropriate under Section 24(2) of the Order.

4/ The Activity and the MEBA which, as noted above, stipulated that all of the claimed employees are supervisors, further stipulated that there were no bars to an election in this case.

for navigation, flood control, hydro-electric power, recreation, fish and wildlife, and related purposes, including shore protection. It is comprised of 35 district offices within the continental United States. Of these 35 districts, 21 employ licensed marine engineers and operate various floating plants such as hopper dredges, pipeline dredges, towboats, tugs and snagboats which are involved in dredging, snagging, and wreck removal at the district level. Of these 21 operational districts, 8 districts employ 4 or less licensed marine engineers, 5 districts employ between 6 to 8 licensed marine engineers, and 8 districts employ between 10 and 21 licensed marine engineers.

The record reveals that the MEBA currently holds exclusive recognition for licensed marine engineers in the following eight Districts: Portland, Galveston, New Orleans, Jacksonville, Philadelphia, Buffalo, St. Louis, and Kansas City. Of these eight Districts, four have negotiated agreements covering the licensed marine engineers: Portland, Philadelphia, St Louis, and Kansas City. 5/

Supervisory Status-Licensed Marine Engineers

As noted above, the Activity and the MEBA stipulated that all licensed marine engineers are supervisors within the meaning of Section 2(c) of the Order. Although the NFFE contended that some of the licensed marine engineers are not supervisors, it did not specify which individuals or groupings it believed were nonsupervisory. The record reveals that licensed marine engineers must be licensed by the United States Coast Guard as either chief, assistant chief, or first, second, or third engineers. Licenses are issued by the Coast Guard on the basis of whether the vessel involved is steam or dieseled powered. Licensed marine engineers on any vessel have functions which include, among other things, taking charge of a watch and assuring that the vessel is operating properly and that proper maintenance is maintained in the engine room, and supervising the unlicensed personnel in the engine room. A licensed marine engineer on the day shift is responsible for the maintenance and repair of the vessel involved.

5/ In its brief to the Assistant Secretary, the MEBA indicated that by its petition herein it was waiving its exclusive representative status with respect to licensed marine engineers in its exclusively recognized units encompassed by the petition should it lose an election in the Activity-wide unit sought. See Department of the Army, U.S. Army Electronics Command, Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, A/SLMR No. 83. As the Activity and the MEBA stipulated that there were no bars to an election in this case, I find that the parties have, in effect, mutually waived the agreement bars in the four units where they have negotiated agreements. Accordingly, such units may be included in any unit found appropriate herein. See Veterans Administration, A/SLMR No. 240, and U.S. Department of Defense, DOD Overseas Dependent Schools, A/SLMR No. 110.

The evidence establishes that licensed marine engineers have a number of personnel assigned to them during a watch. In this connection, they have discretion as to how the order of work assigned to the shift will be performed and they use independent judgment in handling emergency situations during their shifts taking necessary corrective actions, including assigning work and calling for extra help if needed. The record reveals also that only licensed marine engineers have the authority, under certain conditions, to grant overtime and that they have effectively recommended employees for disciplinary actions and promotions.

Based on all of the foregoing circumstances, I find that licensed marine engineers are supervisors as defined by Section 2(c) of the Order. Particularly noted, in this regard, were the facts that licensed marine engineers have the authority to assign, reward, or discipline other employees, and to responsibly direct them or effectively recommend such actions, and that in the exercise of such authority they are required to use independent judgment. 6/

As indicated above, the NFFE was granted intervention status in this proceeding based on its contention that some of the licensed marine engineers were not supervisors under the Order and thus were included in three of its exclusively recognized district units at Mobile, Alabama, St. Paul, Minnesota, and Vicksburg, Mississippi. Based on my finding that all the claimed licensed marine engineers are supervisors within the meaning of the Order and, therefore, may not be included in any unit represented by the NFFE, I find that the NFFE does not qualify as an intervenor in this proceeding within the meaning of Section 202.5(a) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. Accordingly, I hereby revoke its intervention status in the instant case.

Appropriate Unit

Organizationally, the Activity operates through a three tier command line in accomplishing its mission and functions-i.e. (1) the Office of the Chief of Engineers; (2) the Division Offices; (3) and the District Offices. The Office of the Chief of Engineers and the 12 continental United States division offices are staff offices which exercise no control over the day-to-day operations of the line offices, the districts. However, the record reveals that the Office of the Chief of Engineers develops Activity-wide policies and programs and assigns programs and missions to field activities for accomplishment. This Office also provides staff supervision over division offices including guidance and assistance as required. The division offices have jurisdiction over specified geographical or program areas. They oversee the execution of the construction mission of the Chief of Engineers involving military and civil works planning, engineering, construction, operation and maintenance of facilities and related real estate matters. In accomplishing these mission responsibilities, the divisions have responsibility for review and approval of major plans and programs of the districts within their geographical boundaries. They are also responsible for the interpretation of plans and policies of the Chief of Engineers. The district offices are the principal operational offices of the Corps for the design and construction of military and civil facilities.

As indicated above, the evidence establishes that all licensed marine engineers of the Activity hold either a steam or diesel license from the U.S. Coast Guard and perform duties which are similar in nature no matter which type of vessel they work on or in which district they are employed. The engineers are the only employees of the Activity on the various vessels who are engaged in repair of various pumps, such as fuel pumps, water pumps, fire pumps, and dredge pumps, in addition to supervising the watch so that the engine room equipment will remain operable. All licensed marine engineers' job descriptions and job classifications are similar throughout the districts. Further, licensed marine engineers have their own separate quarters, recreation rooms, and mess areas. Although the wages for the majority of licensed marine engineers are set by local district survey committees and are approved by the Department of Defense Wage Fixing Authority, a number of these employees have their wages fixed pursuant to 5 U.S. Code, Section 5342 in accordance with prevailing rates in the private sector maritime industry. The record reveals that licensed marine engineers have been transferred between various floating plants within a district and have, on occasion, transferred to floating plants in various other districts. The area of consideration for all licensed marine engineers is usually district-wide, but because there is a shortage of some licensed marine engineers, the area of consideration is sometimes expanded to division-wide or even to Activity-wide. Reductions-in-force and bumping rights are confined to the individual districts.

The evidence establishes that civilian personnel functions for licensed marine engineers are, in general, handled at the district level as such functions have been delegated down from the Chief of Engineers to the district engineers subject to the Chief's review and the review of the division engineers. Further, Engineer Regulation 690-1-272 gives the responsibility to the delegated appointing officers, the district engineers, for assuring that strict compliance with Civil Service laws, rules, and regulations, and Department of the Army, Corps of Engineers, and division-wide regulations governing civilian personnel administration is obtained. Thus, among other things, the district engineers have the authority to hire, promote, transfer, assign, and retain employees in positions within his district, and to suspend, demote, discharge, or take other disciplinary action. Furthermore, the district engineers have control over most third-party actions that affect employees under their jurisdiction, such as proceedings before the Federal Service Impasses Panel and before the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations.

The record reveals also that the Activity has promulgated a Corps-wide labor-management relations program pursuant to Department of the Army labor relations policy as contained in Army Civilian Personnel Regulations (CPR 711) and a Corps-wide personnel program as contained in Department of the Army, Personnel Relations and Services (CPR 700). Thus, basic labor relations and personnel policies are the same for all engineer districts and any differences that do exist in the employee benefit category is limited to administration which may vary to meet the particular demands of local conditions. In this regard, the record shows that the Activity employs a Chief of Labor-Employee Relations in the Office of Civilian Personnel who is involved at the Activity level with, among other things, labor relations, discipline, grievances and appeals. The Chief of Labor-Employee Relations and his staff also perform many labor and personnel functions for the districts, including the review and audit of negotiated agreements and the interpretation of the various regulations for the divisions and districts. 7/

Furthermore, although the Office of the Chief of Engineers has delegated personnel matters and the authority to enter into negotiated agreements to division engineers, (in turn, district engineers have been granted the authority by delegation from appropriate division engineers) and to commanders of separate Corps of Engineers' installations and activities, the record reveals that the Office of the Chief of Engineers retains substantial and definitive authority in regard to all aspects of labor relations and other personnel matters. Thus, upon the filing of a petition requesting exclusive recognition for a new unit, a component of the Activity receiving the petition is obligated to transmit two copies of such petition to the Office of the Chief of Engineers in Washington, D.C. The local command is given the opportunity to state a position regarding the appropriateness of the proposed unit and the division engineer or engineers involved are directed to indicate their concurrence or non-concurrence, and the Office of the Chief of Engineers is vested with the ultimate authority to review and reply to the proposed determination by a local commander as to appropriateness of the unit sought.

With respect to the negotiation of agreements, the Office of the Chief of Engineers has directed that whenever a notice is received that a labor organization desires to negotiate an agreement--or if either party issues a notice to the other of its intention to renegotiate an agreement--the Personnel Relations and Service Branch, Civilian Personnel Division, Office of the Chief of Engineers, is to be notified by telephone of:

> "...Any significant problems expected or anticipated will be reported and any anticipated assistance needed will be discussed. Appropriate telephone contact with the next higher command echelon will be maintained throughout the negotiations. Two copies of FMCS Form F-53 will be forwarded to HQDA (DAEN-EPC-S) WASH, D.C. 20314 and one copy to the Division Office, where appropriate." 8/

Further, the Office of the Chief of Engineers has directed that local management negotiators are to maintain telephone contact with the next higher command and to call freely upon Command resources for any advice or assistance needed throughout the negotiations. The Office of the Chief of Engineers has directed that before commencing negotiations, local commands attempt to establish a pre-negotiation agreement covering the conditions of negotiations, the composition of the negotiation teams, and the procedures for resolving disagreements. A copy of such a schedule is to be forwarded to the Office of the Chief of Engineers. In addition, local commands are directed, when considering proposals that could have an effect upon operations or practices at other Corps of Engineer activities, to discuss such proposals with the next higher command element with regard to matters involving the operation of hopper dredges, other floating plants, and various other operations. Furthermore, after a negotiated agreement has been tentatively concluded and the districts' personnel officer has reviewed the tentative agreement to ascertain that it is consistent with higher echelon policy requirements, the local commander may affix his signature to the agreement, but only after all other parties have done so. Upon approval of the agreement by a local commander, six copies are to be forwarded directly to the Office of the Chief of Engineers in Washington who reviews the document to determine:

> "...if ...any provision of the Agreement is invalid, because it violates or is inconsistent with a written policy, procedure, regulation or law, the local activity will be so informed in writing." 9/

Based on all of the above circumstances, I find that the petitioned for unit of all of the Activity's licensed marine engineers in the continental United States is appropriate for exclusive recognition. Thus,

7/ The record reveals that the MEBA has been in contact with the Activity headquarters on an informal and unofficial basis regarding matters affecting licensed marine engineers activity-wide, such as shore leave, subsistence and quarters during "lay-up" of vessels, workweek when vessels go certain distances, payment of transportation for engineers who first join vessels, change of pay grade for second assistants on certain vessels and hiring of new employees or licensed engineers in positions in the Activity with the assistance of the MEBA.

8/ Activity Exhibit 9, (ER 690-1-711) entitled, "Office of the Chief of Engineers, Civilian Personnel, LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS".

9/ See footnote 8, above.

the evidence establishes that all of the claimed licensed marine engineers are supervisors as defined by Section 2(c) of the Order and possess similar skills and functions which are clearly distinguishable from those of other occupational groups of the Activity. All licensed marine engineers perform duties which are similar in nature no matter which type of vessel they work on or in which district they are located. Also, all licensed marine engineers have similar job classifications, duties, and job descriptions and must meet the special requirement of holding either a steam or diesel license from the U.S. Coast Guard. Further, they have separate quarters, recreation rooms, and mess areas, and have transferred between various vessels within the districts and between the various other districts of the Activity. Additionally, all licensed marine engineers are subject to the same labor relations policies set forth in Activity-wide personnel regulations. Under these circumstances, I find that the licensed marine engineers of the Activity in the continental United States constitute a homogenous grouping of employees with a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from the other employees of the Activity.

I find, further, that the claimed unit will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. In this regard, it was noted that in its 1975 Report and Recommendations, the Federal Labor Relations Council stated that:

> We believe that the policy of promoting more comprehensive bargaining units and hence of reducing fragmentation in the bargaining unit structure will foster the development of a sound Federal labor-management relations program. We believe that the proposed modifications of the Order and subsequent actions of the Assistant Secretary will facilitate the consolidation of existing units, which will do much to accomplish the policy of creating more comprehensive units. We further feel that the Assistant Secretary can do much to foster this policy in carrying out his functions of deciding other representation questions including the appropriateness of newly sought units. Accordingly, in all representation questions, equal weight must be given to each of the three criteria in section 10(b) of the Order. By doing so, the result should be broader, more comprehensive bargaining units. 10/

The claimed unit would, in my view, meet the objectives of the Order, as explicated by the Council. Presently, there are 8 exclusively recognized units in the 21 districts that employ licensed marine engineers. Of the remaining 13 districts, 8 employ 4 or fewer licensed marine engineers. Thus, the Activity's contention that district-wide units of licensed marine engineers are more appropriate could result in the proliferation of a number of small units of this functional grouping of supervisory employees. On the other hand, the unit claimed by the MEBA would, in effect, not only result in the consolidation of its existing units within the Activity, but would prevent further fragmentation of bargaining units, thereby promoting a more comprehensive bargaining unit structure. Moreover, with respect to effective dealings, negotiations encompassing the more comprehensive unit sought by the MEBA may permit the parties to address a wider range of matters of critical concern to a greater number of these employees who are unique within the Activity and who have the same concerns and problems. Further, negotiations in less fragmented bargaining unit structures established at higher organizational levels will, I believe, result in efficiency of agency operations in terms of cost, productivity and use of resources by allowing the Activity, as well as the MEBA, to concentrate efforts on a single negotiated agreement with respect to the wide range of problems unique to this group of employees, 11/ rather than dissipating resources in negotiating possibly 21 separate agreements. In this regard, as noted above in footnote 7, many of these matters are presently the subject of contact between the Activity and the MEBA on an "informal basis."

Moreover, as noted above, in the negotiation of agreements the Civilian Personnel Division of the Office of the Chief of Engineers is consulted with respect to any significant problems, and anticipated needs are discussed, presumably because of the expertise available at the headquarters office and because of the need to coordinate policy. With regard to the scope of personnel services, although the district engineers are responsible for administering the civilian personnel program as outlined in Engineer Regulation 690-1-272, they must assure strict compliance with Civil Service, Agency and Activity rules, regulations and laws. Thus, while there may be some district variations in personnel and labor relations matters, the evidence establishes that the Office of the Chief of Engineers plays a significant role in the coordination of personnel programs and policies and would be an appropriate bargaining level for a functional Activity-wide grouping of employees. 12/

11/ Although the Activity notes that authority to negotiate agreements has been delegated through the Office of the Chief of Engineers to the district offices, I do not view this as precluding the Office of the Chief of Engineers from itself negotiating agreements in appropriate circumstances.

12/ Cf. Federal Aviation Administration, Department of Transportation, A/SLMR No. 173.

Based on the foregoing, I conclude that the claimed functional unit of all licensed marine engineers of the Activity employed in the continental United States shares a clear and identifiable community of interest and that such a unit will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. Accordingly, I find the following unit to be appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recogntion under Executive Order 11491, as amended: 13/

> All licensed marine engineers employed by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers in all districts in the continental United States, excluding employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, management officials, guards, and other supervisors as defined in Executive Order 11491, as amended.

DIRECTION OF ELECTION

An election by secret ballot shall be conducted, as early as possible, but not later than 60 days from the date below. The appropriate Area Administrator shall supervise the election, subject to the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. Eligible to vote are those in the unit who were employed during the payroll period immediately preceding the date below, including employees who did not work during that period because they were out ill, or on vacation or on furlough, including those in the military service who appear in person at the polls. Ineligible to vote are employees who quit or were discharged for cause, since the designated payroll period and who have not been rehired or reinstated before the election date. Those eligible shall vote whether or not they desire to be represented by the National Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, AFL-CIO.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

PORTSMOUTH NAVAL SHIPYARD,
DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY
A/SLMR No. 820

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed jointly by the International Federation of Professional and Technical Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 4 (IFPTE) and the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2024 (AFGE) alleging, in essence, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by unilaterally cancelling a written agreement relative to a change in shift hours for employees within three separate units represented exclusively by the IFPTE, the AFGE and the Federal Employees Metal Trades Council, AFL-CIO (MTC). The MTC was not a party to the instant proceeding.

The Administrative Law Judge noted that early in discussions concerning a proposed change in shift hours, the Respondent had advised the Complainants herein and the MTC that no change in the existing shift hours for employees of the three units, provided for in their three respective existing negotiated agreements, would occur unless all three labor organizations reached a common agreement on such change. He found that subsequent to the signing of a written Memorandum of Understanding (Memorandum) regarding a change in existing shift hours by the Respondent and the Complainants, the Respondent and the MTC had at a later meeting, in effect, reached an oral agreement involving a special arrangement concerning the shift assignments of certain MTC unit employees, and that the Respondent and the MTC understood that such agreement had been entered into when the MTC signed the Memorandum at the close of that later meeting. It was found further by the Administrative Law Judge that, thereafter, to avoid certain problems which had occurred, the Respondent decided to withdraw from the oral agreement concerning shift assignments it had reached with the MTC and at a subsequent meeting with the three labor organizations invited the MTC to withdraw its signature from the Memorandum, such action having the further effect, in the Respondent's view, of negating any agreement between the parties, and thus cancelling any obligation the Respondent would have had under the Memorandum with respect to the Complainants. Based on the above circumstances, the Administrative Law Judge concluded, in essence, that the Respondent's conduct herein constituted a failure to bargain in good faith in violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

Although the Assistant Secretary agreed with the Administrative Law Judge's conclusion that the Respondent's conduct, with respect to the IFPTE and the AFGE, was violative of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order, he did so for different reasons than those relied upon by the Administrative Law Judge. Thus, the Assistant Secretary found that the Memorandum, while silent with respect to the existence of an oral agreement between the Respondent and the MTC concerning shift assignments, was clear and unambiguous on its face relative to the subject of a change in shift hours for employees within the Complainants' and the MTC's units and, in the Assistant Secretary's view, constituted a modification of each of the three labor organizations' negotiated agreements and not a separate and independently enforceable agreement. In this regard, he found that when the MTC signed the Memorandum, the only condition precedent to the effectuation of the Memorandum as a modification of the three negotiated agreements was fulfilled, i.e. that all three labor organizations had to agree to the change in shift hours before any individual modification would be effective. Under these circumstances, the Assistant Secretary concluded that when, thereafter, the Respondent issued a notice to all employees cancelling a prior notice which had announced the implementation of the change in shift hours, it violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order as such action constituted a failure to comply with the terms of its individual negotiated agreements with Complainants, as amended by the Memorandum.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary issued an appropriate remedial order. In this regard, he held that such remedy should apply only to the IFPTE and the AFGE as the MTC was not a party to the instant proceeding.

DECISION AND ORDER

On September 30, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Salvatore J. Arrigo issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom and take certain affirmative actions as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. Thereafter, the Respondent filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order, and the Complainants filed a response to the Respondent's exceptions.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, including the Respondent's exceptions and supporting brief and the Complainants' response to the Respondent's exceptions, I hereby adopt the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge, only to the extent consistent herewith.

The complaint in the instant case alleges, in essence, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by unilaterally cancelling a written agreement relative to a change in shift hours.

The essential facts of the case are set forth, in detail, in the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order, and I shall repeat them only to the extent necessary.

Involved herein is a proposed change in shift hours which would have had the effect of establishing a split first shift for employees within three separate units represented exclusively by the International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, AFL-CIO, Local 4, hereinafter called IFPTE, the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2024, hereinafter called AFGE, and the Federal Employees Metal Trades Council, AFL-CIO, hereinafter called MTC. 1/ As noted by the Administrative Law Judge, the record reveals that early in the discussions concerning the proposed change in shift hours, the Respondent advised the Complainants herein and the MTC that no change in the existing shift hours for employees of the three units, provided for in their three respective existing negotiated agreements, would occur unless all three labor organizations reached a common agreement on such change. He noted that the parties' discussions had proceeded on that basis and found that, subsequent to the signing on May 20, 1975, of a written Memorandum of Understanding (hereinafter called the Memorandum) regarding a change in existing shift hours by the Respondent and the Complainants, 2/ the Respondent and the MTC, at a June 6, 1975, meeting, had, in effect, reached an oral agreement involving a special arrangement concerning the shift assignments of certain MTC unit employees. In this regard, he found that the Respondent and the MTC understood that such agreement had been entered into when the MTC signed the Memorandum at the close of the June 6, 1975, meeting. 3/ Moreover, he concluded that even if the Respondent's agent did not have the authority to bind the Respondent on June 6, 1975, to such an oral agreement, the subsequent issuance by the Respondent on June 11, 1975, of a notice to all employees implementing the change of shift hours, effective June 29, 1975, constituted a ratification of the oral agreement. It was found further that, thereafter, to avoid certain problems which had occurred, the Respondent decided to withdraw from the oral agreement concerning shift assignments it had reached with the MTC. Thus, at a June 13, 1975, meeting with the three labor organizations involved, it invited the MTC to withdraw its signature from the Memorandum, such action having the further effect, in the Respondent's view, of negating any agreement between the parties, and thus cancelling any obligation the Respondent would have had under the Memorandum with respect to the Complainants. 4/ Based on the above circumstances, the Administrative Law Judge concluded, in essence, that the Respondent's conduct herein constituted a failure to bargain in good faith in violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

1/ As indicated above, the IFPTE and the AFGE are the Complainants in this case, while the MTC is not a party to the instant proceeding.

2/ The Memorandum provided as follows:

> The provisions for a regular day shift of 0730-1600 hours contained in the Shipyard-AFGE Local 2024 and the Shipyard-IFPTE Local 4 collective bargaining Agreements are hereby modified to provide for a regular day shift of 0750-1620 in addition to the present 0730-1600 regular day shift.
>
> The provision for regular day shifts of 0730-1610 or 0800-1630 and for a regular second or afternoon shift of 1600-0030 contained in the Shipyard-Metal Trades Council collective bargaining Agreement is hereby modified to provide for regular day shifts of 0730-1600 or 0750-1620 and a regular second or afternoon shift of 1545-0015.
> The undersigned labor organizations recognize that the obligation to meet and confer with them with respect to personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions imposed upon the Shipyard by Section 11(a) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, (Continued)

2/ does not include matters with respect to the numbers, types, and grades of positions or employees assigned to an organizational unit, work project or tour of duty (as provided in Section 11(b) of the Order) and that the Shipyard therefore will not negotiate with regard to such matters. However, the Shipyard recognizes that it has an obligation to meet and confer with the undersigned labor organizations on those issues covered by Section 11(a) of the Order and not excluded by Section 11(b) of the Order which may arise from the implementation of this Memorandum.

3/ Subsequently, on June 9, 1975, the MTC delivered to the Respondent a letter requesting "verification" of the oral agreement allegedly reached by it and the Respondent on June 6, 1975, concerning shift assignments of certain MTC unit employees. In pertinent part, this letter, addressed to the Respondent's Director of Industrial Relations, stated:

> As per our discussion on 6 June 1975, it is our understanding that the following employees in our bargaining unit will remain on the 0730-1600 hours shift versus the 0750-1620 hours shift....

4/ On June 17, 1975, the Respondent issued a notice to all employees cancelling the notice regarding the change in shift hours it had previously issued on June 11, 1975.

While I agree with the conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that the Respondent's conduct herein, with respect to the IFPTE and the AFGE, was violative of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order, I do so for different reasons than those relied upon by the Administrative Law Judge. The Memorandum involved herein, while silent with respect to the existence of an oral agreement between the Respondent and the MTC concerning shift assignments of certain MTC unit employees 5/, was clear and unambiguous on its face relative to the subject of a change in shift hours for employees within the Complainants' and the MTC's units. Moreover, contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, I view the Memorandum solely as a modification of each of the three negotiated agreements and not as a separate and independently enforceable agreement. Thus, upon execution of the Memorandum, each of the respective existing negotiated agreements between the Respondent and the IFPTE, the AFGE, and the MTC was, in effect, modified in accordance with the Memorandum's terms. 6/ In this regard, I find that when the MTC signed the Memorandum on June 6, 1975, the only condition precedent to the effectuation of the Memorandum as a modification of the three negotiated agreements was fulfilled, i.e. that all three labor organizations had to agree to the change in shift hours before any individual modification would be effective. Thereafter, the Respondent, in effect, affirmed the execution of the Memorandum, when, on June 11, 1975, it issued a notice to all employees announcing the implementation of the change in shift hours with such change to be effective on June 29, 1975. Under these circumstances, I conclude that when, on June 17, 1975, the Respondent issued a second notice to all employees cancelling its notice of June 11, 1975, which implemented the change in shift hours, it violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order, as, in my view, such action constituted a failure to comply with the terms of its individual negotiated agreements with the 5/ Although not necessary to my conclusion herein, I find that the record fails to clearly establish that the MTC and the Respondent had reached a separate and binding oral agreement during their June 6, 1975, meeting with respect to the shift assignments of MTC unit employees. In this regard, it was noted that at the hearing in this matter only the Respondent's representative at the meeting of June 6, 1975, between the Respondent and the MTC testified as to what occurred at that meeting and the Respondent's representative testified that no such oral agreement had been reached. An MTC representative testified at the hearing herein only with respect to the delivery date of its June 9, 1975, "verification" letter.

6/ The Memorandum specifically provided for the modification of each labor organization's negotiated agreement with respect to shift hours. See footnote 2, above.

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard, Department of the Navy, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Failing and refusing to implement its negotiated agreements with the International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, AFL-CIO, Local 4, and the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2024, as amended on June 6, 1975, with respect to the shift hours of those employees represented exclusively by the aforementioned labor organizations, during the term of such negotiated agreements, unless modifications are mutually agreed to by the parties to those agreeements.

(b) In any like or related manner, interfering with, retraining, or coercing employees in the exercise of their rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purposes and policies of Executive Order 11491, as amended:

(a) Implement, after proper notification, the terms of its negotiated agreements entered into with the International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, AFL-CIO, Local 4, and the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2024, as amended on

7/ As indicated above, I have found that the evidence fails to clearly establish that the Respondent and the MTC had entered into a separate oral agreement at the June 6, 1975, meeting. I find further that the evidence fails to establish that an oral modification of the Memorandum was entered into at that meeting. In this regard, it was noted that the MTC's subsequent letter to the Respondent dated June 9, 1975, requesting "verification" of the alleged oral agreement does not indicate that the MTC contemplated the alleged oral agreement to be a specific oral modification of the Memorandum at issue in this case. Moreover, even if the existence of an oral agreement between the Respondent and the MTC had been clearly established, enforcement of such oral agreement as a separate agreement or as a modification of the Memorandum would be a matter for resolution solely between the MTC, which is not a party to this proceeding, and the Respondent. Accordingly, the remedial order herein shall apply only to the enforcement of the negotiated agreements, as amended on June 6, 1975, between the Complainants and the Respondent.

June 6, 1975, with respect to the shift hours of those employees represented exclusively by the aforementioned labor organizations, during the term of such negotiated agreements, unless modifications are mutually agreed to by the parties to those agreements.

(b) Post at its facility at the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms, they shall be signed by the Commanding Officer and shall be posted and maintained by him for 60 consecutive days thereafter, in conspicuous places, including all bulletin boards and other places where notices to employees are customarily posted. The Commanding Officer shall take reasonable steps to insure that such notices are not altered, defaced, or covered by any other material.

(c) Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations, notify the Assistant Secretary in writing within 30 days from the date of this order as to what steps have been taken to comply herewith.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

This case, heard in Portsmouth, New Hampshire on May 6, 1976, arises under Executive Order 11491, as amended (hereinafter called the Order). Pursuant to the Regulations of the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations (hereinafter called the Assistant Secretary), a Notice of Hearing on Complaint issued on April 6, 1976 with reference to alleged violations of Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. The complaint, as amended, filed by International Federation of Professional and Technical Engineers, AFL-CIO, Local 4 (IFPTE) and American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2024, (AFGE), hereinafter jointly referred to as Complainants, alleged that Portsmouth Naval Shipyard, Department of the Navy, hereinafter called Respondent or the Activity, violated the Order by unilaterally cancelling an agreement relative to a change of work shifts and failing to give the Unions proper notice prior to announcing the cancellation to employees.

At the hearing the parties were represented and were afforded full opportunity to adduce evidence, call, examine and cross examine witnesses and argue orally.

Upon the entire record 1/ in this matter, from my reading of the briefs and from my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following:

Findings of Fact

The Portsmouth Naval Shipyard is located in Kittery, Maine and is one of eight naval shipyards under the command of Naval Sea Systems Command Headquarters in Arlington, Virginia. Its mission is to provide logistic support for assigned ships and service craft; to perform authorized work in connection with the construction, conversion, overhaul, repair, alteration, drydocking, and outfitting of ships and craft; to perform manufacturing, research development and test work; and to provide services and material to other activities and units.

IFPTE enjoys exclusive recognition as the bargaining representative of all professional and technical employees (approximately 1,000 in number). Its latest contract went into effect on April 30, 1974 and expires on April 29, 1977.

1/ The unopposed request of IFPTE for corrections in the transcript is hereby granted.

AFGE enjoys exclusive recognition as the bargaining representative of all general schedule employees, excluding professional and technical employees and physical science technicians (approximately 600 in number). Its latest contract went into effect on November 8, 1974 and expires on November 7, 1976.

The Metal Trades Council (MTC) enjoys exclusive recognition as the bargaining representative of all wage grade employees and general schedule physical science technicians (approximately 4,200 in number). Its latest contract went into effect on January 25, 1974 and expires on January 24, 1977.

Prior to the implementation of the agreements which went into effect in 1974, IFPTE and AFGE unit (white collar) employees worked on a day shift commencing 0800 hours and ending at 1630 hours. Also working these hours were certain MTC unit employees numbering approximately 100-planners, estimators, supply and various other employees who, due to the nature of their activities, worked closely with certain IFPTE and AFGE unit employees. However, the vast majority of the employees represented by the MTC (blue collar workers) worked a day shift beginning 0730 hours and ending at 1610 hours. Pursuant to the terms of the collection bargaining agreements which took effect in 1974, IFPTE and AFGE employees began working a day shift from 0730 hours to 1600 hours. In 1974 the Activity and the MTC modified the MTC agreement so that all employees in that Union's unit also worked a 0730 to 1600 hour day shift.

By letter dated January 2, 1975 the AFGE requested Captain McDonough, Commanding Officer of Respondent Activity, to give his "serious consideration" to changing the shift hours of employees to minimize the traffic backup which was occurring due to all employees entering and leaving the facility at the same times. Captain McDonough, by letter dated January 14, 1975, advised the AFGE that he was aware of the traffic problems and employees' desires for staggered shift hours and stated he would give serious consideration to any AFGE suggestion related to specific shift hours and the organizational segments of the Shipyard that might be affected. Subsequently, by letter dated January 24, 1975 AFGE recommended to Captain McDonough that the shift of all classified (general schedule) employees be changed to 8:00 A.M. - 4:30 P.M. and advised him that the IFPTE was in accord with the recommendation.

Respondent, represented by Director of Industrial Relations Donald Holster, met with AFGE, IFPTE and MTC separately or jointly on approximately seven occasions from January through March 1975 in attempt to reach a consensus on shift hours.

Sometime during discussions which took place between February 24 and February 28, and perhaps earlier, the Activity informed the three Unions that all parties must be satisfied with any change from the existing work hours before anyone would be bound. No objection was interposed by the Unions to this condition and thereafter, discussions proceeded on that basis.

By separate letters to Captain McDonough dated March 6, 1975, IFPTE and AFGE proposed that the hours of employees in their respective units be changed to 7:50 A.M. to 4:20 P.M. and employees required to support production be put on a 7:20 A.M. to 3:50 P.M. Captain McDonough responded by letter dated March 27, 1975, advising IFPTE and AFGE of Respondent's position at that time. The letters stated, inter alia:

> "As a result of these meetings, the parties reached an understanding that two day shifts were feasible; one consisting of the current 0730-1600 shift hours and one consisting of an 8 hour shift with a 30 minute lunch starting later than the 0730-1600 shift. The Shipyard proposed the establishment of a second day shift on two occasions but it was not accepted either time, apparently because your organizations were not satisfied with the Shipyard's description of the number and types of employees which would be assigned to the two shifts."

In addition, Captain McDonough informed IFPTE and AFGE that according to his interpretation of the provisions of Section 11(b) of the Order:

> "...if the Shipyard and your organizations open their Agreements for renegotiation of the hours of work Articles, the Shipyard must negotiate what hours of work the second day shift will consist of; however, the Shipyard need not negotiate the number and types of employees or positions to be assigned to these shifts. Since I believe it is necessary to retain the right to determine the number and types of employees and positions which will be assigned to shifts in order to efficiently manage the Shipyard, I am willing to negotiate the hours of work of a second day shift, but will not negotiate the number and types of employees or positions to be assigned to the two shifts."

The letters concluded:

> "The Director of Industrial Relations is prepared to proceed with the discussions on this basis. Please contact him when you are also prepared to meet."

Following meetings in March between Holster and the three labor organizations, Captain McDonough, by letter dated April 15, 1975, presented the three Unions with a proposal for change in the work hours of all employees. The letter offered as "a reasonable solution to the problem" a "compromise" which would retain the existing 0730 to 1600 shift hours and establish a new 0750 to 1620 shift. McDonough informed the Unions that "(a)s nearly as can be determined, the employees in your units who would be assigned to the 0750-1620 shift are those who previously worked the 0800-1630 shift.

Enclosed with the letter was a Memorandum of Understanding which, McDonough's letter provided, required execution by all parties in order to effectuate the change. The Memorandum of Understanding contained blanks for signatures by the Presidents of the three Unions and Director of Industrial Relations Holster and provided as follows:

> "The provisions for a regular day shift of 0730-1600 hours contained in the Shipyard-AFGE Local 2024 and the Shipyard-IFPTE Local 4 collective bargaining Agreements are hereby modified to provide for a regular day shift of 0750-1620 in addition to the present 0730-1600 regular day shift.
> "The provision for regular day shifts of 0730-1610 or 0800-1630 and for a regular second or afternoon shift of 1600-0030 contained in the Shipyard-Metal Trades Council collective bargaining Agreement is hereby modified to provide for regular day shifts of 0730-1600 or 0750-1620 and a regular second or afternoon shift of 1545-0015.

> "The undersigned labor organizations recognize that the obligation to meet and confer with them with respect to personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions imposed upon the Shipyard by Section 11(a) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, does not include matters with respect to the numbers, types, and grades of positions or employees assigned to an organizational unit, work project or tour of duty (as provided in Section 11(b) of the Order) and that the Shipyard therefore will not negotiate with regard to such matters. However, the Shipyard recognizes that it has an obligation to meet and confer with the undersigned labor organizations on those issues covered by Section 11(a) of the Order and not excluded by Section 11(b) of the Order which may arise from the implementation of this Memorandum."

By letter dated May 9, 1975, Respondent informed the three Unions that it has not had an official response from any of them relative to its April 15 proposal. The letter provided, inter alia;

> "...Unless a unanimous response is received by 16 May 1975 I will assume that agreement cannot be reached. If agreement cannot be reached, then the Shipyard will remain on the current 0730-1600 hours first shift.
> The Shipyard stands ready to discuss this matter with you so that hours may be achieved that are in the best interest of the Shipyard and the employees in the units that you represent."

Representatives of IFPTE and AFGE met with Respondent on May 20, 1975 and all three parties signed the above Memorandum of Understanding. However, MTC made no official response to the proposal. Accordingly, in a letter dated May 30, 1975 Captain McDonough notified the President of MTC, Raymond Hall, that the Memorandum had been signed by IFPTE, AFGE and managment. McDonough informed Hall that if no reply to the proposal was received from MTC by June 4, McDonough would assume that agreement could not be reached and the facility would remain on the 0730-1600 hours first shift schedule.

On Friday, June 6, 1975, Director of Industrial Relations Holster met, at his request, with MTC President Hall and MTC Recording Secretary James Bennett. At the meeting, Holster asked Hall why the MTC had not signed the Memorandum of Understanding. Hall replied that MTC would not agree to any change in work schedule unless planners, estimators and the various other employees represented by MTC worked the same hours as the blue collar workers represented by that Union. Holster informed Hall that while he was not negotiating on the matter, he would make some phone calls to various departments to see whether the parties could reach some agreement. Thereupon, Holster called Mr. Krause, the supervisor of planning and estimating; the head of the duplicating section; and the supply officer. Holster explained to them the terms of the Memorandum of Understanding, that IFPTE and AFGE had signed, and the reasons for MTC's refusal to agree. All three informed Holster that due to the relationship of the employees in question with employees represented by IFPTE and AFGE they preferred that the planners and estimators, etc. work the same hours as the employees represented by IFPTE and AFGE. However, these individuals also informed Holster that if they were "compelled" to, they could work around the problem. Holster relayed the responses to the MTC representatives who remained in the room while Holster made the telephone calls. Upon hearing this information Hall signed the Memorandum of Understanding, shook hands and left.

On Monday, June 9, 1975, President Hall had delivered to Holster's office a letter which reiterated his understanding that the change in shift hours would result in those employees represented by MTC remaining on the 0730-1600 hours shift. The letter also indicated that MTC understood that the shift beginning 0750 hours was tentatively scheduled to be implemented on June 22, 1975 and concluded, "We await your verification of the above...." 2/

On June 11, 1975 Respondent issued a "Notice" to employees stating that the change in hours as contained in the Memorandum of Understanding would be effective on June 29, 1975.

2/ Holster testified he first saw the MTC letter on June 11 or 12 after the issuance of the Activity's June 11 "Notice", infra. Holster's handwritten notation on the letter states, "No action required".

After the issuance of the June 11, 1975 "Notice", Shipyard Commander Captain McDonough received numerous calls and complaints from employees, supervisors and managment officials regarding the impending change in hours. Employees were concerned over what shift they would work on, the disruption of car pools, wives and husbands working on different shifts and the like. Managers in some units were dissatisfied with the new arrangement from an efficiency standpoint. Indeed, Holster was informed by the Commanding Officer that Mr. Krause,the supervisor of planning and estimating whom Holster had contacted when meeting with MTC representatives on June 6, did not have authority to commit the Planning Officer, the head of that department. The Planning Officer, Krause's supervisor, was firmly opposed to having planners and estimators working different shift hours from those of the other white collar employees since he felt it would "splinter" his organization.

On June 13, 1975 Holster and Joseph Evans, the Activity's Head of Employee Relations, met with various representatives of IFPTE, AFGE and MTC. At that meeting Holster informed the participants that he had some "bad news" and presented the parties with a draft of a memorandum intended for issuance to Department and Office Heads of the Activity. That memo provided "guidance" for the change by stating:

> "All departments and offices will return to the two shift breakdown in the same manner as they were prior to going to one shift. That is: > a. Those that previously worked 0730 to 1610 will be assigned to the 0730-1600 shift.
> b. Those that previously worked 0800 to 1630 will be assigned to the 0750 to 1620 shift."

MTC representatives noticed that the effect of the "guidance" would split planners and estimators and similar MTC unit employees from the blue collar MTC unit employees. Accordingly, MTC representatives protested that such was contrary to what they had agreed upon on June 6. Holster stated that while he felt the parties had an agreement on the hours of work "pandomonium had broken loose" from employees and managers alike. He related the objection of the Planning Officer, supra, and advised the MTC representatives that the discussions were held in good faith and if he misled the MTC or there was a misunderstanding as to what shifts planning and estimating employees and the like would work, the MTC had the right to revoke it's signature on the Memorandum of Understanding. Thereupon James Bennett, MTC Recording Secretary informed Holster that the signature was revoked. Holster suggested to the MTC representatives that they talk to Shipyard Commander about the matter. Holster was told that the signature was revoked and MTC representatives wished to discuss the matter with their "people" and so declined talking to the Commander at that time. Holster commented that the MTC withdrawal meant there was no agreement among the parties and the representatives of IFPTE and AFGE objected to Holster with regard to permitting the MTC's withdrawal.

Thereafter, in the morning of June 17, 1975, Evans, the Activity's Head of Employee Relations Division showed MTC President Hall a copy of a "Notice" dated for issuance that day which announced the cancellation of the Notice of June 11, above. Around that same time Evans gave IFPTE Local 4 President Peter Matthews a copy of the notice to be issued. Evans also attempted to contact the AFGE President and First Vice-President but was unable to reach them. However, Evans did contact the AFGE Second Vice-President, read her the notice and told her the Activity proposed to issue it that day. Only Matthews objected, taking issue with the Commander's changing his mind.

Sometime during that same day the notice was issued. Sometime shortly before the noon hour of that day AFGE National Representative Flaherty and IFPTE Local 4 President Matthews met with Captain McDonough. Flaherty told McDonough that he heard the Activity was in the process of issuing a notice cancelling the June 16 "Notice" and objected to what he considered the Activity's proposed unilaterally abrogating the agreement on the shift hours. McDonough informed Flaherty that he had received numerous calls expressing adverse reaction to the decision and he was, in effect, "fed up", with the entire matter. McDonough told Flaherty that if he had anything further to say on the matter he should take it up with Holster.

Discussion and Conclusions

In January 1975 when approached by IFPTE and AFGE to change the existing shifts at the Shipyard, the Activity was under no obligation to reopen its agreements with the Unions at that time. Through exploratory communications the Activity concluded that discussions would be worthwhile. Thereafter, the Activity entered negotiations on the matter with the clear understanding however that no agreement would bind any party unless all parties were satisfied with the final arrangement. During these negotiations Repondent's Director of Industrial Relations Donald Holster was the Activity's representative in discussions with the Unions. Holster acknowledged he normally had authority to bind the Activity in such discussions and at no time relevant hereto did Holster indicate he lacked authority to bind the Activity. Indeed, it was Holster's own opinion that he possessed authority to negotiate with the parties on the shift issue.

At all times while the change of shift was being considered MTC made known its position to the Activity that all MTC unit employees must work the same hours. The June 6, 1975 meeting between Holster and MTC representatives was called by Holster to pursue MTC's failure to sign the Memorandum of Understanding. After Holster mad the calls to the various departments and relayed to the MTC that, if compelled to, the affected departments could live with an arrangement whereby planners and estimators, etc., represented by MTC would not work exactly the same shift hours as those white collar employees represented by the other two Unions, Holster sat by without comment and allowed MTC to sign the Memorandum. While Holster originally stated he was not negotiating on the matter, he nevertheless gave no indicating that his authority to bind the Activity during the discussion was in any way limited, if such was the case, although he had sufficient opportunity at the time to do so. Nor did he give any indication to the MTC representatives that anything remained to be done for an agreement to be consumated between them. Indeed the Memorandum of Understanding bears Holster's signature as well as that of representatives from all three Unions involved and is dated June 6, 1975. 3/ Thus, I conclude that on June 6, 1975 when MTC signed the Memorandum, under the circumstances surrounding that event, both parties present understood that an agreement had been entered into which would keep all MTC unit employees on the same shift. 4/

3/ Joint Exhibit No. 4

4/ While by the terms of the Memorandum of Understanding Respondent reserved to itself certain rights as enumerated in Section 11(b) of the Order, such reservation, if it imposed any limitation on the matter in issue, was clearly bargained away, at least with regard to the shift placement of MTC unit employees in question. See Southeast Exchange Region of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, Rosewood Warehouse, Columbia, South Carolina, A/SLMR No. 656 and decisions

I also conclude that, assuming arguendo, Holster did not originally have authority to bind the Activity on June 6, or his actions did not constitute affirmance of an agreement with MTC, the Activity's June 11 issuance of the Notice to its employees announcing the establishment of a second day shift nevertheless constituted a ratification by the Activity of that agreement. The Activity knew of or were chargeable with full knowledge of Holster's agreement with MTC that all MTC unit employees would work on the 0730-1600 hours shift. 5/ In any event, I infer that during the five day period between June 6 and June 11 Holster fully advised his superiors of the terms of the agreement with MTC. When the June 11 Notice, signed by Captain McDonough, was published, the Activity, in such circumstances, announced to the MTC and all employees that it had reached full agreement on the matter including those specific terms which MTC insisted on as a condition precedent to signing the Memorandum of Understanding. 6/

It was not until after June 11 when Captain McDonough began to get inquiries and complaints on the agreement did the Activity decide that a "misunderstanding" had been involved and some "guidance" (the proposed memo of June 13) was necessary. I conclude there was no mistake or misunderstanding. Nor did Holster's agreement with MTC somehow undermine the thrust of the basis terms of the Memorandum of Understanding to resolve the problems resulting from a single day shift or seriously thwart the Activity's carrying out it's legitimate managerial functions. Rather, Respondent withdrew from the agreement it had with the MTC merely to avoid the inconveniences which might have resulted from the Activity's adhering to its agreement. The Activity simply found it more expeditious to unilaterally negate its committment to the MTC and then, in essence, invite MTC to revoke its signature from the Memorandum. Not to revoke its signature would, of course, mean that the MTC was agreeing to terms it had unalterably opposed throughout negotiations on this matter. MTC's revocation, under such conditions, merely meant that it was not in accord with Respondent's

5/ See Federal Aviation Administration, A/SLMR No. 704

6/ I also note that the MTC letter delivered June 9, 1975, setting forth the understanding reached by MTC and the Activity was not challenged but merely contained Holster's notation "No action required".

unilateral modification of the agreement. Accordingly, in these circumstances I find and conclude that Respondent's conduct constituted a failure to consult, confer and negotiate in good faith under Section 19(a)(6) of the Order and resulted in improper interference with, restraint or coercion of unit employees of rights assured under the Order in violation of Section 19(a)(1). 7/

I reject Respondent's contention that on June 13 the Activity was merely presenting a "proposal" to the Unions. The circumstances sorrounding the meeting, including Captain McDonough's position during the June 17 meeting with representatives of IFPTE and AFGE, supra, lead to the conclusion that the Activity was, on June 13, presenting the Unions with a fait accompli, and further efforts to pursue the matter would have been futile.

I also reject Respondent's contention that Complainants IFPTE and AFGE have no standing to file a complaint in this matter. Negotiations between the parties proceeded at the Activity's insistance that all the parties must agree to any change in shift before any party would be bound. In these circumstances IFPTE and AFGE had a substantial and inseparable interest in whether negotiations proceeded in conformance with the terms of the Order. Thus, when Respondent unilaterally withdrew from its agreement with MTC, the effect was to negate the agreement IFPTE and AFGE had with Activity. Accordingly, I find a sufficient nexus existing between the Complainants herein and the alleged wrong thereby giving Complainants ample standing to file the complaint herein. 8/

However, I do not find that Respondent's June 17, 1975 announcement that there would be no change in shifts was an independent violation of the Order. The Activity made it abundantly clear at the meeting of June 13 that there was no agreement between all the parties on the shift change and full agreement was necessary before any such change would be effectuated. Indeed, it would have been appropriate to issue such a notification to employees immediately at the close of the June 13 meeting since the Notice of June 17 did nothing more than recite the effect of the state of affairs at the time. Such does not constitute a violation of the Order. 9/ In any event, the Activity, on the morning of June 17 did notify all three Unions and nothing was said by the representatives of any of the Unions which would indicate that issuance of the Notice was not appropriate, assuming the Activity's withdrawal from the agreement was not violative of the Order.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEFENSE GENERAL SUPPLY CENTER
A/SLMR No. 821

This case arose as a result of an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2047, AFL-CIO, (Complainant) alleging, in substance, that Respondent's Director of the Office of Civilian Personnel had misrepresented to the Complainant that certain decisions concerning the area of consideration to be used for filling a vacant supervisory position and the decision to grant 20 hours of administrative leave to six union stewards to attend a labor relations seminar were based on advice and decisions of representatives of the Defense Supply Agency (DSA) and that such misrepresentation constituted bad faith bargaining in violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

The Respondent asserted that the complaint should be dismissed because of two procedural deficiencies. First, it contended that Section 19(d) barred the Complainant from raising the issue of the misrepresentation concerning the filling of the vacancy in the instant proceeding because the same issue had been raised and litigated in a prior arbitration proceeding. Second, it contended that the alleged misrepresentation involving the amount of administrative leave for training should be dismissed because the issue had not been specifically raised in a pre-complaint charge.

The Assistant Secretary found, contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, that Section 19(d) did not bar consideration of that aspect of the complaint dealing with the alleged misrepresentation concerning the filling of the supervisory vacancy as the record showed that the arbitrator involved had dismissed the Complainant's grievance on a jurisdictional basis as the parties failed to agree that the questions before him were arbitrable and, therefore, the arbitrator neither reached nor considered the merits of the dispute. Under these circumstances, the Assistant Secretary found that the provisions of Section 19(d) did not bar his consideration of this matter because the arbitration herein had not been in any real sense invoked. Also, the Assistant Secretary agreed with the Administrative Law Judge, but for different reasons, that dismissal on procedural grounds of that aspect of the complaint dealing with the alleged misrepresentation involving administrative leave was not warranted. The Assistant Secretary found that the Respondent had failed to raise this alleged procedural deficiency with the Area Administrator during the investigative stage of the complaint and prior to issuance of the Notice of Hearing.

Regarding the two substantive issues presented by the complaint, the Assistant Secretary found that neither alleged misrepresentation, standing alone, violated 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. He found no evidence that either alleged misrepresentation had made further bargaining a futility. With respect to that aspect of the complaint dealing with the alleged misrepresentation involving administrative leave, the Assistant Secretary found, contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, that the alleged statement did not constitute a clear misrepresentation of the facts.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

Case No. 22-6575(CA)

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES, LOCAL 2047, AFL-CIO

Complainant

DECISION AND ORDER

On August 13, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Samuel A. Chaitovitz issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom and take certain affirmative actions as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. Thereafter, the Respondent filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, including the exceptions and supporting brief filed by the Respondent, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations, to the extent consistant herewith.

The complaint alleged, in substance, that the Respondent, specifically Mr. Roger J. Simboli, the Respondent's Director of the Office of Civilian Personnel, had misrepresented to the Complainant that certain decisions concerning the area of consideration to be used for filling a vacant supervisory position and the decision to grant 20 hours of administrative leave to six union stewards to attend a labor relations seminar were based on advice and decisions of headquarters' representatives of the Defense Supply Agency (DSA) and that such misrepresentations constituted bad faith bargaining in violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that Section 19(d) of the Order barred the Complainant from raising the misrepresentation issue concerning the filling of the supervisory vacancy because the same issue was raised in a prior arbitration proceeding. 1/ I disagree.

Thus, the record shows that the arbitrator involved did not specifically address or rule on the merits of this issue. Indeed, the arbitrator dismissed the Complainant's grievance on a jurisdictional basis since the parties failed to agree that the questions involved were arbitrable and, therefore, the arbitrator never reached nor considered the merits of the dispute. 2/ Under these circumstances, I find that Section 19(d) does not bar consideration of this matter in the instant proceeding because, under the particular circumstances herein, arbitration was not in any real sense invoked. 3/

As to the merits of the alleged violation, I find that while Mr. Simboli may have misrepresented to the Complainant that he consulted or discussed the application of the CAIRS with Mr. Jones of the DSA, such misrepresentation, standing alone, did not violate Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. Thus, there is no evidence that the alleged misrepresentation made further bargaining on the matter a futility. In this regard, the evidence establishes that the Complainant did not rely upon the alleged misrepresentation, but instead sought to check the matter with Mr. Jones and that, subsequently, the Complainant did not seek further bargaining on the subject. Further, the record does not reveal that the Respondent precluded further discussions or negotiations in this respect.

With respect to the second allegation in the complaint pertaining to the granting of administrative leave, the Administrative Law Judge rejected the Respondent's contention that as such allegation was not

1/ He noted, however, that if it were found that Section 19(d) of the Order did not bar the raising of the misrepresentation issue concerning the filling of the vacancy in the instant unfair labor practice proceeding, he would have concluded that Mr. Simboli had not consulted or discussed the application of the Central Automated Inventory and Referral System (CAIRS) of the Department of Defense with Mr. Arthur J. Jones, Chief, Staffing and Employee Relations Division, DSA, in deciding what procedure to follow in filling the supervisory vacancy.

2/ The Complainant's petition for review of Arbitrator Daly's award was denied by the Federal Labor Relations Council on October 22, 1976, in Defense Supply Agency and American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2047 (Daly, Arbitrator), FLRC No. 76A-34.

3/ See Federal Aviation Administration, Muskegon Air Traffic Control Tower, A/SLMR No. 534, wherein it was found that an untimely filed grievance did not in any real sense invoke the grievance procedure.

the subject of a pre-complaint charge it should be dismissed. In this regard, he noted that the August 1, 1975, pre-complaint charge (which did not mention the administrative leave issue) together with the parties' subsequent discussions satisfied the requirements of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. While I agree with the Administrative Law Judge that dismissal on procedural grounds of this aspect of the instant complaint is unwarranted, I do so for different reasons. Thus, I disagree with the Administrative Law Judge's conclusion that the pre-complaint charge concerning the alleged misrepresentation in filling a vacancy and the parties' subsequent discussions concerning the administrative leave issue satisfied the pre-complaint charge requirement of the latter allegation as, in my view, the two allegations involved clearly separate events and separate issues requiring separate pre-complaint charges. However, as the record reveals that the Respondent failed to raise this alleged procedural deficiency (the failure to raise the matter in the pre-complaint charge) in a timely manner with the Area Administrator during the investigation stage of the complaint and prior to issuance of the Notice of Hearing, I find that dismissal of this aspect of the complaint based on procedural grounds is unwarranted. 4/

As to the merits of the alleged violation, the Administrative Law Judge found that Mr. Simboli had misrepresented to the Complainant that the 20 hour maximum for administrative leave was a determination made at DSA headquarters and not by the Respondent, thus effectively removing the issue of the appropriate amount of administrative leave from the bargaining table. He further concluded that because such conduct undermined the very basis of collective bargaining the Respondent had not engaged in bargaining in good faith and, therefore, violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. I disagree.

Thus, the Administrative Law Judge found, and I concur, that the new Commander, Brigadier General Rufus L. Billups, at an introductory meeting with officials of the Complainant, announced that he would allow 20 hours administrative leave to 6 union stewards to attend a labor relations seminar. After the meeting was adjourned and the attendees were leaving the room, Mr. Adam Wenkus, the Complainant's president, turned and asked Mr. Simboli where the 20 hours had come from. Simboli replied, "from DSA." Wenkus asked Simboli who at DSA had so advised him and Simboli replied "Larry." Wenkus asked which Larry and Simboli replied, "Larry Zdvoracek."

Contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, I do not find the above statements by Simboli to constitute a clear misrepresentation of the facts. Thus, the evidence shows that Simboli telephoned and spoke to Mr. Lawrence W. Zdvoracek, Senior Staff Specialist, DSA, concerning DSA policy in granting administrative leave and specifically mentioned 20 hours. Indeed, Mr. Zdvoracek in his letter to Mr. Wenkus, dated November 5, 1975, stated, in pertinent part:

4/ Cf. New York Army and Air National Guard, Albany, New York, A/SLMR No. 441, and Veterans Administration Hospital, Charleston, South Carolina, A/SLMR No. 87.

With reference to this particular seminar, Mr. Simboli called to discuss the general DSA policy and how it should be applied. While I did not set any absolute maximum, I do recall that 20 hours was mentioned. He mentioned that from his review of agenda topics, approximately 20 hours seemed reasonable. The conversation was concluded with agreement that whatever DGSC deemed "reasonable" would be acceptable from HQ viewpoint.

In addition, there is no evidence that the alleged misrepresentation rendered further bargaining on the amount of administrative leave a futility, or that the Respondent subsequently precluded further discussions or negotiations concerning the amount of administrative leave. Based on all of the above, I find, contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, that Simboli's statements to the Complainant concerning the grant of 20 hours administrative leave did not constitute a failure to bargain in good faith in violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

Accordingly, I shall order that the instant complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the complaint in Case No. 22-6575(CA) be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to a complaint filed on December 18, 1975 under Executive Order 11491, as amended (hereinafter called the Order) by Local 2047, American Federation of Government Employees, (hereinafter called Union or Local 2047 AFGE) against Defense General Supply Center (hereinafter called the Activity or DGSC) a Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued by the Regional Administrator for Labor-Management Services for the Philadelphia Region on March 19, 1976.

The complaint alleges, in substance, that DGSC on two occasions misrepresented certain facts during consultations and thereby failed to bargain in good faith in violation of Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

A hearing was held before the undersigned in Richmond, Virginia. Both parties were represented by counsel and afforded full opportunity to be heard, adduce evidence, to examine and cross-examine witnesses, and argue orally. Thereafter both parties filed briefs which have been duly considered.

Upon the entire record in this case, from my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, and from all of the testimony and the evidence adduced at the hearing, I make the following findings, conclusions and recommendations.

Findings of Fact

I. Background

1. DGSC is located in Chesterfield County, Virginia, and is a primary level field activity of the Defense Supply Agency (hereinafter called DSA).

2. DSA is a componant of the United States Department of Defense (hereinafter called DOD) and DSA's headquarters is located in Alexandria, Virginia, and is responsible for implementing DOD policy, forming DSA-wide policy, promulgating DSA regulations, and providing administrative support to DSA field activities.

3. At all times material herein Local 2047 AFGE has been the exclusive collective bargaining representative in a unit of DGSC's civilian employees. About 2,200 of DGSC's employees make up the unit which is described in the recognition clause of the parties' collective bargaining agreement dated 14 January 1972.

II. The Alleged Misrepresentations

A. Filling the Supervisory Vacancy

4. Sometime during 1974 the Union learned that a vacant supervisory position 1/ was filled by DGSC from outside that facility. 2/ Local 2047 AFGE felt that this violated its

---

2/ In fact the individual chosen, a Mr. Heuermann, was an Army civilian employee.

collective bargaining agreement apparently because it felt DGSC had not properly posted a vacancy notice and because DGSC applicants should receive first consideration. 3/

5. The parties held a series of disucssions concerning the appropriate method of filling the vacancy and finally agreed to submit the matter to arbitration.

6. On May 15, 1975 Arbitrator Strongin rendered his decision deciding in substance that the position should be declared vacant, that the personnel action should be reconstructed and the position filed in accordance with the parties collective bargaining agreement.

7. In developing a vacancy announcment, a dispute arose between the parties as to the interpretation and meaning of Arbitrator Strongin's award. This dispute apparently involved whether, as DGSC contended, in filling the vacancy in question the Activity must utilize and consider all obtained through the C.A.I.R.S. Program 4/ and also post the vacancy DSA wide, and then consider all persons whose names they received, including employees from outside the Activity and DSA, or whether, as the Union contended, in filing the vacancy in question, the Activity's area of consideration was, pursuant to the Activity's policy and the collective bargaining agreement, DGSC wide.

8. Mr. Roger J. Simboli was at all times material DGSC's Director of Civilian Personnel and the Activity's spokesman. Mr. Adam Wenckus was, at the all times material herein, president of Local 2047 AFGE and its spokesman.

3/ Bargaining unit employees are eligible to fill such a supervisory position. DGSC did not claim that the collective bargaining agreement did not apply to filling such positions and did in fact, as described below, agree to deal with the Union concerning filling the position in question.

4/ C.A.I.R.S. is apparently an acronym for a DOD wide civilian career program. It is a DOD wide register of employees who are eligible for certain specific positions.

9. During July 1975 Mr. Simboli and Mr. Wenckus engaged in the discussions described above concerning the meaning of Arbitrator Strongin's decision and the method for filling the vacant supervisory position, with each apparently taking the respective positions described above in paragraph 7.

10. Mr. Simboli told Mr. Wenckus, during early July 1975, that DGSC's position with respect to filling the vacant position and the use of C.A.I.R.S. was required by virtue of advise he had received telephonically from Mr. Arthur Jones, who was DSA's Chief of Staffing, Employee Relations Division.

11. Mr. Wenckus called another AFGE official 5/ apparently at DSA headquarters to check whether Mr. Jones had in fact so telephonically advised Mr. Simboli. Upon receiving a negative reply from his contact at DSA headquarters Mr. Wenckus,, on or about July 30, 1975, approached Mr. Simboli and told him of the reply. Mr. Simboli then advised Mr. Wenckus in the presence of then Union Executive Vice President Seaton Neal, that his conversation with Mr. Jones had been in person rather than on the telephone.

12. The Union checked with Mr. Jones,and he advised Mr. Wenckus that he knew nothing about the vacancy nor the vacancy announcement and had not discussed it. Later in a letter 6/ he also denied ever advising Mr. Simboli about the "Heuermann case" or "whatever vacancy that Mr. Heuermann was involved in..."

13. By letter of August 1, 1975 the Union advised Mr. Simboli that it felt he, and the DGSC had, by misrepresentation during discussions concerning the filing of the supervisory vacancy, failed to bargain in good faith and that the letter was an unfair labor practice charge.

14. DGSC and the Union went to arbitration before Arbitrator J. Harvey Daly. The arbitration hearing was held on January 15, 1976 and the arbitrator's decision was dated February 12, 1976. Clearly the main thrust of the arbitration was, in effect, to get Arbitrator Daly to decide whether the Activity's method of implementing Arbitrator Strongin's was proper. Because the parties could not agree whether this matter before Arbitrator Daley was in fact arbitrable, the Arbitrator decided to dismiss the matter, without dealing with merits, stating that Section 13(d) of the Order delegates questions of arbitrable to the Assistant Secretary.

15. Based primarily on the Union's opening statement before Arbitrator Daley, the brief it submitted to him and on his decision, it is further concluded that the Union did allege, contend, produce evidence and litigate before the Arbitrator its allegation that Mr. Simboli lied to Mr Wenckus concerning whether DGSC's action was based on advise from Mr. Jones and that such conduct violated Article III, Sections 1 and 2 of the collective bargaining agreement; more specifically Section 2, which states that the parties shall advise and consult with each other. The Union concluded that this means "in good faith not bad faith consultation coupled with untruth and deceit..."

16. Arbitrator Daley in his award breifly discusses the foregoing Union allegation but does not in his conclusion in any way specifically address or resolve this issue. 7/

B. Administrative Leave

17. Apparently during July and August 1975, DGSC and the Union began discussions concerning the amount of administrative leave the Activity would grant to six union stewards to attend a labor relations seminar at Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

18. Local 2047 AFGE requested that 40 hours of administrative leave be granted and the Activity approved 16 hours of annual leave.

19. On 2 September 1975 DGSC's command changed hands. Shortly thereafter, the new Commander Brigadier General Rufus L. Billups was asked by the Union to consider increasing, from 16 to 40 hours, the amount of administrative leave that Respondent had previously approved for the Union stewards to attend the labor-management relations seminar at Virginia Polytechnic Institute. The new commander decided to allow 4 additional hours or a total of 20 hours. However, General Billups, before proceeding to announce his decision to the Union, requested Mr. Simboli to solicit guidance from DSA relative to whether he had latitude to allow the 4 additional hours. Mr. Simboli called and spoke to Mr. Lawrence W. Zdvoracek , a DSA senior staff specialist in DSA's EEO and Labor Division. Mr. Zdvoracek advised Mr. Simboli that whatever DGSC decided was reasonable under the circumstances would be reasonable in DSA's view. Mr. Simboli advised General Billups to proceed with his decision to grant 20 hours.

20. Subsequently, General Billups, at an introductory meeting with Local 2047 AFGE's directors and labor-union officials, announced he would allow the 20 hours administrative leave. After the meeting was adjourned and the attendees were funneling out of the room, Mr. Wenckus turned around and asked Mr. Simboli where the 20 hours had come from. Mr. Simboli replied "From DSA." Mr. Wenckus asked Mr. Simboli who at DSA had so advised him and Mr. Simboli replied "Larry." Mr. Wenckus asked Mr. Simboli which Larry and Mr. Simboli responded, "Larry Zdvoracek.

21. The Union inquired of Mr. Zdvoracek, by Mr. Spokewski, whether he had in fact made the determination that 20 hours of administrative leave was the amount to be granted by DGSC. Upon being advised he did not make such a determination Mr. Wenckus, by letter to Mr. Zdvoracek,dated September 30, 1975, asked whether he had set the 20 hour maximum. Mr. Zdvoracek responded by letter dated November 5, 1975, indicating that he had discussed the matter with Mr. Simboli and that 20 hours had not been mentioned and, in effect, DGSC had to make the determination as to the reasonable amount of administrative leave to grant.

22. During mid September, after having concluded that Mr. Simboli had not told the truth about DSA setting the 20 hour administrative leave, Mr. Wenckus advised Mr. Simboli that he again had not been conferring in good faith and he had not told the truth.

23. The Union subsequently met with General Billups and discussed the unfair labor practice involving the alleged untruth concerning filing the supervisory vacancy. During these discussions the Union discussed the alleged misrepresentation concerning the administrative leave determination and showed him the correspondance from Mr. Zdvoracek.

Conclusions of Law

I. Section 19(d)

The Activity contends that the Union litigated and raised the issue of Mr. Simboli's misrepresentation concerning the filing of the vacancy during the Daley arbitration proceeding. Therefore DGSC contends that, pursuant to Section 19(d) of the Order, the Union cannot raise it again in this unfair labor practice proceeding. The Union contends that this alleged misrepresentation was raised in the arbitration proceeding solely as background and was not submitted to Arbitrator Daley for decision.

Section 19(d) of the Order provides in pertinent part that:

> "Issues which can be raised under a grievance procedure may, in the discretion of the aggrieved party, be raised under that procedure or the complaint procedure under this section, but not under both procedures."

In the subject case it seems clear that the Union did in fact raise the issue of Mr. Simboli's alleged misrepresentation before Arbitrator Daley and contended that such alleged deceit constituted failure to consult and confer in good faith and thus violated "Article III Sections 1 and 2 of the AFGE-DGSC Agreement..." Therefore since the Union elected to and did raise the issue of Mr. Simboli's alleged untruthfulness with respect to the filling of the vacancy as an alleged violation of the collective bargaining agreement, it is concluded that Section 19(d) of the Order bars the Union from raising that same issue in an unfair labor practice procedure. 8/

8/ The fact that the arbitrator did not rule on the issue is not controlling. The Union did raise it and once it elected to follow that route it had to pursue it to the end, including perhaps petitioning the arbitrator to rule on this issue or to appeal to the FLRC, etc. The Union cannot because it is dissatisfied with the way the arbitrator dealt with this issue now pursue the unfair labor practice route.

Because of all of the foregoing it is concluded that aspect of the complaint dealing with Mr. Simboli's alleged misrepresentation concerning the filing of the supervisory vacancy should be dismissed.

In light of the conclusion it is unnecessary to conclude whether or not Mr. Simboli did in fact tell an untruth when he advised Mr. Wenckus that the DGSC decision had been reached by virtue of a decision by Mr. Jones. 9/

II. Administrative Leave Issue

The Activity contends that the aspect of the complaint dealing with Mr. Simboli's alleged misrepresentation concerning the administrative issue should be dismissed because it was never specifically the subject of an unfair labor practice charge.

Section 203.2(3) of the Assistant Secretary's Rules and Regulations sets forth the requirements for the contents of a charge, requiring that a charge "shall contain a clear and concise statement of the facts constituting the unfair labor practice, including the time and place of occurrence of the particular acts."

The real purpose of the charge is to apprise the prospective respondent of the alleged unfair labor practice, before it becomes the subject of a formal proceeding, so that the parties can informally explore the issues and hopefully resolve the matter without having to resort to any formal proceeding.

9/ If it were found however that Section 19(d) of the Order did not bar the raising of this issue in an unfair labor practice procedure, I would have concluded that, in fact, Mr. Simboli had not consulted or discussed the application of C.A.I.R.S. etc., with Mr. Jones in deciding what procedure to follow in filling the supervisory vacancy. This conclusion is based primarily on Mr. Jones' testimony and because Mr. Simboli's testimony seemed evasive and confused and therefore was not credited.

In the subject case the Union did advise the Activity by its August 1, 1975 letter that it was charging the Activity with an unfair labor practice based on a failure to bargain in good faith because of Mr. Simboli's misrepresentations concerning the filling of the supervisory vacancy. While the parties were in the process of informally meeting to resolve that charge, based on Mr. Simbili's alleged untruthfulness, he allegedly engaged in the same kind of conduct with respect to the administrative leave issue. Therefore during the informal discussions the Union advised the Activity that it felt Mr. Simboli had again engaged in the same type of conduct. When the parties were unable to resolve these matters informally, the Union filed the subject unfair labor practice complaint, which clearly specifies both incidents involving Mr. Simboli's alleged untruthfulness. It is concluded that the August 1 charge together with the subsequent discussions satisfied the requirements of Section 203.2 of the Rules and Regulations. To hold otherwise would be to require a party to be constantly amending charges, if the other party was engaged in a continuing course of and series of conduct, all of essentially the same nature, which is alleged to be an unfair labor practice. Rather than result in the parties getting together to informally resolve these issues, such a strict requirement would involve continuous and extensive paper work, that would interfer with such informal resolutions, without serving any real purpose.

Therefore it is concluded that the allegation concerning the alleged misrepresentation involving the administrative leave issue is properly before me.

Section 19(a)(6) of the Order mandates that an activity not refuse to consult, confer and negotiate with a labor organization as required by the Order. It is clear and undisputed that the amount of administrative leave to be granted Union stewards to attend a training program is a proper subject of bargaining between the Activity and the Union.

In the public sector if an activity advises a union that, with respect to an appropriate issue of bargaining, it, the activity, does not have authority to make any decisions concerning the issue, because such determination has already been made by the activity's parent organization, that issue has been effectively removed from bargaining between the union and the activity. In effect the union has been told by the activity that the activity cannot meaningfully bargain concerning the issue because the activity's position has already been determined from above. For the parties to be able to bargain in good faith, therefore, the union must know what issues an activity can and cannot bargain about meaningfully. It must follow then, that where an activity has removed from meaningfull bargaining an issue, otherwise appropriate for bargaining, by misrepresenting that it does not have the authority and cannot bargain about that issue, the activity is not bargaining in good faith concerning that issue. 10/

It is concluded that in the subject case Mr. Simboli clearly represented to the Union that the 20 hour maximum for administrative leave was a determination made at DSA headquarters and not at the DGSC level. By so doing Mr. Simboli, admittedly DGSC's spokesman, effectively removed that issue of the appropriate amount of administrative leave from bargaining between DGSC and the Union. However, it further concluded that DSA did not make such a determination and Mr. Simboli did misrepresent the facts. In so doing it is clear, and it is so concluded, that the Activity was engaged in conduct which undermined the very basis of collective bargaining and was not engaged in good faith bargaining with the Union. 11/

10/ This does not mean that all misrepresentations or "puffing" during collective bargaining negotiations would be an unfair labor practice. Rather, as here, only where the misrepresentations goes to the heart of the bargaining itself and would, in effect, foreclose meaningful bargaining.

11/ It need not be decided whether the misrepresentation was intentional or not because, in either case, it had the result of removing an appropriate issue from bargaining where such a removal was in no way privileged.

It is concluded, in the light of the foregoing, that by reason of the misrepresentations of its representative concerning DSA's position with respect to administrative leave, the Activity was not bargaining in good faith with the Union and therefore violated Section 19(a(6) of the Order.

It is further concluded such conduct also would tend to interfer with, restrain and coerce employees in the exercise of rights protected by the Order and would thus violate Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

Recommendations

Having found that DGSC cannot be held to have violated the Order with respect to its conduct concerning the filling of the supervisory vacancy, it is recommended that the Assistant Secretary dismiss that portion of the complaint.

Having found that DGSC has engaged in conduct, with respect to the administrative leave issue, which is violative of Sections 19(a)(6) and (1) of the Order, I recommend the Assistant Secretary doopt the following Order designed to effectuate the purposes of Executive Order 11491, as amended.

WASHINGTON, D. C.
A/SLMR No. 822

This case involved a petition for consolidation of units filed by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2607, AFL-CIO (AFGE) seeking to consolidate three units for which it is the current exclusive representative the employees of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education (OASE), the employees of the Office of Education (OE), and the employees of the National Institute of Education (NIE) - into a consolidated unit consisting of all the employees of the Education Division, Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The Activity asserted, essentially, that the components which constitute the Education Division are separate and distinct "agencies" with independent programmatic functions and delegations of administrative authority and that the current recognitions, which are along the lines of these agencies, reflect the limited community of interest among the employees of the three agencies. Furthermore, the Activity contended that the proposed consolidation would impair effective dealings and the efficiency of the agency's operations by breaching the legislative intent and the regulations issued by the Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (DHEW), which, in its view, require the separation of the education agencies.

The Assistant Secretary noted that the Report and Recommendations of Federal Labor Relations Council, which accompanied the issuance of Executive Order 11838, indicated the Council's desire to further a reduction in unit fragmentation in the Federal sector, thereby creating a more comprehensive bargaining unit structure and that Section 10(a) of the Order was therefore amended so as to provide a procedure for the consolidation of existing exclusively recognized units. While the Council indicated that proposed consolidated units would be required to conform to the appropriate unit criteria contained in Section 10(b) of the Order, it also indicated that it was "convinced" that the Federal labor-management relations program would be improved by a reduction in unit fragmentation. In the Assistant Secretary's view, given these clear policy guidelines in the consolidation of units area, there has been established, in effect, a presumption favoring the appropriateness of proposed consolidated units. This presumption may be rebutted only where it is found that the proposed consolidated unit is so inconsistent with the criteria contained in Section 10(b) of the Order that the overriding objective of creating a more comprehensive bargaining unit structure would be undermined by such a finding.

In the context of these policy considerations, the Assistant Secretary found that the petitioned for consolidated unit is appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. He concluded that the employees in the unit sought constitute all of the eligible employees of the Education Division, DHEW. As such, they share a common mission, common supervision, common work classifications, essentially common working conditions, and essentially similar personnel and labor relations practices in accordance with DHEW delegations of authority. Under these circumstances, he found that the employees in the petitioned for consolidated unit share a clear and identifiable community of interest. Furthermore, he found that the evidence established that the OE Personnel Office presently services employees in both the OE and the OASE; the memoranda of agreement signed by the AFGE with the OASE and with the NIE reflect much of the same language contained in the negotiated agreement between the AFGE and the OE; the NIE and the OASE have used the services of the OE's labor relations specialist in preparing their labor relations positions; the scope of labor relations authority in each agency is based on similar DHEW regulations; and promotions within the Division are based on a Division-wide area of consideration. Based on these factors, he further found that the proposed consolidated unit will promote effective dealings. Additionally, as the legislation creating the Education Division provided for the Assistant Secretary to serve as its principal officer and as the evidence shows that, at a minimum, the Assistant Secretary acts to coordinate certain activities of all of the component agencies within the Division, he found that the proposed consolidated unit bears "some rational relationship to the operational and organizational structure" of the Education Division, DHEW and will therefore promote the efficiency of the agency's operations. Finally, the Assistant Secretary found that the petitioned for consolidated unit, which provides for bargaining in a single, rather than in the existing three, bargaining units will promote a more comprehensive bargaining unit structure and is consistent with the policy of the Order set forth above.

DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer Bridget Sisson. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed. 1/

The Petitioner, American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2607, AFL-CIO, herein called AFGE, seeks to consolidate three units for which it is the current exclusive representative. Such units encompass: (1) the employees of the OASE; (2) the employees of the OE; and (3) the employees of the NIE. The petitioned for consolidated unit would consist of all professional and nonprofessional General Schedule and Excepted Service employees of the Education Division, Department of Health, Education and Welfare (DHEW), located in the Washington, D. C. metropolitan area as well as employees of the NIE whose duty station is outside the Washington, D. C. metropolitan area, excluding all management

1/ The Hearing Officer denied the Activity's motion that the case be recaptioned because the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education (OASE), the Office of Education (OE) and the National Institute of Education (NIE) are separate "agencies." In its brief, the Activity requested reconsideration of the Hearing Officer's ruling, contending additionally that the manner in which the case is captioned is prejudicial. In view of the disposition herein, the Activity's request for reconsideration is denied.

officials, confidential employees, Wage Grade employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, guards, temporary employees with no reasonable expectation of continued employment, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

The Activity contends that the proposed consolidated unit is inappropriate because the OASE, the OE and the NIE are three separate and distinct "agencies" with independent programmatic functions and delegations of administrative authority, and that there is, therefore, only a limited community of interest among the employees of the three education agencies involved herein. Furthermore, the Activity contends that the proposed consolidation would impair effective dealings and the efficiency of the agency's operations by breaching the legislative intent and the regulations issued by the Secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (DHEW), which, in its view, require the separation of the education agencies. The AFGE, on the other hand, takes the position that the employees in the proposed consolidated unit have a definable community of interest, that the consolidation would promote effective dealings, and that the Activity's contention that the proposed consolidated unit would impair the efficiency of the agency's operations is unfounded. Alternatively, the AFGE indicated its willingness to represent consolidated units consisting of any two of the three units herein for which it is currently the exclusive representative.

The mission of the Education Division, DHEW, which was created pursuant to the Education Amendments of 1972, 2/ is to coordinate and generally supervise the education activities of the DHEW. The record reveals that the legislation creating the Education Division provided that the Assistant Secretary for Education should be "the principal officer in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to whom the Secretary shall assign responsibility for the direction and supervision of the Education Division." In this capacity, the Assistant Secretary provides leadership for the education activities of the DHEW, serves as the key advocate for assuring that the DHEW provides professional and financial assistance to strengthen education in accordance with Federal laws and regulations, and serves as the principal advisor to the Secretary, DHEW, on education affairs. The Assistant Secretary also coordinates the program operations of the Education Division agencies so as to assure maximum use of resources and to avoid disparities in the interprogram functions.

As noted above, the Education Division includes the OASE, the OE and the NIE. In addition to its immediate staff functions for the Assistant Secretary, the OASE contains two operating components - the National Center for Education Statistics (NCES), whose purpose is to collect and disseminate education statistics and other data, and the Fund for the Improvement of Postsecondary Education, which makes awards with the intention of fostering change and innovation in postsecondary institutions. The majority of the employees assigned to the OASE, approximately 168 of the 230, work for the NCES and, of these, approximately half are classified as Statisticians (Education). The remainder of the NCES's personnel consists of supportive employees. The OE, headed by the Commissioner of Education, is by far the largest operating component within the Education Division. It consists of approximately 3300 employees nationwide. There are some 2200 employees within its National Office which is represented by the AFGE. The OE administers programs of financial assistance, principally through grants, for the educational agencies, institutions and organizations which are the Division's principal clients. The NIE, the third component of the Education Division, has approximately 340 employees, and its function is to support research and development projects in the field of education. Policy for the NIE, within the parameters of its enabling legislation, is established by a body consisting of 15 Presidential appointees, the National Council on Education Research. The record indicates, however, that the Council does not involve itself with the day-to-day functioning of the NIE, this responsibility being handled by the Director, NIE, and his staff.

The record reveals that the Commissioner, OE, the Director, NIE, and the Assistant Secretary, as regards OASE, act pursuant to independent delegations of authority from the Secretary, DHEW, with respect to such matters as deciding grievances, authorizing incentive awards, position classification, establishment of the workweek and work schedules, selection and retention of personnel, and approval of labor-management agreements. These delegations of authority, however, are essentially similar. While the Assistant Secretary exercises responsibility for personnel policies and practices within the OASE, the actual personnel servicing of OASE employees is handled by the OE Personnel Office. The record discloses that each component agency of the Education Division has a separate individual designated as its "Collective Bargaining Official," who is responsible for the administration of labor-management relations within that particular agency. The OE and the AFGE have negotiated two successive collective bargaining agreements, while the OASE and the NIE have negotiated a number of separate Memorandums of Understanding with the AFGE. While the OE is the only component within the Education Division which has a full-time labor-management relations position, the record reveals that the incumbent is consulted by officials of the OASE and the NIE in the pursuit of their bargaining obligations. The record discloses also that the work related relationships between employees of the OASE, the OE and the NIE are supportive rather than integrated, and that all employees of the Education Division work in essentially similar job classifications, are required to have essentially similar training, and that they share essentially similar working conditions. In this regard, the record shows that most of the professional employees of the Division are classified either in the 1720 series, with such titles as Education Research Specialist and Education Program Specialist, or the 301 series, with such titles as Research Specialist, Education Program Specialist and Program Specialist. While work related interchange between OASE, OE and NIE employees is not common or frequent, there are a number of joint committees which have been established to coordinate the research, statistical and programmatic impacts of certain programs. Particular projects also have required the coordination of the activities of the Division's components. While the evidence shows a small number of employees receiving either temporary details or permanent reassignments/promotions between the three agencies, and that the area of consideration for reduction-in-force procedures is agency-wide, rather than Division-wide, the area of consideration for promotions is Division-wide. The record further discloses that most of the employees within the proposed consolidated unit are located in downtown Washington, D. C., although the NIE is located across town from the OASE and the NIE.

The Report and Recommendations of the Federal Labor Relations Council, which accompanied the issuance of Executive Order 11838, indicated the Council's desire to foster a reduction in unit fragmentation in the Federal sector, thereby creating a more comprehensive bargaining unit structure. Section 10(a) of the Order was therefore amended so as to provide a procedure for the consolidation of existing exclusively recognized units. While the Council indicated that proposed consolidated units would be required to conform to the appropriate unit criteria contained in Section 10(b) of the Order, it also indicated that it was "convinced" that the Federal labor-management relations program would be improved by a reduction in unit fragmentation. 3/ In my view, given these clear policy guidelines in the consolidation of units area, there has been established, in effect, a presumption favoring the appropriateness of proposed consolidated units. This presumption may be rebutted only where it is found that the proposed consolidated unit is so inconsistent with the criteria contained in Section 10(b) of the Order that the overriding objective of creating a more comprehensive bargaining unit structure would be undermined by such a finding.

In the context of the foregoing policy considerations, I find that the petitioned for consolidated unit is appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. Thus, as noted above, the employees in the unit sought constitute all of the eligible employees of the Education Division, DHEW. As such, they share a common mission, common overall supervision, common work classifications, essentially common working conditions, and essentially similar personnel and labor relations practices in accordance with DHEW delegations of authority. Under these circumstances, I find that the employees in the petitioned for consolidated unit share a clear and identifiable community of interest. Furthermore, the evidence establishes that the OE Personnel Office presently services employees in both the OE and the OASE; the Memoranda of Agreement signed by the AFGE with the OASE and with the NIE reflect much of the same language contained in the negotiated agreement between the AFGE and the OE; the NIE and the OASE have used the services of the OE's labor relations specialist in preparing their labor relations positions; the scope of labor relations authority in each agency is based on similar DHEW regulations; and promotions within the Division are based on a Divison-wide area of consideration. Based on these factors, I further find that the proposed consolidated unit will promote effective dealings. Additionally, as the legislation creating the Education Division provided for the Assistant Secretary to serve as its principal officer and as the evidence shows that, at a minimum, the Assistant Secretary acts to coordinate certain activities of all of the component agencies within the Division, I find that the proposed consolidated unit bears "some rational relationship to the operational and organizational structure" of the Education Division, DHEW, and will therefore promote the efficiency of the agency's operations. 4/ Finally, I also find that the petitioned for consolidated unit, which provides for bargaining in a single, rather than in the existing three, bargaining units, will promote a more comprehensive bargaining unit structure and is consistent with the policy of the Order set forth above.

Accordingly, I find that the following unit is appropriate for the purposes of exclusive recognition under Executive Order 11491, as amended: 5/

> All General Schedule and professional employees in the Office of Education, Washington, D. C., all professional and nonprofessional employees of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education, all professional and nonprofessional GS and Excepted employees of the National Institute of Education, Washington, D. C. Metropolitan Area and duty stations out of the Washington, D. C. Metropolitan Area, including temporary employees with appointments in excess of either 90 days or 700 hours, excluding supervisors, management officials, guards and employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, temporary and Wage Board employees of the Office of Education, temporary employees of less than 90 days and confidential employees of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education, and temporary employees with appointments of 90 days or 700 hours, or less, Presidential appointees, confidential employees, and student aides in the National Institute of Education.

4/ In this regard, see Defense Supply Agency, et al, FLRC Nos. 75A-14, 75A-128, and 76A-4, at page 13.

5/ The proposed consolidated unit appears to include certain employees who are not currently represented by the AFGE in its existing exclusively recognized units. For example, the current OE unit excludes temporary employees; the current NIE unit excludes temporary employees with less than 90-day or 700 hour appointments; and the current OASE unit excludes temporary employees with less than 90-day appointments. The proposed consolidated unit would exclude only those temporary employees who have no reasonable expectation of continued employment. It should be noted that the consolidation procedures are applicable only with respect to existing exclusively recognized units. Therefore, proposed consolidated units would be limited to and/or defined by the parameters of the existing exclusively recognized units at the time of the filing of the instant consolidation petition.

Under the Order, absent the expression of the affected employees' desire for an election, an agency may accord exclusive recognition to a labor organization, without an election, where the appropriate unit, as above, has been established through the consolidation of existing exclusively recognized units represented by that organization and the parties have bilaterally agreed to consolidation without an election. In the instant case, neither party requested an election to determine whether or not the employees desire to be represented in the proposed consolidated unit by the AFGE. Therefore, I shall order the appropriate Area Administrator to request that the Activity post copies of a Notice to Employees, in places where notices are normally posted affecting employees in the proposed consolidated unit, which states that if, within ten days from the date of posting of such notice, 30 percent or more of the employees in the proposed consolidated unit have notified the Area Administrator in writing that they desire the Assistant Secretary to hold an election on the issue of the proposed consolidation, such an election will be supervised by the Area Administrator.

If 30 percent or more of the employees in the proposed consolidated unit do not seek an election and the professional employees in such unit do not exercise their option, as set forth below, to be included with the nonprofessional employees, a certification will be issued by the Area Administrator to the AFGE for the nonprofessional employee consolidated unit which I find to be appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition.

It is further noted that the unit found appropriate includes professional employees. The Assistant Secretary is prohibited by Section 10(b)(4) of the Order from including professional employees in a unit with employees who are not professionals, unless a majority of the professional employees votes for inclusion in such a unit. The Federal Labor Relations Council specifically recommended that this policy be extended to include the unit consolidation procedures. Accordingly, the desires of the professional employees as to inclusion in a unit with nonprofessional employees must be ascertained.

Thus, if 30 percent or more of the employees in the proposed consolidated unit timely notify the Area Administrator of their desire to have the Assistant Secretary hold an election on the issue of the proposed consolidation, there will be elections in the following voting groups:

Voting Group (a): All General Schedule professional employees in the Office of Education, Washington, D. C., all professional employees of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education, all professional GS and Excepted employees of the National Institute of Education, Washington, D. C. Metropolitan Area and duty stations out of the Washington, D. C. Metropolitan Area, including temporary employees with appointments in excess of either 90 days or 700 hours, excluding nonprofessional employees, supervisors, management officals, guards and employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, temporary and Wage Board employees of the Office of Education, temporary employees of less than 90 days and confidential employees of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education, and temporary employees with appointments of 90 days or 700 hours, or less, Presidential appointees, confidential employees, and student aides in the National Institute of Education.

Voting Group (b): All nonprofessional General Schedule employees in the Office Education, Washington, D. C., all nonprofessional employees of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education, all nonprofessional GS and Excepted employees of the National Institute of Education, Washington, D. C. Metropolitan Area and duty stations out of the Washington, D. C. Metropolitan Area, including temporary employees with appointments in excess of either 90 days or 700 hours, excluding professional employees, supervisors, management officials, guards and employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, temporary and Wage Board employees of the Office of Education, temporary employees of less than 90 days and confidential employees of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education, and temporary employees with appointments of 90 days or 700 hours, or less, Presidential appointees, confidential employees, and student aides in the National Institute of Education.

Employees in the nonprofessional voting group (b) will be polled whether they desire to be represented for the purpose of exclusive recognition in the proposed consolidated unit by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2607, AFL-CIO.

Employees in the professional voting group (a) will be asked two questions on their ballots: (1) whether they desire to be represented for the purpose of exclusive recognition in the proposed consolidated unit by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2607, AFL-CIO, and (2) whether or not they desire to be represented in a separate consolidated professional unit if the proposed consolidated unit is approved by a majority of all the employees voting.

The valid votes cast by all the eligible employees will be tallied to determine if a majority of the valid votes have been cast in favor of the proposed consolidated unit. If a majority of the valid votes have not been cast in favor of the proposed consolidated unit, the employees will be taken to have indicated their desire to continue to be represented in their current units of exclusive recognition. If a majority of the valid votes are cast in favor of the proposed consolidated unit, the ballots of the professional employees in voting group (a) will then be tallied to determine whether they wish to be included in the same consolidated unit with the nonprofessional employees. Unless a majority of the valid votes of voting group (a) are cast for inclusion in the same consolidated unit as the nonprofessional employees, they will be taken to have indicated their desire to constitute a separate consolidated professional unit, and an appropriate certification will be issued by the Area Administrator.

It should be noted that an election among the professional employees will take place if: (1) no timely request from 30 percent or more of the employees in the proposed consolidated unit for an election on the issue of the proposed consolidated unit is received by the Area Administrator or, (2) such an election is requested by 30 percent or more of the employees in the proposed consolidated unit and a majority of the valid votes are cast in favor of the proposed consolidated unit. In either case, the unit determination of the subject case will then be based, in part, upon the results of the election among the professional employees. However, I will now make the following findings in regard to the appropriate unit:

1. If a majority of the professional employees does not vote for inclusion in the same unit as the nonprofessional employees, I find the following units appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition within the meaning of Section 10 of the Order:

(a) All General Schedule professional employees in the Office of Education, Washington, D. C., all professional employees of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education, all professional GS and Excepted employees of the National Institute of Education, Washington, D. C. Metropolitan Area and duty station out of the Washington, D. C. Metropolitan Area, including temporary employees with appointments in excess of either 90 days or 700 hours, excluding nonprofessional employees, supervisors, management officials, guards and employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, temporary and Wage Board employees of the Office of Education, temporary employees of less than 90 days and confidential employees of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education, and temporary employees with appointments of 90 days or 700 hours, or less, Presidential appointees, confidential employees, and student aides in the National Institute of Education.

(b) All nonprofessional General Schedule employees in the Office of Education, Washington, D. C., all nonprofessional employees of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education, all nonprofessional GS and Excepted employees of the National Institute of Education, Washington, D. C. Metropolitan Area and duty stations out of the Washington, D. C. Metropolitan Area, including temporary employees with appointments in excess of either 90 days or 700 hours, excluding professional employees, supervisors, management officials, guards and employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, temporary and Wage Board employees of the Office of Education; temporary employees of less than 90 days and confidential employees of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education; and temporary employees with appointments of 90 days or 700 hours, or less, Presidential appointees, confidential employees, and student aides in the National Institute of Education.

2. If a majority of the professional employees votes for inclusion in the same consolidated unit as the nonprofessional employees, I find the following unit appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition within the meaning of Section 10 of the Order:

All General Schedule and professional employees in the Office of Education, Washington, D. C., all professional and nonprofessional employees of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education, all professional and nonprofessional GS and Excepted employees of the National Institute of Education, Washington, D. C. Metropolitan Area and duty stations out of the Washington, D. C. Metropolitan Area, including temporary employees with appointments in excess of either 90 days or 700 hours, excluding supervisors, management officials, guards and employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, temporary and Wage Board employees of the Office of Education, temporary employees of less than 90 days and confidential employees of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Education, and temporary employees with appointments of 90 days or 700 hours, or less, Presidential appointees, confidential employees, and student aides in the National Institute of Education.

DIRECTION OF ELECTION

The Activity shall post, as soon as possible, copies of a Notice to Employees, which shall be furnished by the appropriate Area Administrator, in places where notices are normally posted affecting the employees in the consolidated unit found appropriate. Such notice shall conform in all respects to the requirements of Section 202.2(h)(4) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. If, within ten days from the date of posting of such notice, 30 percent or more of the employees in the consolidated unit found appropriate above have notified the Area Administrator in writing that they desire to hold an election on the issue of the proposed consolidation, an election by secret ballot shall be conducted among the employees in the voting groups described above, as early as possible, but not later than 60 days from the date the posting period for the Notice to Employees is completed. If such a request is not timely received by the Area Administrator, an election by secret ballot shall be conducted among the professional employees in voting group (a) as early as possible but not later than 60 days from the date the posting period for the Notice to Employees is completed, to determine whether they wish to be included in the proposed consolidated unit with nonprofessional employees for the purpose of exclusive recognition.

The appropriate Area Administrator shall supervise the election(s), subject to the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. Eligible to vote are those in the voting group(s) who were employed during the payroll period immediately preceding the date below, including employees who did not work during that period because they were out ill, or on vacation or on furlough, including those in the military service who appear in person at the polls. Ineligible to vote are employees who have quit or were discharged for cause since the designated payroll period and who have not been rehired or reinstated before the election date. Those eligible shall vote whether or not they desire to be represented for the purpose of exclusive recognition in the proposed consolidated unit by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2607, AFL-CIO.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNIT
OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION AND WELFARE,
FOOD AND DRUG ADMINISTRATION,
REGION I, BOSTON REGIONAL FIELD OFFICE, BOSTON MASSACHUSETTS
A/SLMR No. 823

This case arose as a result of a petition for clarification of unit (CU) filed by the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2405, (AFGE) and a petition for an election filed by the Government Employees Assistance Council, Local G3-N1 (GEAC).

In its CU petition, the AFGE seeks to clarify its existing exclusively recognized unit at the Boston Regional Field Office to include all eligible employees of the Winchester Engineering and Analytical Center (WEAC) who have been administratively transferred to the Boston Regional Office through a reorganization. The Activity agreed with the proposed clarification. The GEAC, on the other hand, seeks an election in a unit of all General Schedule (GS) employees of the WEAC, who are under the direct supervision of the Director, WEAC.

The Assistant Secretary found that, subsequent to a reorganization, the WEAC became an integral part of the unit represented by the AFGE. In this regard, he found that the WEAC employees share a clear and identifiable community of interest with other Boston Regional Field Office employees exclusively represented by the AFGE. He noted that the employees involved share a common mission, personnel policies and similar skills and working conditions; that they share the same merit promotion plan and reduction-in-force procedure; and that there is a high degree of interchange and work contacts, including joint projects and training sessions, among the WEAC employees and other Boston Regional Field Office employees. It was also determined that the clarified unit will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the exclusively recognized unit represented by the AFGE be clarified to include the employees in the WEAC.

With regard to the GEAC's representation petition, the Assistant Secretary concluded that dismissal of the petition was warranted. In this connection, he found that the GEAC's petition was tantamount to a request for severance of the WEAC employees from the AFGE's exclusively recognized unit at the Activity. As he did not find "unusual circumstances" justifying severance from the established more comprehensive unit, the Assistant Secretary dismissed the GEAC's petition.

DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNIT

Upon petitions duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a consolidated hearing was held before Hearing Officer William T. Koffel. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in these cases, the Assistant Secretary finds:

In Case No. 31-9818(CU), the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2405, herein called AFGE, seeks to clarify its existing exclusively recognized unit by the inclusion of all employees of the Winchester Engineering and Analytical Center, herein called WEAC, who are under the administrative authority of the Director, WEAC. 1/ In this connection, the AFGE contends that, as a result of a reorganization, the approximately 40 eligible and previously unrepresented employees of the WEAC have "accreted" to the AFGE's existing exclusively recognized unit at the Boston Regional Field Office 2/ and do not constitute a separate and viable unit but share an identifiable community of interest with the regional office employees. The AFGE further contends that the inclusion of the subject employees in its existing unit would promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. The Activity agrees with the AFGE's contentions.

In Case No. 31-10397(RO), the Government Employees Assistance Council, GEAC-G3-N1, herein called GEAC, seeks an election in a unit consisting of all General Schedule employees under the administrative authority of the Director, WEAC, excluding Wage Grade employees, supervisors, management officials, professional employees, and employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity as defined in the Order. 3/ The GEAC contends that the proposed unit is appropriate in that the employees involved share a clear and identifiable community of interest apart from other employees in the regional unit. In this connection, it asserts that the duties performed by WEAC employees remained essentially the same as those they performed prior to the reorganization and that such duties are substantially different from those performed by Boston Regional Field Office employees.

1/ There are some eight persons located at the WEAC who are not administratively responsible to the Director of the WEAC.

2/ The record reveals that on December 13, 1967, the AFGE was recognized as the exclusive representative of all employees of the Boston District of the Food and Drug Administration (FDA), excluding management officials, supervisors, guards and employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity as defined in the Order. The record reflects further that thereafter, the Boston District was redesignated the Boston Field Office and subsequently redesignated again as the Boston Regional Field Office. The parties entered into a negotiated agreement, dated October 19, 1972, which had a term of two years and was automatically renewable on an annual basis. The record indicates the negotiated agreement has been renewed and has continued in effect up to the present time.

3/ The GEAC's petition apparently was filed on July 30, 1976. The unit claimed by the GEAC appears as described in its amended petition.

The Boston Regional Field Office is one of ten FDA Regional Offices, each having a Regional Food and Drug Director who reports directly to the Executive Director of Regional Operations in Rockville, Maryland. The mission of a Regional Office is to assure that industries within the Region comply with the laws and regulations enforced by the FDA. In the performance of its mission a Regional Office is required to carry out a program of investigation, scientific testing, and compliance activities. Within the Boston Region is the Boston District Office managed by the Deputy Regional Food and Drug Director who reports to the Regional Director and in which the day-to-day field operations are carried out.

Through a reorganization, effectuated July 1, 1973, the Northeastern Radiological Health Laboratory of the Bureau of Radiological Health, Public Health Service, was redesignated the Winchester Engineering and Analytical Center and transferred to the control of the FDA and to the administrative authority of the Boston Regional Food and Drug Director. The record indicates that the reorganization substantially modified the mission of the WEAC. Thus, prior to the reorganization, the WEAC was primarily a research facility devoted to conducting scientific research activities in the field of radiology, but, subsequent to July 1, 1973, the primary activities at the WEAC have been concentrated on testing consumer and industrial products for compliance with laws and regulations enforced by the FDA. 4/ In addition, it was noted that the WEAC now serves as the procurement center for the FDA's Boston Region and that all equipment, chemicals, and supplies are ordered and procured through the facilities of the WEAC. Further, all fiscal accounting records for the Region, including the WEAC, are processed and stored at the Boston District Office. 5/

Under all the circumstances, I find that the WEAC is an integral part of the Boston Regional Field Office unit exclusively represented by the AFGE. Thus, in my view, subsequent to the reorganization, the employees of the WEAC have been administratively and functionally integrated into the AFGE's existing unit of Boston Regional Field Office

4/ These include, among others, product testing of television receivers; cold cathode demonstration tubes; compliance testing of microwave ovens; automated analysis of drugs, radiopharmaceuticals, and radionuclides in foods and media; and developing engineering evaluation and compliance testing procedures.

5/ These include, among others, payroll records, expense accounts and payments, and an assignment and productivity tracking system. However, personnel records for both the WEAC and the Boston District Office are handled by the Regional Personnel Office of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

employees and share a clear and identifiable community of interest with such employees. In this regard, the evidence establishes that the WEAC employees have similar job skills, functions, and working conditions as other employees in the AFGE's unit; they share the same Regional personnel policies and practices, delegated by the Regional Food and Drug Director to the directors of the WEAC and the Boston District Office; and they share a common Regional merit promotion plan and reduction-in-force procedure. Moreover, there is a high degree of interchange among the WEAC employees and employees in the Boston District as reflected by the fact that employees of the Boston District Office and the WEAC routinely work on joint projects and training sessions and that transfers and details between stations are frequent and routine. Moreover, the inclusion of the WEAC employees into the unit represented by the AFGE, under the circumstances outlined above, will, in my view, promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations by reducing unit fragmentation in an activity where the components are so functionally integrated and where the success of the Activity's mission requires close cooperation and interaction between its component parts. Accordingly, I shall order that the existing exclusively recognized unit represented by the AFGE be clarified to include all eligible employees of the WEAC.

As the employees sought herein by the GEAC have accreted to the existing AFGE unit at the Activity, the GEAC's petition, which appears to be timely filed with respect to the AFGE's negotiated agreement, is tantamount to a request for severance of the subject employees from the existing exclusively recognized unit at the Activity. In this regard, it has been held previously that absent "unusual circumstances", severance from an established more comprehensive unit will not be permitted. 6/ I find no unusual circumstances in the instant case warranting a severance of the WEAC employees. Thus, the record evidence indicates that the AFGE has, since the reorganization, considered the WEAC employees to be part of its exclusively recognized unit of the Boston Regional Field Office and that it has represented a WEAC employee when it was requested to do so. Further, there is no evidence that the AFGE has failed to represent WEAC employees or that it has treated them in a manner inconsistent with its representation of other unit employees. 7/ Accordingly, I shall order that the GEAC's petition in Case No. 31-10397(RO) be dismissed.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION,
VETERANS ADMINISTRATION HOSPITAL,
NORTHPORT, NEW YORK
A/SLMR No. 824

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the National Federation of Federal Employees (NFFE) alleging essentially that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by changing the workweek for the firefighters represented by NFFE Local 387, thereby violating the parties' negotiated agreement, without negotiating with the NFFE Local 387 either about the decision to initiate such a change or about its impact and implementation.

The Administrative Law Judge recommended that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. He found that, under the circumstances of this case, the change was integrally related to the staffing patterns of the Respondent and thus fell within the exclusionary language of Section 11(b) and relieved the agency from the duty and/or obligation to bargain thereon. Contrary to the contention of the Complainant, he also found that the Respondent had not clearly and unmistakably waived its Section 11(b) rights by virtue of its action in signing a negotiated agreement containing provisions relating to work schedules and tours of duty. Further, he found that the Respondent had fulfilled its obligations imposed by the Order to bargain with the exclusive representative with respect to the impact of the change in the firefighters' workweek.

The Assistant Secretary noted that, in his view, the gravamen of the complaint in this case was that the Respondent's unilateral decision to change the work hours of the firefighters was contrary to the parties' negotiated agreement. He further noted that it had been held previously that alleged violations of a negotiated agreement which concern differing and arguable interpretations of such agreement, as distinguished from alleged actions which would constitute clear, unilateral breaches of the agreement, are not violative of the Order and that, under such circumstances, the aggrieved party's remedy for such matters lies within the grievance machinery of the negotiated agreement, rather than through the unfair labor practice procedures. Accordingly, as the issues in the instant case involved essentially different interpretations of the parties' rights and obligations under the negotiated agreement, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

On January 28, 1977, Administrative Law Judge Burton S. Sternburg issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had not engaged in the unfair labor practices alleged in the complaint and recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. Thereafter, the Complainant filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in this case, including the Complainant's exceptions and supporting brief, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendation, as modified herein.

The gravamen of the complaint herein is that the Respondent's unilateral decision to change the work hours of the firefighters represented by the Complainant was contrary to the parties' negotiated agreement and, thus, violative of the Order. The Administrative Law Judge, in recommending dismissal of the complaint, concluded that the Respondent had not clearly and unmistakably waived its Section 11(b) rights by virtue of its action in signing a negotiated agreement containing provisions relating to work schedules and tours of duty.

It has been held previously that alleged violations of a negotiated agreement which concern differing and arguable interpretations of such agreement, as distinguished from alleged actions which would constitute clear, unilateral breaches of the agreement, are not violative of the Order and that, under such circumstances, the aggrieved party's remedy for such matters lies within the grievance machinery of the negotiated agreement, rather than through the unfair labor practice procedures. 1/ As the issues involved in the instant proceeding involve essentially a differing interpretation of the parties' rights and obligations under their negotiated agreement, and as, in my view, the Respondent's conduct did not constitute a clear, unilateral breach of that agreement, I concur in the recommendation of the Administrative Law Judge and shall order that the instant complaint be dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to a complaint filed on September 19, 1975, under Executive Order 11491, as amended, by the National Federation of Federal Employees (hereinafter called the Union or NFFE) against the Veterans Administration, Veterans Administration Hospital, Northport, New York (hereinafter called the Respondent or Activity), a Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued by the Acting Regional Administrator of the New York, New York, Region on September 14, 1976.

The complaint alleges that the Respondent violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Executive Order by virtue of its actions in unilaterally changing the firefighters' workweek from 40 to 60 hours without first negotiating with the Union concerning both the change and its impact on unit personnel.

A hearing was held in the captioned matter on November 18, 1976, in Northport, New York. All parties were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses and to introduce evidence bearing on the issues involved herein. Following the close of the hearing Counsel for both parties filed briefs which have been duly considered.

Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions and recommendations.

Findings of Fact

At all times relevant hereto the Union has been the exclusive representative of the non-supervisory firefighters employed at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Northport, New York. The Union and the Respondent are parties to a collective bargaining agreement dated November 29, 1974.

Prior to about November of 1974, the firefighters at the VA Hospital in Northport, New York performed both guard and firefighting duties. However, in about November 1974, separate police officer positions were established, which resulted in a reduction in the number of firefighters required, since the firefighters were no longer required to serve dual functions.

In April or May 1975 an audit team from the Veterans Administration's Central Office determined, following a fire drill, that there was insufficient firefighter coverage to insure the safety of the installation. Thereafter, pursuant to a recommendation from the audit team, management decided that a change from the then existing 40 hour workweek to a 60 hour workweek for firefighters would provide the additional coverage necessary to guarantee the safety of the installation. The only other alternative available to management was the hiring of additional firefighters.

On July 3, 1975, the vice-president of Local 387, Mr. Vonderhulls, was called into a meeting with management representatives and informed that the Respondent was considering a change in the workweek for firefighters from 40 to 60 hours. Mr. Vonderhulls, who had no advance notice of the proposed change and who was scheduled to go on annual leave for two weeks later in the afternoon, informed the Respondent that he would canvas the employees concerning the proposed change.

On July 9, 1975, while Mr. Vonderhulls was on annual leave, Respondent issued a memorandum to the firefighters informing them that effective September 7, 1975, the firefighters would be scheduled for a 60 hour workweek.

On July 28, 1975, representatives of the Respondent and the Complainant met and discussed the proposed change from the current forty to a sixty hour workweek for firefighters. The impact of the change on the unit employees was also discussed.

On July 30, 1975, the Respondent issued a memorandum to the firefighters wherein they were informed that the implementation of the 60 hour workweek was postponed to September 14, 1975.

Representatives of the Respondent and the Complainant met again on August 27, 1975 and discussed the reasons for Respondent's proposal and the impact upon the employees. The Respondent agreed to furnish a written breakdown of the anticipated impact of the proposed change on the unit employees to the union. Such breakdown was to include pay, eating facilities, sleeping quarters and staffing patterns. Additionally, the Respondent agreed to send a memorandum to the firefighters wherein the effective date of the proposed change would be extended to October 1, 1975.

On September 10, 1975, the parties again met. At this time, the Respondent gave the union the information it had promised in the earlier meeting and also furnished the Union with a copy of the audit report which had precipitated the proposed change.

The 60 hour workweek finally became effective as of January 4, 1976.

The collective bargaining agreement in effect between the parties provides in relevant part as follows:

Article 6 - MUTUAL RIGHTS AND OBLIGATIONS

1. The Hospital and the Local, on behalf of the employees it represents, accept responsibility to abide by all of the provisions set forth in this agreement. The Hospital and the Local shall not change the conditions set forth in this agreement and amendments except by the methods provided herein, or as required by law or regulation.

Article 7 - SUBJECT AREAS OF NEGOTIATION

1. Appropriate subjects for consultation and/or negotiation are, but are not limited to: work environment, supervisor-employee relations, leave scheduling, holiday work scheduling, grievance procedures including arbitration as defined in Executive Order 11491, promotion program, safety, health, and welfare of employees, training, labor-management relations, orderly procedures of appeals in adverse actions, and other matters consistent with the provisions of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and within the administrative authority of the Hospital Director.

2. The parties recognize that the obligation to meet and confer does not include matters with respect to the mission of the VA, its budget; its organization, the number of employees and the numbers, types, and grades of positions or employees assigned to an organizational unit, work project or tour of duty; the technology of performing its work; or its internal security practices. However, this does not preclude the parties from consulting and negotiating agreements providing appropriate arrangements for employees adversely affected by the impact of realignment of work forces or technological change.

Article 15 - CHANGES IN PERSONNEL POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

1. The Hospital agrees to provide an opportunity to the Local to comment on the formulation and implementation of Hospital policies and procedures affecting members of the unit.

Article 25 - REST PERIODS

The Hospital agrees to permit employees of the unit to interrupt, wherever possible, their normal work activities for a ten (10) minute period of time for relief of fatigue or to obtain refreshment. There will be no more than two (2) such periods during any eight (8) hour work tour, one in the first four hours and one in the second four hours.

Article 31 - WORK SCHEDULES-TOURS OF DUTY

1. Each employee will be assigned a given tour of duty; however, management reserves the right to reassign any employee to a different tour of duty as required to meet the needs of the Hospital.

2. The Hospital agrees to consider the Local proposal for a change in a tour of duty for the work group when the Local indicates that such a change is desired by a majority of the employees concerned. It is understood by both parties that any proposed change in tours of duty shall not interfere with the operation of the Hospital and the department concerned.

3. New schedules involving days off and change in tour of duty shall be posted not less than two (2) calendar weeks in advance.

4. The Hospital will schedule employees to provide for a break of two work tours after completion of a regular eight hour tour of duty, except in case of emergency or schedule change as outlined in Section 1.

Discussion and Conclusions

Respondent contends that in view of Section 11(b) of the Order it was not obligated to bargain about the decision to change the tours of duty of the firefighters from 40 hours to 60 hours, that Respondent did not waive its 11(b) rights by virtue of the various cited provisions of the collective bargaining agreement, and that it fulfilled the obligations imposed by the Order to bargain with the Union concerning the impact of its unilateral decision on the unit employees. The Union, on the other hand, takes the position that the Respondent, by virtue of the above cited provisions of the collective bargaining agreement, waived any rights it may have had to unilaterally change the tours of duty. The Union further contends that Respondent failed in any event to fulfill its obligations to bargain with respect to the impact of the change in the tours of duty on unit personnel.

Section 11(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, provides that management is not obligated to bargain "with respect to the mission of an agency; it budget; and the numbers types, and grades of positions or employees assigned to an organizational unit, work project or tour of duty."

To the extent that a change in a tour of duty is integrally related to the staffing pattern of the agency involved, the Federal Labor Relations Council has held that such change in a tour of duty falls within the exclusionary language of Section 11(b) and relieves the agency from the duty and/or obligation to bargain thereon. Plum Island Animal Disease Laboratory, Department of Agriculture, FLRC No. 74A-11 (July 9, 1971). However, where a proposal relating to the basic workweek and hours of duty is not integrally related to and consequently not determinative of the staffing patterns of the agency, the Council has found such proposal is not excepted from an agency's bargaining obligation by virtue of Section 11(b) of the Order. Federal Employees Metal Trades Council of Charleston and U.S. Naval Supply Center, Charleston, South Carolina, FLRC No. 71A-52 (November 24, 1972, Report No. 31).

In the instant case the evidence establishes that the alternative to a sixty hour workweek for the firefighters was the hiring of additional employees. Accordingly, I find that the change in the tours of duty for the firefighters was integrally related to the staffing patterns of the Respondent and hence non-negotiable under Section 11(b) of the Executive Order.

Contrary to the contention of the Complainant, I find that the Respondent has not waived its Section 11(b) rights by virtue of its action in signing the collective bargaining agreement containing the provisions cited above in the factual portion of this decision. While it is true that Articles 25 and 31 speak in terms of a tour of duty being an eight hour work period and Article 6 binds both parties not to change the terms of the agreement except by specific methods, the fact remains that Article 7 provides that the "obligation to meet and confer does not include matters with respect to .... work project or tour of duty ...." Moreover, the record is barren of any evidence bearing on the parties intent with respect to Articles 25 and 31. In fact, Complainant's representatives conceded that there was no discussion of hours of work or the workweek in the negotiations leading up to the execution of the collective bargaining agreement. In view of the foregoing, it can not be said that the alleged waiver of the Respondent was "clear and unmistakable." Cf. NASA, Kennedy Space Center, Kennedy Space Center, Florida, A/SLMR No. 223.

Lastly, contrary to the contention of the Complainant, I find that the Respondent has fulfilled its obligations imposed by the Executive Order to bargain with the Union with respect to the impact of its decision to change the tour of duty for firefighters from 40 to 60 hours. In this latter context I note that the Respondent met on several occasions with the Union, listened to is proposals, supplied all requested materials, and even postponed any final decision on the change in the tour of duty for several months.

Recommendation

Having found that Respondent has not engaged in conduct violative of Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order, I recommend that the complaint herein be dismissed in its entirety.

PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE,
DEPENDENTS SCHOOLS, EUROPE,
[SIGONELLA SCHOOL]
A/SLMR No. 825

This case involved a petition for clarification of unit (CU) filed by the Overseas Education Association, National Education Association (OEA) and a representation petition (RO) filed by the Overseas Federation of Teachers, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO (OFT). Essentially, the OEA sought to clarify its existing exclusively recognized bargaining unit to include the nonsupervisory professional school personnel hired as a result of the addition of grades 11 and 12 to the Sigonella School. The OFT, on the other hand, sought an election in a unit consisting of all nonsupervisory professional school personnel employed at the Sigonella High School. The OFT argued that the addition of two grades to the school created a separate high school which constituted an appropriate unit for the purpose of exclusive recognition. The Activity took a neutral position with respect to both petitions.

The Assistant Secretary found that the addition of the two grades to the Sigonella School did not result in substantial or material changes in the scope or character of the existing exclusively recognized bargaining unit. In this regard, he noted that the newly hired employees worked in the same physical location as the other unit employees, that many of them taught across all grades or across the high school grades, that they were all subject to the same general supervision, and that they shared common personnel policies, practices and working conditions. Accordingly, he ordered that the existing exclusively recognized bargaining unit represented by the OEA be clarified to include the employees hired as a result of the addition to the Sigonella School.

With regard to the OFT's representation petition, the Assistant Secretary concluded that the petition was untimely filed inasmuch as it was not filed during the valid challenge period as provided for in the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. In this connection, the record revealed that the OEA and the Activity were parties to a negotiated agreement which became effective on September 27, 1973, for a two year period and was extended by the parties to September 27, 1976, and the petition herein was filed on September 2, 1976. Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the OFT's (RO) petition be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNIT

Upon petitions duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a consolidated hearing was held before Hearing Officer Carol M. Rollins. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

1/ At the hearing, the parties agreed that the correct name of the Activity is Department of Defense, Dependents Schools, Europe.

Upon the entire record in these cases, including a brief filed by the Overseas Federation of Teachers (OFT), the Assistant Secretary finds:

1. The labor organizations involved claim to represent certain employees of the Activity.

2. In Case No. 22-7326(CU), the Overseas Education Association (OEA) seeks to clarify its existing exclusively recognized unit to include nonsupervisory professional school personnel hired as a result of the addition of two grades to the Sigonella School. In Case No. 22-7454(RO), the OFT seeks an election in a unit consisting of all nonsupervisory professional school personnel who are employed at the Sigonella High School. Essentially, the OFT argues that the addition of the two grades at the Sigonella School resulted in the creation of a new and separate high school, which constituted an appropriate unit for the purpose of exclusive recognition. The Activity took a neutral position with respect to the subject petitions.

In July 1967, the OEA was granted exclusive recognition by the U.S. Dependents Schools, European Area, for a unit of all nonsupervisory professional school personnel at a number of its overseas dependents schools in Europe, including the Sigonella School. Thereafter, the parties executed a two year negotiated agreement which became effective on September 27, 1973. By mutual assent, the parties extended their agreement to September 27, 1976.

The record indicates that at the time it granted exclusive recognition in 1967, the Sigonella School consisted of grades 1 through 8. It expanded to grades kindergarten through 9 in school year 1973-74, and added a 10th grade the following school year. Finally, in 1976-77, grades 11 and 12 were added making Sigonella a complete elementary and high school. Sometime in 1975, a new addition was built onto the existing structure to accommodate the addition of grades 11 and 12. Some of the added rooms were to be used exclusively for the elementary portion of the school, while others, such as the music, art rooms and gymnasium, were to serve students in all grades. 2/

The employee complement for the school year 1976-77 consists of ten staff positions in the elementary school and ten staff positions in the high school, with six of the latter positions being new. Several of these new positions are occupied by teachers who teach exclusively in the high school while others are held by teachers with teaching responsibilities in all grades. The elementary teachers generally are assigned teaching responsibilities in one grade. Other teachers have responsibilities across grades 7 through 12, while still other teachers, notably those for art and music, teach across all grades. Faculty meetings are held either jointly or divided along elementary and high school lines. The record reveals that the addition of the two grades to the Sigonella School resulted in several academic and extracurricular changes, including a special testing program for high school students and participation in interscholastic sports competition. However, all teachers are under the direction of the principal of the Sigonella School who retains the authority in matters of hiring, performance evaluations and grievance handling. The record further indicates that all teachers, including those hired as a result of the addition of two grades to the school, share common personnel policies, practices and working conditions.

2/ At the time of the hearing herein, plans were being made to divide the library into separate elementary and high school libraries with one librarian to oversee both.

Based on the foregoing, I find that the addition of two grades to the Sigonella School did not result in substantial or material changes in the scope or character of the existing exclusively recognized bargaining unit. Thus, as noted above, the personnel hired as a result of the expansion of the Sigonella School work in the same physical location as the other unit employees, have teaching responsibilities across all grades or across the high school grades, are subject to the same general supervision and share common personnel policies, practices and working conditions. Under these circumstances, I find that the newly hired school personnel share the same community of interest with the other employees in the existing exclusively recognized unit. Furthermore, in view of the fact that all of the employees involved at the Sigonella School share the same personnel policies, practices and conditions of employment, I find that the inclusion of grades 11 and 12 into the present unit will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. 3/ Accordingly, I shall order that the existing exclusively recognized bargaining unit represented by the OEA be clarified to include the nonsupervisory professional school personnel hired as a result of the addition of two grades to the Sigonella School. 4/

With respect to the OFT's petition in Case No. 22-7454(RO) seeking an election among the nonsupervisory professional school personnel at the Sigonella High School, I find that further processing is barred by the negotiated agreement between the Activity and the OEA which was in effect at the time the instant petition was filed on September 2, 1976, and which, as found above, covered the claimed employees. As noted previously, the OEA and the Activity entered into a negotiated agreement which became effective on September 27, 1973, for a period of two years and was extended by the parties to September 27, 1976. In order to be considered timely, a representation petition must be filed within the valid challenge period as provided for in Section 202.3(c) of the

3/ Cf. United States Dependents Schools, European Area, Upper Heyford High School, A/SLMR No. 770.

4/ In view of the fact that the unit inclusions of the OEA's existing exclusively recognized bargaining unit adequately encompass the above-noted clarification, I find it unnecessary to specify the OEA's clarified unit in terms of the school's grade structure.

Assistant Secretary's Regulations. 5/ As the instant petition was not filed within the valid challenge period, I shall order that the OFT's petition be dismissed.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the unit sought to be clarified by the petition in Case No. 22-7326(CU) be, and it hereby is, clarified to include in said unit the nonsupervisory professional school personnel hired as a result of the addition of two grades to the Sigonella School.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the petition in Case No. 22-7454(RO) be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

A/SLMR No. 826

This case involved a petition filed by the National Federation of Federal Employees, Local 1830 (NFFE) seeking a unit of all professional and nonprofessional employees of the U.S. Geological Survey, Water Resources Division, Utah District Office. The Activity contended that the petitioned for unit was not appropriate as the employees involved did not possess a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from other employees in the Central Region, and such a unit would not promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. The Utah District is one of 15 such districts within the Central Region.

Applying the three criteria found in Section 10(b) of the Order, the Assistant Secretary found that the unit sought was not appropriate for the purpose of exclusive representation. In this regard, he noted that the claimed employees did not share a clear and identifiable community of interest in that the unit sought shared a common mission, common overall supervision, generally similar job classifications, skills and duties, as well as uniform personnel policies and practices with substantial interchange and transfer with other employees of the Region. In addition, the Assistant Secretary found that the proposed unit would not promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations since such a unit would lead to the fragmentation of employees within the Region.

DECISION AND ORDER

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer Kathleen M. Snead. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed. 1/

Upon the entire record in this case, including the brief filed by the Activity, the Assistant Secretary finds:

1. The labor organization involved claims to represent certain employees of the Activity.

2. The Petitioner, National Federation of Federal Employees, Local 1830, herein called NFFE, seeks an election in a unit consisting of all professional and nonprofessional employees of the U.S. Geological Survey, Water Resources Division, Utah District Office. The Activity contends that the petitioned for unit is not appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. In this regard, it asserts that the only appropriate unit is one which will include all the U.S. Geological Survey employees of the Central Region serviced by the Regional Personnel Office.

The U.S. Geological Survey, hereinafter called the Survey, is one of the seven major bureaus of the Department of the Interior. It was established to classify public lands and to examine the geological structure, mineral resources, and products of the lands in the national domain. The Water Resources Division, hereinafter referred to as the Division, is one of the six major divisions of the Survey, 2/ and its mission includes the determination of the sources, quantity, quality, distribution, movement, and availability of above-surface and ground waters. The work of the Division includes, among other things, investigation of floods and shortages of water supply; evaluation of available water in river basins and ground water provinces; determination of the chemical, physical, and biological quality of water resources; and determination of the relationship of water quality to various parts of the hydraulic cycle. The Division also furnishes scientific and technical assistance in hydrologic fields to other Federal agencies and licensees of the Federal Power Commission. The headquarters of the Division is located in Reston, Virginia, and it is administered by a Chief Hydrologist. The Division is organized into four regions, each headed by a Regional Hydrologist. Each region is further divided into districts each headed by a District Chief, and each district is subdivided into sub-districts, or field offices. The Utah District, one of 15 such districts within the Central Region, has its headquarters at Salt Lake City, Utah, and has five sub-district offices, located within Utah, in Cedar City, Logan, Salt Lake City, Vernal and Moab. The record discloses that although there is no bargaining history in either the Utah District or the Central Region, full authority for labor relations matters has been delegated to the Regional Personnel Officer.

1/ At the hearing, the Hearing Officer excluded as irrelevant the Activity's offer of evidence concerning its experience with an exclusively recognized bargaining unit located in the Water Resources Division, Austin District Office. In this regard, the Activity indicated that it sought to demonstrate that District Office units would not promote effective dealings or efficiency of agency operations. In view of the disposition of the instant petition, it was considered unnecessary to decide whether the Hearing Officer's ruling was erroneous.

The record reveals that hydrology is a multi-discipline science, involving the combined efforts of engineers, geologists, chemists, physicists, and other specialized scientists. Because of the multi-discipline nature of the work, as well as the fact that there are scientific specialities within specialities, and because water projects frequently involve more than one district, 3/ there is extensive integration, interchange and transfer of individual employees among district offices within the Region. The record further reveals that there has been substantial detailing of personnel from the Division to other Divisions of the Survey, and also the funding by one Division of a portion of another Division's project. 4/

2/ The record reveals that the other five divisions of the Survey are: the Geologic Division, the Conservation Division, the Topograpic Division, the Computer Center Division and the Administration Division.

3/ For example, the research for the Missouri Basin Commission and the planning and execution for the Yellowstone Basin each involves three districts. National projects coordinated at the Regional level also affect more than one district, e.g., the Oil Shale Project and the Coal and Flood Programs.

4/ The Conservation Division is funding a Water Resources Division survey on the Bonneville Salt Flats.

Although the Region encompasses a large geographical area, the evidence establishes that it is highly centralized because of the interrelated, multi-discipline nature of the Division's operations. Thus, the Regional Hydrologist has overall supervision of District Projects. He controls the personnel ceilings, promotions, and reassignments within each district. Upon completion of a project, the District Chief must receive permission from the Regional Hydrologist to reassign District employees to other projects within his District. The Regional Hydrologist also has promotional authority for nonprofessional employees above the grade of GS-10 and for all professional employees, with the District Chief having final promotional authority for nonprofessional employees GS-9 and below. Additionally, the Regional Hydrologist determines which positions are to be subject to reductions-in-force.

Employees throughout the Region share generally uniform job classifications, skills, and duties. They are also subject to common personnel policies and practices established at the Regional and National levels. For example, the area of competition for the reduction-in-force of nonprofessional employees is a 30 mile commuting area, while that for professionals is nationwide.

Based on the foregoing, I find that the unit sought by the NFFE is not appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under Executive Order 11491, as amended. Thus, it was particularly noted that the employees of the Water Resources Division, Central Region, have a common mission, are subject to common overall supervision, have generally similar job classifications, skills and duties, enjoy uniform personnel policies and practices, and experience extensive integration of operations and substantial interchange and transfer of personnel.

Under all of these circumstances, I find that the employees of the Water Resources Division, Central Region, Utah District do not share a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from other Region employees. Moreover, in my view, such a fragmented unit could not reasonably be expected to promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. Accordingly, I shall order that the NFFE's petition be dismissed.

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the petition in Case No. 61-2992(RO) be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

SEAL BEACH, CALIFORNIA,
DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY
A/SLMR No. 827

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by Local 2161, American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO (Complainant) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1), (5) and (6) of the Order when it unilaterally revoked dues withholding for two employees after they were selected for newly created Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) Specialist positions. The Respondent contends that it acted properly because the EEO Specialists' jobs are managerial and, therefore, not in the unit. The Complainant argued that the EEO Specialists are merely supportive assistants to the Commanding Officer and that the two employees remain in the unit it exclusively represents.

The Administrative Law Judge found it unnecessary to decide whether the two positions were managerial. He reasoned that if they were managerial the Respondent properly terminated their dues withholding. On the other hand, even if the dues withholding termination was improper under a mistaken belief as to the unit status of the two, he found that such an act would amount to a simple breach of the dues withholding agreement. He concluded, therefore, that the termination, if erroneous, was simply a violation of the agreement concerning differing and arguable interpretations, rather than a clear, unilateral breach of the agreement which could support a violation of the Order. Accordingly, he recommended dismissal of the complaint.

The Assistant Secretary noted that it is well established that an agency acts at its peril when it unilaterally determines the unit status of employees. Thus, the unilateral removal of a unit employee without justification would be viewed as tantamount to the unilateral withdrawal of recognition with respect to part of an exclusively recognized unit.

The Assistant Secretary reviewed the duties of the employees in question and concluded that they were engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and, therefore, pursuant to Section 10(b)(2) of the Order, were excluded from the Complainant's exclusively recognized bargaining unit. Therefore, the Respondent's termination of dues withholding was considered to be privileged.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

On January 3, 1977, Administrative Law Judge Milton Kramer issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had not engaged in the alleged unfair labor practices and recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. No exceptions were filed to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in this case, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations, only to the extent consistent herewith.

The amended complaint alleged that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1), (5) and (6) of the Order when it unilaterally revoked dues withholding for two employees who had been in a unit represented by the Complainant. The Respondent took the action after the two employees involved were selected to fill newly created jobs which the Respondent contends are managerial and, therefore, not in the unit. If the Respondent is correct, and by virtue of their new jobs the two employees are no longer in the unit, clearly no violation has been established herein. On the other hand, it is well established that when an agency unilaterally determines the unit status of employees, it acts at its peril, and an erroneous determination could support a violation of the Order. U.S. Marine Corps Air Station, El Toro, A/SLMR No. 560, FLRC No. 75A-115. This is so because an erroneous determination would be viewed as tantamount to a unilateral withdrawal of recognition with respect to part of an exclusively recognized unit. 1/

As detailed more fully in the attached Administrative Law Judge's decision, the Commanding Officer of the Respondent is also its Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) Officer. The Deputy EEO Officer is his principal advisor on the program and is the operating director. Immediately responsible to him are two EEO Specialists, Wright and Jiminez, in their respective positions of coordinators of the Women's and Spanish-Speaking programs. The revocation of dues withholding which led to the unfair labor practice complaint herein occurred when Wright and Jiminez were selected to fill the two newly created EEO Specialist positions.

Among other duties, the evidence establishes that Wright and Jiminez actively participate in the development of EEO policy and programs, have full access to confidential employee information and personnel records which are not accessible to any unit members, and take turns substituting for and performing the duties of the Deputy EEO Officer in his frequent absences. When fulfilling this substitute function, Wright and Jiminez supervise the Deputy's clerical staff. They also attend meetings of department heads on occasion. While they are not authorized to expend the Respondent's funds without approval of the Deputy EEO Officer, the evidence establishes that their recommendations in this regard generally are accepted.

Under these circumstances, I find that the two EEO Specialists involved herein are engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, 2/ and, therefore, pursuant to Section 10(b)(2) of the Order, are excluded from the Complainant's exclusively recognized unit. 3/ Consequently, I find that the Respondent's termination of dues withholding for the two EEO Specialists was privileged. Therefore, I shall order that the instant complaint be dismissed.

1/ Viewed in this context, it is clear that the unilateral termination of dues withholding would be more than a mere potential violation of the negotiated agreement as indicated by the Administrative Law Judge.

2/ Cf. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, U.S. Office of Education, Headquarters, A/SLMR No. 803.

3/ In view of this disposition, I find it unnecessary to determine whether the EEO Specialists involved herein qualify for exclusion from the unit as management officials.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Preliminary Statement

This case arises under Executive Order 11491 as amended. It was initiated by a complaint dated and filed January 20, 1976 alleging violations of Sections 19(a)(1), (2), and (6) of the Executive Order. On January 26, 1976 the Complainant filed an amended complaint dated January 23, 1976 alleging that Sections 19(a)(1) and (5) had been violated. The Complaint and amended complaint allege that the Respondent violated Section 19(a) of the Order by unilaterally terminating the dues withholding under a negotiated agreement of two employees covered by the agreement. Under date of February 20, 1976 the Respondent filed a response asserting that the two employees had been promoted to managerial positions, that such positions were not part of the bargaining unit and thus not within the dues-withholding agreement, and that there was no obligation to consult concerning the termination of dues-withholding of employees not within the bargaining unit.

On July 28, 1976 the Regional Administrator issued a Notice of Hearing to be held on September 10, 1976 in Santa Ana, California. Hearings were held on that day and at that place. The Complainant was represented by its President; a National Representative of A.F.G.E. was also present for the Complainant. The Respondent was represented by a Labor Relations Advisor of the Department of the Navy. Without objection the complaint was orally amended to reinstate the allegation that Section 19(a)(6) had been violated. The Complainant called three witnesses who were examined and cross-examined, and the parties introduced exhibits which were received in evidence. Both sides made closing arguments and filed timely briefs.

The Dues Withholding Agreement

During the course of the hearing the parties and I discussed and read from what both of them represented to me was the collective agreement of the parties, including Appendix B thereto. 1/ Appendix B was entitled "Dues Withholding Procedure". However, neither the entire agreement nor Appendix B was made part of the record. The only reservation the union expressed concerning the authenticity of the agreement was uncertainty whether Appendix B was negotiated contemporaneously with or was added later to the basic agreement. 2/

Since the provisions of the agreement might have a bearing on the proper resolution of this case, before arriving at a Recommended Decision, on November 8, 1976 I issued an

2/ Tr. 90.

Order to Show Cause on or before November 18 why the agreement (including Appendix A and Appendix B) should not be made part of the record as Exhibit ALJ-1. The Respondent made no response to the Order to Show Cause. The Complainant responded by stating that the basic agreement was signed by the parties but that some time later Appendix A and Appendix B were added by some "person or persons unknown", that those appendices were never concurred in by the Complainant, and that the agreement should not be made part of the record. In view of express concessions and stipulations by the Complainant 3/ in the course of the hearing, the basic agreement and Appendix B, but not Appendix A, are made part of the record as Exhibit ALJ-1.

In view of the Complainant's response to the Order to Show Cause, on November 30, 1976 I issued an Order Reopening Record ordering that the Complainant, on or before December 10, 1976, (1) assert that the parties have or do not have a dues-withholding agreement, and (2) if it asserts that the parties do have such an agreement, it shall submit what it asserts to be a copy. In response to that Order, the Complainant submitted a copy of an agreement dated February 7, 1964 which it asserted had been in effect since that date although at the hearing it had repeatedly asserted that the current dues-withholding agreement had been entered into sometime after March 6, 1975.

The agreement so submitted is made part of the record as Exhibit ALJ-2. The record is reopened for the purpose of receiving Exhibits ALJ-1 and ALJ-2 and the orders and responses referred to above, and is again closed. It makes no difference which of the two asserted agreements was in effect at the relevant times. The operative language of Appendix B and the agreement of February 7, 1964, and even the section numbers, are identical; the only differences are such as the former referring to the "Union", the "Station", and social security numbers while the latter refers to "Lodge 2161", the "Employer" (defined as the Station), and employee payroll numbers. Thus for the purposes of this case it need not be determined which is the authentic dues-withholding agreement.

3/ E.g., Tr. 18-19, 91-92.

FACTS

The Complainant is the exclusive representative under the Executive Order of a unit of employees of Respondent excluding, inter alia, managerial employees. The parties have a collective agreement executed March 6, 1975 approved and effective April 3, 1975. They also have a dues withholding agreement. 4/ It applies to "Unit employees who voluntarily authorize" withholding of dues from their pay "and who are employed within the recognized Unit. ..." 5/ The Agreement provides also 6/ that an employee's allotment for dues withholding terminates automatically when he is transferred outside the Unit.

In addition to the terms of the agreement, the Executive Order provides in Section 21(a) that an exclusively recognized union and an agency may agree to dues withholding "from the pay of members ... in the unit of recognition who make a voluntary allotment for that purpose" but that such allotment "terminates when - (1) the dues withholding agreement ... ceases to be applicable to the employee. ..."

Ms. Shirley Wright and Mr. Rudolfo Jiminez were employed in the Unit, were members of the organization, and made allotments for dues withholding. In September 1976 they were promoted to newly-created positions of Equal Employment Opportunity Specialist, Wright to the position of Federal Women's Program Coordinator and Jiminez to the position of Spanish-Speaking Program Coordinator.

The Respondent believed that in their new positions Wright and Jiminez were managerial employees and therefore no longer in the bargaining unit. Therefore, on or about September 19, 1975, it stopped withholding their dues and advised them and the Complainant that it had done so because they were no longer in the bargaining unit. The Complainant took the position that Wright and Jiminez are merely supportive assistants to the Commanding Officer and that the Respondent was obligated to consult with the Complainant before terminating the dues withholding of Wright and Jiminez. This proceeding eventuated.

5/ Exhibit ALJ-1, App. B, Sec. 1, p. 44; Exhibit ALJ-2, Section 1.
6/ Sec. 7, p. 45, Exh. ALJ-1; Exh. ALJ-2, Sec. 7.

The Commanding Officer of the Respondent is its Equal Employment Opportunity Officer. He has a Deputy Equal Employment Opportunity Officer, Robert T. Burns. Under Burns are Wright and Jiminez one of whom acts as Deputy in Burns' frequent absences and makes the decisions the Deputy is required to make at such times and supervises his clerical staff.

Wright and Jiminez, each in his or her own field of special interest, develop goals, plans, and programs to achieve the goals with Burns. They actively participate in the development of policy and programs. They are under the direct supervision of the Commanding Officer and his Deputy EEOO and not under the supervision of the Civilian Personnel Office. Each of them has a part-time deputy program coordinator at Respondent's annexes at locations other than Seal Beach.

The Respondent maintains in its files certain coded confidential information concerning its employees such as their ethnic background and other matters pertaining to equal employment opportunity. Only the EEO officer, his Deputy, the Civilian Personnel Officer, and the two Program Coordinators have access to such information. Under the Navy Department's EEO procedure governing the Respondent Activity, an employee or applicant for employment who believes he or she was unlawfully discriminated against must first bring the matter to the attention of an EEO Counsellor and then, within fifteen days of his final interview with the Counsellor, must file his complaint with one of only five people: the Director of EEO in the Office of Civilian Manpower Management in Washington, the EEO Officer of the Respondent, his Deputy, and one of the two Program Coordinators. 7/

Under the Respondent's internal procedures, the Deputy EEO Officer or one of the Program Coordinators (Wright and Jiminez) is required to be present at meetings of department heads. The Program Coordinators represent the Respondent at meetings and conferences in their area of special concern. Each of them is a member of the Federal Executive Board of Los Angeles.

Neither Wright nor Jiminez is authorized to expend the Respondent's funds without the approval of the Deputy EEO Officer. They make recommendations for the allocation of resources and their recommendations are generally adopted without change. Except when serving as Acting Deputy EEO Officer, they do not supervise the work of other employees at Seal Beach.

The conclusion that the Program Coordinators were managerial employees was first reached by a Labor-Management Relations Specialist of the Respondent, Eleanor June Reinhardt. She recommended to the Civilian Personnel Officer, Guy H. Morley, that their dues withholding be cancelled. He adopted her recommendation and acted accordingly. Neither Reinhardt nor Morley conferred with the Complainant on the matter before the dues withholding of Wright and Jiminez was cancelled.

Discussion and Conclusions

It is unnecessary to a determination of this case to decide whether Wright and Jiminez occupy managerial positions. The collective bargaining unit expressly excludes managerial employees. If Wright and Jiminez are managerial employees the Respondent properly terminated the dues withholding; both the collective agreement and the Executive Order required it under their provisions set forth above under the heading Facts. If the Respondent improperly terminated their dues withholding in the mistaken belief that they were managerial employees, it committed a simple breach of the dues withholding agreement.

Not every breach of contract is an unfair labor practice. 8/ Under certain circumstances it can be an unfair labor practice. For example, if sufficiently flagrant so that it appears so unreasonable as to cast doubt on the sincerity of the respondent's position, it may rise to the seriousness of a unilateral change in the contract and hence a violation of Section 19(a)(6) of the Executive Order. 9/ But, as the 8/ General Services Administration, Region 5, Public Buildings Service, Chicago Field Office, A/SLMR No. 528, p. 4 of ALJ Decision; Aerospace Guidance and Metrology Center, Newark Air Force Station, A/SLMR No. 677.

9/ Other examples would be a breach of contract prompted by anti-union motivation to discourage union membership, of which there is no indication here, which would violate Section 19(a)(2); or a breach of contract motivated by considerations in violation of Section 19(a)(4), or which there is also no intimation in this record.

Assistant Secretary said in Aerospace Guidance and Metrology Center, Newark Air Force Station, A/SLMR No. 677:

> "... alleged violations of a negotiated agreement which concern differing and arguable interpretations of such agreement, as distinguished from alleged actions which constitute clear, unilateral breaches of the agreement, are not deemed to be violative of the Order."

The issue before us, then, is whether the unilateral termination of the dues withholding for Wright and Jiminez, if erroneous, was simply a violation of the agreement concerning "differing and arguable interpretations" or whether it constituted a "clear, unilateral" breach of the agreement. There is no obligation imposed by the Executive Order to withhold dues from a unit employee, nor is there an obligation imposed by the Executive Order not to commit a breach of contract except for "clear, unilateral breaches of the agreement. ..."

I conclude that under the criteria for determining whether an employee is a "management official", established in what are probably the two leading decisions on that issue by the Assistant Secretary, 10/ the Respondent's interpretation is at least arguable as the duties and responsibilities of Wright and Jiminez are described above and in the record.

In such situation, there was no obligation to bargain about whether Wright and Jiminez were employed in managerial positions for the purpose of terminating their dues withholding. Either they were or were not management employees, and bargaining could not change the fact. If they were, the Respondent not only had the right to take the action it did but was required by the Executive Order (as well as the agreement) to do so. In U.S. Marine Corps Air Station, El Toro, A/SLMR No. 560, the respondent terminated dues withholding of an employee on his being promoted to a supervisory position without conferring with the union on his status. It was held there was no violation of the duty to confer. If the Program Coordinators were managerial employees, they were no longer in the unit. If they were not managerial employees, the Respondent committed a simple breach of contract and there is no obligation imposed by the Order on an agency or activity to meet and confer on whether it shall commit a good faith, simple breach of contract.

This case is to be distinguished from U.S. Army Electronics Command, Fort Monmouth, A/SLMR No. 691. In that case the respondent activity refused to continue to recognize the complainant's local president as the local president because he had become a supervisor. In that case it was indicated that when the Activity took such position it acted "at its peril when it unilaterally determines supervisory status since an erroneous determination could support a violation of the Order." 11/ There the right to engage in union activities by a non-supervisor is a right conferred by the Executive Order, and an interference with that right would be a violation of Section 19(a)(1). Here the right of the Complainant to dues withholding from Wright and Jiminez, if there was such a right, was a right conferred not by the Order but by the dues-withholding agreement permitted but not required by the Order, and an impingement of that right would not be a violation of the Order but of the contract, in this case a good-faith violation.

At the hearing 12/ and in his brief the respresentative of the Complainant asserted that the action of the Respondent was taken because of anti-union animus of those who acted for it. There is not a shred of evidence in the record to support such assertion.

The Complainant protested at the hearing that a simpler resolution of this controversy would have been achieved by the Respondent filing a petition for unit clarification. To be sure, such a procedure would have been preferable and would have removed any doubt whether Wright and Jiminez were or were not managerial employees for all purposes, in a proceeding directed solely to that question, while here, because of the context and manner in which the question is presented, we are deciding only whether the Respondent reasonably believed they were managerial employees for the purpose of the dues-withholding agreement. But the Regulations 13/ confer just as much right on the Complainant as on the Respondent to file a petition for clarification of the unit. It is not an unfair labor practice for a respondent not to avail itself of an alternative, even preferable, procedure, especially when the complainant has the same right to avail itself of the alternative procedure. Nor was such a violation alleged.

11/ Footnote 1 of Assistant Secretary's Decision.
12/ See esp. T. 10.

RECOMMENDATION

Since there was no violation of the Executive Order either in the Respondent terminating its dues withholding of Wright and Jiminez nor in its failure to confer with the Complainant before doing so, I recommend that the complaint be dismissed.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION, BUREAU OF HEARINGS AND APPEALS
A/SLMR No. 828

This case involved two unfair labor practice complaints filed by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 3615, AFL-CIO, (Complainant) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by unilaterally changing the procedure for issuing visiting parking passes to unit employees, and by moving personnel to other buildings without meeting and conferring with the Complainant.

The Administrative Law Judge found that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to bargain with the Complainant prior to the issuance of the memorandum which outlined a new procedure for obtaining visitor parking passes by employees. The Administrative Law Judge noted that the procedure contained in the memorandum represented a significant shift from the past practice of obtaining a pass. With respect to the personnel move, the Administrative Law Judge found that the Complainant had no knowledge of the move until after it had been implemented and that, therefore, the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to afford the Complainant timely notice of the move in order that the Complainant might request bargaining over the procedure involved and the impact of the move on adversely affected unit employees. In this regard, the Administrative Law Judge rejected the Respondent's argument that because a unit employee who later became a member of the union's contract negotiating team knew of the move prior to its implementation, that this served as notice to the union.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge and ordered that the Respondent cease and desist from the conduct found violative and that it take certain affirmative actions.

DECISION AND ORDER

On December 30, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Garvin Lee Oliver issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceedings, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom and take certain affirmative actions as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. Thereafter, the Respondent filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. The Complainant subsequently filed an answering brief to the Respondent's exceptions.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject cases, including the exceptions and supporting brief filed by the Respondent, and the answering brief to the exceptions filed by the Complainant, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations.

With respect to the Administrative Law Judge's finding that the Respondent had violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to inform the Complainant of the personnel move involved prior to its effectuation and its failure thereby to afford the Complainant a reasonable opportunity to request bargaining over the procedures to be utilized in effectuating the decision and on the impact of such move on adversely affected employees, I note additionally that the record revealed that the Complainant had no knowledge of the personnel move until after its effectuation and, therefore, had no opportunity to request bargaining on the matter prior to such date.

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the Social Security Administration, Bureau of Hearings and Appeals, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Instituting changes in the procedures, or the enforcement of procedures, with respect to obtaining and using visitor parking passes, expected to be observed by employees represented exclusively by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 3615, AFL-CIO, or any other exclusive representative, without first meeting and conferring with the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 3615, AFL-CIO, or any other exclusive representative of its employees.

(b) Failing to notify the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 3615, AFL-CIO, or any other exclusive representative of its employees, of a decision to move personnel to another building prior to its effectuation, and, upon request, affording such representative the opportunity to meet and confer in good faith, to the extent consonant with law and regulations, on the procedures to be utilized in effectuating the decision and on the impact such decision will have on employees adversely affected by such action.

(c) In any like or related matter interfering with, restraining, or coercing employees in the exercise of their rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purposes and policies of Executive Order 11491, as amended:

A DECISION AND ORDER OF THE

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF LABOR FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS and in order to effectuate the policies of

EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS IN THE FEDERAL SERVICE

We hereby notify our employees that:

WE WILL NOT institute changes in the procedures, or the enforcement of procedures, with respect to obtaining and using visitor parking passes, expected to be observed by employees represented exclusively by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 3615, AFL-CIO, or any other exclusive representative, without first meeting and conferring with the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 3615, AFL-CIO, or any other exclusive representative of our employees.

WE WILL NOT fail to notify the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 3615, AFL-CIO, or any other exclusive representative of our employees, of a decision to move personnel to another building prior to its effectuation, and, upon request, afford such representative the opportunity to meet and confer in good faith, to the extent consonant with law and regulations, on the procedures to be utilized in effectuating the decision and on the impact such decision will have on the employees adversely affected by such action.

WE WILL NOT interfere with, restrain, or coerce our employees in the exercise of their rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

WE WILL, upon request, meet and confer with the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 3615, AFL-CIO, or any other exclusive representative of our employees, with respect to changes in the procedures, or the enforcement of procedures, with respect to obtaining and using visitor parking passes, expected to be observed by employees in the bargaining unit represented exclusively by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 3615, AFL-CIO, or any other exclusive representative.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This proceeding arose pursuant to Executive Order 11491, as amended. It was initiated by complaints filed on March 26, 1976 by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 3615, AFL-CIO (hereinafter called the Complainant or Union) against the Social Security Administration, Bureau of Hearings and Appeals (hereinafter called the Respondent or Activity), (Asst. Sec. Ex. 1 and 2). Portions of the alleged violations contained in the complaints were dismissed by the Regional Administrator for the Philadelphia Region. (Asst. Sec. Ex. 12; 14). After an order consolidating the two cases was entered (Asst. Sec. Ex. 13), the Regional Administrator issued a Notice of Hearing on Complaint. (Asst. Sec. Ex. 15).

The portions of the complaints now before the Assistant Secretary allege, in substance, that the Respondent violated the Executive Order by changing the procedure for issuing visiting parking passes to employees and by moving personnel to other buildings without meeting and conferring with the Union on these matters.

Procedural Matters

Respondent moved that the complaint in Case No. 22-6768 (CA) be dismissed in accordance with 29 CFR 203.2(b)(1), on the grounds that a violation of Section 19(a)(1) was alleged in the complaint, but not in the pre-complaint charge. I find this motion to be without merit. The facts allegedly constituting the alleged unfair labor practice as to the "parking pass" issue were described with sufficient particularity in the pre-complaint charge pursuant to 29 C.F.R. §203.2(a). That violations of Sections 19(a)(5) and (6) were alleged in the pre-complaint charge, but not subsection 19(a)(1) is not significant.

The Assistant Secretary has held that a violation of any subsection of Section 19(a), other than Section 19(a)(1), necessarily is violative of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order, Army and Air Force Exchange Service, Pacific Exchange System, Hawaii Regional Exchange, A/SLMR No. 454, and such an additional violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order may be found although not specifically alleged in the complaint. Small Business Administration, Richmond, Virginia, District Office, A/SLMR No. 674. It follows that if Section 19(a)(1) need not be specifically alleged in the complaint in order to find a violation, it need not be specifically alleged in the charge as long as violations of another subsection of Section 19(a) is alleged. The underlying facts are the most important part of the charge, and as noted, these were adequately stated in the charge.

The Respondent also moved to dismiss the complaint in Case No. 22-6767 (CA) on the ground that the "movement of personnel to BCT III" was alleged in the pre-complaint charge, but was not specifically alleged in the complaint. I find this motion also to be without merit. The complaint alleges that "personnel have been moved to other buildings, and plans are underway for movement of personnel to IBM Building, and Ms. Schuttle still has not met or conferred with the Local on these issues." (emphasis added). I conclude that the allegation that "personnel have been moved to other buildings" was sufficient to preserve the "movement of personnel to BCT III" issue contained in the pre-complaint charge, and that the BCT III move was not outside the scope of the complaint. Moveover, the Activity did not request any additional time to defend against this allegation, and the matter was litigated fully at the hearing.

Both parties were afforded full opportunity to be heard, adduce evidence, and to examine and cross-examine witnesses. Thereafter, the parties submitted briefs.

Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, the exhibits and other relevant evidence adduced at the hearing, and the briefs, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions and recommendations.

Findings of Fact

Since July 1975 the Complainant has been the exclusive representative of a unit of federal employees employed by the Respondent.

WE WILL notify the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 3615, AFL-CIO, or any other exclusive representative of our employees, of any future decision to move personnel to another building prior to its effectuation, and, upon request, afford such representative the opportunity to meet and confer in good faith, to the extent consonant with law and regulations, on the procedures to be utilized in effectuating the decision and on the impact such decision will have on the employees adversely affected by such action.

I. Movement of Personnel to Balston Center Tower III

The Balston 1/ Center Tower complex is a group of three separate buildings in Arlington, Virginia connected by a common underground garage and served by a common inner parking court. The three buildings, known as Balston Center Tower (BCT) I, II, and III, occupy most of a city block and are bounded, in part, by Quincy Street, Wilson Boulevard, and Randolph Street.

In approximately August 1975 the Respondent had a severe shortage of space and secured some temporary space on the seventh floor of BCT II from the Department of the Navy with the understanding that the Respondent would relinquish the space on short notice when it was again required by the Navy. The Navy requested the space back around the middle of October 1975. In order to find adequate room for personnel, Respondent then made arrangements with the Department of Interior on short notice for some space in BCT III.

In early November 1975 Respondent informed several GS-9 senior correspondence analysts of the availability of space in BCT III and asked for volunteers for assignment to that space. Mr. Steven M. Despot, a member of the Union, who subsequently became a member of the bargaining committee, attended this meeting, and he, along with about two other GS-9 analysts and several GS-5 clerks, agreed to move to the new space. A total of about 30 members of the bargaining unit were moved to the new space in early November 1975. These employees remained in BCT III until approximately June 1976.

There was never an attempt to discuss the move with the Union nor to inform the Union of the move prior to its implementation in early November 1975.

1/ Balston is spelled erroneously throughout the transcript as "Boston."

Evelyn D. Bethel, president of the Complainant, and Albert Carrozza, chief steward, became aware of the move after it had taken place in November 1975 when they received such information from members of the bargaining unit. Some members of the bargaining unit were concerned about such matters as how employees were selected for the move, the length of time they would be assigned to BCT III, and the work flow from the master work station in BCT II to BCT III. Mr. Steven Despot testified that the move improved his own working conditions, as far as space in which to work was concerned, but it required analysts to assume new duties of pushing carts containing the workload back and forth between the buildings. Most of this work was performed voluntarily by the male employees as the female employees had been instructed to avoid entering the lower garage levels by themselves in order to protect their personal security.

II. Alleged Change of Procedure for Issuing Visitor Parking Passes to Employees

Automobile parking at the Balston Center complex is handled by a private firm, the Sarbov Corporation. The General Services Administration, which obtains parking permits for official government use, secured and issued five permits to the Respondent for the parking of government-owned vehicles in BCT II. These permits have been consistently used by the Respondent for visitor parking, since the Sarbov Corporation has not enforced the requirement that government vehicles display the permits.

Prior to December 31, 1975, an employee of the Respondent, located in another building, who had official business at BCT II, could call the Facilities Branch Office of the Respondent and request the use of one of the five passes. In actual practice, however, employees on official business were instructed to, and did, merely drive over to BCT II, ask the parking attendant for the pass, and the pass would be issued to them.

On December 31, 1975 the Assistant Bureau Director, Management and Administration, for the Respondent issued the following memorandum under the subject, "Visitor Parking Passes for Balston Tower II":

Effective immediately visitor parking passes will only be issued to visitors of BCT-II with the prior approval of one of the following:

	Phone
Bureau Director's Office	58333
Assistant Bureau Director Management and Administration	51208
Chief, Facilities Branch	51111

To have a pass issued the requestor must furnish name, make of auto, auto license and reason for the visit.

Please provide this information to all members of your staff.

The Union was not notified in advance of the issuance of the memorandum and had no information concerning a change in parking procedures until after issuance of the memorandum.

Mr. William H. Pack, Jr., Chief, Facilities Branch, testified that the memorandum did not change policy whatsoever with respect to obtaining parking passes; that the memorandum was issued merely to give two other locations to call, in addition to the Facilities Branch, from which parking passes could be obtained.

Evelyn D. Bethel and Huston Worthey testified, in effect, that since the memorandum was issued, there has been strict compliance with its provisions. Parking passes must be cleared through the section chief or branch chief. Ms. Bethel is required to furnish information as to the time of her appointment in BCT II, the person to be contacted, and the topic of conversation to be discussed.

I find that the memorandum did change existing policy. Based upon the testimony of Evelyn D. Bethel and Huston Worthey, I find that the Respondent was lax in enforcing its previous parking policy, if, indeed, a similar one existed. A reasonable reading of the December 31, 1975 memorandum shows that it was intended to result in strict enforcement of the procedures set forth in the memorandum. The testimony of Evelyn D. Bethel and Huston Worthy demonstrates that it had this result. This strict enforcement of parking procedures represented a significant shift from past practices.

Discussion, Conclusions, and Recommendations

Section 11(a) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, imposes upon any Agency the obligation to meet at reasonable times and confer in good faith with respect to personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions of unit employees. It is expressly provided in Section 11(b) of the Order that the obligation to meet and confer does not include matters in regard to the mission of an agency; its organization; the number of employees, and the numbers, types and grades of positions or employees assigned to a unit work project, or tour of duty; the technology of performing its work or its internal security practices. This does not preclude the parties from negotiating agreements providing appropriate arrangements for employees adversely affected by the impact of realignment of work forces or technological change. Further, management is accorded the right under Section 12(b)(1)(4)(5) and (6) of the Order to direct employees of the Agency; maintain the efficiency of the Government operations entrusted to them; to determine the methods, means and personnel to which such operations are to be conducted; and, to take whatever actions may be necessary to carry out the mission of the agency in situations of emergency.

The use of visitor parking passes by employees and the related procedures whereby employees may secure such passes are matters "affecting working conditions" of unit employees within the meaning of Section 11(a) of the Order. Cf. U.S. Army Electronics Command, Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, A/SLMR No. 653; General Services Administration, Region 3, Public Buildings Service, Central Support Field Office, A/SLMR No. 583. The evidence establishes that the Respondent did not previously notify the Complainant of the matters contained in the December 31, 1975 memorandum despite the fact that the policy contained therein represented a significant shift from past practices. In my view, such conduct by the Respondent was in derogation of its bargaining obligation under the Order. Cf. New Mexico Air National Guard, Sante Fe, New Mexico, A/SLMR No. 362. Under these circumstances, I find that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(6) of the Order. I further find that such action tends to interfere with, restrain or coerce employees in the exercise of their rights assured by the Order, in violation of Section 19(a)(1).

The evidence also establishes that although Respondent became aware of the necessity to make a building move in the middle of October 1975 and subsequently moved personnel to new space in BCT III in early November 1975, the Respondent did not notify the Union qua Union of its intention to move personnel, and the Union did not have actual knowledge of the move until after it had been implemented. I find no merit to Respondent's argument that because Mr. Steven Despot, a union member who subsequently became a member of the bargaining committee, knew of the move, that this was sufficient notice to the Union. Cf. U.S. Army Electronics Command, Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, supra; General Services Administration, Region 3, Public Building Service, Central Support Office, supra.

Accordingly, although Respondent was not obligated to meet and confer with the Complainant concerning its decision to effectuate the move to BCT III, in my view, it was obligated under the Order to afford the Complainant timely notice of its decision and, upon request, meet and confer on the procedures management intended to use in implementing the move, and on the impact of the move on adversely affected employees.

While there is evidence that the decision concerning what to do about finding new space for personnel and the decision to relocate to BCT III was of an emergency nature, and had to be made on short notice, there is no evidence that there was any overriding exigency which precluded Respondent from providing Complainant with notice of its decision at least as of the same time that it notified employees of the change and sought volunteers to relocate to BCT III.

In my view, Respondent violated Section 19(a)(6) of the Order by failing to inform the Complainant of the move to BCT III prior to its effectuation and, thereby, failed to afford the Complainant a reasonable opportunity to meet and confer, to the extent consonant with law and regulations, on the procedures to be utilized in effectuating the decision and on the impact of this decision on adversely affected employees. Further, such refusal to meet and confer with the bargaining representative necessarily tends to interfere with, restrain, or coerce employees in the exercise of their rights assured by the Order and, therefore, also is violative of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

Recommendations

Upon the basis of the aforementioned findings, conclusions, and the entire record, I recommend that the Assistant Secretary deny Respondent's motions to dismiss and adopt the following Order designed to effectuate the purposes of Executive Order 11491, as amended.

RECOMMENDED ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of the Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the Social Security Administration, Bureau of Hearings and Appeals, shall:

a decision to move personnel to another building prior to its effectuation, and, upon request, afford such representative the opportunity to meet and confer in good faith, to the extent consonant with law and regulations, on the procedures to be utilized in effectuating the decision and on the impact such decision will have on the employees adversely affected by such action.

(c) Post at the facilities of the Social Security Administration, Bureau of Hearings and Appeals, Arlington, Virginia, copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations. PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

PUGET SOUND NAVAL SHIPYARD,
U.S. DEPARTMENT OF THE NAVY
A/SLMR No. 829

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the Bremerton Metal Trades Council (Complainant) alleging essentially that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by unilaterally initiating a new leave restriction policy contrary to the terms of the parties' negotiated agreement.

The Administrative Law Judge found that the issue in the instant proceeding involved essentially a differing interpretation of the parties' negotiated agreement and noted that alleged violations of a negotiated agreement which concern differing and arguable interpretations of such agreement, as distinguished from alleged actions which would constitute clear, unilateral breaches of the agreement, are not deemed to be violative of the Order. The Administrative Law Judge further noted that there was insufficient evidence to support the Complainant's other contention that the Respondent had departed from its pre-existing policy in regard to leave restrictions. Accordingly, he recommended that the complaint be dismissed.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions, and recommendation and ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

On February 3, 1977, Administrative Law Judge Milton Kramer issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had not engaged in the unfair labor practices alleged in the complaint and recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. No exceptions were filed to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order, the entire record in the subject case, 1/ and noting particularly that no exceptions were filed, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions, and recommendation.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Preliminary Statement

This case arises under Executive Order 11491 as amended. It was initiated by a complaint filed March 1, 1976 and amended July 7 and July 12, 1976. As amended, the complaint alleged that the Respondent had taken "numerous actions" on August 18, 1975 and December 4, 1975 concerning leave policies in violation of Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Executive Order.

On July 19, 1976 the Regional Administrator issued a Notice of Hearing to be held September 13, 1976 in Bremerton, Washington. Hearings were held on that day in that City. The Complainant was represented by its President and the Respondent by a Labor Relations Advisor of the Navy Department. Both parties examined and cross-examined witnesses and introduced exhibits; both parties waived closing arguments and filed briefs.

Facts and Discussion

The Complainant has been the exclusive representative of a defined unit of Respondent's employees (including the employees involved in this case) since 1962. The parties entered into their first collective bargaining agreement in 1963. The current agreement, executed June 5, 1975, is their sixth comprehensive agreement. It contains provisions concerning the administration of sick leave, annual leave, and leaves of absence in general. 1/

On February 1, 1974 John W. Evans, an employee in the unit, was given a memorandum entitled "Restrictions on Leave". It recited that because of his past pattern of sick leave and call-ins for emergency annual leave, any future sick leave would require a doctor's certificate, and his call-in privileges for annual leave were cancelled. It stated also that unless annual leave was approved in advance, absence by Evans would result in his being marked absent without leave and appropriate disciplinary action taken. The final paragraph stated that the restrictions would remain in effect until Evans' improvement in leave usage warranted their removal. Prior to the issuance of that memorandum he had been counselled many times concerning his use of sick leave. Thereafter, Evans on several occasions called in for emergency annaul leave and on some occasions was marked AWOL.

On June 4, 1975 Evans was issued a memorandum confirming a discussion with him on June 3 concerning his violation of the restriction on his sick leave, advising him that disciplinary action would be proposed, and warning him that a future violation could result in a more severe penalty possibly including a recommendation for his removal.

1/ Exhibit J-1, Articles Twelve, Thirteen, and Fourteen.

On August 28, 1975 Evans received two memoranda. One reimposed the restrictions on his annual leave for a maximum period of one year at which time another review of his record would be made to determine whether there was sufficient improvement to warrant removal of the restrictions. The other memorandum took the same action with respect to his sick leave.

Similar actions were taken with respect to a number of other employees. In some cases some of such actions were rescinded for procedural defects. In others there is a conflict in the evidence on whether the counselling called for in the agreement was given. It is unnecessary to resolve such conflict. 2/ There is no evidence or even a suggestion that anti-union animus was a motivating factor or present. The parties disagree on when counselling is required and on what constitutes "counselling".

There is no contention that the Respondent's position was not sincere. The Complainant contends only that it was wrong.

We need not decide whether it was wrong. Even assuming it was wrong, not every breach of contract is an unfair labor practice. 3/ Under certain circumstances it can be an unfair labor practice. For example, if sufficiently flagrant so that it appears so unreasonable as to cast doubt on the sincerity of the respondent's position, it may rise to the seriousness of a unilateral change in the contract and hence a violation of Section 19(a)(6) of the Executive Order. 4/ But as the Assistant Secretary said in Aerospace Guidance and Metrology Center, Newark Air Force Station, A/SLMR No. 677:

> "... alleged violations of a negotiated agreement which concern differing and arguable interpretations of such agreement, as distinguished from alleged actions which constitute clear, unilateral breaches of the agreement, are not deemed to be violative of the Order."

4/ Other examples would be a breach of contract prompted by anti-union motivation to discourage union membership, of which there is no indication here, which would violate Section 19(a)(2); or a breach of contract motivated by considerations in violation of Section 19(a)(4), of which there is also no intimation in this record.

This case presents just such a disagreement, and hence the disputed conduct described above, even if in violation of the agreement, does not constitute a violation of Section 19 (a) of the Agreement.

The Complainant argues also that the procedure followed in the cases here involved constituted the initiation of a new policy and a departure from pre-existing policy in dealing with the imposition of restrictions on the use of leave. But such argument is only an assertion not supported by any evidence. The only witnesses who testified on past policy were Respondent witnesses who uniformly testified that the policy and practice prior to the incidents here involved were the same as the policy and practice covering the incidents here involved. In the absence of any contrary evidence, I so find. A mere assertion by counsel in pleadings or agrument is not evidence, and fails to support Complainant's burden of proof. 5/

Since the Complainant failed to prove a violation of Section 19(a) of the Executive Order, the complaint should be dismissed.

RECOMMENDATION

The complaint should be dismissed.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

UNITED STATES AIR FORCE,
McCLELLAN AIR FORCE BASE, CALIFORNIA
A/SLMR No. 830

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 1857, AFL-CIO (AFGE) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) by questioning three bargaining unit employees one hour before they were to appear as witnesses for a grievant in an arbitration hearing, without giving prior notification to the AFGE and according it an opportunity to be present at the interviews. In this regard, the AFGE contended that after a grievance is filed, any meeting or discussion regarding that grievance is a formal discussion and, therefore, management has an obligation to notify the Union and accord it an opportunity to be present at such discussions. On the other hand, the Respondent contended that the subject interviews were not formal discussions since the investigation did not concern the grievant; the grievant was not present at the interviews; and the Respondent's counsel, who conducted the interviews, did not have authority to resolve the grievance.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that the questioning of the grievant's witnesses by the Respondent's counsel was not violative of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order because: (1) the discussions did not concern a grievance within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order; (2) personnel policies and practices or other matters affecting working conditions were not discussed; and (3) the discussions were not formal in nature.

Contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, the Assistant Secretary found that, under the particular circumstances of this case, the Respondent had violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to afford the AFGE the opportunity to be represented at the interviews conducted herein. Citing earlier decisions, he found that the interviews were formal discussions concerning a pending grievance within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order. In the instant case, he found that the Complainant, as the exclusive representative of the employees in the unit, had a legitimate interest in being represented at the interviews of the unit employees involved which were conducted in connection with the processing of the pending grievance. In this regard, the Assistant Secretary noted that, clearly, the information discussed could potentially have affected the disposition of the pending grievance. Moreover, in his view, under the circumstances herein, including the fact that the witnesses interviewed were those of the grievant, the Complainant's representational responsibility, which under Section 10(e) of the Order extends to all employees in the bargaining unit, outweighed any impact its presence during the interviews might have on the Respondent's preparation of its case for arbitration. Consequently, the Assistant Secretary found that by failing to afford Complainant an opportunity to be represented at the interviews of the unit employees, the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(6) of the Order. Further, as such failure had the concomitant effect of indicating to unit employees that the Respondent could bypass their exclusive representative, it thereby interfered with, restrained, or coerced unit employees in the exercise of their rights assured under the Order in violation of Section 19(a)(1).

DECISION AND ORDER

On August 27, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Milton Kramer issued his Report and Recommendation in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had not engaged in violative conduct as alleged in the complaint and recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. No exceptions were filed to the Administrative Law Judge's Report and Recommendation.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Report and Recommendation and the entire record in the subject case, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendation, only to the extent consistent herewith.

The amended complaint herein alleged, in substance, that on October 21, 1975, the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, when it questioned three bargaining unit employees just prior to their scheduled appearance as witnesses for a grievant in an arbitration hearing, without giving prior notification to the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 1857, AFL-CIO (Complainant), the exclusive bargaining representative of certain employees of the Respondent, and according it an opportunity to be present at the interviews.

The essential facts of the case, which are not in dispute, are set forth in the Administrative Law Judge's Report and Recommendation, and I shall repeat them only to the extent deemed necessary.

The record reveals that on October 21, 1975, a grievance filed by an employee of Respondent was scheduled to be heard by an arbitrator. Captain James B. Dumerer, Assistant Staff Judge Advocate of the Respondent, was designated as the Respondent's counsel for the arbitration hearing. On the afternoon of October 20, 1975, the grievant's representative gave the Respondent's Personnel Office a list of witnesses to be called on the grievant's behalf at the arbitration hearing. Later that same day, the Personnel Office gave Captain Dumerer this information. Captain Dumerer noted that among the grievant's list of prospective witnesses were three of the Respondent's employees, B. Dennis, C. Widman and H. Butterfield, about whom he had no knowledge. Accordingly, Captain Dumerer requested the Personnel Office to have the three employees report to his office the following morning, just prior to the scheduled arbitration hearing.

The next day, at approximately 8:00 A.M., the employees reported to the office of Captain Dumerer. Dennis and Widman arrived first, and Butterfield, who is also a steward for the Complainant, arrived later. The record discloses that, essentially, Dumerer and the employees exchanged information relative to the grievance which was the subject of the scheduled arbitration hearing, such as what matters the three employees would testify to, and what was expected of the employees as to their role in the hearing.

In his Report and Recommendation, the Administrative Law Judge concluded that the questioning of the grievant's witnesses by the Respondent's counsel was not violative of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order because: (1) the discussion did not concern a grievance within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order; (2) personnel policies and practices or other matters affecting working conditions were not mentioned; and (3) the discussion was not formal in nature. In the Administrative Law Judge's view, the essence of the discussion was simply an exchange of information and such a conversation is not the type of discussion envisioned by Section 10(e) of the Order.

Contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, I find that the interviews conducted by Respondent's counsel, as set forth above, constituted a formal discussion concerning a grievance within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order, 1/ to which the Complainant was entitled to be afforded the opportunity to be represented. Thus, it has been held previously that discussions between employees and management with respect to pending grievances are formal discussions within the meaning of Section 10(e), whether or not such discussions are at the informal or formal stage of the grievance procedure, 2/ and irrespective of the general

1/ Section 10(e) states, in pertinent part: "When a labor organization has been accorded exclusive recognition, it is the exclusive representative of employees in the unit and is entitled to act for and to negotiate agreements covering all employees in the unit. . . . The labor organization shall be given the opportunity to be represented at formal discussions between management and employees or employee representatives concerning grievances, . . ."

impact on unit employees of the grievance involved. 3/ In the instant case, I find that the Complainant, as the exclusive representative of the employees in the unit, had a legitimate interest in being represented at the interviews of the unit employees involved which were conducted in connection with the processing of a pending grievance. Thus, clearly, the information discussed could potentially have affected the disposition of the pending grievance. Moreover, in my view, under the circumstances herein, including the fact that the witnesses interviewed were those of the grievant, the Complainant's representational responsibility, which under Section 10(e) of the Order extends to all employees in the bargaining unit, outweighed any impact its presence during the interviews might have had on the Respondent's preparation of its case for arbitration. Consequently, I find that by failing to afford the Complainant an opportunity to be represented at the interviews of unit employees Dennis, Widman and Butterfield, 4/ the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(6) of the Order. 5/ Further, I find that such failure had the concomitant effect of indicating to the unit employees that the Respondent could bypass their exclusive representative, thereby interfering with, restraining, or coercing unit employees in the exercise of their rights assured under the Order in violation of Section 19(a)(1).

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the United States Air Force, McClellan Air Force Base, California, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

a. Conducting formal discussions between management and employees or employee representatives concerning grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions of employees in the unit without affording the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 1857, AFL-CIO, the employees' exclusive representative, the opportunity to be represented at such discussions.

3/ See U.S. Department of the Treasury, Internal Revenue Service, Pittsburgh District, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, A/SLMR No. 498.

4/ It is clear from the record that Butterfield attended the interviews as a potential witness at the arbitration hearing and not in his capacity as a representative of the Complainant. Therefore, he was not fulfilling the role of the chosen representative of the exclusively recognized labor organization as contemplated by Section 10(e) of the Order. 5/ Cf. U.S. Army Civilian Appellate Review Agency, Department of the Army, Sacramento, California, A/SLMR No. 488.

b. Interfering with, restraining, or coercing its employees in the exercise of their rights assured by the Order by failing to afford the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 1857, AFL-CIO, the opportunity to be represented at formal discussions between management and employees or employee representatives concerning grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions of employees in the unit.

c. In any like or related manner interfering with, restraining, or coercing its employees in the exercise of rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purposes and policies of the Order:

a. Notify the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 1857, AFL-CIO, of, and afford it the opportunity to be represented at, formal discussions between management and employees or employee representatives concerning grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions of employees in the unit.

b. Post at its facility at McClellan Air Force Base, McClellan Air Force Base, California, copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms, they shall be signed by the Commanding Officer, McClellan Air Force Base, California, and shall be posted and maintained by him for 60 consecutive days thereafter, in conspicuous places, including all places where notices to employees are customarily posted. The Commanding Officer shall take reasonable steps to insure that such notices are not altered, defaced, or covered by any other material.

c. Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations, notify the Assistant Secretary, in writing, within 30 days from the date of this order as to what steps have been take to comply herewith.

REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

Statement of the Case

This case arises under Executive Order 11491, as amended. It was initiated by a complaint dated December 19, 1975 and filed December 24, 1975 alleging violations of Section 19(a)(1) and (4) of the Executive Order. Under date of January 5, 1976 the Respondent filed a response to the complaint and a motion to dismiss. On April 5, 1976 the Complainant filed an amended complaint dated April 13, 1976 alleging substantially the same facts as the original complaint and asserting that they constituted violations of Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Executive Order. Over date of April 28, 1976 the Respondent filed an Amended Motion to Dismiss and Response and a Memorandum in Support of Motion to Dismiss. The record does not show that the Area Director or Regional Administrator took any action on either Motion to Dismiss.

The amended complaint alleged that about an hour before an arbitration hearing on a grievance, the witnesses who were listed to testify on behalf of the grievant were ordered to report to the offices of the Staff Judge Advocate where they were questioned on the testimony there were going to give, that the office of the Staff Judge Advocate had the Civilian Personnel Office call the supervisors of the witnesses to tell them to have the witnesses in the office of the Staff Judge Advocate, and that the witnesses were there questioned without advising the union and giving it an opportunity to be present.

On June 10, 1976 the Regional Administrator issued a Notice of Hearing to be held on July 15, 1976 in Sacramento, California. The hearing was held that day. The Complainant was represented by the President of the Complainant. The parties entered into a number of stipulations. The Respondent called one witness who was examined and cross-examined, and a Joint Exhibit was introduced. The Complainant made a closing argument and the Respondent adopted his opening statement as his closing argument. At the close of the hearing the time for filing briefs was extended to August 12, 1976. Both parties filed briefs.

FACTS

Local 1857 of the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO is the exclusive representative for three units of civilian employees of the Sacramento Air Logistics Center of the Respondent. The parties have a collective agreement which includes a negotiated grievance procedure. Step 4 of the negotiated grievance procedure is binding arbitration which may be invoked either by "the Employer or by the Union."

An employee in one of the units represented by the Complainant, John Corrie, presented a grievance. It was processed to Step 4 and an Arbitrator was appointed. The nature of the grievance is undisclosed in this record.

A hearing was held before the Arbitrator on October 21, 1975. Captain James E. Dumerer, Assistant Staff Judge Advocate of the Respondent, was appointed to represent the Respondent in the hearing before the Arbitrator.

The negotiated grievance procedure provides that grievances will be processed during regular working hours. It provides also that employees who are made available as witnesses at any step in the procedure would be in a duty status while so serving if they otherwise would have been in a duty status.

The day before the arbitration hearing the grievant's representative, G. Granados, gave Mrs. Fries, an Employment Relations Assistant in Respondent's Personnel Office, a list of the witnesses for the grievant, having discussed it with her several days earlier. Mrs. Fries informed Captain Dumerer of the names on the list late in the afternoon of October 20, the day before the hearing. Captain Dumerer had been studying the file in the grievance and the names of three employees on the list had nowhere appeared in the file or been mentioned before in his preparation for the hearing. Captain Dumerer asked Mrs. Fries and another employee in the Personnel Office the purpose of the testimony of those three employees, and neither could tell him. Captain Dumerer then asked Mrs. Fries to request the three employees to come to his office at 8:00 A.M. the next morning. The arbitration hearing was to be held later in the morning.

The next morning Mrs. Fries notified the three employees that Captain Dumerer wanted them to come to his offices at 8:00 A.M. The three employees were Mr. B. Dennis, Mr. C. Widman, and Mr. H. Butterfield. Each of them was an Item Management Specialist and Butterfield was also a union steward to whom the other two would normally go with their problems. The record does not establish whether Mrs. Fries notified them of Captain Dumerer's request directly or through their supervisor or supervisors. 1/

1/ There was no direct testimony on this point. Neither Mrs. Fries nor any of the three individuals testified. The facts found in this paragraph and the preceding paragraph are taken from Exh. AS-8, the report of a joint fact-finding committee established to ascertain the facts with respect to the unfair-labor-practice charge. The parties stipulated that the statements contained in that report are true. Tr. 7-8.

Widman and Dennis arrived at Dumerer's office at 8:00 A.M. and Butterfield shortly thereafter. Their conversation with Dumerer was brief. Dumerer asked them what evidence they could give relevant to the Corrie grievance. Widman and Dennis said they did not know. Butterfield, the union steward, said he knew he was to be a witness and also was to act as a technical advisor to Granados, the grievant's representative. The three employees then asked Captain Dumerer what would be expected of them and he replied that if they were asked to testify it would be their duty to do so. Essentially, Dumerer and the three employees exchanged information, scanty as it may have been.

The record does not show whether the three individuals in fact testified at the arbitration hearing.

Captain Dumerer did not have authority to settle the Corrie grievance nor to require the three employees to answer his questions nor did he purport to have such authority.

DISCUSSION AND CONCLUSIONS

The only contention of illegality asserted in the complaint is that the questioning of the three employees without advising the union and giving it the opportunity to be present violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Executive Order. That in turn turns on whether the discussions fall within the last sentence of Section 10(e) of the Executive Order, i.e., whether they were > "formal discussions between management and employees or employee representatives concerning grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions of employees in the unit."

If they were such discussions, the Complainant was entitled to be represented. I conclude that they were not discussions within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Executive Order both because they were not about the subject matter described in the last sentence of Section 10(e) nor were they formal in nature.

There was only one discussion, with Captain Dumerer talking with the three employees at the same time. Although it concerned a grievance, I do not believe it was a discussion "concerning grievances" as that term is used in Section 10(e). None of the employees was the grievant. The merits of the grievance were not discussed; the record does not even disclose what the grievance was. Captain Dumerer, the only representative of management who was present, did not have authority to settle or dispose of the grievance. He simply asked the three employees what evidence they could give at the arbitration hearing about the grievance that was relevant. Two of them said they did not know, and the record does not show that the third answered that question at all. Nor does the record show that "personnel policies" or personnel "practices" or "other matters affecting general working conditions" was so much as mentioned. Cf. United States Air Force, Lackland Air Force Base, Headquarters Military Training Center, A/SLMR No. 652.

Nor was the discussion formal in nature. It does not appear that any notes were taken or transcript prepared. Captain Dumerer did not have authority to do anything to or about the three employees. He was simply trying to obtain some information better to prepare himself for the arbitration hearing on a grievance of a fourth employee to be held later that morning. He was a lawyer preparing himself for a hearing and seeking information to be better prepared. He spoke to all three employees in a simple brief meeting. Cf. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Social Security Administration Great Lakes Program Center, A/SLMR No. 419. He had no relevant authority other than to represent the Respondent at the arbitration later that morning. It was stipulated, and I have found, that the essence of the conversation was simply an exchange of information. Such a conversation is not the kind of discussion envisioned by Section 10(e) of Executive Order 11491.

RECOMMENDATION

The complaint should be dismissed.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION
OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C.
A/SLMR No. 831

This case involved a petition for consolidation of units filed by the National Treasury Employees Union (NTEU) on behalf of itself and/or its constituent local chapters seeking to consolidate 13 units for which the NTEU and/or its constituent local chapters are the current exclusive representatives at nine of the ten Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Service Centers, the IRS Data Center and the IRS National Computer Center. Through the subject petition, the NTEU sought to establish a consolidated unit consisting of all the professional and nonprofessional employees of the IRS Service Centers, the IRS Data Center, Detroit, Michigan, and the IRS National Computer Center, Martinsburg, West Virginia, who are currently represented exclusively by the NTEU and/or its constituent local chapters. The IRS contended, essentially, that the NTEU was without standing to file the instant petition on behalf of its exclusively recognized local chapters as, among other things, the Executive Order requires that consolidation may be sought only by exclusive representatives and the NTEU has not, as a minimum, sought authorization from its exclusively recognized local chapters to file the present petition. Furthermore, the IRS asserted that the proposed consolidated unit was not appropriate because it did not meet the criteria established by Section 10(b) of the Order and that the consolidation of existing bargaining units herein will not promote the goal of fostering more comprehensive collective bargaining as the parties already have a successful history of multi-unit bargaining.

With respect to the IRS' threshold contention that the NTEU was without standing to file the instant petition, the record showed that the vast majority of the exclusive recognitions for the units sought to be consolidated herein are held by the individual chapters of the NTEU. The Assistant Secretary found that, while, as the IRS indicates, Section 10(a) of the Order speaks of "the consolidation of existing exclusively recognized units represented by that [labor] organization," in his view, there is nothing in the Order, the Report and Recommendations of the Council, or the Assistant Secretary's Regulations, which requires the Assistant Secretary to challenge the constitutional authority of a national labor organization, such as the NTEU, to file a unit consolidation petition on behalf of its exclusively recognized local chapters. While, under certain circumstances, it may be necessary to review the constitutional authority of a national labor organization to take such an action where the constitution of the labor organization involved is unclear in this regard or appears to delimit such authority, the Assistant Secretary noted that there was no contention herein, nor did it appear, that the Constitution and Bylaws of the NTEU precluded the NTEU from filing a consolidation petition on behalf of its constituent local chapters. He noted additionally that the affected employees would be protected from arbitrary action by a national labor organization in seeking to consolidate the exclusively recognized units of its constituent locals by the provisions of the Executive Order and the Assistant Secretary's Regulations which provide for an election on the question of any proposed consolidation at the request of either party or 30 percent or more of the affected employees. Under all of these circumstances, the Assistant Secretary found that the NTEU had standing to file the instant petition on behalf of its exclusively recognized local chapters.

The Assistant Secretary noted a recent decision in which he had found that in view of the clear policy guidelines in the consolidation of units area formulated by the Federal Labor Relations Council, there has been established, in effect, a presumption favoring the appropriateness of proposed consolidated units. He further found therein that this presumption may be rebutted only where it is found that the proposed consolidated unit is so inconsistent with the criteria contained in Section 10(b) of the Order that the overriding objective, established by the Council, of creating a more comprehensive bargaining unit structure in the Federal sector would be undermined by such a finding. Given these policy considerations, he found that the consolidated unit petitioned for by the NTEU was appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. Thus, he found that the employees in the unit sought constitute all of the eligible employees in the IRS's computer oriented Center-type operations. As such, they share a common mission and common supervision on a nationwide level, common job classifications, common types of working conditions, and similar personnel and labor relations practices pursuant to the multi-Center negotiated agreement between the parties. Under these circumstances, he concluded that the employees in the petitioned for consolidated unit shared a clear and identifiable community of interest. Furthermore, as the evidence established that the parties had successfully negotiated at the national level two successive multi-unit agreements covering all the employees sought herein by the NTEU, he found that the proposed consolidated unit would promote effective dealings. Moreover, noting the scope and history of the parties' current collective bargaining relationship, he found that the proposed consolidated unit has already demonstrated the benefits to be derived from a unit structure related to a combination of employees of the IRS's Service Centers, Data Center and National Computer Center. Consequently, he concluded that the proposed consolidated unit will continue to promote the efficiency of the agency's operations. Finally, although the parties have been voluntarily bargaining on a multi-unit basis, the Assistant Secretary determined that the petitioned for consolidated unit, which will provide bargaining for employees on a nationwide basis under a single unit structure, will reduce fragmentation, promote a more comprehensive bargaining unit structure, and is consistent with the policy of the Order set forth by the Council.

DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer Eugene M. Levine. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

The Petitioner, National Treasury Employees Union, herein called NTEU, which filed the instant petition on behalf of itself and/or its constituent local chapters, seeks to consolidate 13 units for which the NTEU and/or its constituent local chapters are the current exclusive representatives at nine of the ten Internal Revenue Service (IRS) Service Centers, the IRS Data Center and the IRS National Computer Center. Through the subject petition, the NTEU seeks to establish a consolidated unit consisting of all the professional and nonprofessional employees of the IRS Service Centers, the IRS Data Center, Detroit, Michigan, and the IRS National Computer Center, Martinsburg, West Virginia, excluding all employees of the Andover, Massachusetts, IRS Service Center, management officials, guards, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

The IRS contends that the NTEU is without standing to file the instant petition on behalf of its exclusively recognized local chapters as, among other things, the Executive Order requires that consolidation may be sought only by exclusive representatives and the NTEU has not, as a minimum, sought authorization from its exclusively recognized chapters to file the instant petition. The IRS further asserts that the proposed consolidated unit is not appropriate because it does not meet the criteria established by Section 10(b) of the Order. The IRS argues also that the consolidation of the existing bargaining units herein will not promote the goal of fostering more comprehensive collective bargaining as the parties already have a successful history of multi-unit bargaining. The NTEU, on the other hand, takes the position that its standing to file the subject petition on behalf of its constituent chapters is an internal matter not subject to challenge by either the IRS or the Assistant Secretary, that the Report and Recommendations of the Federal Labor Relations Council (1975), which set forth the consolidation procedures, established a presumption favoring consolidation, and that the IRS has not produced evidence which rebuts this presumption. In this latter regard, it contends that the parties' successful history of multi-unit bargaining at the level of the Commissioner, IRS, is the best evidence that recognition at this level will promote effective dealings and the efficiency of the agency's operations.

The mission of the IRS, which is an organizational component of the Department of the Treasury, is the administration of the tax laws of the United States. The IRS is headed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue who reports to the Secretary of the Treasury. There are three organizational levels within the IRS. The first level, the National Office, located in Washington, D. C., develops nationwide policies and programs for the administration of the Internal Revenue laws and provides overall direction to the field organization. The second level, the Regional Offices, is composed of seven Regional Offices which supervise and evaluate the operations of the District Offices and Service Centers within their geographical purview. The third level, the District Offices and Service Centers, constitute the IRS' field operation. The 58 District Offices implement the programs and policies established by the National Office and the Regional Offices. They have initial taxpayer contacts in the areas of taxpayer assistance, audit of tax returns, collection of delinquent tax returns and/or revenue, and settlement efforts of tax disputes.

The record reveals that the function of the Service Centers is to process tax returns and related documents and maintain accountability records for the taxes collected. Programs include the processing, verification, and accounting control of tax returns, the assessment and refund of taxes, and the preparation of audit selection lists. Each Service Center is headed by a Director who reports to the Regional Commissioner for his region. The Service Centers range in size from approximately 2400 unit employees at Ogden, Utah, to approximately 3300 unit employees at Philadelphia. 1/ Although there are some specific programs assigned to only one Service Center, such as exempt organization returns at Philadelphia, the record shows that all of the Service Centers are engaged in essentially similar operations, are organized along similar lines, and utilize employees in similar job classifications, who are required to have similar training and who share similar working conditions.

1/ The record reveals that all of the Service Centers employ WAE (when actually employed) employees during the peak tax filing season. The WAEs are career employees who agree to work only part of the year subject to recall or hiring based on the exigencies of the tax filing season. The number of WAEs employed at the Service Centers varies from a low of some 1150 to a high of some 2750 during the latest annual period. The average number of days the WAEs were employed during the same period varied from 55 days at one Center to 101 days at another Center.

The National Computer Center (NCC) is the repository for the master tax files for the entire country. The Director, NCC, reports to the Tax Administration Systems Division, Office of the Assistant Commissioner for Accounts, Collections, and Taxpayer Service (ACTS) in the National Office of the IRS. The input of the NCC is based, in large part, on the product produced by the Service Centers. The NCC is a computer operation employing some 330 bargaining unit employees, whose functions, the record reveals, are essentially similar to the employees engaged in computer operations at the Service Centers.

The mission of the Data Center is to handle those automatic data processing responsibilities necessitated by the IRS's operations other than revenue processing or tax administration. The Director of the Data Center reports to the Assistant Commissioner, ACTS. About half of its resources are devoted to handling the centralized IRS payroll capability. Despite differences in computer hardware or the paperwork being processed for computer input between the Data Center and the Service Centers, the record shows that the Data Center's approximately 1300 bargaining unit employees share many essentially similar job functions, training and working conditions with the Service Center employees.

As noted above, the IRS has raised a threshold question in this matter that the NTEU was without standing to file the instant petition. The parties herein stipulated that the NTEU's contention that the instant petition was filed on behalf of its exclusively recognized local chapters was based on the NTEU's interpretation of the authority delegated to the national organization by the NTEU's Constitution and Bylaws, which govern all of the NTEU's local chapters. The stipulation also noted that the NTEU had not requested that its exclusively recognized local chapters signify their agreement or disagreement regarding the filing of the instant petition on their behalf.

The record shows that the vast majority of the exclusive recognitions for the units sought to be consolidated herein are held by the individual chapters of the NTEU. While, as the IRS indicates, Section 10(a) of the Order speaks of "the consolidation of existing exclusively recognized units represented by that [labor] organization," in my view, there is nothing in the Order, the Report and Recommendations of the Council, or the Assistant Secretary's Regulations, which requires the Assistant Secretary to challenge the constitutional authority of a national labor organization, such as the NTEU, to file a unit consolidation petition on behalf of its exclusively recognized local chapters. While, under certain circumstances, it may be necessary to review the constitutional authority of a national labor organization to take such an action where the constitution of the labor organization involved is unclear in this regard or appears to delimit such authority, there is no contention herein, nor does it appear, that the Constitution and Bylaws of the NTEU precludes the NTEU from filing a consolidation petition on behalf of its constituent local chapters. Moreover, it should be noted that the affected employees would be protected from arbitrary action by a national labor organization in seeking to consolidate the exclusively recognized units of its constituent locals by the provisions of the Executive Order and the Assistant Secretary's Regulations which provide for an election on the question of any proposed consolidation at the request of either party or 30 percent or more of the affected employees.2/ Under all of these circumstances, I find that the NTEU had standing to file the instant petition on behalf of its exclusively recognized local chapters.

With respect to the appropriateness of the proposed consolidated unit, the IRS contends that it is an essentially decentralized organization which has delegated primary authority for those decisions concerning the terms and conditions of employment for its employees to its field level management. In this regard, the record shows that all the Center Directors have been delegated and effectively exercise day-to-day authority with respect to such matters as hiring, firing, transfer, reassignment, promotion, reduction-in-force, furloughing and recall of WAE employees, resolution of grievances and unfair labor practice complaints, and other matters affecting employee interests. Furthermore, the record shows that only a small number of employees receive either temporary details or permanent reassignments/promotions between any of the Centers herein and that the effective areas of consideration for both reduction-in-force procedures and promotions are Center-wide. Based on these considerations, the IRS argues that consolidation will require the centralization of its decision-making authority with respect to all matters affecting employee terms and conditions of employment.

The IRS' contention that consolidation will necessarily result in centralization of decision-making authority must be viewed, however, in the context of the recent bargaining history between the IRS and the NTEU. In 1973, and again in 1975, the IRS and the NTEU negotiated multi-Center collective bargaining agreements encompassing all of the employees sought to be incorporated in the proposed consolidated unit. Some of the subjects covered by the agreements, as shown by the record evidence, indicates the extent to which the parties herein have dealt at a national level with problems concerning the terms and conditions of employment of the employees sought to be consolidated herein. Thus, among the subjects covered by the most recent agreement are promotions, details, evaluations of performance, annual ratings, training, position classification, equal employment opportunity, leave, health and safety, hours of work, etc. The IRS contends that multi-Center agreements are based on the active input of the Center Directors and were negotiated and signed on their behalf, with the central Union Relations Branch staff merely acting as the agents for the Center Directors. The IRS contends, further, that it will be unable to continue to do this should the proposed consolidation be approved. However, no evidence was presented to show that the IRS could no longer continue, as before, to utilize its field personnel and use their input as the basis for negotiations with the NTEU at the national level, or that any agreement negotiated at the national level could not continue to delegate to field level managers certain authority, such as the resolution of grievances and the scheduling of meetings with local union representatives to deal with local problems, which currently are incorporated into the present agreement.

In a recent decision, I found that in view of the clear policy guidelines in the consolidation of units area formulated by the Federal Labor Relations Council, there has been established, in effect, a presumption favoring the appropriateness of proposed consolidated units. 3/ I further found that this presumption may be rebutted only where it is found that the proposed consolidated unit is so inconsistent with the criteria contained in section 10(b) of the Order that the overriding objective, established by the Council, of creating a more comprehensive bargaining unit structure in the Federal sector would be undermined by such a finding. Given these policy considerations, I find that the petitioned for consolidated unit is appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. Thus, as indicated above, the employees in the unit sought constitute all of the eligible employees in the IRS's computer oriented Center-type operations. As such, they share a common mission and common supervision on a nationwide level, common job classifications, common types of working conditions, and similar personnel and labor relations practices pursuant to the multi-Center negotiated agreement between the parties. Under these circumstances, I find that the employees in the petitioned for consolidated unit share a clear and identifiable community of interest. Furthermore, as the evidence establishes that the parties have successfully negotiated at the national level two successive multi-unit agreements covering all of the employees sought herein by the NTEU, I find that the proposed consolidated unit will promote effective dealings. Moreover, noting the scope and history of the parties' current collective bargaining relationship, I find that the proposed consolidated unit has already demonstrated the benefits to be derived from a unit structure related to a combination of employees of the IRS's Service Centers, Data Center and National Computer Center. Consequently, I find that the proposed consolidated unit will continue to promote the efficiency of the agency's operations. Finally, although the parties have been bargaining voluntarily on a multi-unit basis, I also find that the petitioned for consolidated unit, which will provide bargaining for employees on a nationwide basis under a single unit structure, will reduce fragmentation, promote a more comprehensive bargaining unit structure and is consistent with the policy of the Order set forth above.

3/ Education Division, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington, D. C., A/SLMR No. 822.

Accordingly, I find that the following unit is appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under Executive Order 11491, as amended: 4/

> All professional and nonprofessional employees of the Internal Revenue Service Service Centers, the Data Center, Detroit, Michigan, and the National Computer Center, Martinsburg, West Virginia, excluding employees of the Andover, Massachusetts, Service Center, management officials, guards, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

The IRS requested that, in the event the proposed consolidated unit was found to be appropriate, an election be held to determine whether or not the employees involved desire to be represented in the proposed consolidated unit by the NTEU. As noted above, the unit found appropriate includes professional employees. However, the Assistant Secretary is prohibited by Section 10(b)(4) of the Order from including professional employees in a unit with nonprofessional employees unless a majority of the professional employees votes for inclusion in such a unit. Accordingly, the desires of the professional employees as to inclusion in a unit with nonprofessional employees must be ascertained. I shall, therefore, direct that separate elections be conducted in the following voting groups:

Voting Group (a): All professional employees of the Internal Revenue Service Service Centers, the Data Center, Detroit, Michigan, and the National Computer Center, Martinsburg, West Virginia, excluding all nonprofessional employees, employees of the Andover, Massachusetts, Service Center, management officials, guards, employees engaged in Federal prsonnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

Voting Group (b): All nonprofessional employees of the Internal Revenue Service Service Centers, Data Center, Detroit, Michigan, and the National Computer Center, Martinsburg, West Virginia, excluding all professional employees, employees of the Andover, Massachusetts, Service Center, management officials, guards, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

Employees in the nonprofessional voting group (b) will be polled whether they desire to be represented for the purpose of exclusive recognition in the proposed consolidated unit by the National Treasury Employees Union.

4/ The certifications or grants of exclusive recognition held by the NTEU were not made part of the record herein. As noted in the Education Division decision, cited above, proposed consolidated units are limited to and/or defined by, the parameters of the existing exclusively recognized units at the time of the filing of a consolidation petition. Insofar as the actual state of the exclusively recognized units at the time of the filing of the instant petition may differ, if at all, from the unit found appropriate herein, the unit description should be so modified.

Employees in the professional voting group (a) will be asked two questions on their ballots: (1) whether they desire to be represented for the purpose of exclusive recognition in the proposed consolidated unit by the National Treasury Employees Union, and (2) whether or not they desire to be represented in a separate consolidated professional unit if the proposed consolidated unit is approved by a majority of all the employees voting.

The valid votes cast by all the eligible employees will be tallied to determine if a majority of the valid votes have been cast in favor of the proposed consolidated unit. If a majority of the valid votes have not been cast in favor of the proposed consolidated unit, the employees will be taken to have indicated their desire to continue to be represented in their current units of exclusive recognition. If a majority of the valid votes are cast in favor of the proposed consolidated unit, the ballots of the professional employees in voting group (a) will then be tallied to determine whether they wish to be included in the same consolidated unit with the nonprofessional employees. Unless a majority of the valid votes of voting group (a) are cast for inclusion in the same consolidated unit as the nonprofessional employees, the professional employees will be taken to have indicated their desire to constitute a separate consolidated professional unit, and an appropriate certification will be issued by the Area Administrator.

The unit determination in the subject case is based, in part, then, upon the results of the election among the professional employees. However, I will now make the following findings in regard to the appropriate unit:

1. If a majority of the professional employees does not vote for inclusion in the same unit as the nonprofessional employees, I find the following units appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition within the meaning of Section 10 of the Order:

(a): All professional employees of the Internal Revenue Service Service Centers, the Data Center, Detroit, Michigan, and the National Computer Center, Martinsburg, West Virginia, excluding all nonprofessional employees, employees of the Andover, Massachusetts, Service Center, management officials, guards, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

(b): All nonprofessional employees of the Internal Revenue Service Service Centers, the Data Center, Detroit, Michigan, and the National Computer Center, Martinsburg, West Virginia, excluding all professional employees of the Andover, Massachusetts, Service Center, management officials, guards, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

2. If a majority of the professional employees votes for inclusion in the same consolidated unit as the nonprofessional employees, I find the following unit appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition within the meaning of Section 10 of the Order.

All professional and nonprofessional employees of the Internal Revenue Service Service Centers, the Data Center, Detroit, Michigan, and the National Computer Center, Martinsburg, West Virginia, excluding employees of the Andover, Massachusetts, Service Center, management officials, guards, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

DIRECTION OF ELECTION

An election by secret ballot shall be conducted among the employees in the voting groups described above, as early as possible, but not later than 60 days from the date below. The appropriate Area Administrator shall supervise the election, subject to the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. Eligible to vote are those in the voting groups who were employed during the payroll period immediately preceding the date below, including employees who did not work during that period because they were out ill, or on vacation or on furlough, including those in the military service who appear in person at the polls. Ineligible to vote are employees who have quit or were discharged for cause since the designated payroll period and who have not been rehired or reinstated before the election date. Those eligible shall vote whether or not they desire to be represented for the purpose of exclusive recognition in the proposed consolidated unit by the National Treasury Employees Union.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH, EDUCATION AND WELFARE, SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION, BUREAU OF FIELD OPERATIONS, REGION V-A, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS
A/SLMR No. 832

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 1395 (AFGE) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by refusing to meet and confer with the AFGE for the purpose of developing ground rules for the negotiation of a collective bargaining agreement covering the AFGE's Cook County district office unit, one of the Social Security Administration (SSA) units in Illinois represented exclusively by the AFGE. In this regard, the Respondent contended that it was not obligated to negotiate with the AFGE concerning the Cook County district office unit because of a pending decertification (DR) petition in one of the other SSA units represented exclusively by the AFGE, its Waukegan District unit, and a pending unit consolidation (UC) petition, filed by the AFGE to consolidate the SSA district office units it represented exclusively, which UC petition the Respondent opposed.

In agreement with the Administrative Law Judge, the Assistant Secretary concluded that the Respondent's conduct herein was violative of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. In this regard, he agreed with the Administrative Law Judge's holding that the pendency of a DR petition in the AFGE's Waukegan SSA District unit did not warrant the Respondent's refusal to meet and confer concerning a negotiated agreement covering the SSA Cook County district office unit. Moreover, the Assistant Secretary agreed with the Administrative Law Judge's holding that the Respondent was obligated to honor the AFGE's request to negotiate for an agreement concerning its Cook County district office unit during the pendency of the UC petition filed by the AFGE. In this regard, he noted that Section IV of the Report and Recommendations of the Federal Labor Relations Council (1975), which accompanied the issuance of Executive Order 11838, indicated that a UC petition does not itself raise a question concerning representation and, therefore, does not warrant a refusal to negotiate an agreement for a unit included in the UC petition during the pendency of that type of petition. The Assistant Secretary concluded that it would not effectuate the purposes of the Order to deny an exclusive representative the right to negotiate an agreement in an individual unit during the pendency of a UC petition which includes that unit, absent the raising of a valid question concerning representation in such unit. In this regard, he noted that a contrary finding would not only possibly deprive employees in that unit of new contractual benefits during the pendency period, but, inasmuch as a UC petition does not itself foreclose the filing of a petition raising a question concerning representation, might also deny the incumbent exclusive representative the opportunity of insulating itself against rival claims by negotiating a new agreement.

However, contrary to the holding of the Administrative Law Judge, the Assistant Secretary found that the parties' obligation to negotiate an agreement with respect to an individual unit encompassed by a UC petition ceases upon the issuance of a certification of the consolidated unit. Thus, once a certification on consolidation of units is issued, a new bargaining obligation in a new unit is created between the activity or activities involved and the labor organization or labor organizations representing the consolidated unit, replacing the individual bargaining obligation which the activity or activities involved had previously with respect to each of the pre-consolidation units.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary issued an appropriate remedial order.

Case No. 50-13144(CA)

DECISION AND ORDER

On February 10, 1977, Administrative Law Judge Milton Kramer issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom and take certain affirmative action as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. Thereafter, the Complainant filed exceptions with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. 1/

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, 2/ including the Complainant's exceptions, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations, to the extent consistent herewith.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Respondent had violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by refusing to meet and confer with the Complainant for the purpose of developing ground rules for the negotiation of a collective bargaining agreement covering the Complainant's Cook County district office unit, one of the Social Security Administration (SSA) units in Illinois represented exclusively by the Complainant. In this regard, the Respondent contended that it was not obligated to negotiate with the Complainant concerning the Cook County district office unit because of a pending decertification (DR) petition in one of the other SSA units represented exclusively by the Complainant, its Waukegan District unit, and a pending unit consolidation (UC) petition filed by the Complainant to consolidate the SSA district office units represented exclusively by the Complainant, which UC petition the Respondent opposed. The Administrative Law Judge found that the pending DR petition in the Complainant's Waukegan District unit was irrelevant to the Respondent's obligation to negotiate with the Complainant for an agreement covering the Cook County district office unit, as any agreement so consummated for the latter unit would apply only to that unit, whether or not the Complainant was decertified in the Waukegan unit. 3/ In addition, the Administrative Law Judge held that the pending UC petition was equally irrelevant to the Respondent's obligation to bargain with respect to the Cook County district office unit. In this regard, he noted that a labor organization does not risk its status as the exclusive representative in its existing units when it files a UC petition and that Section 202.2(h)(8) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations provides that, "Upon the issuance of a certification on consolidation of units, the terms and conditions of existing agreements covering those units embodied in the consolidation shall remain in effect, except as mutually agreed by the parties, until a new agreement covering the consolidated unit becomes effective." On this basis, the Administrative

1/ The Respondent filed an untimely request for an extension of time to file exceptions in the instant case, which request was denied. Therefore, its subsequently filed exceptions have not been considered in reaching the disposition herein.

2/ The formal documents and the parties' joint exhibit in the instant case were not formally introduced into the record by the Administrative Law Judge. However, he indicated that such formal documents (Continued)

2/ and joint exhibit, while not formally introduced, would be considered part of the record. In these circumstances, and as the record in the instant case transferred to the Assistant Secretary included the formal documents and the parties' joint exhibit, they are deemed to be properly included in the record within the meaning of Section 203.23(b) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. Cf. Charleston Naval Shipyard, A/SLMR No. 1.

3/ After the filing of the complaint in this case, but before the hearing in this matter, the Complainant was decertified as the representative of the Waukegan District unit in Case No. 50-13058(DR), and its unit consolidation petition in Case No. 50-13073(UC), which is currently pending before the Assistant Secretary, was amended to exclude that unit.

Law Judge concluded that any agreement consummated for the Cook County district office unit would apply only to that unit whether or not a certification on consolidation of units was ultimately issued and, if issued, whether or not such agreement was consummated before or after the issuance of such certification.

I agree with the conclusion of the Administrative Law Judge that the Respondent, by refusing to negotiate ground rules for an agreement covering the Complainant's SSA Cook County district office unit because of the pending DR petition in the Waukegan unit and because of the pending UC petition, violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. Thus, I agree that the pendency of a DR petition in the Complainant's Waukegan SSA District unit did not warrant the Respondent's refusal to meet and confer concerning a negotiated agreement covering the SSA Cook County district office unit. Moreover, I agree with the Administrative Law Judge's holding that the Respondent was obligated to comply with the Complainant's request to negotiate for an agreement covering its Cook County district office unit during the pendency of the UC petition filed by the Complainant. Thus, in my view, and contrary to the position of the Respondent, a UC petition does not raise a question concerning representation in the units for which the consolidation is sought, and thus does not warrant a refusal to negotiate an agreement during the pendency of that type of petition. In this regard, it was noted that Section IV of the Report and Recommendations of the Federal Labor Relations Council, (1975), which accompanied the issuance of Executive Order 11838, states that "[t] he procedure for consolidating a labor organization's existing exclusively recognized units should have application only to situations where there is no question concerning the representation desires of the employees who would be included in a proposed consolidation." Nor does the UC procedure cause an incumbent labor organization to risk its existing certifications or recognitions in the units for which the consolidation is sought as it is clear that the filing of a UC petition does not raise a question concerning representation. Moreover, as noted by the Administrative Law Judge, there is no question as to the applicability of any agreement which might be consummated for the Cook County district office unit during the pendency of the unit consolidation petition. Thus, if the UC petition ultimately is dismissed, any such agreement would continue to apply only to the Cook County district office unit. If, on the other hand, a consolidated unit ultimately should be certified, the terms and conditions of any negotiated agreement consummated for the Cook County district office unit prior to such certification would apply only to the Cook County district office portion of the consolidated unit pursuant to Section 202.2(h)(8) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations, and would remain in effect, except as mutually agreed by the parties, until a new agreement covering the consolidated unit becomes effective. 4/ Under these circumstances, I find that it would not effectuate the purposes of the Order to deny an exclusive representative the right to negotiate an agreement in an individual unit during the pendency of a UC petition which includes that unit, absent the raising of a valid question concerning representation in that unit. 5/ In my view, a contrary result would not only possibly deprive employees in that unit of new contractual benefits during the pendency period, but, inasmuch as a UC petition does not, in of itself, foreclose the filing of a petition raising a question concerning representation, might also deny the incumbent exclusive representative the opportunity of insulating itself against rival claims for that unit, if the proposed consolidation fails, by negotiating a new agreement.

However, contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, I find that the parties' obligation to negotiate an agreement with respect to an individual unit encompassed by a UC petition ceases upon the issuance of a certification for the consolidated unit. Thus, in my view, once a certification on consolidation of units is issued, a new bargaining obligation in a new unit is created between the activity or activities involved and the labor organization or labor organizations representing the consolidated unit, replacing the individual bargaining obligation which the activity or activities involved had previously with respect to each of 4/ It was noted that a negotiated agreement, consummated prior to the certification of a consolidated unit, covering one of the pre-existing units would not constitute a bar to a subsequent election in the consolidated unit regardless of such agreement's duration. In this regard, Section 202.3(g) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations provides, in essence, that the exclusive representative of a newly consolidated unit shall have 12 months after the certification on consolidation of units is issued to consummate a negotiated agreement for the consolidated unit free from rival claim.

5/ If, prior to such negotiations or while such negotiations are in progress, a rival labor organization, a unit employee, or the activity itself files a petition raising a valid question concerning representation, i.e. questioning the majority status of the exclusive representative of the individual unit or the continued appropriateness of the existing individual unit, the obligation of the activity to continue negotiations in the existing unit would cease until resolution of the question concerning representation. See Headquarters, United States Army Aviation Systems Command, A/SLMR No. 168, FLRC No. 72A-30; Department of the Air Force, Headquarters, 31st Combat Support Group, Homestead Air Force Base, Homestead, Florida, A/SLMR No. 574, FLRC No. 75A-112; and Report on a Ruling of the Assistant Secretary, No. 55.

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Rules and Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Social Security Administration, Bureau of Field Operations, Region V-A, Chicago, Illinois, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Refusing to meet and confer with representatives of the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 1395, for the purpose of negotiating a collective bargaining agreement for the unit of Social Security Administration district office employees in Cook County, Illinois, represented exclusively by the aforementioned labor organization, during the pendency of a petition to consolidate exclusively recognized units which includes said unit.

(b) In any like or related manner, interfering with, restraining, or coercing employees in the exercise of their rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purposes and policies of Executive Order 11491, as amended:

(a) Notify the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 1395, that, upon request, it will meet and confer with representatives of that labor organization for the purpose of negotiating a collective bargaining agreement for the unit of Social Security Administration district office employees in Cook County, Illinois, represented exclusively by the aforementioned labor organization, during the pendency of a petition to consolidate exclusively recognized units which includes said unit.

(b) Post at all of the facilities within the unit of the Social Security Administration district office employees in Cook County, Illinois, represented exclusively by the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 1395, copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations. 7/ Upon receipt of such forms, they shall be signed by the Regional Representative, or other appropriate official in charge of the Bureau of Field Operations, Region V-A Office, and they shall be posted and maintained by him for 60 consecutive days thereafter, in conspicuous places, including all bulletin boards and other places where notices to employees are customarily posted. The Regional Representative, or other appropriate official in charge of the Bureau of Field Operations, Region V-A Office, shall take reasonable steps to insure that such notices are not altered, defaced, or covered by any other material.

(c) Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations, notify the Assistant Secretary, in writing, within 30 days from the date of this order as to what steps have been taken to comply herewith.

Dated, Washington, D. C.

Francis X. Burkhardt, Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations

6/ In this regard, I view Section 202.2(h)(8) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations as providing a method of stablizing the parties' relationship during the period between the issuance of the certification on consolidation of units and the negotiation of a new agreement covering the newly consolidated unit. A requirement that the parties bargain with respect to a portion of a consolidated unit after a unit consolidation certification has been issued, as suggested by the Administrative Law Judge, would, in my view, have quite the contrary affect.

7/ Contrary to the recommendation of the Administrative Law Judge, I shall require the Respondent to post a notice consistent with my remedial order herein. In my view, such a notice is necessary to inform and assure employees that the rights guaranteed to them and their exclusive representative by the Order will be protected.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Preliminary Statement

This case arises under Executive Order 11491 as amended. It was initiated by a complaint filed April 15, 1976 alleging a violation of Sections 19(a)(1), (5), and (6) of the Executive Order. On June 15, 1976 the complaint was amended to delete the allegation that Section 19(a)(5) had been violated. As amended, the complaint alleged that the Respondent refused to negotiate for an agreement with the Complainant, a recognized exclusive representative of a unit of its employees.

On September 7, 1976 the Regional Administrator issued a Notice of Hearing to be held on October 14, 1976 in Chicago, Illinois. Hearings were held that day in that City. The Complainant was represented by its Vice-President, and the Respondent was also represented. Neither party presented any witnesses. They presented a written stipulation, entered into additional oral stipulations, and submitted extensive joint exhibits which were received in evidence. The Complainant made a closing argument and the Respondent waived closing argument. Both parties filed timely briefs.

FACTS

The Complainant has been recognized by the Respondent as the exclusive representative of a defined unit of Respondent's employees in Cook County, Illinois (basically Chicago) since December 30, 1969. On September 9, 1971 it was certified as the exclusive representative for a unit of Respondent's employees in Champaign, Illinois and in June 1974 it was certified for a unit of Respondent's employees in Waukegan, Illinois. At none of the three locations has there been a written comprehensive collective bargaining agreement although from time to time agreements on specific matters were entered into. On January 21, 1971 the parties negotiated ground rules for negotiating a comprehensive agreement for the Cook County unit but substantive negotiations pursuant to those ground rules were not pursued. Relations between the parties were amicable throughout; monthly consultations were held, and the only disagreement between them that they could not resolve themselves is the one that gave rise to this case.

On February 4, 1976 the Complainant submitted to the Respondent a request to negotiate proposed ground rules for negotiating a comprehensive agreement for the Cook County unit. Prior thereto, on July 10, 1975, a decertification petition was filed to decertify the Complainant as the representative of the Waukegan unit. On August 29, 1975 the Complainant had filed a petition to consolidate the three units it represented in Cook County, Champaign, and Waukegan. 1/ Both those petitions were pending when the February 4, 1976 request to bargain ground rules to negotiate an agreement was served. 2/ On February 19, 1976 the Respondent replied to the Complainant's proposal to establish ground rules for negotiations by stating it was unable to enter into such negotiations at that time because of the pendency of the consolidation and decertification petitions.

The amendments to Executive Order 11491 by Executive Order 11838 on February 6, 1976, especially the amendments to Section 10, and their implementing regulations, facilitated the consolidation of units. The Report and Recommendations of the Federal Labor Relations Council, makes this clear. It says, in part:

> "IV. CONSOLIDATION OF EXISTING UNITS.
>
> "Federal sector labor-management relations policy should facilitate the consolidation of existing bargaining units.
>
> * * * *
>
> "Where there is no bilateral agreement on a proposed consolidation, either party should be permitted to petition the Assistant Secretary to hold an election on the consolidation issue.
>
> "A labor organization seeking an election on a proposed consolidation of existing units should not lose its status as the exclusive representative in the existing unit should the employees reject the consolidation.

1/ The Respondent did not join in the petition to consolidate.

2/ After the filing of the complaint in this case, and before the hearing, the Complainant was decertified as the representative at Waukegan on July 6, 1976 and the petition to consolidate was amended to exclude the Waukegan unit.

> "Election bars, certification bars, and agreement bars should not apply . . . when a labor organization . . . petitions the Assistant Secretary for an election on a proposed consolidation among units represented by a particular labor organization."

The Regulations provide (Section 202.2(h)) that when a petition for consolidation of units is filed:

> "(8) Upon the issuance of a certification on consolidation of units, the terms and conditions of existing agreements covering those units embodied in the consolidation shall remain in effect, except as mutually agreed by the parties, until a new agreement covering the consolidated unit becomes effective."

DISCUSSION

By refusing to negotiate ground rules because of the pending decertification and consolidation petitions the Respondent violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Executive Order.

The pending petition to decertify the Complainant as the representative of the Waukegan unit is irrelevant to the question of the Respondent's obligation to negotiate concerning an agreement for its Chicago unit. The Respondent argues that so long as the decertification and consolidation petitions were pending the situation would be uncertain and confusing with respect to whom the new agreement, if one should eventuate, would apply.

It would not be at all uncertain to whom it would apply. If the decertification petition should result in decertifying the Complainant with respect to the Waukegan unit, obviously any new agreement would not apply to that unit. If it should not result in decertification, the new agreement still would not apply to the Waukegan unit; the proposal was to negotiate only for the Chicago unit, and the Complainant's continued representation of the Waukegan unit would not expand the applicability of the Chicago agreement (assuming one should eventuate) beyond its terms which was proposed only for the Chicago unit. This is so regardless of whether the new agreement should be consummated before or after the recertification of the Waukegan Unit. The new agreement was proposed only for the Chicago unit, and there is no obligation imposed by the Executive Order or elsewhere that a representative negotiate at the same time for all the separate units it represents.

Similar reasoning makes the consolidation petition equally irrelevant to the Respondent's obligation to bargain with respect to the Chicago unit. If the consolidation petition should be dismissed, obviously the new agreement would apply only to the Chicago unit for which it was proposed. If the consolidation petition should result in a consolidation of the units, the new agreement would still apply only to the Chicago segment of the unit. This is so regardless of whether the agreement should be consummated before or after the consolidation. If consummated before the consolidation, it would apply only to the Chicago unit because that was the only unit for which it was negotiated and there would have been no consolidation. If a consolidation should later be certified it would remain applicable only to the Chicago unit until a new agreement covering the consolidated unit should become effective; this is so not only logically but also because Section 202.2(h)(8) of the Regulations, quoted above, expressly so provides. And if consummated after the consolidation, it would still be applicable only to the Chicago segment of the consolidated unit; it was proposed only for that unit and there is no obligation imposed by the Executive Order or elsewhere that a representative negotiate for all segments of the unit in all negotiations no matter how the segments may be differentiated, geographically or otherwise. 3/

It follows that in refusing to negotiate "at this time" (while there were pending the concurent consolidation-of-units petition and the partially overlapping-in-scope decertification petition), the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(6) of the Executive Order and, at least derivatively, Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

The Respondent argues that Section 11(a) of the Executive Order requires it to "meet at reasonable times and confer", and that a proposal to be negotiated while the consolidation and decertification petitions were pending with the attendant uncertainties they created after the Complainant had apparently been satisfied without a comprehensive agreement for than six years, was not a proposal made at a reasonable time.

3/ I take administrative notice that Waukegan is about 40 miles north of Chicago and Champaign about 125 miles south of Chicago.

It is always proper for either party to propose negotiations on permissible matters, "so far as may be appropriate under applicable laws and regulations". I construe the phrase "at reasonable times" in Section 11(a) to refer to the time of day or day of the week or day of the month or time when there is no overriding necessity to engage exclusively in other activities. The fact that Respondent, because of the particular and unusual circumstances of the pending petitions, was uncertain of its obligation under Section 11(a), did not make it an unreasonable time. The Respondent's uncertainty did not arise from doubt whether the proposal was made at a "reasonable time" but from whether it was "appropriate under applicable laws and regulations". Such an uncertainty does not render a proposal, otherwise legitimate, made at an unreasonable time. This argument of Respondent must be rejected; it confuses "at reasonable times" with "so far as may be appropriate under applicable laws and regulations".

THE REMEDY

The Respondent argued, throughout the hearing and in its brief, that no remedial order should be issued nor a notice posted. It argues that an order would be superfluous and a posting might impinge adversely on the heretofore harmonious labor relations the parties have enjoyed. It argues that it acted in good faith, that it had a good-faith doubt that it would be proper under the Order to negotiate while the consolidation and decertification petitions were pending, that it had always in the past negotiated on request, and that even in this only instance of refusal stood and stands willing and ready to negotiate as soon as some competent authority advises it the Executive Order and its Regulations do not prohibit it, i.e., that it is appropriate under applicable laws and regulations.

I have no doubt of the Respondent's good faith and sincerity. But the utmost good faith and sincerity do not change the fact that it violated Section 19(a)(6) when it declined to negotiate while bemused by the pending petitions. Its expression of willingness, which I believe is sincere, to bargain when the decision in this case becomes final, should it sustain the Complainant's position, is not enough to remedy the default. An appropriate order to bargain, while not fully remedial (I can think of no reasonable action of the Assistant Secretary that would be fully remedial, - the year that has elapsed since the request to negotiate is irretrievably gone), is appropriate. A recommended order is attached hereto as "Appendix A".

However, I do not perceive that a requirement of posting would "effectuate the policies of [the] Order." 4/ There is no indication that anyone believed, or reasonably could have believed, that the Respondent's conduct was motivated by anything other than a good faith doubt that it was required to act otherwise than it did under the particular and unusual circumstances. A public announcement that it has done wrong and would not do it again would effectuate no policy of the Order this is perceptible in these circumstances.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY, INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE
A/SLMR No. 833

This case arose as a result of an unfair labor practice complaint filed by National Treasury Employees Union, Chapter 81, Western Region (NTEU) alleging, essentially, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by refusing to allow a union representative to be present at an investigatory interview of a unit employee.

The Administrative Law Judge found that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1), applying the Supreme Court's decision in NLRB v. J. Weingarten, Inc., 420 U.S. 251 (1975). Also, citing the Supreme Court's holding in Old Dominion Branch No. 496, National Association of Letter Carriers v. Austin, 418 U.S. 264, for the proposition that Section 1 of the Executive Order and Section 7 of the National Labor Relations Act are essentially similar, the Administrative Law Judge concluded that an employee's right to representation at an investigatory interview inheres in the rights afforded employees in Section 1 of the Order and found that the Respondent's refusal to permit the Complainant to be present at the investigatory interview involved herein was a violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order. In reaching his decision, the Administrative Law Judge found that the interview of May 13, 1975, which was the gravamen of the instant complaint, did not constitute a "formal discussion" within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order as, in his view, Section 10(e) was plainly intended to safeguard the bargaining obligations of the collective bargaining agent and was not addressed to the individual rights of the represented employees.

The Assistant Secretary deferred his decision in the subject case pending the Federal Labor Relations Council's Statement on Major Policy Issue concerning the representation rights of employees under the Order. The Council's statement was issued on December 2, 1976.

The Assistant Secretary found, in agreement with the Administrative Law Judge, that the interviews conducted on May 12 and 13, 1975, were not formal discussions within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order as the events which were the subject of the interviews occurred during a period of time in which the employee was an acting supervisor, and thereby excluded from the recognized unit. Thus, in the Assistant Secretary's view, the interviews involved did not come within the purview of Section 10(e) of the Order as, in effect, they involved agency management seeking to gather information from one of its managers. As a result, the Assistant Secretary found that the Respondent did not violate Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order when it failed to afford the Complainant an opportunity to be represented at the May 12 and 13, 1975, interviews. The Assistant Secretary also found pursuant to the Council's Major Policy Statement, that in the absence of evidence that the right of an individual employee to assistance or representation at a non-formal investigative meeting had been established by negotiations between the Respondent and the Complainant, the Respondent did not violate Section 19(a)(1) of the Order when it refused to allow the employee to be represented at the interview involved herein. Accordingly, he ordered that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

DECISION AND ORDER

On April 27, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Peter McC. Giesey issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom and take certain affirmative actions as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. Thereafter, the Complainant filed exceptions and a supporting brief, the Respondent filed exceptions and a supporting brief, and the Complainant filed cross-exceptions with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

On October 18, 1976, the Assistant Secretary informed the Complainant and the Respondent that it would effectuate the purposes and policies of the Order to defer his decision in the subject case pending the Federal Labor Relations Council's resolution of a major policy issue which has general application to the Federal labor-management relations program:

> Does an employee in a unit of exclusive recognition have a protected right under the Order to assistance (possibly including personal representation) by the exclusive representative when he is summoned to a meeting or interview with agency management, and, if so, under what circumstances may such a right be exercised?

On December 2, 1976, the Council issued its Statement On Major Policy Issue, FLRC No. 75P-2, Report No. 116, finding, in pertinent part, that:

1. An employee in a unit of exclusive recognition has a protected right under the last sentence of Section 10(e) of the Order to the assistance or representation by the exclusive representative, upon the request of the employee, when he is summoned to a formal discussion with management concerning grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions of the employees in the unit; and,

2. An employee in a unit of exclusive recognition does not have a protected right under the Order to assistance or representation at a non-formal investigation meeting or interview to which he is summoned by management; but such right may be established through negotiations conducted by the exclusive representative and the agency in accordance with Section 11(a) of the Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. 1/ Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in this case, including the exceptions and cross exceptions filed by the parties, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations, only to the extent consistent herewith.

The instant complaint alleges, in essence, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by refusing to allow a union representative to be present at an investigatory interview of a unit employee. In finding a violation of Section 19(a)(1), the Administrative Law Judge applied the Supreme Court's decision in NLRB v. J. Weingarten, Inc., 420 U.S. 251 (1975), to the instant case. Also, citing the Supreme Court's holding in Old Dominion Branch No. 496, National Association of Letter Carriers v. Austin, 418 U.S. 264, for the proposition that Section 1 of the Executive Order and Section 7 of the National Labor Relations Act are essentially similar, the Administrative Law Judge concluded that an employee's right to representation at an investigatory interview inheres in the rights afforded employees in Section 1 of the Order. Consequently, he found that the Respondent's refusal to permit the Complainant to be present at the investigatory interview involved herein was violative of Section 19(a)(1) of the

1/ In his Recommended Decision and Order, the Administrative Law Judge corrected page 82 of the official transcript by striking the words "kind of a standard random thing" and replacing it with the words "kind of a standard Miranda thing." In its exceptions, the Respondent contended that he had no authority to amend and change the transcript without affording the parties the opportunity to comment upon the change. I disagree. Thus, Section 203.16(m) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations states, in pertinent part, that ". . . Upon assignment to him and before transfer of the case to the Assistant Secretary, the Administrative Law Judge shall have the authority to: -- Correct or approve proposed corrections of the official transcript when deemed necessary." Under these circumstances, I hereby affirm the Administrative Law Judge's correction of the official transcript.

Order. In reaching his decision, the Administrative Law Judge found that the interview of May 13, 1975, which is the gravamen of the instant complaint, did not constitute a "formal discussion" within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order as, in his view, Section 10(e) "is plainly intended to safeguard the bargaining obligations of the collective bargaining agent and is not addressed to the individual rights of the represented employees."

In its exceptions, the Respondent contended, among other things: (1) that the May 13, 1975, interview concerned only the employee's activities while acting as a supervisor and, thus, he was precluded from any rights accorded bargaining unit employees; (2) that the May 13, 1975, interview was investigatory in nature, and the employee had no right to union representation; (3) that the May 13, 1975, interview was not a formal discussion within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order and the Complainant had no right to be present; and (4) that the Administrative Law Judge erred in applying the Weingarten rationale to this case. In its exceptions and cross-exceptions, the Complainant contended, among other things: (1) that the Administrative Law Judge correctly applied the Weingarten rationale to this case, and (2) that the Administrative Law Judge erred in finding that the May 13, 1975, interview was not a "formal discussion" within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order.

The essential facts of this case, which are not in dispute, are set forth, in detail, in the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order, and I shall repeat them only to the extent necessary.

On September 16, 1974, an employee submitted a request for reimbursement for expenses incurred in taking a night school course to the Acting Assistant Branch Chief, Donald L. Feurzig. Feurzig approved the application. Thereafter, on September 20, 1974, the Branch Chief disapproved the application. The submitting employee then grieved the disapproval, and the Complainant requested binding arbitration under the terms of the parties' negotiated agreement. In order to prepare for the arbitration, the Respondent assigned the matter to its attorney, Michael Sussman, for the purpose of conducting an investigation.

On May 12, 1975, Sussman, Robert Wilson, Staff Assistant to the Regional Counsel, Western Region, and Feurzig met. During the short interview, it was determined that Sussman and Feurzig would meet on the following day in order to permit Sussman to learn Feurzig's version of the background of the grievance to be arbitrated. At that time, Feurzig requested that he be allowed union representation at the interview with Sussman. This request was denied.

On May 13, 1975, Feurzig again met with Sussman, and during the course of the interview was asked to explain the basis for his approval of the employee's reimbursement request. 2/ During the course of the ensuing discussion, Sussman learned that Feurzig taught the course in question, and Sussman began to question Feurzig about whether he had authority to teach such a course. Feurzig questioned the relevancy of this line of questioning, as well as certain other questions. At the end of the interview, Sussman read a "kind of a standard Miranda thing" to Feurzig, asking Feurzig to keep confidential the subject matter of their interview.

2/ At the hearing, the parties agreed that at the time of the May 12 and May 13 interviews, Feurzig was not a supervisor of the Activity, but was a member of the unit for which the Complainant is the exclusive bargaining representative.

In agreement with the Administrative Law Judge, I find that the interviews conducted on May 12 and 13, 1975, were not formal discussions within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order. Thus, the record reveals, and the parties agree, that the events which were the subject of the interviews occurred during a period of time in which Feurzig was an acting supervisor and thereby excluded from the exclusively recognized unit. 3/ Further, the evidence establishes that the Respondent was concerned only with the actions and decisions of Feurzig made while he was serving in an acting supervisory capacity as such actions had a direct bearing on the Respondent's position in the pending arbitration case. In this context, I do not view the interviews involved to come within the purview of Section 10(e) of the Order, as, in effect, they involved agency management seeking to gather information from one of its own managers. 4/ Accordingly, I find that the Respondent did not violate Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order when it failed to afford the Complainant an opportunity to be represented during the interviews of Feurzig on May 12 and 13, 1975, concerning his actions and decisions while an acting supervisor.

However, contrary to the Administrative law Judge, I do not find that Feurzig, as an individual, was entitled under the Order to representation at the interviews in question. Thus, as indicated above, the Council, in its Major Policy Statement, found that an individual employee is entitled to personal representation under only two circumstances: (1) When the employee is summoned to a formal discussion with management within the meaning of Section 10(e); and (2) when the employee is summoned by management to a non-formal investigation meeting or interview and the right to assistance or representation has been established through negotiations conducted by the exclusive representative and the agency in accordance with Section 11(a) of the Order. Noting the finding above that the interviews herein were not formal discussions within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order, and the absence of evidence that the right of an individual employee to assistance or representation at a non-formal investigative meeting had been established by negotiations between the Respondent and the Complainant, 4/ Compare United States Air Force, McClellan Air Force Base, California, A/SLMR No. 830.

I find that the Respondent did not violate Section 19(a)(1) of the Order when it refused to allow Feurzig to be represented at the interviews involved herein. 5/ Accordingly, I shall dismiss the instant complaint in its entirety.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This is a proceeding brought under the terms of Executive Order 11491, as amended, (hereafter "the Order") by National Treasury Employees Union, Chapter 81, Western Region (hereafter, "the Union") against United States Department of the Treasury, Internal Revenue Service (hereafter, "IRS"). The Union asserts that IRS violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Executive Order by refusing to allow a Union representative to be present at a management interview of a unit employee. The Interview in question was associated with the processing of a grievance filed by a unit employee based upon a reversal of his acting supervisor's approval of his request for reimbursement for the costs of a private course of study undertaken during non-working hours. The person whose interview is the subject of the asserted unfair labor practices was the acting supervisor who initially approved the grieving employee's request.

A hearing was held on January 29, 1976, in San Francisco, California. All facts are undisputed unless otherwise noted. Briefly, the record shows the following circumstances.

On September 16, 1974, an employee submitted a request for reimbursement for expenses incurred in taking a night school course to the Acting Assistant Branch Chief, Mr. Donald L. Feurzig. Feurzig approved the application.

On September 20, 1974, the Branch Chief disapproved the application. The submitting employee grieved the disapproval and the Union requested binding arbitration under the terms of the collective bargaining agreement.

Management assigned the case to Michael Sussman, a lawyer in the office of the IRS Chief Counsel. As counsel for IRS, Mr. Sussman conducted an investigation preparatory to the arbitration.

On May 12, 1975, Mr. Sussman, Robert Wilson, Staff Assistant to the Regional Counsel, Western Region, and Mr. Feurzig met. 1/ During the short (15 minutes) interview, it was determined that Sussman and Feurzig would meet on the following day in order to permit Sussman to learn Feurzig's version of the background of the grievance to be arbitrated. Feurzig requested that he be allowed"union representation" at the interview with Sussman. The parties stipulated that "that request was denied by IRS management." The parties agree that Feurzig was not an acting supervisor at this time and was a member of the bargaining unit for which the Union is the collective bargaining agent.

1/ Feurzig testified that a Mr. Sheean of the Union was also present at the meeting. Sussman and Wilson testified that only Sussman, Wilson and Feurzig attended the meeting.

On the following day, Feurzig met with Sussman and was interviewed. Feurzig was asked to explain the bases for his approval of the employee's reimbursement request. The substance of the course was discussed. Because Feurzig taught the course in his off duty time, he had detailed knowledge of its substance and informed opinions concerning its relevancy and value to the employee. During the interview, Feurzig was asked whether the grievant was "a good friend." He was also asked whether he had obtained agency authorization to engage in the "outside" occupation of teaching. Feurzig questioned the relevancy of this question at which he was "incensed." Sussman's reply was regarded by Feurzig as a "token explanation, maybe a question as to whether I was qualified to teach it."

At the conclusion of the interview, Sussman read "kind of a standard [Miranda 2/] thing " to Feurzig.

The statement, according to Sussman was as follows:

> I consider these matters confidential and request that you not discuss the questions and answers . . . or nature of the questions . . . and answers that I asked with any union personnel. If the union attorney or representative who prepares this case wants to talk to you, it is a voluntary matter and you do not need any management official or attorney present. My presence or Robert Wilsons is not necessary. You do not need permission, to notify us or to ask our permission, (and I believe that I added something to the effect that these specific questions and answers were the items that I felt were confidential and that any facts that came out during that he was free to discuss but not to bring up specific questions that I had asked him).

Parenthesis supplied.

2/ The transcript, at p.82, reads "a standard random thing." In part, because Mr. Sussman was answering my question at the time, I remember his use of "Miranda" which was apparently misunderstood by the reporter. The transcript is amended to reflect the correct testimony.

Feurzig asked Sussman by what authority he had thus been cautioned. Sussman replied that "as far as I knew there was authority" and that he would "attempt to find points and authorities to back this statement up." Sussman testified that "the matter did slip my mind."

Findings of Fact and Conclusions of Law

All witnesses were credible. Predictably, the memories of some were more precise than others. In all important respects, they were in agreement and the events concerning which they testified occurred as set forth, supra. I so find.

Respondent argues in a thoughtful and well researched brief that Feurzig was being interviewed only in connection with his duties as an acting supervisor, and was therefore shorn of any rights under the Order which he might have asserted as a member of the bargaining unit. He cites authority for the exclusion of acting supervisors from bargaining units.

The short answer to this argument is that, while the exclusion of an acting supervisor from the bargaining unit is a sound and proper application of precedent, there is no precedent in law or logic for the exclusion of a former acting supervisor. As more fully discussed, infra, the facts of this case present persuasive reasons for denying management the right unilaterally to determine in what circumstances it will or will not recognize the rank and file status of an employee who has in the past acted in a supervisory capacity. The parties have stipulated that Feurzig was a member of the unit at the time of the "interview," as such, he was entitled to all of the protections and rights afforded members of the unit by the Order.

Respondent argues that the Order afforded Feurzig no right to the presence of a representative in any case because the "interview" was not a formal discussion within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order. 3/

3/ In pertinent part;

* * *

The labor organization shall be given the opportunity to be represented at formal discussions . . . concerning grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions of employees in the unit.

I agree. If this employee had the right under the Order to representation at the "interview," it does not derive from Section 10(e) which is plainly intended to safeguard the bargaining obligations of the collective bargaining agent and is not addressed to the individual rights of the represented employees.

Finally, respondent asserts that the "administrative law judge. . . must adopt the rationale of the decisions previously decided by the Assistant Secretary." Counsel has also cited an impressive line of decisions supporting the proposition that an employee being interviewed in circumstances such as those demonstrated on this record is not entitled by the Order to representation and that the denial of such representation is not an unfair labor practice. 4/

If I agreed with counsel's first proposition, I would follow the precedent established by the cited authorities. However, in federal labor relations matters, an administrative law judge is not charged - as under most circumstances in which he acts - with the responsibility for formulation of a reviewable decision. Rather, he is obligated to render a recommendation to the Assistant Secretary. Such recommendations are subject to de novo determinations. In my opinion, the circumstances of the instant dispute militate to persuade that it is one of the rare instances in which the administrative law judge should recommend that the Assistant Secretary give hospitable consideration to the application of a principle articulated in a decision involving the private sector more than twenty years ago; 5/

> 'Cumulative experience' begets understanding and insight by which judgements. . . are validated or qualified or invalidated. The constant process of trial and error, on a wider and fuller scale than a single adversary litigation permits, differentiates perhaps more than anything else the administrative from the judicial process.

Id. at p. 349

Thus, in the interim between the Assistant Secretary's decisions in the cases exemplified by those cited at n. 4, the Supreme Court has had opportunity to consider the Labor Board's judgment in similar circumstances based upon "cumulative experience" of nearly forty years. In light of the Assistant Secretary's notation of the impending decision of the Court in N.L.R.B. v. J. Weingarten Inc., in his decision in F.A.A., Cleveland ARTC Center, Oberlin, Ohio A/SLMR 430, viz., "perhaps we shall soon have more definitive enlightenment on this line of cases," it appears appropriate that the Court's decision be considered here..

Preliminarily, the decision in N.L.R.B. v. J. Weingarten Inc., 420 U.S. 251 (1975) constitutes an examination of the decision of the Board, the historical development of that decision qua policy, and an explication of the rationale. Accordingly, I dismiss all argument that the Court "merely" determined that the decision was within the Board's authority. The Court examined the entire matter critically and at length, setting forth, inter alia, five criteria for determination of entitlement to representation during an investigatory interview.

> First, the right inheres in §7's guarantee to act in concert for mutual aid and protection.
> * * *
>
> Second, the right arises only in situations where the employee requests representation. * * *
>
> Third, the employee's right to request representation as a condition of participation in an interview is limited to situations where the employee reasonably believes the investigation will result in disciplinary action.

> * * *
> Fourth, exercise of the right may not interfere with legitimate employer prerogatives. * * *
>
> * * *
>
> Fifth, the employer has no duty to bargain with any union representative who may be permitted to attend the investigatory interview. ***

95 S. Ct. at 963-964, citations and n. omitted.

Counsel for Respondent points out that Section 7 of the National Labor Relations Act, as amended, "has no counterpart" in the Order. While this is literally correct, I am persuaded by the Court's discussion of Section 7 of the Act, that the decision is addressed to that portion of concerted activity for the purpose of mutual aid or protection which is also subsumed in Sections 1 and 7 of the Order as an adjunct and protection of the right to bargain and to have a collective bargaining agent empowered meaningfully to act to "safeguard . . . not only the particular employee's interest, but also the interests of the entire bargaining unit . . . ." Weingarten at p. 925; see also the Court's discussion at pp. 963-964; cf., the Court's discussion of this matter in its opinion in Old Dominion Br. No. 496, Nat., Assn. Letter Car. v. Austin, 418 U.S. 264, 94 S.Ct. 2770 (1974);

> In this case, of course, the relevant federal law is Executive Order 11491 rather than the NLRA.
>
>
> The basic provisions of the Executive Order establish a labor-management relations system for federal employment which is remarkably similar to the scheme of the National Labor Relations Act. Although several significant adjustments have been made to reflect the different structure and responsibilities of the governmental employer, it is apparent that the Order adopted in large part the provisions and policies of the NLRA as its model.

Id. at pp. 2775-2776, n.'s omitted. Moreover, at n.6, p. 2776 the Court observed, in part;

> Section 1 of the Order grants Federal employees the 'right freely and without fear of penalty or reprisal, to form join, and assist a labor organization' ... and provides that 'each employee shall be protected in the exercise of this right,' much as employees in the private sector are protected by §7 of the NLRA....

See also, the Court's discussion of distinctions between Section 7 of the NLRA and Section 1 of the Order at p. 2778, n. 13.

In light of the above, I am persuaded that an employee's right to representation in an investigatory interview inheres in Section 1 of the Order's guarantee that employee's may join together for mutual aid and protection.

Second, it is undisputed that Mr. Feurzig requested representation.

Third, Mr. Feurzig had bases for a reasonable belief that the investigation might result in disciplinary action. Thus, Sussman admits questioning Feurzig concerning his having obtained official permission to engage in "outside" employment (teaching a tax course). I found Mr. Sussman's explanation of the reason for this inquiry to be lame (Tr. 104). Perhaps Mr. Sussman was unaware of the effect of the question. However that may be, the record demonstrates its intimidating nature and the threat contained in the suggestion that personnel rules had been breached by the interviewee. Moreover, the statement with which Sussman closed the interview, in Sussman's words, a "Miranda thing," is plainly intimidating. Feurzig was told in an imprecise manner the kinds of information he was to withhold from his representative - and left to speculate concerning the consequences of disobedience. Had Feurzig no previous basis for believing that the interview might result in displinary action, the "Miranda thing" provided not a warning, but a threat.

Fourth, I find no substantial evidence or representation that the presence of the representative requested by Mr. Feurzig would have tended to interfere with any legitimate management prerogatives. Mr. Sussman's explanation for his "Miranda thing" (Tr. 107), that he wished to "keep within his file" his theory of the case until the arbitration hearing, impressed me as a less-than-precise endorsement of surprise as as a desirable trial strategy. Inappropriate in any litigation save that conducted on commercial television, it is particularly inappropriate to arbitration proceedings.

Last, I would point out that, in accordance with the criteria set fourth in Weingarten, supra, management is under no obligation to treat with the Union representative present during an investigatory interview. He is present at the behest of the member of the bargaining unit to advise him and act as his representative. Thus, no occasion for interference with legitimate management prerogatives is presented.

Recommended Order

It is recommended that the Assistant Secretary issue an order in the following form;

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Rules and Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the United States Department of the Treasury, Internal Revenue Service, San Francisco Regional Office, shall:

1. Cease and disist from:

(a) Interfering with, restraining or coercing its employees by refusing to permit a representative of the collective bargaining agent to be present at investigatory interviews of memebers of the bargaining unit who request such representation and who reasonably believe that the investigation will result in disciplinary action.

(b) In any like or related manner interfering with restraining or coercing its employees in the exercise of rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following actions to effectuate the purpose of this Order.

(a) Post at its San Francisco Regional Office copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations. PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

63rd AIR BASE GROUP, U.S. AIR FORCE
NORTON AIR FORCE BASE, CALIFORNIA
A/SLMR No. 834

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the National Federation of Federal Employees, Local 687 (Complainant) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order when it refused to negotiate with the Complainant on a matter which had been determined by the Department of Defense to be negotiable.

In recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety, the Administrative Law Judge found that in determining that the matter was negotiable, the Department of Defense also determined that the matter was a non-mandatory subject of bargaining under the provisions of Section 11(b) of the Order. Therefore, in the Administrative Law Judge's view, until the negotiability determination was set aside or modified by the procedure provided by Section 11(c)(4) of the Order, the agency determination constituted the guidelines for future negotiations. Thus, the Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Respondent was free to bargain or not to bargain, and to agree or not to agree, on the subject matter in question.

Noting particularly the absence of exceptions, the Assistant Secretary adopted the findings, conclusions and recommendation of the Administrative Law Judge, and ordered that the complaint be dismissed. In this regard, the Assistant Secretary noted that a subject which is non-mandatory at the outset of negotiations does not become mandatory merely because both parties considered it during their negotiations.

DECISION AND ORDER

On February 4, 1977, Administrative Law Judge James L. Butler issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had not engaged in the unfair labor practices alleged in the complaint, and recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. No exceptions were filed with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, and noting particularly that no exceptions were filed, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendation.

Under the particular circumstances herein, I agree with the Administrative Law Judge that the Respondent did not violate Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by its refusal to consider further proposals pertaining to the assignment of custodial and janitorial duties to unit employees on the grounds that such matter was a non-mandatory or permissive subject under Section 11(b) of the Order. In my view, a subject which is non-mandatory at the outset of negotiations does not become mandatory merely because both parties consider it during their negotiations.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This case arises under Executive Order 11491, as amended. It was initiated by a complaint dated July 14, 1976, filed July 15, 1976. The complaint alleged a violation of Section 19(a)(6) of the Executive Order on the basis of Respondent's refusal to negotiate with the Complainant on a "matter" which, according to the complaint, "had been determined by proper authority to be negotiable." Details of the complaint were set forth in an instrument identified in the complaint as "Attachment 1" and documents pertinent to that instrument were included and identified in the complaint as "Attachments 2 through 12." Five issues appear. They are: (1) whether the Assistant Secretary has the delegated authority to review negotiability determinations made by an agency head; (2) whether the subject upon which Respondent refused to bargain was a non-mandatory subject of collective bargaining under the provisions of Section 11(b) of the Executive Order; (3) whether a subject which was non-mandatory at the outset of bargaining may become mandatory merely because a party exercises this freedom by not rejecting the proposal at once or sufficiently early; (4) whether Respondent's refusal to bargain as charged was consistent with its obligations in this regard outlined in the negotiability determination issued by the Department of Defense, the agency head; and ultimately, (5) whether Complainant has carried its burden of proving the allegations of the complaint by a preponderance of the evidence.

The Facts

It appears from the complaint and the attachments thereto that the current collective bargaining agreement between the parties hereto was negotiated during the months of January through March of 1975. The parties were unable to reach agreement on only one provision during that period. That proposal provided for the assignment of custodial and janitorial duties to employees of the unit. Following an exchange of proposals and counterproposals related to the unresolved provision of the agreement, Respondent declined to negotiate further, contending that the matter was not a mandatory subject of bargaining under Section 11(b) of the Executive Order. The overall agreement was then concluded with the disputed provision omitted. On the same day the parties concluded a subsidiary agreement providing that Complainant would submit the matter to a higher agency pursuant to Section 11(c) of the Executive Order for determination of negotiability and, further, that upon receipt of such a determination, the parties would thereupon meet to further negotiate the provision under the terms of the determination sought.

The Complainant then sought, and after some correspondence, obtained a negotiability determination from the Department of Defense on November 28, 1975. Among other things, the negotiability determination clearly indicated that the matter of the assignment of custodial and janitorial duties to employees of the unit involved was a subject which fell within the provisions of Section 11(b) of the Executive Order which provides that:

> "In prescribing regulations relating to personnel policies and practices and working conditions, an agency shall have due regard for the obligation imposed by paragraph (a) of this section. However, the obligation to meet and confer does not include matters with respect to the mission of an agency; its budget; its organization; the number of employees; and the numbers, types, and grades of positions or employees assigned to an organizational unit, work project or tour of duty; the technology of performing its work; or its internal security practices. This does not preclude the parties from negotiating agreements providing appropriate arrangements for employees adversely affected by the impact of realignment of work forces or technological change."

The determination further indicated that while Respondent was permitted to negotiate over the subject matter in question, it was not obligated to do so. The decision letter succinctly outlined Respondent's obligation to negotiate over a permissive or non-mandatory subject of bargaining as follows:

> "... Furthermore, having entered into negotiations on an 11(b) matter, management is not bound to continue to the point of agreement or impasse but may decide at any time to exercise its option not to bargain on the > matter. However, management cannot advance its own proposal on an 11(b) matter while at the same time declining to negotiate on a union proposal covering substantially the same subject."

On January 21, 1976, the Complainant requested that the parties resume negotiations in the light of the negotiability determination of the Department of Defense. The Respondent replied on February 9, 1976, indicating that it was willing to resume negotiations as requested.

Consequently, Complainant tendered a new proposal on the controversial provision which incorporated some modifications to its last proposal submitted prior to the determination request. Respondent in turn submitted its counterproposal dated February 19, 1976, which deleted any and all reference to the theretofore heated subject of the assignment of custodial and janitorial duties to employees of the unit. Thereafter, at a meeting of the parties on February 20, 1976, the two proposals were discussed. It was on this occasion that Respondent stated that while it would continue to negotiate on other unresolved provisions of the contract, it would exercise its 11(b) option and no longer bargain on the matter of the assignment of custodial and janitorial duties and it then withdrew all of its prior proposals which addressed themselves in any respect to that particular subject matter. Subsequently, Complainant charged Respondent with a violation of Section 19(a)(6) of the Executive Order and, as grounds therefor, cited its refusal to bargain on the matter which was the subject of the negotiability determination.

Discussion, Preliminary Findings and Conclusions

There was no oral evidence presented in this case by either party. A consideration of the whole record developed, as it was, solely by the introduction of documentary material, readily discloses the fact that the pivotal question underlying the controversy at hand was plainly one of negotiability and as such was exclusively within the jurisdiction of the Federal Labor Relations Council under the explicit terms of Section 11(c)(4) of the Executive Order which provides that:

> "A labor organization may appeal to the Council for a decision when--

"(i) it disagrees with an agency head's determination that a proposal would violate applicable law, regulation of appropriate authority outside the agency, or this Order, or

"(ii) it believes that an agency's regulations, as interpreted by the agency head, violate applicable law, regulation or appropriate authority outside the agency, or this Order, or are not otherwise applicable to bar negotiations under paragraph (a) of this section."

It is only when there is an alleged "unilateral change in, or addition to, personal policies and practices or matters affecting working conditions" and the acting party is charged with a refusal to consult, confer or negotiate, that the jurisdiction of the Assistant Secretary may be initially brought into play in order to make determinations of negotiability necessary to resolve the merits of such a complaint.

In the instant and in like situations, however, any open questions of negotiability involving a contest by a union of an agency's determination and designation of a topic as being either a mandatory or permissive subject of collective bargaining must first be resolved after timely appeal by the union to the Council before that union may properly attempt to invoke the jurisdiction of the Assistant Secretary in an unfair labor practice proceeding under Section 19(a)(6) of the Executive Order.

The complaint filed in this matter charges that Respondent refused to negotiate "on a matter which had been determined by proper authority to be negotiable." That is all very true. But what the union either fails to perceive or refuses to accept is the fact that the "matter" on which Respondent admittedly refuses to negotiate is a topic which the same "authority" determined to be a non-mandatory subject of collective bargaining under the provisions of Section 11(b) of the Executive Order. Stated more specifically, the matter of the assignment of custodial and janitorial duties to employees of the unit involved here has been determined by the Department of Defense to be a permissive subject of bargaining. Accordingly, while this determination stands, the right of the union to urge this non-mandatory subject of bargaining ceases short of ultimate insistence. As to non-mandatory matters "each party is free to bargain or not to bargain, and to agree or not to agree." N.L.R.B. v. Wooster Division of Borg-Warner Corp., 356 U.S. 342, 349, 78 S.Ct. 718, 722, 2 L.Ed. 2d 823 (1958).

Even Complainant in its oral argument in support of its complaint, was forced for a moment to acknowledge the permissive character of the matter in question when it advanced what one court has termed "the ingenious contention" that a subject which is non-mandatory at the outset may become mandatory merely because a party had exercised this freedom by not rejecting a proposal at once, or sufficiently early. The opinion in the case, N.L.R.B. v. Davidson, 318 F.2d 550 (4th Cir. 1963) undermined this position so effectually that there has been little attempt since to occupy the weakened ground. Beginning with the last paragraph in the outside column of page 557 of the report the court ruled as follows:

"Arlington advances the ingenious contention that even if the indemnity proposal was not initially a mandatory subject of bargaining, it became one by reason of the lengthy consideration that it was accorded. A determination that a subject which is non-mandatory at the outset may become mandatory merely because a party had exercised this freedom by not rejecting the proposal at once, or sufficiently early, might unduly discourage free bargaining on non-mandatory matters. Parties might feel compelled to reject non-mandatory proposals out of hand to avoid risking waiver of the right to reject."

Quite obviously, so long as the original negotiability determination stood unchallenged, the union involved here had no valid quarrel with Respondent's actions or, if you will, inaction in the instant matter. Instead, the union's quarrel is with the agency determination which allowed the Respondent to refuse to bargain further on the subject of the assignment of custodial and janitorial duties after it refrained from further advancing its own proposals on that topic and withdrew all of its past proposals related to the matter. The union, if it believed that the negotiability determination of the Department of Defense was contrary to applicable law, should have turned its guns on that agency, not the Respondent. The union should not now be allowed to collaterally attack the negotiability determination by means of a Section 19(a)(6) proceeding after, for some unknown reason, failing to avail itself of the prescribed appellate procedure allowed it under the Executive Order.

The Respondent in this case, no matter how arbitrary its actions may have appeared to the union, was nevertheless in strict compliance with the very letter of the negotiability determination furnished at the union's request. Unless and until a negotiability determination by a higher agency is set aside or modified by the exclusive procedure provided by Section 11(c)(4) of the Executive Order, the agency determination constitutes the applicable guidelines by which the parties contemplated must fix the course of their future negotiations. Of course, had the union offered any evidence whatsoever that Respondent's refusal to negotiate was in conflict in any manner with the negotiability directive of the higher agency, we would be confronted here with an entirely different matter and one over which the Assistant Secretary enjoys jurisdiction under the provisions of Section 19(a)(6) of the Executive Order. The fact that Complainant, although provided the opportunity to do so, chose not to even attempt to offer any evidence in this regard is in itself indicative of the fact that no such violation took place. To the contrary, it is manifestly clear that the refusal of Respondent to negotiate as charged was expressly permissible and even invited under the terms and conditions of the negotiability determination then in force.

Thus, it is seen that the topic of the assignment of custodial and janitorial duties to employees of the unit involved is, at least for the purpose of this inquiry, a non-mandatory or permissive subject of collective bargaining simply because it was so designated by the unchallenged negotiability determination issued by the Department of Defense. The Assistant Secretary has no authority to disturb the agency head's interpretation in this respect even if he should be so inclined.

There is also some insistence by Complainant, but no evidence in the record to support the contention, that Respondent did not comply with the terms and conditions of the negotiability determination before it refused to negotiate further on the subject contemplated. In the absence of any showing to the contrary, however, it must be concluded that Respondent's refusal to negotiate was validly made in full accordance with the determination. So long as Respondent acted within the scope of the guidelines set down in the determination, it is all but impossible to conceive any supportable basis for the complaint. Indeed, it is difficult to imagine how the management of an agency can, at one and the same time, be both in full compliance with a negotiability determination and guilty of an unfair labor practice.

Finally, it now must be vividly clear that the real quarrel in this whole affair necessarily has to be between the union and the negotiability determination of the Department of Defense which allowed management to escape bargaining to an impasse on what is a seemingly crucial subject from the viewpoint of the union. As pointed out before, the only forum before whom this confrontation could have taken place is the Federal Labor Relations Council as provided in Section 11(c)(4) of the Executive Order. (The rules of the Council provide that an appeal of a negotiability issue must be submitted within 30 days after the agency head's determination was served on the labor organization. 5 C.F.R. § 2411.24(a)) The propriety of this inflexible jurisdictional rule is aptly demonstrated here where the Assistant Secretary, if he had been delegated the questionable authority to do so, could very well find himself in the wholly untenable position of having to overturn a negotiability determination made by the head of another executive department in order to arrive at a decision on the merits of a Section 19(a)(6) matter.

Ultimate Findings and Conclusions

Upon the basis of the entire record and for the reasons hereinabove set forth, I make the following ultimate findings of fact and conclusions of law, not one of which is exclusively one and not the other:

1. That the negotiability determination of the Department of Defense stipulated, in effect, that the cessation by Respondent of the advancement of all proposals on the matter of the assignment of custodial duties to employees of the unit in question was required as a negative condition subsequent to the continuing designation of that topic as a non-mandatory or permissive subject of collective bargaining under the terms of Section 11(b) of the Executive Order;

2. That in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, it is conclusively presumed that Respondent honored this restrictive condition as averred in its written response to the complaint;

3. That the Complainant did not appeal the negotiability determination of the Department of Defense to the Federal Labor Relations Council and, accordingly, the same was in full force and effect and binding on the parties at issue at all times under consideration here; and,

4. That the Complainant has failed to sustain its burden of proving the allegations of the complaint by a preponderance of the evidence (29 C.F.R. § 203.15).

Recommendation

For the above assigned reasons, findings and conclusions, it is recommended that the complaint be dismissed.

Ancillary Order

The suggested recommendations together with supportive rationale requested of the parties at the conclusion of the hearing should be withheld.

NEW JERSEY DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE,

177TH FIGHTER INTERCEPTOR GROUP
A/SLMR No. 835

This case arose as a result of an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 3486, AFL-CIO (Complainant) alleging, in substance, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by its unilateral change of the minimum military re-enlistment term for New Jersey Air National Guard members from one year to three years, which military enlistment is a mandatory condition of employment for civilian technicians of the Guard.

The Administrative Law Judge found, and the Assistant Secretary concurred, that the Respondent was not obligated to afford the Complainant an opportunity to meet and confer on the decision to change the minimum term for military re-enlistments in the Guard, as such decision was outside the scope of the bargaining requirements of the Order. However, the Assistant Secretary did not adopt the Administrative Law Judge's finding that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by its failure to afford the Complainant an opportunity to meet and confer, to the extent consonant with law and regulations, on the procedures to be utilized to effectuate the decision and on the impact of the decision on adversely affected employees. In this regard, the Assistant Secretary noted that the record indicated that military membership in the Air National Guard is, by statute, a prerequisite for civilian employment as an Air National Guard Technician. In the Assistant Secretary's view, the Respondent's decision to change the minimum term for military re-enlistments did not change a working condition which was bargainable in any respect under the Order, but, rather, changed a precondition for civilian technician employment which is outside the purview of the Order and is solely governed by statute. Under these circumstances, the Assistant Secretary found that there were no procedures or impact over which the Respondent had an obligation to bargain.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

DECISION AND ORDER

On December 10, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Garvin Lee Oliver issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom and take certain affirmative actions as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. Thereafter, the Respondent filed exceptions with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, including the exceptions filed by the Respondent, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations, only to the extent consistent herewith.

The instant complaint alleged, in substance, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by its unilateral change of the minimum military re-enlistment term for New Jersey Air National Guard members from one year to three years, which military enlistment is a mandatory condition of employment for civilian technicians of the Guard.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Respondent was not obligated to afford the Complainant an opportunity to meet and confer on the decision to change the minimum term for military re-enlistments. However, he found that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by its failure to afford the Complainant an opportunity to meet and confer, to the extent consonant with law and regulations, on the procedures to be utilized to effectuate the decision and on the impact of the decision on adversely affected employees. He also concluded that although the Respondent apparently afforded the Complainant the opportunity to meet and confer concerning the implementation and impact of its decision some three months after the change became effective, this could not absolve the Respondent of its unfair labor practice.

I concur with the Administrative Law Judge's determination that the Respondent was not obligated to afford the Complainant an opportunity to meet and confer on its decision to change the minimum term for military re-enlistments as such decision was outside the scope of the bargaining requirements of the Order. However, contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, I find also that, under the particular circumstances herein, the Respondent was not obligated under the Order to afford the Complainant an opportunity to meet and confer on the procedures to be utilized in effectuating the implementation of its decision and on the impact of its decision on adversely affected employees.

The record shows that military membership in the Air National Guard is, by statute, a prerequisite for civilian employment as an Air National Guard Technician. However, while certain of the terms and conditions of civilian employment as an Air National Guard Technician are subject to the bargaining requirements of the Order, military membership in the Air National Guard is a wholly separate enlistment contract which is mandated by statute and controlled by the regulations which implement that statute. 1/ In this connection, I note that the June 20, 1975, directive, issued under the authority of the Chief of Staff, New Jersey Department of Defense, did not address terms and conditions of employment for civilian technicians, but, rather, established a new policy for all military units of the New Jersey Air National Guard, including the Respondent, with respect to military re-enlistment procedures. Thus, the directive increased the minimum term for military re-enlistment for prior service personnel from one year to three years effective July 1, 1975.

In my view, the change in military re-enlistment procedures did not change a working condition which was bargainable in any respect under the Order, but, rather, changed a precondition for civilian technician employment which is outside the purview of the Order and is solely governed by statute. 2/ Under these circumstances, I find that there were no procedures or impact over which the Respondent had an obligation to bargain. Accordingly, I shall order that the instant complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to a complaint filed on December 31, 1975, under Executive Order 11491, as amended, by the American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE), AFL-CIO, Local 3486 (hereinafter called the Complainant or Union) against the New Jersey Department of Defense, New Jersey Air National Guard, 177th Fighter Interceptor Group (hereinafter called the Respondent or Agency), a Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued by the Regional Administrator for the New York Region.

The complaint alleged, in substance, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Executive Order by unilaterally changing and establishing the minimum military reenlistment term for New Jersey Air National Guard members from one year to three years, which military enlistment is a mandatory condition of employment for civilian technicians of the Guard.

A hearing was held in this matter before the undersigned in Pomona, New Jersey. The Respondent moved at the outset of the hearing to dismiss the complaint. Decision on the motion was reserved. Both parties were afforded full opportunity to be heard, adduce evidence, and to examine and cross-examine witnesses. Thereafter, the parties submitted briefs.

Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, the exhibits and other relevant evidence adduced at the hearing, and the briefs, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions and recommendations.

Findings of Fact

In June 1975 the Complainant was, and it continues to be, the exclusive representative of a unit of federal employees, called technicians, employed by the Respondent, the 177th Fighter Interceptor Group, New Jersey Air National Guard.

Pursuant to the National Guard Technicians Act of 1968, these technicians must, as a prerequisite to their civilian employment with the Guard, become members of the Guard in a military capacity and hold the military grades required for their positions. Civilian employment is terminated where the concurrent military status ceases to exist. 32 U.S.C. §709(b), (e)(1). The concept of the technician program is that the technicians will serve concurrently in three different ways: (a) perform full-time civilian work in their units; (b) participate in scheduled military training periods, such as weekend drills and fifteen days summer camp during each year; and (c) be available to enter full-time military service in their military grades at any time their units are called to active duty.

Enlistment policies of the New Jersey Air National Guard are established by the Chief of Staff, New Jersey Department of Defense, pursuant to guidelines of the National Guard Bureau in Washington, D.C. The Chief of Staff is the New Jersey equivalent of the "Adjutant General," sometimes referred to in the applicable statutes and regulations.

During the period March 14, 1972 to November 1, 1975, Air National Guard Manual 39-09(C1) authorized the states to allow military members of the Air National Guard to voluntarily extend their enlistments for a minimum term of one year. (Joint Exhibit 6).

On June 20, 1975, Major General Joseph P. Zink, New Jersey Air National Guard, under authority of the Chief of Staff, New Jersey Department of Defense, issued a directive to all units of the New Jersey Air National Guard, including the Respondent, which established a new policy with respect to enlistment/reenlistment procedures. The directive increased the minimum term for reenlistment for prior service personnel to three years effective July 1, 1975. (Joint Exhibit 1). Such action was taken by General Zink, after conversations with National Guard Bureau officials, because of concern that, due to the one year enlistment option, and the operation of Department of Defense Directive 1235-10, which provides that individuals with only six months or less remaining on their enlistment are exempt from mobilization, large numbers of Guardsmen would not be available for active duty in the event their units were mobilized in a national emergency. This potential personnel loss reduced the mobilization readiness posture of the New Jersey Air National Guard. The new directive was designed to correct this situation.

The Respondent Activity was made aware of the directive by at least June 25, 1975. (Joint Exhibit 1). There was never an attempt to discuss the matter with the Union, nor to inform the Union representatives of the change in enlistment policy prior to its implementation on July 1, 1975.

The Union learned of the change in policy in July 1975. A number of technicians were due for re-enlistment in the Air National Guard and were immediately confronted with the change. The Union authorized Richard L. Apothaker to speak to the Respondent to discuss the impact of the change. Members of the Union were concerned about such matters as (1) whether, if they reenlisted for the new minimum term of three years as a condition of employment, and subsequently terminated their civilian technician employment, they could be discharged from their military status; (2) the adequacy of the 30 day time span between required reenlistment or termination of civilian employment, in view of the change in the minimum enlistment period and the need to make immediate personal decisions as to career, geographic location, etc., and (3) whether transfer to the Army National Guard, which had only one year enlistments at the time, would be possible.

Mr. Apothaker requested to meet with Col. Welsey Hannon, Respondent's base detachment commander, concerning the impact of the reenlistment change, but was advised by Col. Hannon that the change was a military matter which did not concern the Union, and, in any event, it was not his policy and the Union should address General Zink. The Union also attempted to raise the matter with the Respondent during negotiation meetings concerning a collective bargaining agreement, but the Respondent stated that the change in enlistment policy was a military matter and would have to be resolved through different channels. Similarly, General Zink, when contacted by Mr. Apothaker, stated that he would discuss the military policy through military channels, or on personal man-to-man basis, but could not do so in a labor management capacity.

Between July 1, 1975 and October 3, 1975 civilian technicians Apothaker, Lewis, and Devers each attempted to re-enlist in the Air National Guard for a period of one year. Respondent refused each of them this option and offered each a minimum of a three year enlistment consistent with the new policy. When these individuals did not re-enlist in the Air National Guard, they were each provided thirty days notice pursuant to 32 U.S.C. §709(e)(6), and their employment as civilian technicians was terminated.

On October 3, 1975, the National Guard Bureau discontinued, as of November 1, 1975, the authority granted to the fifty states, Puerto Rico, and District of Columbia for optional one year extensions of military enlistments, and imposed, on a national basis, a three year minimum for extensions and reenlistments as of that date. (Joint Exhibit 6). The concern which prompted this change was the same as that which prompted General Zink to make the change in the New Jersey Air National Guard some four months earlier: One year reenlistments resulted in large numbers of military personnel being unavailable for recall to active duty, due to the provisions of the Department of Defense directive, which was detrimental to the readiness and capability of the Air National Guard to fight in the event of mobilization in a national emergency.

On October 7, 1975 representatives of the Union and Respondent met to discuss the July 1, 1975 change in reenlistment policy in the New Jersey Air National Guard. Subsequently, on December 17, 1975, the New Jersey Department of Defense issued a Memorandum of Understanding to the American Federation of Government Employees which provided, in part:

"2. New Jersey Air National Guard Technicians separated from their technician positions prior to their Expiration of Term of Service may request and be granted termination of their military enlistment, provided there is no remaining service obligation. The provisions of this memorandum will not be applicable in the event of any Air National Guard mobilization."

The issuance of this "Memorandum of Understanding," concerning termination of military enlistment in the New Jersey Air National Guard by separated technicians, was within the discretionary authority of the New Jersey Department of Defense, as provided by Air National Guard Regulation 39-10. Prior to the issuance of the "Memorandum of Understanding," the policy and practice of the New Jersey Air National Guard was the same as stated in the memorandum. However, until December 17, 1975, the specific policy was not in writing, and this lack of a formal policy in writing caused the civilian technicians to have some uncertainty as to whether termination of their military enlistment would follow, upon request, after separation from technician status, except in the event of mobilization.

The December 17, 1975 "Memorandum of Understanding" satisfied the primary concern which the Union had when it learned of the change in re-enlistment policy in July 1975. Two individuals, Richard L. Apothaker and Fred Lewis, who were separated from their technician positions when their requests to reenlist for one year terms were refused and they did not reenlist for the minimum term of three years, testified that they would have reenlisted for the minimum term of three years had the "Memorandum of Understanding" been in existence at that time.

Discussion, Conclusions, and Recommendations

The decision of the Chief of Staff, New Jersey Air National Guard, to change the minimum term for reenlistment is the New Jersey Air National Guard from one to three years was a decision by Agency Headquarters, applicable uniformly to more than one subordinate activity, and was not subject to negotiation at the local level. Cf. Alabama National Guard, A/SLMR No. 660 (1976); United Federation of College Teachers, Local 1460 and U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, FLRC 71A-15. There is no evidence that a collective bargaining agreement existed at the time, thus the new policy did not attempt to unilaterally supersede or modify the terms of an existing negotiated agreement. See Department of the Navy, Supervisor of Shipbuilding, Conversion and Repair, Pascagoula, Mississippi, A/SLMR No. 390.

Moreover, the Federal Labor Relations Council has held that although military membership in the National Guard is a prerequisite for civilian employment as a National Guard technician, that precondition is outside the scope of bargaining under Section 11(a) of the Order, and "is a wholly separate enlistment contract which is mandated by statute and controlled by the regulations which implement that statute." Association of Civilian Technicians, Inc. and State of New York National Guard, FLRC No. 72A-47 (Dec. 27, 1973). See also State of Tennessee et al. v. Dunlop, ___U.S.___, 96 S. Ct. 2099 (1976).

Accordingly, I conclude that the Agency was not obliged to afford Complainant the opportunity to meet and confer on the decision to effectuate a change in the minimum term for reenlistment from one to three years as accomplished by the June 20, 1975 directive.

Notwithstanding the fact that a particular management decision is non-negotiable, agency or activity management is required under the Order to afford the exclusive representative timely notice of its decision and, upon request, meet and confer on the procedures management intends to use in implementing the decision involved and on the impact of such decision on adversely affected employees. New Mexico Air National Guard, A/SLMR No. 362; Pennsylvania Army National Guard, A/SLMR No. 475.

The enlistment contract in the Air National Guard is for military service to be fulfilled by all members of the Guard, regardless of the nature of their civilian employment. However, the June 20, 1975 change in the required minimum period for enlistment had an effect peculiar to civilian technicians of the Guard and materially changed the terms and conditions of employment of certain of the unit employees. In order for certain unit employees to retain their civilian jobs by remaining members of the National Guard, pursuant to the National Guard Technicians Act, they were required, by the June 20, 1975 change, to make a new commitment, upon the expiration of their current enlistment, for three additional years of military service instead of one additional year as before.

The evidence establishes that certain of the unit employees had grave concerns about the implementation and impact of the change. The evidence also establishes that the Respondent did not previously notify the Complainant of the June 20, 1975 change in policy and that the Complainant did not have actual knowledge of the change until after it had been implemented on July 1, 1975. There is no evidence that there was any overriding exigency which precluded Respondent from providing Complainant with the change in policy in sufficient time to permit it to review the change and to request bargaining as to its implementation and impact before it was implemented or had any impact. Although Respondent apparently afforded Complainant the opportunity to meet and confer concerning implementation and impact some three months after the change became effective, this cannot absolve Respondent of its unfair labor practice. Cf. Small Business Administration, Richmond, Virginia, District Office, A/SLMR No. 674; Southeast Exchange Region of the Army and Air Force Exchange Service, Rosewood Warehouse, Columbia, South Carolina, A/SLMR No. 656, at footnote 6.

In my view, Respondent violated Section 19(a)(6) of the Order by failing to inform the Complainant of the change in policy prior to its effectuation and, thereby, failed to afford the Complainant a reasonable opportunity to meet and confer, to the extent consonant with law and regulations, on the procedures to be utilized in effectuating the higher level decision of June 25, 1975 changing the reenlistment policy, and on the impact of the decision on adversely affected employees. Further, such refusal to meet and confer with the bargaining representative necessarily tends to interfere with, restrain, or coerce employees in the exercise of their rights assured by the Order and, therefore, also is violative of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

The remedy herein should be consistent with the scope of the violation found. In view of the admission by Union representatives that the December 17, 1975 "Memorandum of Understanding" satisfied the primary concern which the Union had concerning the implementation and impact of the change in re-enlistment policy, an appropriate remedy, in my judgement, would be to require Respondent to re-evaluate all separations from technician employment by reason of failure to reenlist in the Air National Guard that occurred between July 1, 1975 and December 17, 1975, and afford each individual the opportunity to reenlist subject to the provisions of higher command directives and the provisions of the December 17, 1975 "Memorandum of Understanding," and, if such reenlistment is accomplished, reinstate such employee to the position he held and make him whole for any loss of back pay consistent with laws, regulations, and decisions of the Comptroller General. Respondent should also be required to cease and desist from engaging in such unfair labor practices in the future.

Recommendations

Upon the basis of the aforementioned findings, conclusions, and the entire record, I recommend that the Assistant Secretary:

1. Deny Respondent's motion to dismiss;

2. Dismiss the alleged violation by Respondent of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by virtue of having issued the June 20, 1975 change in reenlistment policy without meeting and conferring with the Complainant Union;

3. Adopt the following order designed to effectuate the purposes of Executive Order 11491, as amended, in view of the conclusion that Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to afford the Complainant an opportunity to meet and confer with regard to the procedures to be utilized to effectuate the implementation of the June 25, 1975 change in reenlistment policy and with regard to the impact of such change on adversely affected employees.

Recommended Order

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of the Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the New Jersey Department of Defense, New Jersey Air National Guard, 177th Fighter Interceptor Group, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

(b) In any like or related matter, interfering with, restraining, or coercing employees in the exercise of their rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purposes and policies of Executive Order 11491, as amended:

(a) In the absence of an overriding exigency, notify Local 3486, American Federation of Government Employees,

(b) Reevaluate all separations from technician employment by reason of failure to reenlist in the Air National Guard that occurred between July 1, 1975 and December 17, 1975, and subject to the provisions of higher command directives and the provisions of the December 17, 1975 "Memorandum of Understanding," afford each individual the opportunity to reenlist and, if such reenlistment is accomplished, reinstate such employee to the position he held and make him whole for any loss of back pay consistent with laws, regulations, and decisions of the Comptroller General.

(c) Post at the facilities of the New Jersey Department of Defense, New Jersey Air National Guard, 177th Fighter Interceptor Group, copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms, they shall be signed by the Commander and shall

OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE AIR FORCE,
HEADQUARTERS, 317TH COMBAT SUPPORT GROUP,
POPE AIR FORCE BASE, NORTH CAROLINA
A/SLMR No. 836

This case involved a petition for clarification of unit (CU) filed by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2364, AFL-CIO (Petitioner) seeking to include the classification of Supervisory Firefighter, GS-081-06 (GS-6) and GS-081-07 (GS-7), in its exclusively recognized unit. In this regard, the Activity contended that the employees in these classifications are supervisors within the meaning of Section 2(c) of the Order. Contrary to the Activity, the Petitioner, the incumbent exclusive representative contended that the classifications in question are not supervisory within the meaning of the Order in that the duties they perform are routine in nature and do not require the use of independent judgment.

The Assistant Secretary found that Supervisory Firefighters, GS-6, who act as Station Captains at Station No. 2 for 6 to 9 months a year, were not supervisors within the meaning of Section 2(c) of the Order and should be included in the exclusively recognized unit.

With respect to the classification of Supervisory Firefighter, GS-7, the Assistant Secretary found that the employee in that classification was a supervisor within the meaning of Section 2(c) of the Order in that he responsibly directs employees in connection with the firefighting and rescue procedure operations at the Activity's remote landing zones and responsibly makes and adjusts leave schedules of all the firefighters on the Activity's yearly leave break rosters.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary clarified the exclusively recognized unit by including in such unit the Supervisory Firefighters, GS-6, and excluding from such unit the Supervisory Firefighter, GS-7.

DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNIT

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer Adam J. Conti. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in this case, including briefs submitted by the parties, the Assistant Secretary finds:

The American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2364, AFL-CIO, herein called AFGE, filed a petition for clarification of unit (CU) seeking to clarify its currently recognized unit at Pope Air Force Base 1/, herein called the Activity, by including in the unit the classifications of Supervisory Firefighter, GS-081-06 and GS-081-07. In this regard, the Activity contends that the employees in these classifications are supervisors within the meaning of Section 2(c) of the Order. 2/ Conversely, the AFGE contends that the employees in the classifications in question are not supervisors within the meaning of the Order in that the duties they perform are routine in nature and do not require the use of independent judgment.

The Fire Department (or Fire Protection Branch) at the Activity is responsible for structural and aircraft fire prevention and protection. It has 91 employees of whom 41 are civilian. The civilian work force consists of the Chief (GS-11); three Assistant Chiefs (GS-9); a clerk typist (GS-3); five inspectors in the fire inspection branch (GS-5 through GS-8); and an operations branch composed of one Supervisory Firefighter (Airfield) (GS-7); four Supervisory Firefighters (Airfield) (GS-6); 11 Firefighter/Driver Operators (GS-5); and 15 Firefighters (GS-5). The military complement consists of a United States Air Force Master Sergeant assigned as Deputy Chief, two Technical Sergeants (equivalent to GS-7); two Staff Sergeants (equivalent to GS-6); and 45 military personnel who are firefighters and equivalent to GS-3 through 5.

There are two fire stations operating within the Fire Department, Stations Nos. 1 and 2, which are on the base and separated by a distance of about one-half mile. The Chief and Assistant Chief on duty are located at the main fire station, Station No. 1. Their offices and sleeping facilities are in the main station. Station No. 2 is principally a structural fire fighter station with the responsibility of being the first "run pumper" (truck) that is dispatched in the event of a structural fire on the base.

The classifications in dispute herein are the four civilian GS-6 and the one GS-7 Supervisory Firefighters (Airfield). The record reveals that the four GS-6 employees in this classification are assigned as the Station Captains of Station No. 2 for periods of 6-9 months a year. During this time, they are physically located at Station No. 2 during their entire tour of duty, 24 hours per day, 3 times per week. Additionally, they are called upon to act as the Station Captains at Station No. 1 between 2 and 3 times per month (for 24 hours each time) during the remaining part of the year that they are physically located at the main fire station. At all other times, they function as crew chiefs.

The GS-7 Supervisory Firefighter is principally concerned with directing firefighting and rescue activities at locations termed "landing zones". These zones are used for the landing of aircraft picking up and unloading troops and equipment and are located at remote sites located anywhere from 20 to 30 miles from the main fire station. At all other times, the GS-7 Supervisory Firefighter is located in Station No. 1. In the past, the employee in the GS-7 classification has been used to fill the position of Station Captain.

1/ The AFGE was granted exclusive recognition pursuant to Executive Order 10988 on July 17, 1964. Its currently recognized unit includes all General and Wage Schedule employees of the Pope Air Force Base.

2/ There are four Supervisory Firefighters, GS-081-06 and one Supervisory Firefighter, GS-081-07, whose positions are in dispute.

Supervisory Firefighters GS-6

The record indicates that when the Supervisory Firefighters GS-6 act as Station Captains at Station No. 2, they are in charge of the station, its four or five personnel and its fire equipment. 3/ In the day-to-day operations of Station No. 2, the evidence establishes that the equipment and "in-house" details performed by the firefighters are routine and require little or no follow-up supervision. Thus, the Station Captains follow a work schedule prepared by the base fire chief outlining building, grounds, and vehicle maintenance which will be performed each day of the week, i.e., grass cutting, window washing, and waxing of the floors and vehicles. Further, the Station Captains who are not required to perform these tasks assign the tasks outlined in the work schedule to the crew members. The record reveals that crew members know, as a routine matter, what tasks they will perform. 4/ Furthermore, the Department of the Air Force's Operating Instructions (OI's) dictate the particular responsibilities and duties of the Station Captains (DEF-OI 92-10) and the Crew Chiefs (DEF-OI 92-11).

The record indicates that in case of a structural fire, the Station Captains, if they are first at the scene, take charge of the situation, including ordering more equipment to the scene if necessary, until such time as someone senior to them (the Assistant Chief or Chief) arrives and takes over their duties and responsibilities. However, the record reflects that the Station Captain is seldom first on the scene and seldom in charge of the operation. Moreover, once the fire crew arrives at a fire and sets up the fire equipment their duties are usually routine in nature.

The record reveals that Station Captains wear white shirts with their dress uniform as do the Chief and Assistant Chief, while the remaining personnel wear blue shirts. Also, at a fire the Station Captain wears a distinguishing red fire hat. The record indicates that Station Captains have no authority to hire, lay-off, recall or discharge employees. They do attend "supervisory" meetings (attended by GS-7's, GS-9's, the military line Station Captains, the Deputy Fire Chief and the training Non-Commissioned Officer) with the Fire Chief approximately once a month for the primary purpose of receiving information. Station Captains have counseled employees on being late for work and have entered these matters on the employee's records maintained in the 3/ The record reveals there is a mix of civilian and military employees at both fire stations.

4/ The general rules for all firefighters are described, in detail, by "Fire Department Operations (DEF-OI 92-7) and General Orders (DEF-OI 92-8)".

Fire Department, which are personal records kept by the Fire Department and not the official personnel record of the Activity. Also, Station Captains forward leave requests by their crew to the Assistant Chief who has the final authority to approve leave. They have not, in fact, suspended any crew members (although the record indicated they may relieve crew members of their duties if they were to see one drinking or drunk on the job). 5/ Also, Station Captains may ask the Station Captain at Station No. 1 (usually a Technical Sergeant) or the Assistant Chief that an employee on his crew be transferred to Station No. 1 because of conflicts with other crew members or himself, but the Assistant Chief is responsible for approving such a move.

Training is accomplished at Station No. 2 by the Station Captain based on a training program established by the base fire chief following Air Force Regulation 92-1 on firefighting training. Futhermore, the record indicates that Station Captains may handle routine disagreements or gripes involving working conditions and that, if a disagreement occurs that is more than routine and is considered a grievance, it would be referred to the Assistant Fire Chief as the first step of the grievance procedure. 6/ The record reflects also that, normally, the Assistant Chief checks on Station No. 2 twice on a 24 hour shift to ascertain if everything is in operation.

As indicated above, the GS-6 employees serve as regular crew members at Station No. 1 from three to six months a year, although when at Station No. 1 they intermittently act as a Station Captain twice a month, when the regular Station No. 1 Captains (usually Air Force Technical Sergeants) are on their break days.

Based on the foregoing, I find that Supervisory Firefighters, GS-6 are not supervisors within the meaning of Section 2(c) of the Executive Order when serving as Station Captains. 7/ Thus, as indicated above, Supervisory Firefighters, GS-6, serving in this capacity have no authority

5/ The evidence establishes that Station Captains have effectively recommended promotion actions in the past when they were classified as GS-7's, but, ever since they were downgraded to the GS-6 level (the record does not reveal the date of such action), there is no evidence that they have recommended promotion actions.

6/ The Fire Chief testified that, "If it was some minor thing about working conditions...or some minor thing, I would tell him to go back and see the Station Captain" and also that, "Some routine disagreement about working conditions...or something of this nature, I would refer him back down." (Tr. pp. 65 and 92)

7/ There is no contention that for the substantial periods of time when these employees serve as regular crew members, they act in a supervisory capacity.

to hire, lay-off, recall, promote or discharge employees, or to adjust grievances, or to effectively recommend such action. Regarding their ability to make job assignments when acting as Station Captains, the record discloses that the daily equipment and in-house details are pre-determined by the Fire Chief and that the Station Captains have no part in their selection. Moreover, when unusual situations arise, the Station Captains call the Assistant Chief or Technical Sergeant at Station No. 1 for direction. Further, the nature of any instructions which a Station Captain may give in this respect relates to tasks which are so routine as to not require actual supervision and, in effect, require no exercise of independent judgment. Although the record indicates that Station Captains may forward annual leave requests by crew members, there is no evidence that the forwarding of such requests are other than routine in nature. While the evidence establishes that Station Captains have counseled employees for tardiness, the evidence does not reflect that this is other than routine in nature or within well prescribed requirements. Nor is there evidence that any such actions have led to discipline. Finally, the Station Captains' ability to resolve disagreements at the local level involve no more than routine matters regarding working conditions and do not require the use of independent judgment. Grievances are resolved at a higher level. Under these circumstances, I find that the Station Captains, GS-6, are not supervisors within the meaning of Section 2(c) of the Order and should be included in the exclusively recognized unit.

Supervisory Firefighter GS-7

As noted above, the record discloses that the Supervisory Firefighter, GS-7, is stationed at Station No. 1 and is currently in charge of the landing zone operations which involve the direction of one or more crew chiefs, firefighters and equipment in firefighting and rescue procedures at remote sites some 20-30 miles from the base where planes deliver equipment and troops. About 65 to 70 percent of the GS-7's duty time is occupied by landing zone operations. Due to the distance of the zones from the base, the Supervisory Firefighter, GS-7, is the Acting Fire Chief at these landing zones at all times unless there is an emergency and, even in the latter situation, due to the remoteness of the sites and the times involved for the Fire Chief or Assistant Chief to come to the site, he is the Acting Fire Chief most of the time. In this latter regard, he is responsible for the operations at the landing sites and for making all the necessary decisions in preparation of the sites and in any emergency situation. Furthermore, the record reveals that the GS-7 is responsible for preparing the annual break (leave) roster for all the firefighters. In this connection, he has each firefighter mark his forecasted leave for the year and then makes discrepancy corrections for who gets leave when and forwards the break roster he has prepared to the Fire Chief who usually approves the schedule.

Based on the foregoing, I find that the Supervisory Firefighter, GS-7, is a supervisor within the meaning of Section 2(c) of the Order inasmuch as the evidence establishes that he responsibly directs employees in connection with the firefighting and rescue procedures and controls operations at the Activity's remote landing zones and responsibly makes and adjusts leave schedules of the firefighters on the yearly break rosters. Accordingly, I find that the position of Supervisory Firefighter, GS-7, should be excluded from the exclusively recognized unit.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the unit sought to be clarified herein, for which the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2364, AFL-CIO, was recognized on July 17, 1964, be, and hereby is, clarified by including in such unit Supervisory Firefighters, GS-6, and excluding from such unit the Supervisory Firefighter, GS-7.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY,
ABERDEEN PROVING GROUND COMMAND,
MARYLAND
A/SLMR No. 837

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, Local 2424, AFL-CIO (IAM) alleging, in effect, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to notify the IAM of a meeting conducted on October 22, 1975, between two bargaining unit employees and certain management officials, and, by refusing to allow the IAM representation at the aforementioned meeting.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Respondent had not violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. In this regard, he concluded that it was unnecessary for him to determine whether, as asserted by the IAM, the meeting involved a formal discussion within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order as the IAM was made aware of and had sufficient notice of the October 22, 1975, meeting and the President and Vice President of the IAM, in fact, came to the meeting and actively participated in the discussion. Moreover, with respect to the right of the individual employees to representation, he concluded that the two employees involved did not specifically request the attendance of union officials and, in any event, the union representatives came to the meeting and participated in behalf of the employee whose conduct was being questioned. Accordingly, the Administrative Law Judge recommended that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

Noting particularly the absence of exceptions, the Assistant Secretary adopted the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge, and ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to a Notice of Hearing on Complaint issued on June 11, 1976 by the Acting Regional Administrator for Labor-Management Services of the U.S. Department of Labor, Philadelphia,

1/ The name of the Employer appears as corrected at the hearing.

Region, a hearing in this case was held before the undersigned on July 27, 1976 at Aberdeen, Maryland.

The proceeding herein is brought under Executive Order 11491, as amended (herein called the Order). A complaint was filed on January 19, 1976 by International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, AFL-CIO, Local 2424 (herein called the Complainant) against U.S. Department of the Army, Aberdeen Proving Ground Command, Maryland (herein called the Respondent). The said complaint alleged a violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (5) of the Order based on a refusal by Respondent to allow union officials to be present at a meeting held in the office of James L. Lockhart, manager of the commissary, on October 22, 1975. It alleged, further, that certain statements made by Lockhart at the said meeting to two employees constituted interference and coercion under the Order. 2/

All parties were represented at the hearing, were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to adduce evidence, and to examine as well as cross-examine witnesses. Thereafter Complainant filed a brief which has been duly considered.

Upon the entire record in this case, from my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, and from all of the testimony and evidence adduced at the hearing, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions and recommendations:

Findings of Fact

At all times since July 29, 1970 Complainant has been, and still is, the certified collective bargaining representative for (a) all wage grade employees assigned to the boiler plants branch, facilities management directorate, Aberdeen Proving Ground, Aberdeen, Maryland, (b) all wage rate employees assigned to the Proving Ground Command at Aberdeen, Maryland.

2/ At the hearing the undersigned granted Complainant's motion to amend the complaint to allege a violation of 19(a)(6) in lieu of 19(a)(5). Moreover, Complainant conceded that the issues to be litigated - as expressed in the June 11, 1976 letter to the parties by the Acting Regional Administrator - were the following: (1) whether Respondent was obligated to notify the union of the meeting conducted on October 22, 1975; (2) whether Manager Lockhart refused union representation at the meeting on October 22, 1975, and, if so, was the refusal a violation of 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

Collective bargaining agreements were entered into between Complainant and Respondent covering both units. The most recent contract became effective on January 23, 1975 and continued, by its terms, for a period of two years.

Article IX, Section 7, of the aforesaid 1975 agreement provides for certain procedures to be followed by the Chairman and Assistant Chairman of the Shop Committee, and Stewards and Chief Stewards, when those officials desire to leave their work area during duty hours to perform representational duties. It requires, inter alia, that such official must notify his immediate supervisor and inform the latter of his destination, building number, work location, phone number and type of representation duty to be performed. Certain additional procedures are detailed in the event the union representative should also visit other areas, including notification to a supervisor in charge of another work area. Personnel are also required to report to their supervisors directly after the completion of their representational duties.

At all times material herein Charles Duff has been, and still is, a meat cutter employed in the Respondent's meat department at the commissary as well as a shop steward of Complainant in said department. In the performance of his duties Duff has been supervised by William Gulden, commissary meat market manager.

Prior to October 22, 1975 Duff notified Gulden of his dissatisfaction with the alternate work schedule whereby he would work one day late and another day early. Since Duff insisted upon speaking with James L. Lockhart, Manager of the commissary, regarding this matter, Gulden set up a meeting for October 22, 1975 at 12:30 P.M. in Lockhart's office. The meeting was to be attended by Duff, Gulden and Lockhart. In arranging the meeting Gulden also asked Lockhart to persuade Duff to follow Article 9, Section 7 of the collective bargaining agreement dealing with the steward's obligation to notify his supervisor when leaving the job to attend the union business.

A meeting was held at 2:00 P.M. on October 22, 1975 in Lockhart's office. 3/ It was attended initially by Lockhart, 3/ The meeting was originally scheduled for 12:30 on that date but duff failed to appear at that hour.

Duff and Gulden. They discussed and resolved the work schedule problem. Whereupon Lockhart asked Duff to read Article 9, Section 7 of the bargaining contract, stating that he should try to follow the provisions therein; that Duff was not following proper protocol and informing his supervisor where he was going when leaving the job for union representation, how long he would be there, and what was the nature of the representation to be performed; that Lockhart had to be informed 4/ of these details when the steward was on union time. Duff disagreed with Lockhart's interpretation of the aforesaid contract provision, stating he did not have to contact Lockhart - that under the agreement his only obligation was to notify his immediate supervisor. Lockhart stated that if Duff did not comply, disciplinary action would be taken against him. Whereupon Duff remarked that "I'm going to need some union representation here".

Upon returning from her lunch break on October 22, 1975, Sharon Mayberry, sales store worker and recording secretary of Complainant, was informed by the head cashier that she was wanted in Lockhart's office. 5/ Mayberry reported to the office at about 3:00 P.M. When she entered the room Duff asked her to make a phone call saying "that he needed union representation." Mayberry asked Lockhart if she could use the telephone, and the latter replied he would prefer if she didn't leave and he felt they could first settle the matter. She then stated it was necessary to visit the ladies' room, and Lockhart reluctantly excused her to do so. Upon leaving the office, Mayberry asked employee Florence Clark to call the union head, stating they need union representation.

4/ There is some controversy over whether Lockhart said that the steward must notify him as well as the immediate supervisor under Article 9, Section 7 in order to follow proper protocol. The record supports the finding that Lockhart at least implied that under certain circumstances the steward was expected to advise him when leaving the work area re the details of the union representation as set forth under the contract. Further, Duff so understood Lockhart and objected to being required to report to the manager.

5/ When Duff failed to appear at 12:30, Lockhart sent for Mayberry to discuss a proposed dismissal of employee Franklin.

When Mayberry returned to the meeting, Gulden was no longer present and the other two participants were discussing Article 9, Section 7 of the contract. She remarked that she was following the contract, and Lockhart continued to state there would be disciplinary action if they did not follow proper protocol. The manager also referred to the fact that he was an ex-union man but never got a promotion until he left the union.

About 20 minutes after Mayberry returned from the ladies' room the vice-president of Complainant, Spencer Dowell, and the president of Complainant, Carlton Talbot, arrived on the scene. They appeared in response to the call made at the instance of Mayberry when she left the meeting. When Dowell asked what was the problem, Lockhart replied that the shop steward was not following proper protocol under Article 9, Section 7 of the contract - that Mayberry and Duff had not been reporting to him as outlined in the contract. Dowell remarked they did not have to do so under the particular clause in question; that it didn't apply to Lockhart but just to a first line supervisor and a rare occasion when the Manager was "in the picture". 6/

Conclusions

In asserting a violation of Section 19(a)(6) of the Order herein, Complainant makes two principle contentions: (1) Under Section 10(e) of the Order the Respondent was obliged, but failed, to notify the union of the meeting held in Lockhart's office on October 22, 1975 regarding the alleged refusal by the shop steward to follow Article 9, Section 7 of the contract; (2) Respondent denied union representation to its employees during their discussion with Management at the aforesaid meeting regarding their alleged refusal to abide by the said contract provision.

(1) It is specifically provided under Section 10(e) of the Order that an exclusive representative must be given the opportunity to be represented at formal discussion between management and employees or their representatives regarding grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions of unit employees. This section has been construed to require an employer to notify and inform an exclusive representative of meetings with grievants relating to the processing of grievances filed with an Agency under an Agency grievance procedure. Internal Revenue Service, Southeast Service Center, Chamblee, Georgia, A/SLMR No. 448. See also Federal Aviation Administration, National Aviation Facilities, Experimental Center, Atlantic City, New Jersey, A/SLMR No. 438.

Complainant herein considers that the discussions at the October 22, meeting regarding the interpretation of Article 9, Section 7 of the contract was of such a nature as to require notification be given by Respondent to it. While the obligation of an employer to give notification under Section 10(e) is bottomed on the type of discussions occurring at the meeting, i.e., formal or informal, I do not deem it necessary to determine whether the meeting on October 22 involved a formal discussion under said Section of the Order. The meeting on that date was originally scheduled at the request of shop steward Duff to discuss his particular work schedule. At that stage the discussion did not pertain to conditions of employment affecting unit employees in general so as to require the presence of the collective bargaining representative, nor was any attempt made by the employee to obtain the union. When the parties discussed the failure of the shop steward to follow the contract and report as required therein, accompanied by threatened disciplinary action, notification to the union may have been in order so as to afford the bargaining agent an opportunity to represent the stewards in the discussion with management. However, Complainant was, in fact, made aware of the meeting and discussion on October 22 re Article 9, Section 7 of the contract. President Talbot and Vice-President Dowell of the union were in fact notified of the meeting, albeit not by management at the initial instance. They both attended the meeting and participated in the discussions concerning the failure to follow the contractual provision dealing with leaving work to attend to union business.

Under these circumstances I am persuaded that Complainant had sufficient notice of the meeting and became aware of the issue which was under discussion. See Southeast Exchange Region, Army and Air Force Exchange Service, Rosewood Warehouse, Columbia, South Carolina, A/SLMR No. 656. Although the union did not receive formal notification, the record demonstrates that Complainant had actual knowledge of the October 22 meeting. Accordingly, I find no merit to the allegation that Respondent's failure to send a formal notice to Complainant was a violation of Section 19(a)(1) or (6) of the Order.

(2) Complainant lays particular stress upon NLRB v. Weingarten, 420 U.S. 251 (1975) in asserting that employees Duff and Mayberry were denied union representation at the October 22 meeting in violation of the Order. The cited case involved the right of an employee in the private sector to union representation during an interview conducted with supervisory personnel. The Supreme Court acknowledged this right in certain instances where the employee requests such representation when an investigation is likely to result in disciplinary action. Subsequent to the Weingarten decision, the Federal Labor Relations Council in FLRC No. 75P-2, December 7, 1976, issued a policy statement regarding the right of an employee in an exclusive recognition unit to be assisted by the bargaining representative when summoned to a meeting or interview with agency management. In sum, it stated that, under Section 10(e) of the Order, when such an employee is summoned to a formal, decision with management concerning grievances, personnel policies - practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions of employees in the unit, he is entitled to such assistance or representation. 7/

While it is clear that Duff and Mayberry would have been entitled to union representation if the October 22 meeting be deemed a formal discussion, 8/ I am persuaded, upon receiving the record herein, that there was no denial of union assistance by Respondent.

The statement by Duff to Lockhart that he would need union representation, although ignored by the manager, was not, in my opinion, a specific request to Respondent for the attendance of union officials. Moreover, Mayberry's request to make a phone call, without specifying that she intended to contact the union and seek representation, was not sufficiently clear and specific so as to constitute a request for such aid.

7/ The Council also declared that the Weingarten case did not compel a contrary conclusion, emphasizing the fact that the provisions and purposes of the Order are dissimilar from thos of the Labor Management Relations Act. Further, it noted that since the Council rather than the National Labor Relations Board, is responsible for administering the Order, there is no obligation to defer to the NLRB ruling in Weingarten.

8/ In view of my conclusion that these employees were not denied representation, I do not pass upon whether the discussion re the failure to follow the contract by these individuals was a formal one under 10(e) of the Order.

Apart from the question of whether Duff and Mayberry did, in fact, ask the manager to have union representation, the record reflects that the president and vice-president of Complainant came to the meeting on October 22. Moreover, vice-president Dowell discussed the controversial issue with Lockhart, and the union official interceded on behalf of the employees whose conduct was being questioned. Under such circumstances, and especially since there was complete participation by Complainant at this meeting - with no attempt by the activity to bar or exclude the union agents therefrom - I am convinced that Respondent did not deny Duff and Mayberry union representation at the October 22, 1975 meeting. Accordingly, I conclude Respondent did not violate Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

RECOMMENDATION

Having found that Respondent did not violate Sections 19 (a)(1) and (6) of the Order as alleged, I recommend that the complaint herein be dismissed in its entirety.

A/SLMR No. 838

This case involved unfair labor practice complaints filed by an individual against the Veterans Administration Hospital, St. Louis, Missouri (Activity) and the American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 1715 (AFGE). Essentially, the Complainant alleged that the Activity violated Section 19(a)(1), (2) and (3) of the Order and the AFGE violated Section 19(b)(1) of the Order by interfering with the Complainant's right to file a grievance, and, further, that the Activity harassed the Complainant following the filing of her grievance.

The Administrative Law Judge found that there was insufficient evidence to establish that the Activity failed to process the Complainant's grievance properly. The record revealed that in July 1975, the Complainant filed an informal grievance but failed to specify whether it was being filed under the agency or the negotiated grievance procedure. When the Activity subsequently learned that the Complainant desired to have her grievance processed under the negotiated procedure, the Activity complied without prejudice to the Complainant and processed it accordingly. Similarly, the Administrative Law Judge found that there was insufficient evidence that the AFGE had acted arbitrarily or in bad faith with respect to the handling of the grievance. In this regard, the record indicated that throughout the filing and processing of the grievance, the Complainant was assisted by an AFGE steward. Finally, the Administrative Law Judge found there was insufficient evidence to support the allegations of harassment and recommended that the complaints be dismissed in their entirety.

Noting particularly the absence of exceptions, the Assistant Secretary adopted the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge and ordered that the complaints be dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION

Preliminary Statement

This proceeding arises under the provisions of Executive Order 11491, as amended (hereinafter referred to as the Order). Pursuant to the Regulations of the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations (hereinafter referred to as the Assistant Secretary), the captioned cases were consolidated for hearing and a notice of hearing on the complaints issued on September 3, 1976 with reference to alleged violations of 19(a)(1)(2)(3) and 19(b)(1) of the Order. The complaints, filed by Alice A. Frealy, an individual (hereinafter sometimes referred to as Complainant), alleged in substance that the Veterans Administration, Veterans Administration Hospital, St. Louis, Missouri (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the Activity) and American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Local Union 1715 (hereinafter sometimes referred to as the Union) violated the Order by their failure to properly process a grievance filed by Complainant as well as harassing Complainant because she filed the grievance.

At the hearing held on October 19, 1976 in St. Louis, Missouri all parties appeared and were afforded full opportunity to adduce evidence, call, examine and cross-examine witnesses and argue orally.

Upon the entire record in this matter and from my evaluation of the evidence and observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following:

Findings of Fact

At all times relevant hereto Respondent Local Union 1715 and American Federation of Government Employees, Local Union 2139 represented various of the Activity's employees who worked at the Veteran Administration's John Cochran Division and Jefferson Barracks Division. The two hospitals are in the St. Louis, Missouri area approximately twenty miles apart.

Alice Frealy was employed at Jefferson Barracks as a medical technician until transferring to Cochran in April 1973. Local Union 1715 serviced employees at Jefferson Barracks and Local Union 2139 serviced Cochran employees. While working at Jefferson Barracks, Frealy was a member of Local Union 1715 and when she transferred to Cochran she retained her membership in that organization.

The Grievance

In early July 1975 Alice Frealy returned from a vacation to discover she was being reassigned to another job at Cochran. While on vacation Frealy's job in the serology section was redesignated, posted as a vacancy and filled by another employee. Upon returning to work, Dr. Eugenia Parker, Acting Chief of Laboratory Services, informed Frealy that she was reassigned to the hospital's hematology section. Frealy protested the action and on July 7, 1975 telephoned Personnel Officer James Crews and requested a meeting on the matter. Frealy told Crews that she wanted a union steward to be present "in case this is a union thing." She also advised Crews she would be accompanied by Mrs. Rose Wuellner. 1/ Thereafter, Frealy called Local 1715 and asked to be assigned a steward for the meeting. Local 1715 provided Frealy with steward Harold Drake and on that same day Frealy, Wuellner and Drake met with Crews.

At the meeting held in Crews' office on July 7, 1975 the parties discussed in considerable detail the circumstances relative to Ms. Frealy's reassignment. During the discussion Frealy complained of her job being posted as a vacancy. Crews explained that Frealy's job description was that of a rotating technician and the position in the serology laboratory which was posted as a vacancy was actually newly created. Frealy responded that she thought the Activity's actions were unfair and she intended to file a grievance on the matter. Union steward Drake commented that he thought that Frealy was the object of a "personal vendetta" and he would stand by her if she wished to file a grievance. Crews questioned Drake's participation in the matter and told Drake he could put him out of the office. Frealy stated that she did not want Drake to leave and Wuellner added that Crews could not eject Drake since Frealy was entitled to whomever she wished to represent her. Crews announced that the discussion was getting nowhere and told Frealy to file a grievance if she so desired. Frealy replied she thought that might be the best course of action and the meeting ended.

On July 11, 1975 Frealy presented Acting Chief of Laboratory Services Eugenia Parker with a memorandum dated July 9 captioned "Notice of Informal Grievance Due to Change in Duty Assignment." 2/ The memorandum did not indicate whether Frealy was invoking the grievance procedure set forth in the negotiated agreement in effect at the time or the agency's administrative grievance procedure. Therefore on July 16, 1975 in response to the "Notice of Informal Grievance", Acting Chief Parker met with Frealy in Parker's office. 3/ Also present were Administrative Officer John Shalhoob, Lois Pillars, supervisor of the hematology section and Rose Wuellner who was invited by Frealy to accompany her. No union representative was present nor did Frealy state that she desired to have a union steward or representative to assist her. 4/ Although the reassignment was discussed,the matter was not resolved to Frealy's satisfaction. By letter from Parker to Frealy dated July 24, 1975, Parker summerized what had occurred at the meeting, 5/ and concluded by stating that Frealy, if not satisfied with the Activity's decision, had the right to present her grievance under the "formal grievance procedure" as set forth in "VA Employees Letter 00-75-3 dated April 28, 1975." 6/

2/ Copies of the memorandum were sent to Crews, John Shalhoob, Administrative Officer, Jeanne Maddern, Microbiology Supervisor (Frealy's immediate supervisor in the serology section prior to Frealy's reassignment) and "Harold Drake, AFGE Local 1715". Upon receiving a copy of this document Maddern informed Frealy that there was nothing she (Maddern) could do about it.

3/ I assume that the meeting was called by Parker.

4/ Frealy testified that it was her belief that it was the Activity's responsibility to notify the Union of the meeting.

5/ Parker's letter indicated that although Frealy was on vacation during the posting period set forth in the vacancy announcement, her name was nevertheless submitted as an eligible candidate for the position.

6/ The cited letter reflects the agency's administrative grievance procedure.

Upon receipt of the Activity's response dated July 24, Ms. Frealy contacted Union steward Drake and met with him at her home in the presence of Mrs. Wuellner. At Frealy's request Drake provided Frealy with American Federation of Government Employees, (AFGE) grievance forms. The forms provided, inter alia, spaces for the following information: date incident occurred; date presented to supervisor; name of immediate supervisor; statement of grievance by employee; sections of the contract or agency regulations or CSC, law, or Executive Order which apply; other related incidents etc; and what adjustment was expected. After Drake informed Frealy that he had no prior experience assisting in the preparation of a grievance form, 7/ he and Frealy went through the negotiated agreement including the grievance procedure section, and picked out what sections of the agreement they thought were applicable. Drake signed some forms and told Frealy to type the grievance and he would later pick it up and have the grievance reviewed for proper preparation,which he subsequently did.

On July 30, 1976, Ms. Frealy mailed the grievance to Dr. Parker with copies to Crews, Prentice Davis, President of Local 1715 and AFGE National Represenative William Martin. On August 5 Frealy left a copy of the grievance at the office of Dr. Ralph Biddy, Hospital Chief of Staff, and on August 14 mailed a copy of the grievance to Dr. Joseph Mackney, the Hospital Director. There is no evidence that Frealy had any contact with either the Activity or the Union concerning the grievance between July 30 and August 14. However, by letter dated August 8 the Activity, following procedures outlined under its administrative grievance procedure, forwarded Frealy's grievance to VA Central Office, Washington, D.C. for a determination on the merit. 8/

7/ While Drake was representing Frealy in this matter Drake had the impression that Frealy was not satisfied with his competency. Accordingly,on numerous occasions Drake informed Frealy that, if she desired, she could have another union representative if she felt he was inadequate or not satisfactorily acting on her behalf. Frealy at all times declined the offer.

8/ Personnel Officer Crews testified that although he observed that the grievance was submitted on an AFGE grievance form and should have contacted Frealy to inquire whether there was some mistake in the matter, he nevertheless did not contact Frealy and felt "compelled" to route the grievance through the administrative grievance procedure. Crews could give no better explanation of his actions in this matter.

On August 15, 1975 Ms. Frealy called Union steward Drake and inquired about the status of her grievance. Apparently Drake had been in contact with Crews and accordingly told Frealy that Crews told him he was going to send the grievance "to Washington". Frealy commented that the negotiated grievance procedure did not provide for such action and asked Drake why Crews was sending the grievance to Washington. Drake answered he did not know and Frealy asked him to "find out". Drake indicated he couldn't discover the reason.

Ms. Frealy then called Local 1715 President Davis and asked him why management was sending the grievance to Washington. Davis indicated that all he was able to ascertain was that the grievance was being sent to Central Office Washington "for investigation". Frealy stated she did not want to have her grievance sent to Central Office and asked Davis to stop management from following that course of action. Davis replied that the grievance had already been sent.

According to Personnel Officer Crews,around this period of time he became aware of Ms. Frealy's strong desire to have her grievance processed through the negotiated procedure. Crews asked Union steward Drake to contact Frealy to confirm his understanding of Frealy's wishes in the matter. Crews asked Drake to obtain a signed statement from Frealy regarding her desires.

On August 25, 1975 Drake called Frealy, related to her of his conversation with Crews and told her Crews felt that under the negotiated grievance procedure Frealy would surely lose her grievance. Drake asked if he could stop by Frealy's house to have her sign a statement changing her grievance to an administrative grievance. Frealy told Drake that she had no confidence in Crews' "good faith" and preferred taking her chances under the negotiated grievance procedure. Thereafter, on that same day Drake reported his conversation with Frealy to Crews and Crews telephoned Frealy to confirm that she did not wish her grievance processed through the administrative grievance procedure. Frealy insisted she wished to keep her grievance under the negotiated procedure and Crews informed her that the grievance had already been sent to Washington Central Office. Frealy asked "why" since that step was not part of the negotiated procedure and Crews merely replied that was the way the Activity was processing the grievance. 9/

In this same period of time Frealy called AFGE National Representative William Martin and complained to him that she felt management had frightened Drake and he was no longer giving her proper assistance in the matter.

On or about August 26 or 27, 1975 Crews, at his request, met with National Representative Martin, Local 2039 President William Johnson, Local 1715 President Davis and Local 1715 steward Drake. At the meeting Martin indicated that it was not union policy to discuss the merits of a grievance outside the presence of the grievant. However Martin asserted that the Activity had no right or authority to send Frealy's grievance to VA Central Office under the administrative grievance procedure and requested its return to the facility for processing under the negotiated procedures. Crews replied that the Activity was in the process of having Frealy's grievance returned and raised the question as to which local union was Frealy's exclusive representative. It was agreed by all that it would be appropriate for Local Union 1715 to represent Frealy. Crews left the union representatives alone for awhile and upon returning was informed by the Union that as they saw the question, the negotiated grievance procedure was not applicable to Frealy's grievance since that procedure was only applicable to matters of interpretation and application of the agreement and not to such a matter raised in Frealy's grievance.

By letter dated August 27, 1975 the Activity requested that VA Central Office return Frealy's grievance to the Activity for processing under the negotiated procedure. There were no further actions taken in this matter until October 2, 1975 when Ms. Frealy filed against the Activity and the Union the unfair labor practice charges which gave rise to these proceedings. Thereafter the grievance file was returned from D.C. Central Office on October 3, 1976 10/ and on October 8 the Activity issued it's third step decision under the negotiated grievance procedure denying Frealy's grievance. That decision stated, inter alia:

9/ Frealy testified that at this point she began to suspect that her grievance was not being processed under the negotiated procedures or that the agency personnel office was merely "letting it lie".

10/ No reason was given for the delay in return of the grievance from D.C. Central Office.

"2. We are now at step 3 of the negotiated grievance procedure, Article XVI of our Agreement, which provides that the negotiated procedure will be the sole procedure for processing grievances over the interpretation or application of the Negotiate Agreement and may not be used for any other matters.

3. It is my decision that your grievance over rotation in your work assignment must be denied as not being in violation of Article XIII, Section 1, Article XV, Sections 1,2 and 4 and Article XVI, A, Step 2, as cited by you." 11/

Thereafter, Frealy made no timely effort to notify the Union of the decision, request the Union to proceed to arbitration on the grievance 12/ or pursue the matter further. However, by letter dated December 5, 1975 Frealy, through her personal attorney, requested the Union proceed to arbitration. Local 1715 President Davis called Frealy's attorney and told him that he had not previously heard from Frealy on the subject, that he was without authority to pass on the request and a decision to arbitrate a grievance must be approved by the members of the Union. The attorney indicated he would talk to Ms. Frealy but Davis had no further communication from him.

11/ Article XIII, Section 1 refers to the rights and procedures involved in the Union President leaving his work area to attend neetings and consultations.

Article XV (Supervisors Employee Relations), Sections 1, 2 and 4 concern Section Chiefs' and supervisors' obligations relative to compliance with the negotiated agreement and discussions and communications with employees.

Article XVI (Grievance Procedure), A, Step 2 is set forth, infra.

12/ Under the negotiated agreement only the Union or the Activity may invoke arbitration.

Relevant Negotiated and Administrative Grievance Provisions

The negotiated agreement provides a four step grievance procedure culminating in arbitration. Under the negotiated procedure an employee may pursue a grievance without representation but the Union "should" be given an opportunity to be present at each step. The pre-arbitration steps of the procedure state as follows:

"Step 1 In the event an employee has a grievance, he shall have the right to present the grievance to his immediate supervisor orally or in writing within fifteen (15) calendar days of the date the employee has knowledge of the action or first learned (sic) by the employee. The grievance will be discussed informally with the Supervisor. The Supervisor will make every effort to resolve the grievance immediately but must provide an answer within ten (10) calendar days. This answer will be oral unless the employee has presented the grievance in writing.

"Step 2 - If the grievance is not satisfactorily resolved it may be presented to the Service Chief in writing within ten (10) calendar days of the supervisor's decision. The grievance must state the section or sections of the agreement the party feels have been violated, the nature of of the violation and the corrective action desired. The Service Chief shall answer, in writing, within ten (10) calendar days.

"Step 3 - If the grievance is not satisfactorily resolved at Step 2, it may be presented to the Hospital Director in writing within seven (7) calendar days of the decision of the Service Chief. The Hospital Director will issue a decision within ten (10) calendar days."

The agreement also provides:

"C. Compliance with Time Limitations. Failure of the Supervisor or the Service Chief to answer grievance within the time limits will permit the grievance to be referred to the next succeeding step of the procedure. Failure of the employee or the Union to take action within the procedure time for each step gives the Employer the right to cancel the grievance. Extensions of time limitations may be granted by mutual consent for good cause provided the request is made within the initial time limitations."

The Activity's administrative grievance machinery is divided into an informal and a formal procedure. The informal procedure provides for the oral or written presentation of the grievance to the grievant's immediate supervisor or any of various other management representatives so selected by the employee with fifteen calendar days after the incident occurred or was first learned. If the matter is beyond the supervisor's control, the supervisor will refer it to the proper authority and an answer "should" be provided by that official within ten days from the day the grievance was presented. If the grievance is denied under the informal procedure, the employee is to be advised of his right to present the grievance under the formal grievance procedure.

The formal grievance procedure requires the filing of a written grievance within ten days after notification of the answer under the informal procedure. The formal grievance, "normally" submitted through the employees immediate supervisor, is required to contain sufficient detail to identify and clarify the basis for the grievance, the personal relief requested, information relative to the action being grieved, pertinent dates, reasons supporting the position taken and the specific policy, written agreement, or provision violated and the corrective action sought. If the grievance is not informally resolved the grievance is to be referred to V.A. Central Office for inquiry by an examiner within ten days from the date the employee filed the formal grievance with the immediate supervisor.

The Alleged Harassment

Ms. Frealy contends that because she filed the grievance described above, the Activity engaged in various acts of harassment which included: 1) protecting an employee who threatened her life; 2) the manner in which various of her personal belongings left in the serology lab when she was transferred were subsequently brought to her and; 3) receipt by Ms. Frealy from an undisclosed sender on August 20, 1975, copies of two memoranda Frealy sent to various of the Activity's supervisory or management personnel in February and March 1975 complaining of possible illegal conduct in the serology lab. 13/

13/ I find the record contains insufficient evidence to support the allegation that the matters set forth in items 2 and 3 constituted violations of the Order. Accordingly, said conduct will not be treated further in this decision.

With regard to the threat incident, in the afternoon of August 5, 1975 a male employee in the hemotology section at Cochran Hospital threatened to take violent action against Ms. Frealy if she was not removed from the section. The section supervisor, Lois Pillars immediately took the employee to Administrative Officer John Shalhoob and reported the incident. Shalhoob informed Pillars that he would take the matter up with the Chief of Laboratory Services. Frealy was quite apprehensive over the incident and, upon her request, also met with Shalhoob. During their meeting Shalhoob asked Frealy if she had any suggestions as to how to deal with the situation. Frealy suggested that she be transferred. At this point it was late in the day and Shalhoob told Frealy to report to him in the morning and he would settle the matter.

Ms. Frealy did not report for work on the following day. Instead, she telephoned Union steward Drake explained the situation and asked him to intervene on her behalf to get the matter "straightened out". Drake then called Shalhoob, informed him that Frealy was in fear of her life and requested a meeting. A meeting was arranged for later that day and Drake told Shalhoob that he would act as Frealy's representative at the meeting.

In the meantime Ms. Frealy and her brother met with Shalhoob and discussed the matter. Frealy's brother wanted some assurance that no harm would come to his sister and the matter would be satisfactorily settled. Shalhoob explained that he was going to consult with the Chief of Laboratory Services and that a meeting had been arranged at Drake's request. He also conveyed that something definite would be done to resolve the situation and the Activity would, to the best of their ability, see to it that no harm came to Ms. Frealy while on duty.

Thereafter, Frealy called Prentice Davis, President of Local 1715 concerning the threat on her life. Frealy indicated that she and her brother desired to attend the scheduled meeting. Davis replied that while Frealy could probably attend, it was questionable whether management would permit her brother to be present at the meeting. Frealy replied that since the individual who threatened her would be present at the meeting, she would not like to attend without her brother. Davis informed Frealy that it would be to her own best interest to be at this meeting but didn't feel that management would permit her brother's presence. Frealy again explained that she couldn't go to the meeting unless she had her brother with her.

That same day Shalhoob met with the Chief of Laboratory Services and together they decided that the individual who threated Frealy should immediately be transferred from Cochran Hospital to Jefferson Barracks. Shalhoob then met with Drake, Davis, the employee who made the threat and a supervisor. Davis questioned why Frealy was not present and Shalhoob answered he thought it was in Frealy's best interest not to be present when the employee who threatened her was there. In any event, after the parties reviewed the facts of the incident the Union urged some immediate action be taken due to the serious nature of the situation. Shalhoob informed those in attendance that the employee who made the threat would immediately be transferred to Jefferson Barracks.

After the meeting Drake phoned Frealy and informed her of how the matter was resolved. Frealy gave no indication that she was dissatisfied with the ultimate disposition but did convey to Drake her displeasure with the meeting having occurred without her being present. 14/

Discussion and Conclusions

Essentially, Ms. Frealy contends that the Activity violated the Order by its failure to properly process her grievance and the Union violated the Order by failing to give her fair and full representation in the matter. According to Frealy, the alleged harassment would not have occurred but for her filing the grievance. The allegations are denied and I conclude the evidence is insufficient to establish a violation of the Order.

Prior to Frealy filing her grievance on the AFGE form, it was reasonable for the Activity to assume from the attendant circumstances that Frealy wished to have her grievance processed through the administrative grievance procedure. Thus, the negotiated and administrative grievance procedures are quite similar in the early steps. Frealy was accompanied by Rose Wuellner during both the July 7 and July 16 grievance discussions with the Activity, indeed without any union representative present during the July 16 meeting. Since under the administrative procedure a grievant may be accompanied by a personal representative during such discussions and absent a specific oral or written designation by Frealy that she was using the negotiated procedure, it is understandable that the Activity might have concluded that Frealy wished to invoke the administrative grievance procedure. This is especially true since the Activity was of the opinion that the matter Frealy was seeking to grieve was not cognizable as a grievance under the negotiated procedure, a conclusion in which the Union later concurred. Indeed, the Activity's July 24, 1975 answer to Frealy's informal grievance reflects the belief that up to that point in time, the Activity assumed the matter was being pursued under the administrative procedure.

14/ Unknown to either the Union or Frealy, within a few days after the meeting described above the Activity gave the individual who threatened Frealy a letter of admonishment relative to his improper conduct.

However, I am at a loss to understand why Crews, after receiving Frealy's grievance on the AFGE grievance form continued in the belief that Frealy wished to pursue the matter through the administrative grievance procedure. Crews never adequately explained his behavior on this subject. Perhaps the strength of his conviction that the agreement did not apply to the matter being grieved clouded his judgment. In any event, when the Union pressed the issue and Crews clearly ascertained that Frealy strongly wished to have her grievance considered under the negotiated procedure, the error was corrected with no prejudice to the grievant. The grievance was then withdrawn from the administrative channel and considered under the negotiated procedure, which was what the grievant desired.

While interference with the processing of a grievance under a negotiated grievance procedure has been found to be violative of the Order, 15/ the Assistant Secretary has stated that a test of reasonableness would be applied on a case by case basis in assessing conduct with regard thereto. 16/ Accordingly, absent evidence that the Activity harbored hostility against Frealy because she filed the grievance or engaged in other Activity protected by the Order and in all the circumstances herein, 17/ I conclude that insufficient evidence exists to support the allegation that the Activity's conduct in processing Ms. Frealy's grievance violated the Order. Further, I find no evidence that the Activity was in any manner responsible for the threat made to Ms. Frealy by another employee at the facility. Nor do I find that the Activity's conduct with regard to resolving that matter was in any manner violative of the Order.

Turning now to the complaint against the Union, it is well established in the private sector that an exclusive collective bargaining representative has, as a correlative to its right to represent the employees in a bargaining unit, an obligation or duty of fair representation to those employees. This duty of fair representation includes the obligation to serve the interests of all members without hostility or discrimination, to exercise its discretion with complete good faith and honesty and to avoid arbitrary conduct. 18/ However, since the phrase is a legal term of art incapable of precise definition, it is necessary to examine the facts of each case to determine whether the duty of fair representation has been breached. 19/ Further, although a union may not arbitrarily ignore a grievance or handle it in a perfunctory manner, 20/ a union is given a wide range of latitude and substantial discretion in fulfilling its responsibilities as collective bargaining representative. 21/ Thus, it has been held that a union does not breach its duty of fair representation by merely refusing to take a grievance to arbitration 22/ and is given the discretion of which grievances it will pursue to justify the expense and time involved. 23/ Further, it has been held that the test in determining whether a union breached its duty of fair representation in processing a grievance is not whether a particular union representative was unwise in his judgment or negligent and therefore represented an employee inadequately, but rather, whether the representative acted in bad faith or in an arbitrary manner. 24/

In the Federal sector as in the private sector, recognition of a union as exclusive collective bargaining representative carries with it the obligation to represent all employees in the appropriate unit. 25/ It follows therefore that under the Order unions have a duty of fair representation similar to that in the private sector. 26/

Evaluating Respondent Union's conduct by the criteria set forth above, and in all the circumstances herein, I find insufficient evidence of Union hostility or discrimination against Frealy, arbitrariness or lack of good faith in pursuing her grievance, or handling it in a perfunctory fashion. Up to and including the preparation of the grievance on the AFGE grievance form, the Union provided Ms. Frealy with whatever assistance or representation she sought. 27/ As to the grievance form, although the sections of the agreement noted thereon do not appear to be particularly applicable to the transfer Frealy was grieving, there is no showing that any other sections of agreement were more applicable to Frealy's situation. Indeed, the Union agreed with management that the negotiated agreement would be an inappropriate vehicle to support Frealy's protest of the transfer.

Drake was not familiar with the steps in the negotiated or administrative grievance procedure. Therefore, his confused actions with regard to the Activity's sending Frealy's grievance "to Washington" and the implications of that step are understandable. Frealy was informed of Drake's lack of familiarity with grievance handling and was specifically invited to replace Drake as her representative if she was displeased with him. This she refused to do. In any event, when Frealy's desires became clear to the Union it acted to have the grievance processed in compliance with Frealy's wishes. Moreover, no prejudice was visited upon Frealy due to the Union's actions or inactions.

25/ See Section 10(a) and (e) of the Order.

26/ Cf. American Federation of Government Employees, Local 2028, (Veteran's Administration Hospital, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania), A/SLMR No. 431.

27/ I find insufficient evidence exists to support Ms. Frealy's contention that the Union failed to respond to telephone calls allegedly made to various Union representatives.

RECOMMENDATION

I recommend the complaints herein be dismissed in their entirety.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNIT
OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION,
ST. LAWRENCE SEAWAY DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION
A/SLMR No. 839

This case involved a petition for clarification of unit (CU) filed by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 1968, AFL-CIO (AFGE) seeking clarification with respect to the status of various employee classifications in the AFGE's exclusively recognized unit at the Activity.

With respect to all but one of the job classifications covered by the CU petition, the Assistant Secretary noted that during the course of the hearing the parties stipulated as to their status. In these circumstances, he concluded that the agreement of the parties constituted, in effect, a withdrawal request of the petition insofar as it sought clarification with respect to the agreed upon classifications. With the exception of two alleged supervisory positions in which the evidence was insufficient to make a finding as to their supervisory status, and in the absence of any evidence that the remainder of the parties' agreement was improper, the Assistant Secretary approved the withdrawal request. As to the remaining job classification--that of Vessel Traffic Controller--the Assistant Secretary found that the employees in the job classification were not supervisors within the meaning of the Order and should be included in the exclusively recognized unit.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary clarified the unit consistent with his findings.

Case No. 35-3870(CU)

DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNIT

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer John Nuchereno. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in this case, the Assistant Secretary finds:

The Petitioner, American Federation of Government Employees, Local 1968, AFL-CIO, herein called AFGE, filed a petition seeking to clarify the status of certain employee positions at the Activity where it is the exclusive representative. The unit description, as set forth in the parties' negotiated agreement, consists of all employees of the Activity, "excluding managerial officials, supervisors, those employees designated by the Activity as professional employees, employees who assist and act in confidential capacities to persons who formulate and effectuate management policies in the field of labor relations, and employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity." 1/

The St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation, a wholly owned, self-sustaining government enterprise, was established in 1954 and is presently an operating administration of the Department of Transportation.

1/ The record reflects that the AFGE was recognized as the exclusive bargaining representative for all eligible employees of the Activity on August 9, 1962.

It is responsible for the development, operation and maintenance of that part of the Seaway between Montreal and Lake Erie within the territorial limits of the United States. The record reveals that the Activity is represented in Washington, D.C., by an Administrator and his personal staff while most of its approximately 185 employees are centered at its operating headquarters at Massena, New York, which is directed by the Associate Administrator/Resident Manager. The Massena office is organizationally divided into seven component offices, the Office of Administration; the Office of Procurement/Supply; the Public Information Office; the Office of Engineering; the Office of Marine Services; the Office of Maintenance; and the Office of Lock Operations, all of which report directly to the Resident Manager.

At the hearing, the parties stipulated as to the status of all but one of the petitioned for employee positions. 2/

The evidence indicates that the sole disputed position--Vessel Traffic Controllers--are the senior members in each of the four three-man teams which operate in eight-hour shifts, twenty-four hours a day. In this regard, the Vessel Traffic Controller, who is directly responsible to the Operations Superintendant, oversees the activities of the Vessel Traffic Control Center and acts as a senior employee with respect to two subordinates, the Vessel Traffic Controller (Lakes) and Vessel Traffic Assistant, in directing the transit of vessels and cargoes along 140 miles of river and 15 river ports. However, the evidence establishes that, in general, his subordinates work within well-established procedures and are able to perform their duties, for the most part, without the direction of the Vessel Traffic Controller. The record indicates also that the incumbent controllers devote only up to approximately 25 percent of their work time directing their subordinates. It is contended that

2/ The parties stipulated that employees in certain classifications included in the petition, and separately listed in the attached Appendix A, were supervisory or confidential employees, or employees engaged in Federal personnel work and, therefore, were excluded from the unit. They stipulated also that certain other employee classifications should not be excluded from the unit. There is no record evidence that the stipulations with respect to the employee classifications listed in Appendix A were improper. It should be noted that such stipulations, in the context of a unit clarification petition, are viewed as a motion to amend the petition to delete and, in effect, withdraw such stipulated classifications. Under these circumstances, I grant the motion to amend and, therefore, find it unnecessary to clarify the status of those stipulated classifications listed in Appendix A. Cf. New Jersey Department of Defense, A/SLMR No. 121.

the incumbent controllers have prepared performance evaluations for their subordinates, have effectively participated in hiring and promotion decisions, have approved annual and sick leave, and, under the Activity's interpretation of the parties' negotiated agreement, can adjust grievances as a first-line supervisor. However, the evidence establishes that they participate in hiring and promotion decisions as panel members only, that such leave as they approve is done with the concurrence of their supervisor, and that up to the present time they have not resolved any grievances under the parties' negotiated agreement, nor have they been requested to do so.

Under the circumstances outlined above, I find that the Vessel Traffic Controller has a senior-to-junior employee relationship with respect to his subordinates and that his duties are essentially routine in nature, performed within well-established guidelines, and do not require the use of independent judgment. Consequently, I conclude that an employee in the classification of Vessel Traffic Controller is not a supervisor within the meaning of the Order and should be included in the exclusively recognized unit.

2/ With respect to the job classifications of Relief Lockage Supervisor (the name of this classification appears as amended at the hearing), and Tugboat Mate, the parties stipulated that the employees in those positions served as supervisors only in the absence of the Lockage Supervisor and Tugboat Master respectively. The Assistant Secretary has indicated that with respect to employees who perform supervisory functions on an intermittent basis, the facts of each case shall determine their supervisory status. See Department of Interior, Bureau of Land Management, District Office, Lakeview, Oregon, A/SLMR No. 212, at footnote 8. In the instant proceeding, the evidence is insufficient to establish the periods for which the Relief Lockage Supervisor may exercise any supervisory authority and it appears that such authority is exercised only on an infrequent and intermittent basis. In connection with the Tugboat Mate, there is no record evidence to indicate how often an employee in this classification acts in a supervisory status. Thus, the record does not clearly establish the extent to which the Relief Lockage Supervisor and the Tugboat Mate exercise supervisory authority. Accordingly, I shall make no finding as to their supervisory status. Cf. Department of Transportation, United States Coast Guard Support Center, Third District, Governors Island, New York, A/SLMR No. 785, and Army and Air Force Exchange Service, Richards-Gebaur Consolidated Exchange, Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base, Missouri, A/SLMR No. 219.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the unit sought to be clarified herein, for which the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 1968, AFL-CIO, was recognized on August 9, 1962, be, and hereby is, clarified by including in said unit employees assigned to the position classified as Vessel Traffic Controller.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNIT
OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE
DEPENDENTS SCHOOLS, EUROPE,
[BRINDISI SCHOOL]
A/SLMR No. 840

This case involved a petition for clarification of unit (CU) filed by the Overseas Education Association, National Education Association (OEA), and a representation petition (RO) filed by the Overseas Federation of Teachers, American Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO (OFT). Essentially, the OEA sought to clarify its existing exclusively recognized bargaining unit to include the nonsupervisory professional school personnel hired as a result of the addition of grade 12 to the Brindisi School. The OFT, on the other hand, sought an election in a unit consisting of all nonsupervisory professional school personnel employed at the Brindisi High School. The OFT argued that the addition of the 12th grade created a new and separate high school which constituted an appropriate unit for the purpose of exclusive recognition. The Activity took a neutral position with respect to both petitions.

The Assistant Secretary found that the addition of grade 12 to the Brindisi School did not result in substantial or material changes in the scope or character of the existing exclusively recognized bargaining unit. In this regard, it was particularly noted that the one professional employee hired as a result of the addition of grade 12 worked in the same physical location as other unit employees, had teaching responsibilities similar to other employees within the unit, was subject to the same overall supervision and shared common personnel policies, practices and essentially the same working conditions. Accordingly, he ordered that the existing exclusively recognized bargaining unit represented by the OEA be clarified to include the employee hired as a result of the addition to the Brindisi School.

With regard to the OFT's representation petition, the Assistant Secretary found that the petition was untimely filed inasmuch as it was not filed during the valid challenge period as provided for in the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. In this connection, the record revealed that the OEA and the Activity were parties to a negotiated agreement which became effective on September 27, 1973, for a two year period and was extended by the parties to September 27, 1976, and that the petition herein was filed on August 17, 1976. Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the OFT's petition be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNIT

Upon petitions duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a consolidated hearing was held before Hearing Officer Carol M. Rollins. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

1/ The name of the Activity in Case No. 22-7428(RO) appears essentially as amended at the hearing.

Upon the entire record in these cases, including a brief filed by the Overseas Federation of Teachers (OFT), the Assistant Secretary finds:

1. The labor organizations involved claim to represent certain employees of the Activity.

2. In Case No. 22-7337(CU), the Overseas Education Association (OEA) seeks to clarify its existing exclusively recognized bargaining unit which currently consists of all nonsupervisory professional school personnel of the Brindisi School in grades kindergarten through 11 to include the personnel hired as a result of the addition of grade 12 to the school. In Case No. 22-7428(RO), the OFT seeks an election in a unit of all nonsupervisory professional school personnel who are employed in the Brindisi High School. Essentially, the OFT argues that the addition of the 12th grade at the Brindisi School resulted in the creation of a new and separate high school which constitutes an appropriate unit for the purpose of exclusive recognition. The Activity took a neutral position with respect to the subject petitions.

In July 1967, the OEA was granted exclusive recognition by the United States Dependents Schools, European Area, for a unit of all nonsupervisory professional school personnel at a number of its overseas dependents schools, including the Brindisi School in Italy. Thereafter, the parties executed a two year negotiated agreement which became effective on September 27, 1973. By mutual assent, the parties extended their agreement to September 27, 1976.

The record indicates that during the school year 1974-75, the Brindisi School consisted of grades kindergarten through 10. Grade 11 was added the following year and, in school year 1976-77, a 12th grade was added. Separate facilities located some 250 yards apart house the elementary and high schools although a new facility currently under construction will house the elementary school, a high school addition, a gymnasium and a cafeteria which will serve all students.

General supervision of the Brindisi School rests with the principal who has delegated the supervision of the elementary school to the deputy principal. The deputy principal can approve leave requests, adjust grievances and complete performance evaluations for those employees under his supervision although the principal retains final authority in these matters.

For the most part, there is a different teaching staff for the elementary and high school portions of the school, although some teachers, notably those for art and music, teach in all grades. Additionally, the Brindisi School employs specialists who do not have classroom teaching responsibilities but, like the school counselor, have responsibilities in all grades. Staffing in the high school for the school year 1976-77 consisted of 12 positions as well as the host nation, art and music teachers. One of these positions was added as a result of the addition of the 12th grade. An orientation week held prior to the current school year was conducted for teachers in all grades and the teachers' handbook encompasses teachers in all grades. The elementary and high school payrolls are submitted jointly to the Activity's Finance and Accounting Office although separate monthly statistical reports are submitted to higher agency management. Separate official bulletin boards are maintained for the elementary and high school teachers, separate faculty meetings are generally held, and, commencing in school year 1976-77, the elementary and high school teachers have been on a different work schedule with the elementary teachers terminating their official work day one hour earlier than the high school teachers. The addition of grade 11 in school year 1975-76 and the subsequent addition of grade 12 the following school year resulted in the addition and expansion of several programs, including a special testing program for high school students, participation in interscholastic sports competition, changes in the physical education program and a wider variety of course offerings in grades 7 through 12.

Based on the foregoing, I find that the addition of grade 12 to the Brindisi School did not result in substantial or material changes in the scope or character of the existing exclusively recognized bargaining unit. It was particularly noted that the one professional employee hired as a result of the addition of grade 12 to the Brindisi School works in the same general location as all other employees, has teaching responsibilities similar to other employees within the unit, is subject to the same general supervision and shares common personnel policies, practices and working conditions with the other employees. Under these circumstances, I find that the newly hired professional employee shares the same community of interest with the other employees in the existing exclusively recognized bargaining unit. Furthermore, in view of the fact that all of the professional employees at the Brindisi School share the same personnel policies and practices and essentially the same conditions of employment, I find that the inclusion of grade 12 into the present unit will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations and prevent unit fragmentation. 2/ Accordingly, I shall order that the existing exclusively recognized bargaining unit represented by the OEA be clarified to include the nonsupervisory professional school personnel hired as a result of the addition of grade 12 to the Brindisi School. 3/

With respect to the OFT's petition in Case No. 22-7428(RO) seeking an election among the nonsupervisory professional school personnel at the Brindisi High School, I find that further processing is barred by the negotiated agreement between the Activity and the OEA which was in effect at the time the instant petition was filed on August 17, 1976, and which, as found above, covered the claimed employees. As noted previously, the OEA and the Activity entered into a negotiated agreement which became effective on September 27, 1973, for a period of two years and was extended by the parties to September 27, 1976. In order to be considered timely, a representation petition must be filed within the valid challenge period as provided for in Section 202.3(c) of the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. 4/ As the instant petition was not filed within the valid challenge period, I shall order that the OFT's petition be dismissed.

2/ Cf. United States Dependents Schools, European Area, Upper Heyford High School, A/SLMR No. 770, and Department of Defense Dependents Schools, Europe, [Sigonella School], A/SLMR No. 825.

3/ In view of the fact that the unit inclusions of the OEA's existing exclusively recognized bargaining unit adequately encompass the above-noted clarification, I find it unnecessary to specify the OEA's clarified unit in terms of the school's grade struoture.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the unit sought to be clarified by the petition in Case No. 22-7337(CU) be, and it hereby is, clarified to include in said unit the nonsupervisory professional school personnel hired as a result of the addition of grade 12 to the Brindisi School.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the petition in Case No. 22-7428(RO) be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY,
INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE,
MANHATTAN DISTRICT
A/SLMR No. 841

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the National Treasury Employees Union, and its Chapter 47 (NTEU) alleging that the Respondent had violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by its refusal to negotiate with the NTEU concerning the impact and implementation of the decision by the Respondent to change the method of filling out the "Daily Location Record" by the revenue agents in the Audit Division.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's findings, based on his credibility resolutions, that on Friday, June 27, 1975, the Respondent advised the NTEU's president that a change in the method of filling out the "Daily Location Record" was going to become effective on July 1, 1975; that following this, the NTEU requested negotiations on the impact and implementation of the Respondent's decision; and that on July 18, 1975, a meeting was held between representatives of the NTEU and the Respondent at which the representatives of the Respondent stated that they were not obliged to negotiate, but would only "discuss" the matter with the NTEU. The meeting concluded when the representatives of the NTEU walked out. The Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Respondent had failed to give the NTEU adequate notice of the change to permit time for the NTEU to consider the change and request bargaining on the implementation and impact of the change, and further that, on July 18, 1975, the Respondent failed in its obligation to bargain about the impact and implementation of the decision to change the method for filling out the "Daily Location Record", thereby violating Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

The Administrative Law Judge's recommended remedy included a rescission of the change in the method of filling out the "Daily Location Record" which, in effect, was a return to the status quo ante. Contrary to the Administrative Law Judge's recommendation, the Assistant Secretary concluded that such an order would not be warranted in this case, which involved conduct occurring in 1975, as such a rescission would not prohibit the Respondent from again changing the method of filling out the "Daily Location Record", after appropriate notification and bargaining with the exclusive representative only with respect to implementation and impact. In his opinion, a remedial order requiring the Respondent to bargain over implementation and impact after an appropriate request by the NTEU, and prohibiting a change in the method of filling out the "Daily Location Record" in the future without appropriate notification and bargaining constituted a satisfactory resolution of the unfair labor practice, and he so ordered.

DECISION AND ORDER

On December 1, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Samuel A. Chaitovitz issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom and take certain affirmative actions as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. Thereafter, the Respondent filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the Complainant filed an answering brief to the Respondent's exceptions.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, including the exceptions and supporting brief filed by the Respondent and the Complainant's answering brief to the Respondent's exceptions, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, 1/ conclusions and recommendations, as modified herein.

1/ The Respondent excepted to certain credibility findings made by the Administrative Law Judge. In Navy Exchange, U.S. Naval Air Station, Quonset Point, Rhode Island, A/SLMR No. 180, the Assistant Secretary held that as a matter of policy he would not overrule an Administrative Law Judge's resolution with respect to credibility unless the preponderance of all the relevant evidence established that such resolution clearly was incorrect. Based on a careful review of the record in this case, I find no basis for reversing the Administrative Law Judge's credibility findings.

The Administrative Law Judge found, and I concur, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to bargain with the Complainant concerning the implementation and impact of the Respondent's decision to change the method of filling out the "Daily Location Record" by the revenue agents in its Audit Division.

In his proposed remedy, the Administrative Law Judge recommended, in effect, a return to the status quo ante by rescinding the change in the method of filling out the "Daily Location Record" which became effective July 1, 1975. In my view, such a remedial order is not warranted under the particular circumstances of this case, including the nature of the violation found. Thus, a rescission of the change at this time would not prohibit the Respondent from again changing the method of filling out the "Daily Location Record" after appropriate notification and bargaining only with respect to implementation and impact. In my opinion, a remedial order requiring the Respondent, after an appropriate request by the Complainant, to bargain over the procedures for implementation and the impact on adversely affected employees of the change of July 1, 1975, and prohibiting a change in the method of filling out the "Daily Location Record" in the future without appropriate notification and bargaining, constitutes a satisfactory resolution of the unfair labor practice involved herein, and I shall so order. 2/

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the Department of the Treasury, Internal Revenue Service, Manhattan District shall:

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to a complaint filed on November 5, 1975 and an amended complaint filed on May 10, 1976 under Executive Order 11491, as amended, (hereinafter called the Order) by National Treasury Employees Union and NTEU, Chapter 47, (hereinafter called NTEU and NTEU Chapter 47 respectively and the Complainants, collectively)against the Department of the Treasury, Internal Revenue Service, Manhattan District (hereinafter called the Activity or the Respondent) a Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued by the Regional Administrator for the New York, New York Region on May 13, 1976.

A hearing was held before the undersigned in New York, New York. Both parties were represented and afforded full opportunity to be heard, to introduce evidence and to examine and cross-examine witnesses. Both parties had an opportunity to argue orally and to file briefs. The briefs have been duly considered.

Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings of fact, conclusion of law and recommendations:

Findings of Fact

1. NTEU Chapter 47 holds and has held at all times relevant hereto exclusive recognition for a unit of all professional and non-professional employees of the Activity, including Internal Revenue Agents, employed in the Activity's Audit Division.

2. Internal Revenue Agents' duties include the conducting of field examinations of income tax returns and other audit investigations.

3. At all times material, prior to July 1, 1975 Internal Revenue Agents employed in the Activity's Audit Division utilized the "Daily Location Record," NAR Form 3-139. Prior to July 1, 1975 the form was filled out on a daily basis. It was maintained for each group for each day of the month. There was one or more page for each day and each employee had his own line on each such page. The individual Internal Revenue Agent would enter on his line on the form for the day in question, where he would be working that workday and where he could be reached. The Internal Revenue Agent filled out the form on the day in question or a day or two in advance. Thus for each day of the month there was a composite "Daily Location Record" reflecting the requested information for each Agent within the work group.

4. In late May or early June of 1975 Mr. Joseph Slipowitz, then Chief of the Activity's Audit Division, tentatively decided to revise the manner in which the "Daily Location Record" was completed and maintained. Under the new system each Agent was to fill out his own "Daily Location Record" on a monthly basis setting forth for the next month, on a separate line or two for each date during the month, where he planned to be and the specific matter he would be working on, 1/ including his plans for when he was working in the office. With respect to the latter matter the Agent must set forth the precise nature of the work he intend to do in the office. These entries were to be made by the Agent, at the beginning of the month, for the entire month, and then as changes occurred in the appointments, etc., changes were to be promptly made on the record. This new system was to be done on an experimental basis in the Audit Dvision for six months.

5. On June 27 Mr. Slipowitz met with NTEU Chapter 47 President and Chief Steward Sol Katz and advised him of the impending change in filling in the Daily Location Record and advised him that the change was going to be effective on July 1, 1975. Mr. Katz indicated he had some reservations and asked Mr. Slipowitz to delay the effective date of the change till Mr. Katz could consult other union officials.

In this regard I credit Mr. Katz' version of this

1/ Under this new system each Agent in the Audit Division would have a one or two sheet Daily Location Record which would have his name at the top and a line or two for each date. Under the old system each page was for a specific date and each Agent entered his work for that date on his own line on the page; a large number of Agents' plans for that date would appear on the same page.

June 27, 1975 meeting and I discredit Mr. Slipowitz contention that he advised Mr. Katz of the proposed change on June 16, 1975 and that there was no such June 27, 1975 meeting. Mr. Katz, as described below, immediately after the June 27 meeting advised Mr. Morris Goldstein, an NTEU Chapter 47 Vice-President, what had just occurred at the meeting and Mr. Goldstein corroborates Mr. Katz' testimony. Further Mr. Katz recalls it because the date was his last day before going on annual leave. Mr. Slipowitz, however, did not advise anyone about the alleged June 16 meeting until about July 2, 1975 and even then, the alleged corroboration from Mr. Russo, Chief of the Activity's Personnel Branch, is not too supportive of Mr. Slipowitz' contention. Although Mr. Russo testified that he was advised by Mr. Slipowitz on July 2 that the meeting had occurred two weeks before, in an affidavit and elsewhere in his testimony he seemed to indicate the meeting occurred during the latter part of June. Further the relationship of the subject change, to a problem concerning the reassignment of two Agents, which Mr. Slipowitz contends was also discussed on the June 16, meeting is too tenuous and not sufficient to persuade me to credit Mr. Slipowitz' version. Further it is concluded that Mr. Katz' version of the June 27 meeting is not inconsistent with the Activity's witnesses versions of the July 18, 1975 meeting described below.

In light of all of the foregoing and the events that did subsequently occur, Mr. Katz' testimony concerning the June 27 meeting is credited. 2/

6. After leaving Mr. Slipowitz' office on June 27, 1975, Mr. Katz went to and advised Mr. Goldstein about the conversation he had just had and about the proposed change in filling out of the Daily Location Record. He advised Mr. Goldstein that he, Mr. Katz, was going on annual leave and he asked Mr. Goldstein to handle the matter.

7. The proposed change in the method filling out the Daily Location Record was set forth in a June 27, 1975 memorandum from Mr. Slipowitz.

2/ It should be noted that in Mr. Slipowitz' own version of the alleged June 16, 1975 meeting he testified that he did not tell Mr. Katz that the Daily Location Record would have to be filled out in advance for the entire month.

8. On Monday, June 30, 1975 Mr. Goldstein attended a group meeting of Agents at which the new change in the method of filling out the Daily Location Record was explained and discussed. The Agents were told that the new system of filing out the Daily Location Record would become effective on July 1, 1975.

9. Upon advise from NTEU National of Field Representative Lipton on July 2, 1975 NTEU Chapter 47 sent a letter to the Activity stating "We are requesting full consultation on the impact of the implementation of the new locator sheets for the Audit Division."

10. The parties met on July 18, 1975; NTEU Chapter 47 was represented by Mr. Katz, Mr. Lipton, Mr. Goldstein and a Mr. Esmirne and the Activity was represented by Mr. Russo, Mr. Slipowitz, Assistant Chief of Audit Division Murray Navarro, and Labor Relations Section Chief Amy Adler Chassid. 3/

11. There is apparently some confusion as to what exactly was said at the July 18 meeting. I conclude that Mr. Slipowitz apparently opened the meeting by stating they were willing to discuss this matter. Mr. Lipton stated that the Union wanted to negotiate about the impact and implementation of the new Daily Location Record. Mr. Russo at that point asserted that this was a change in "work technology" and that, under the Order, they were not obligated to bargain about it. The parties then got into a discussion of the definition of work technology. Mr. Slipowitz reminded Mr. Katz that when he first advised him of the change Mr. Katz had no objection. Mr. Katz replied that he had not then realized the impact of the changes. NTEU Chapter 47 representatives demanded to bargain about the impact and implementation of the change with respect to the Daily Location Record. The Activity representatives stated they were not obliged to negotiate, but would discuss the matter with the Union. The NTEU Chapter 47 representatives then walked out of the meeting.

3/ Prior to the July 18 meeting the Activity representatives met and agreed upon a "fall back" position. Mr. Slipowitz was willing to delete the requirement that Agents enter on the location form when they are working in the office, what precisely they would be doing in the office and what precise cases they would be working on. They did not have to enter this information under the method of filling in the Daily Location Record prior to July 1, 1975.

Conclusions of Law

The issue presented in this case, simply put, is whether the Activity violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to bargain and negotiate concerning the impact and implementation of the change in filling out the Daily Location Record.

The Activity contends that the change in the method of filling out the form constituted a change in "work technology" within the meaning of Section 11(b) of the Order and that therefore the Activity was not obligated to negotiate concerning its decision to institute this change in the method for filling out the Daily Location Record. Without conceding that the change in filling out the Daily Location Record involved "work Technology" or that the Activity was privileged to make the change without bargaining about its decision, N.T.E.U. Chapter 47 does not allege that the Activity failed or refused to bargain about the basic decision to change the method for filling out the Daily Location Record. Rather, it alleges that the Activity failed and refused to bargain about the impact and implementation of this change. The Activity specifically does not contend that the impact and implementation of the change involved "work technology" or that it was otherwise not obligated to bargain about the impact and implementation of the subject change. Rather the Activity raises two basic defenses, first that on June 16, 1975 it advised NTEU Chapter 47 of the decision to make the change and the union official approved the change and didn't then timely request to bargain about the implementation and impact of the change and secondly that at the July 18 meeting it did not refuse to bargain about the impact and implementation of the change.

The law seems clear under the Order that even when an activity is privileged by the Order to make a decision without first bargaining about the basic decision, it is obliged to bargain, upon request, with the collective bargaining representative of its employees concerning the procedures for implementing the decision and the impact of the decision on the employees. 4/

Sometimes the lines between a decision, the procedures for implementing the decision and the impact of that decision are difficult to draw or to see. In the instant case, for example the decision, the precise changes in the entries to be made on a form, is very close to the procedures for implementing that decision. However, there were some items concerning the decision that were matters of implementation and should have been discussed, such as the effective date of the change, the procedures whereby a Revenue Agent is to make changes in his entries on the form during the month, after he has filled out his form for that month, etc.

The record establishes that the decision to change the method of filling in the Daily Location Record could reasonably be foreseen to have a substantial impact on the working conditions of the employees. The form had to be filled out a month in advance and then, as the month progresses the Revenue Agent was to make any changes in his entries on the form as his appointments and schedules changed. It was pointed out that it would permit the Agent to see, at the beginning of the month, how well he had scheduled his time for the month and whether he had a substantial number of days with no work scheduled. Further it might indicate if an Agent is not carrying sufficient work. All of this raised the question of whether this form be used to rate, appraise or judge the work of Agents. Such a use of the form would of course have substantial impact on the Revenue Agent's working conditions. Further impact would vary depending on what was decided or agreed upon with respect to what would be the effect on an Agent's rating if for various reasons he did not fill out the form, filled it out incorrectly or changes he wished made on his entries on the form were never made.

All of the foregoing illustrates that the decision in the subject case was an appropriate one to afford the collective bargaining representative an adequate opportunity to bargain and negotiate concerning the procedures for implementing the subject decision and its impact on the employees.

In order for the union to be able to timely request to bargain concerning the implementation and impact of the decision, the union must be advised of the details of the decision and the proposed procedures for its implementation, and all in sufficient time to afford a reasonable opportunity to consider and analyze the implementation and the impact of the decision, and to request to bargain and bargain with the Activity concerning the implementation and impact of the decision.

In the foregoing Findings of Fact it was specifically found that the Activity first advised NTEU Chapter 47 on June 27, not June 16 as the Activity alleges. Upon being so advised the NTEU Chapter 47 President Katz requested that the change then scheduled for July 1 be postponed so as to permit him to consult with the Union. The Activity did not accede to Mr. Katz' request and on June 30 called employees together to explain the change that was to occur on the next day. It is concluded that by advising the Union on June 27 of a change that was to become effective some 4 or 5 days later, the Activity did not give the Union adequate notice and time to permit the Union to consider the change, the procedures for its implementation and its possible and probable impact and to request to bargain and to bargain about the implementation procedures and the impact. Therefore, it is concluded that by the Activity failed to give the Union adequate advance notice of the change and therefore violated Sections 19(a)(6) the Order because it failed in its obligation to bargain about the impact and implementation of the decision to change the method for filling and the Daily Location Record. 5/ The Activity did not submit any justification as to why the notification time was so brief nor did it allege any type of emergency that required the change to be made on July 1 and not to permit the Union, as it requested, more time to consider the ramifications and impact of the changes.

In reaching the foregoing conclusion it of course follows that it is concluded that the Union did not waive its rights to bargain about the impact and implementation of the subject decision. On July 2 the Union requested to negotiate concerning the impact and implementation of 5/ Even if it be assumed that the Activity notified the Union on June 16 of the change, Mr. Slipowitz testified that he did not advise Mr. Katz that the Daily Location Record would have to be filled out for one month in advance. This was the major part of the change that was decided upon by the Activity and the failure to advise the Union of this aspect of the decision could hardly be said to be advising the Union of the decision with sufficient specificity to permit the Union to meaningfully consider and bargain about the impact and implementation of the decision. Therefore, even based on the Activity's version of the June 16 notification, it would be concluded that the Activity didnot filfull its obligation to give the Union sufficiently specific and timely notification of the decision and therefore violated Section 19(a)(6) of the Order.

the decision and the parties then meet on July 18. 6/ The Union made it clear it wished to negotiate concerning the impact and implementation of the decision to change the method for filling out the form. The Activity replied it was not obligated to negotiate or bargain because this involved a change in "work technology" but stated that it would discuss the matter. The Union, in effect, refused to accept this offer and left. The Union came to the meeting and attempted to exercise its right as granted by the Order, to negotiate concerning the implementation and impact of the decision; the Activity made it quite clear it was not going to negotiate but offered to do something less, to discuss. The Union was under no obligation to accept this offer of less than it was entitled to, so it left.

The Activity contends that had they stayed and "discussed" it might have actually evolved into negotiating. However, the Order can not be read as to require parties to accept less than they are entitled to because it might ultimately evolve into bargaining. Had the Union entered into discussions and had they amounted to negotiations and bargaining, then the Activity would have met to obligation; but that wasn't the case and the Union can insist that its right to negotiate be recognized before it be required to enter into discussions; it can not be required to accept less because it might possibly meet the requirements of negotiations or bargaining. 7/ Thus, it is included that by refusing to negotiate and insisting only on discussions, concerning the impact and implementation of the decision, the Activity again failed to bargain in good faith in violation of Section 19(a)(6) of the Order.

It is further concluded that the foregoing refusals

6/ Had the Activity somehow manage to bargain in good faith about the implementation and impact of the decision, even after it had been implemented, perhaps the Activity could have corrected or remedied the failure to bargain that it had already committed; but, as herein after discussed, the Activity did not.

7/ This is especially so where there would be a possible argument made that the Union, if it agreed to discussions, might have waived its rights to negotiations.

to bargain would by their nature interfer with employees' rights guaranteed by the Order and therefore violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION
OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE,
FOREST SERVICE
A/SLMR No. 842

This case arose when the National Federation of Federal Employees, Independent (NFFE) filed a representation petition seeking an election in a unit of all General Schedule and Wage Grade employees employed by and assigned to Forest Service Headquarters, Washington, D.C., excluding all professional employees, management officials, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Executive Order. The petitioned for unit would include all employees in the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area and includes, in addition to the Activity's employees in Washington, D.C., those in Arlington, Virginia, Reston, Virginia, and Beltsville, Maryland, which are close-by to the Washington, D.C. office. The other employees of the headquarters are located in four locations outside Washington, D. C.; Davis, California, Boise, Idaho, Fort Collins, Colorado, and Salt Lake City, Utah. The Activity agreed that the petitioned for unit is appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition.

The national headquarters' mission is to formulate service-wide policy and objectives; to formulate and evaluate programs; and to provide expert advice and assistance to the regions, experiment stations, and state and private area offices on difficult or unusual problems. The Assistant Secretary found that the petitioned for unit was appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition. In this regard, he found that the employees in the claimed unit share a clear and distinct community of interest as they share a common mission, general working conditions, overall supervision, and labor relations policies which are initiated in the Office of the Chief; there is substantial interchange among the employees; there is a common area of consideration for promotion and reduction-in-force procedures; and the Washington personnel office services the entire Washington, D. C. metropolitan area headquarters. He further found that this unit, which the Activity agreed was appropriate, would promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. Accordingly, he directed an election in such unit.

DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer Bridget Sisson. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in this case, the Assistant Secretary finds:

1. The labor organization involved claims to represent certain employees of the Activity.

2. The National Federation of Federal Employees, Independent, hereinafter called NFFE, seeks an election in a unit of all General Schedule and Wage Grade employees employed by and assigned to Forest Service Headquarters, Washington, D. C., excluding all professional employees, management officials, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Executive Order. 1/ The Activity agrees that the unit sought is appropriate and that it will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. However, the Regional Administrator issued a Notice of Hearing in this matter because of certain questions he felt existed as to the scope of the petitioned for unit.

1/ The petitioned for unit would include those employees of the Activity who are located in the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area which includes, in addition to Washington, D.C., Activity employees in Arlington and Reston Virginia, and Beltsville, Maryland.

The mission of the Forest Service is to provide national leadership in forest management, protection, and utilization, involving participation in designating national priorities for land use, formulation of programs to meet national objectives, and the establishment of Federal forestry policies to assure maximum contribution of environmental, social, and economic benefits to present and future generations. Accomplishment of the Forest Service mission includes three major areas of operation: (1) management, protection, and development of the some 187 million acre National Forest system; (2) cooperation with state forestors, private owners of forest lands, wood processors, and private and public agencies; and (3) conducting research activities that directly or indirectly support the Forest Service mission, forestry, and forest-related resources.

The petitioned for employees are employed in the national headquarters of the Forest Service. Its mission is to formulate service-wide policy and objectives, to formulate and evaluate programs, and to provide expert advice and assistance to the regions, experiment stations, and state and private area offices on difficult or unusual problems. The petitioned for unit of headquarters employees in the metropolitan Washington, D.C. area consists of approximately 762 employees. In addition, the record indicates that other employees of the Forest Service Headquarters are located in four locations in the continental United States; Davis, California, Boise, Idaho, Fort Collins, Colorado, and Salt Lake City, Utah. 2/ The Activity contends that these activities are functionally separate and distinct from the national headquarters in the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area, with little or no commonality, and that including such employees in the petitioned for unit would not promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations.

The national headquarters of the Activity is an organizational entity under the direction of the Chief of the Forest Service, with offices of administration; research; national forest system; state and private forestry; and programs and legislation, which are under the direction of Deputy Chiefs, who report to the Associate Chief. The record indicates that the petitioned for employees have a common mission, and that they are all subject to the same general working conditions, overall supervision, and labor relations policies which are initiated in the Office of the Chief. Moreover, there is substantial interchange among the employees, particularly those in clerical classifications, and there is a common area of consideration for promotion and reduction-in-force procedures. Further, the record reflects that the Washington personnel office services the entire Washington, D.C. metropolitan area

2/ An Ann Arbor, Michigan, location was established by the Activity for the convenience of one employee who was attending school in Ann Arbor. This employee is employed by the national headquarters in Washington, D.C., and will return there in June of 1977. The Activity desires his inclusion in the petitioned for unit, and the NFFE does not object. In these circumstances, I shall include this employee in the unit found appropriate herein.

Under these circumstances, I find the petitioned for unit to be appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition. Thus, as the claimed employees share the same general mission under common supervision, are subject to the same centralized personnel and labor relations policies at the national headquarters, and share the same general working conditions, and as the claimed unit contains all of the nonprofessional employees of the Activity in the Washington, D.C. metropolitan area, I find that the employees in the unit sought by the NFFE share a clear and identifiable community of interest separate and distinct from other employees of the Activity. Further, I find that such a unit will promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. In this latter regard, in addition to the matters set forth above, it was noted that the level of recognition would be at the same level in the Activity's organization where personnel and labor relations policies are initiated. Moreover, the parties are in agreement that such a unit would promote effective dealings and efficiency of agency operations. Accordingly, I find that the unit petitioned for is appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition.

Based on the foregoing, I find that the following employees constitute a unit appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under Executive Order 11491, as amended:

> All General Schedule and Wage Grade employees employed by and assigned to U.S. Department of Agriculture, Forest Service Headquarters, and located in the metropolitan area, Washington, D.C., excluding professional employees, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, confidential employees, management officials, and supervisors as defined in the Order. 3/

DIRECTION OF ELECTION

An election by secret ballot shall be conducted, as early as possible, but not later than 60 days from the date below. The appropriate Area Administrator shall supervise the election, subject to the Assistant

3/ At the hearing, the Activity placed in evidence several lists of employees whom it designated as "supervisors," "management" employees, and "professional" employees. As there are no facts in the record to indicate whether these employees were designated properly, I make no findings as to their status and eligibility. See U.S. Department of Agriculture, Region Forester Office, Forest Services, Region 3, Santa Fe National Forest, Santa Fe, New Mexico, A/SLMR No. 88, at footnote 6.

Secretary's Regulations. Eligible to vote are those in the unit who were employed during the payroll period immediately preceding the date below, including employees who did not work during that period because they were out ill, or on vacation or on furlough, including those in the military service who appear in person at the polls. Ineligible to vote are employees who quit or were discharged for cause since the designated payroll period and who have not been rehired or reinstated before the election date. Those eligible shall vote whether or not they desire to be represented by the National Federation of Federal Employees, Independent.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

FEDERAL AVIATION ADMINISTRATION,
SPRINGFIELD TOWER,
SPRINGFIELD, MISSOURI
A/SLMR No. 843

This case arose as a result of an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, M.E.B.A., AFL-CIO (Complainant) alleging, in substance, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by the action of its Facility Chief in summoning a unit employee to his office and asking for his input and opinion on the work schedule for bargaining unit employees. It was also alleged that the discussion constituted a formal meeting within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order at which the Complainant was entitled to be present since personnel policies and practices were discussed.

The Administrative Law Judge found that the Respondent did not attempt to bypass the Complainant or unilaterally implement personnel policies or changes affecting unit employees. In his view, the Respondent merely sought information from the unit employee involved for consideration of a basic watch schedule which was a subject of current negotiations. Further, the Administrative Law Judge concluded that, under all the circumstances, the meeting involved did not constitute a formal discussion within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order.

The Assistant Secretary noted that the record indicated that the Respondent was engaged in negotiations with the Complainant regarding the basic watch schedule both before and after the meeting in question and that the purpose of the meeting was to seek aid and information from the unit employee involved in order to develop or support its position regarding the basic watch schedule. Under these circumstances, the Assistant Secretary found that the Respondent's action of dealing directly with and soliciting the views of a unit employee concerning a bargainable item which was currently being negotiated constituted an improper bypass and undermining of the status of its employee's exclusive representative in violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

The Assistant Secretary, contrary to the finding of the Administrative Law Judge, viewed the meeting in question as being a formal discussion within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order as the subject of the meeting between the Facility Chief and the unit employee involved was the basic watch schedule, a matter affecting the general working conditions of bargaining unit employees. Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary found that the Respondent's failure to afford the Complainant the opportunity to be represented at the formal discussion additionally violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the Respondent cease and desist from the conduct found violative of the Order and that it take certain affirmative actions to effectuate the purposes and policies of the Order.

DECISION AND ORDER

On December 29, 1976, Administrative Law Judge Rhea M. Burrow issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had not engaged in the alleged unfair labor practices and recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. Thereafter, the Complainant filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, including the exceptions and supporting brief filed by the Complainant, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations, only to the extent consistent herewith.

The amended complainant herein alleged, in substance, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by the action of the Facility Chief, Charles C. Pfander, in summoning James Johnston, a unit employee, to his office on April 30, 1976, and asking for Johnston's input and opinion on the work schedule for bargaining unit employees.

It also alleged that the discussion constituted a formal meeting within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order at which the Complainant was entitled to be present since personnel policies and practices were discussed.

The Administrative Law Judge found that, under the circumstances, the Respondent did not attempt to bypass the Complainant or unilaterally implement personnel policies or changes affecting unit employees. In his view, the Respondent merely sought information from employee Johnston for consideration of a basic watch schedule. Thus, according to the Administrative Law Judge, the knowledge, experience and expertise of a government agency employee is not an unwarranted source of information in the Respondent's development of a plan that is subject to collective bargaining, nor does the Complainant have a monopoly in this source of information. Further, the Administrative Law Judge concluded that, under all the circumstances, the April 30, 1976, meeting did not constitute a formal discussion within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order. I disagree.

The record shows that the Respondent was engaged in negotiations with the Complainant regarding the basic watch schedule both before and after the meeting in question and that the purpose of the meeting was to seek aid and information from Johnston, a unit employee, in order to develop or support its position regarding the basic watch schedule. Under these circumstances, I find that the Respondent's action of dealing directly with and soliciting the views of a unit employee concerning a negotiable item which was currently being negotiated 1/ constituted an improper bypass and undermining of the status of its employees' exclusive representative in violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. 2/

Also, contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, I view the meeting in question to be a formal discussion within the meaning of Section

1/ Article 33, Section 1 of the parties' negotiated agreement states in pertinent part:

> The basic watch schedule will not be changed without prior consultation with the Union. In developing the basic watch schedule, the Facility Chief shall meet with the principal facility representative and carefully consider his views and recommendations concerning the schedule.

2/ See National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) Washington, D. C. and Lyndon B. Johnson Space Center (NASA), Houston, Texas, A/SLMR No. 457, FLRC No. 74A-95, wherein the Council indicated that it viewed as improper a management attempt to "gather information regarding employee sentiments for the purpose of using it subsequently to persuade the union to abandon a position taken during negotiations regarding the personnel policies or practices concerned."

10(e) of the Order as the subject of the meeting between Facility Chief Pfander and unit employee Johnston was the basic watch schedule, a matter affecting the general working conditions of bargaining unit employees. Accordingly, I find that the Respondent's failure to afford the Complainant the opportunity to be represented at the formal discussion involved additionally violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

ORDER

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

A Notice of Hearing on the Complaint as amended was issued on August 23, 1976, by the Acting Regional Administrator for Labor-Management Services Administration of the U.S. Department of Labor, Kansas City Region. A hearing on the captioned case was held before the undersigned on October 28, 1976 in Springfield, Missouri.

* Affiliated with the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association, AFL-CIO.

The proceeding was initiated under Executive Order 11491, as amended, (herein called the Order) by the filing of a complaint on June 3, 1976 by Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, M.E.B.A., AFL-CIO, (herein called the Complainant), against Federal Aviation Administration, Springfield Tower, Springfield, Missouri, (herein called the Respondent). An amended complaint was filed on June 14, 1976. As amended the complaint alleged in substance that on April 30, 1976, Mr. James Johnson, Air Traffic Control Specialist and a member of the bargaining unit which Complainant PATCO represents, was summoned to the Office of Facility Chief, Charles C. Pfander and asked for input and an opinion on the work schedule for the bargaining unit members; it was also alleged that the discussion or session by Mr. Johnson with the Facility Chief on April 30, 1976 constituted a formal meeting under Section 10(e) of the Order, because personnel policies and practices were discussed and the Union, particularly Mr. A. E. Jones was entitled to be present. The action was alleged to constitute a violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order. 1/

At the hearing held on October 28, 1976, the parties were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses and to introduce evidence bearing on the issues involved in the case. Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor and briefs submitted by counsel, I make the following findings, conclusions and recommendation.

Findings of Fact

1. The Complainant is the exclusive representative of various Federal Aviation Department of Transportation units, consisting of all air traffic control specialists employed at certain air traffic control towers, air traffic control centers and combined-station towers in the United States. The Springfield Air Traffic Control Tower, Springfield, Missouri is the FAA installation involved in this proceeding.

1/ The Amended Complaint referenced the alleged violations to be under Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order instead of 19(a)(1) and (5) as noted in the original complaint. The change was also reflected in the Notice of Hearing and clarified at the Formal Hearing. A Section 19(a)(5) violation is therefore not in issue.

2. The negotiated agreement between the Complainant and the Respondent is dated May 7, 1975 and by its terms was effective July 8, 1975. It was in effect at all times material to this proceeding and covered the Springfield Control Tower. A prior collective bargaining agreement effective in 1973 preceded the current agreement between the parties.

3. The Springfield Control Tower was and had been prior to filing of the complaint a Level 2 non radar approach control tower utilizing its Air Traffic Controllers approximately 12 in number, to control visual flight traffic and instrument traffic within an approximate 30 mile radius. Its primary mission was to expedite the safe movement of air traffic in and on the airport and its vicinity.

4. In anticipation of upgrading the Springfield tower to radar control, which would require staffing at the tower and at TRACON, the radar site, there was more manpower on air traffic controllers added to the staff beginning in early 1976.2/ There were 16 air traffic controllers on duty at the time of the hearing in October 1976.

5. Charles C. Pfander is the Chief of the Air Traffic Control Tower at Springfield, Missouri and has been since it opened in 1953. He is also referred to herein as Facility Chief.

6. Facility Chief Pfander acting for the Respondent, and the Complainant Union negotiated a Work Schedule for the shifts of the Air Controllers effective in June 1973 3/ pursuant to the negotiated agreement then in effect. Such work schedule was followed except for about a two week transition period until November 1975 when another one was approved. 4/

2/ Radar control was scheduled to become effective in November 1976, and was not operative at the time of the hearing on October 28, 1976 although personnel for operation had already been obtained.

3/ Respondent Exhibit No. 1.

4/ Respondent Exhibit No. 2.

7. With the advent of radar control, operation of the Springfield Tower and the TRACON site under a watch schedule 5/ "team concept" basis was considered by management as a feasible plan to begin the new radar control operation. In planning for the change, the team concept principle was discussed at a LMR meeting in February 1976, and in March 1976, by Facility Chief Pfander with Complainant's Union representatives, including Albert E. Jones, President of PATCO Local No. 357. The Union was requested to submit a watch schedule that would encompass the team concept principle. 6/

8. PATCO's response to the request dated April 16, 1976 contained a watch schedule but did not encompass the team concept principle. 7/ All PATCO Air Traffic Controllers

5/ Basic watch schedule is defined in Article 33 of the negotiated collective bargaining agreement... "as the days in the week, hours of the day, rotation of shifts and changes in regular days off. Assignments of individual employees to the watch schedule are not considered as changes in the basic schedule. The basic schedule shall not be changed without prior consultation with the Union. In developing the basic watch schedule the Facility Chief shall meet with the principal facility representative and carefully consider his views and recommendations concerning the schedule. The objective of this meeting or meetings shall be to carefully and thoroughly examine the alternatives and options available as suggested by the principal facility representative.

6/ The team concept as described at the hearing (Transcript p. 71) stated: "The FAA order that set up these assistant chief positions had a requirement in it that the assistant chief should be assigned a group of controllers of continuing consistency, that is the same people, and they should work together to the greatest extent possible on a rotating basis. This was referred to as the team concept because it was a team of people that were working around the clock on different shifts and as much as possible they were supposed to work together so that their supervisor would be more intimately acquainted with their work and be better able to evaluate them."

7/ For example, people on the same team had different days off on the watch schedule proposed by PATCO and would not be working together at all times as a team.

were reported to have given information or input to the evaluation on which the watch schedule was based.

9. Deficiencies in PATCO's proposed watch schedule were discussed at a meeting on April 29, 1976 that was attended by Local Union President Albert E. Jones and Facility Chief, Pfander. The meeting had been rescheduled from April 26, 1976, in order to permit Union representative Donald L. McCroskey's attendance but the record is not clear as to whether he was actually present.

10. On arrival for work on April 30, 1976, Facility Chief Pfander made his routine visit to the tower to check what had happened since the preceding day. Noting that the Air Traffic Controllers were busily occupied, and desiring to talk with James Johnston, whom he had been informed had some expertise and experience in arranging watch schedules, he asked him to drop by his office sometime during the day when it was convenient to him.

Johnston arrived about lunch time and Pfander mentioned that he understood that he had been working with the watch list. Pfander then talked about his concept of team principle and that he would welcome suggestions or assistance from Johnston or anyone to help incorporate the principle into a watch schedule for consideration. Johnston was then a union member but not an official or representative of the union. He, Johnston was non-committal as to the request, made no response, answer, or contribution thereto and the matter was not pursued further with him. Johnston in a statement dated June 30, 1976 stated that he did not recall Pfander making any remarks about the PATCO schedule. 8/

12. The team concept principle contemplated for the watch schedule was later considered by the Respondent as not practical under the circumstances as existed at Springfield tower and the Complainant Union and Respondent agreed to continue the basic schedule that they had agreed upon in November 1975 with a few basic changes. As amended the Respondent facility is currently operating on the watch schedule agreed upon in November 1975.

8/ I discredit the testimony of Johnston as to remark of Pfander made at the hearing because he was vague and uncertain as to Pfander's remarks and the inferences he attempted to leave were in direct contrast to his statement made after the meeting. In observing the witness' and listening to his testimony, I was not impressed by his demeanor or the truthfulness of his statement regarding Pfander's remarks at their April meeting about the PATCO schedule.

Discussion and Evaulation

The Complainant charges that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Executive Order when its Facility Chief called James Johnston, a member of the bargaining unit into his office and asked him for his opinion and input on a watch schedule that was then under consideration. It was also alleged that the incident constituted a formal meeting under Section 10(e) of the Order and the Union President, A.E. Jones was entitled to be present.

Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order provide that Agency management shall not: "(1) interfere with, restrain, or coerce an employee in the exercise of the rights assured by this order,... (1) refuse to consult, confer, or negotiate with a labor organization as required by this Order."

Section 10(e) of the Order states that: "When a labor organization has been accorded exclusive recognition, it is the exclusive representative of employees in the unit and is entitled to act for and to negotiate agreements covering all employees in the unit. It is responsible for representing the interest of all employees in the unit without discrimination and without regard to labor organization membership. The labor organization shall be given the opportunity to be represented at formal discussions between management and employees or employee representatives concerning grievances, personnel policies and practices, or other matters affecting general working conditions of employees in the unit."

The record is clear that the team concept principle requested by the Respondent to be included in the Complainant's watch schedule submission had been contemplated previous to 1976 but temporarily abandoned because of insufficient personnel for successful operation. With the advent of radar control and more air traffic controllers the team concept principle was advanced as a feasible proposal for inclusion in the new watch schedule being considered. Beginning at least as early as March 1976 Facility Chief Pfander met with Complainant's facility representative Jones and requested that PATCO submit a watch schedule that would embrace the team concept principle. The schedule submitted by the Union in mid April did not utilize the team concept principle. Deficiencies in Complainant's submission were discussed with Union bargaining representative Jones, President, PATCO Local No. 351 on April 29, 1976.

The record leaves little or no doubt that the Respondent was seeking enlistment of Complainant Union to help it gather information and develop a watch schedule that would encompass the team concept principle. The team concept principle was discussed with the official representatives of the Local Union both before and after submission of PATCO's watch schedule proposal. Under these circumstances it is not and could not be argued that the Respondent was attempting to bypass the Union or unilaterally implement personnel policies or changes affecting unit employees. The bargaining process to this time was decisively one of seeking Union cooperation in the development of a watch schedule that would encompass the team concept principle.

As of April 29, 1976, there was no development or adoption of a watch schedule that ever embraced or encompassed the team concept principle; there was no attempt by the Respondent to unilaterally make any changes in personnel policies or practices adversely affecting unit personnel.

The meeting between Facility Chief Pfander and Air Traffic Controller Johnston on April 30, 1976 sought what employee expert aid and information Respondent could procure to develop for consideration a watch schedule that would encompass the team concept principle. Johnston was a PATCO member but not a representative or elected official who had participated in developing the watch schedule submitted by PATCO. The record substantiates that Pfander had good reason to believe that Johnston had some expertise and experience in watch scheduling that might be helpful in developing a team concept plan. 9/ The knowledge, experience and expertise of a government agency employee is not an unwarranted source of information in Respondent's development of a plan that is subject to collective bargaining before implementation nor does the Complainant have a monoply in this source of information. As a bargaining representative he did have a right to be present at formal discussions concerning personnel policies and practices or other matters affecting general working conditions of employees in the unit. The Respondent Pfander's April 30, 1976 meeting 9/ Pfander testified that at a staff meeting, one of the Assistant Chief Air Traffic Controllers had reported Johnston had experience in watch scheduling. Johnston confirmed he had contributed to the watch schedule submitted by PATCO and his statement (Complainant Exhibit 3) reflects that he had also helped to make up a previous watch schedule.

with Johnston was an information seeking process. The subject matter discussed did not transcend that discussed with Jones the preceding day. Johnston was aware of the previous request and deficiencies by reason of his past input into the PATCO schedule. When informed of the situation on April 30, 1976, only he and Pfander were present, no notes were taken, no disparaging remarks made by anyone and there was no request for representation. Likewise, Pfander made no promises, threats, offer of reward or imposed any requirement or obligation to comply with the solicitation to make input into a watch schedule comprehending the team concept. He, Johnston never made any response to Respondent's request for input to aid in developing a proposal for consideration of the parties before adoption. Later, the team concept was dropped and the watch schedule of November 1975 was amended after collective bargaining between the parties and became the current schedule under which the facility is now operating.

Article 33, Section 1, of the Collective Bargaining Agreement states that:

> "Basic watch schedule is defined as the days in the week, hours of the day, rotation of shifts and change in regular days off. Assignment of individual employees to the watch schedule are not considered as changes in the basic watch schedule. The basic watch schedule will not be changed without prior consultation with the Union. In developing the basic watch schedule, the Facility Chief shall meet with the principal facility representative and carefully consider his views and recommendations concerning the schedule. The objective of the meeting or meetings shall be to carefully and thoroughly examine the alternatives and options available as suggested by the principal facility representative."

Under the facts and circumstances of this case, there was never a team concept principle in a watch schedule submitted by PATCO pursuant to request of the Respondent after meeting with Complainant's facility representative nor did the Respondent ever unilaterally or otherwise adopt or implement a watch schedule of its own incorporating the team concept principle. While a watch schedule embracing the team concept principle was solicited by Respondent from the Complainant's facility representative, the answer was not responsive and the matter was never developed by Respondent to the stage of even being a proposed plan for consideration by PATCO. Therefore, there were no personnel policies and practices or other matters affecting general working conditions of employees in the unit that reached or could have reached even a proposed stage of consideration by the parties by reason of Respondent's solicitation. The solicitation by Respondent of a change in a watch schedule to include a team concept principle, apparently not to the liking of the Complianant, did not violate the Order where the Respondent solicited and received input on the watch schedule from the facility representatives, pointed out deficiencies and commented on the schedule submitted by the Complainant, and bargained on the matter with the Complainant until the team concept principle was discarded and the November 1975 schedule previously in effect adopted with minor changes. There was no evidence or contention that Complainant was misled or that the Order imposed an obligation that the parties must agree on the terms of a change in a watch schedule that had been solicited. 10/ In this case however, the schedule finally adopted was one that was collectively bargained.

A remaining issue for consideration is whether the April 30, 1976 meeting between Facility Chief Pfander 11/ and James Johnston constituted a formal discussion with the meaning of the last sentence of Section 10(e) of the Order. The line of demarcation as to what constitutes formal and informal discussion under the order is often narrow and depends upon the particular

10/ See Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Social Security Administration, Weder Program Center, San Francisco, California, A/SLMR No. 501 where the Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's conclusion that "although a change in working conditions not be the liking of a Complainant was instituted by the Respondent, the Respondent did engage in prior good faith consultation with the Complainant, received its input on the proposed plan and solicited additional comments prior to final announcement of the plan. The Administrative Law Judge concluded further that in the absence of any evidence that the Respondent intentionally misled the Complainant, or of an obligation imposed by the Order requiring agreement between the parties prior to instituting a change in working conditions upon which there had been prior good faith consultation, the Respondent did not violate Section 19a(1) and (6) of the Order."

11/ Pfander was a second level supervisor of Johnston.

surronding circumstances. In this case the following is evident: (1) the watch schedule team concept principle never advanced even to the proposal stage; (2) there was only one representative of management and one unit employee present at the April 30, 1976 meeting at which time information and opinion of James Johnston was requested concerning a watch schedule embracing the team concept principle; (3) the information sought by Pfander was from employee Johnston who admittedly had some experience in watch scheduling for Air Traffic Comptrollers; (4) the consequences of the meeting were such that no finality attached or could attach to the information being sought regarding the team concept principle; (5) employee Johnston made no request for a union representative to be present at the April 30, 1976 meeting with Pfander. The Complainant was not prejudiced or disparaged by the solicitation in the absence of any derogatory remarks against the Union or unilateral action on the part of the Respondent to alter or change its personnel policies or initiate action affecting the working conditions of employees in the unit; (6) there was no response by Johnston to the solicitation or further action by the Respondent to present a watch schedule embracing the team concept principle; (7) bargaining negotiations continued between the contracting parties. The team concept principle was discarded and Respondent adopted substantially the watch schedule submitted by Complainant.

Under the circumstances, the April 30, 1976 meeting did not constitute a formal meeting within the purview of Section 10(e) of the Order. Further, in view of the many collective bargaining negotiations at meetings concerning the watch schedule both before and after April 30, 1976, the discussion on that date would not be determinative in my opinion of the alleged 19a(1) and (6) violations of the Order regardless of whether formal or informal. The April 30 meeting was an isolated instance of Respondent seeking employee information with no intent to bypass the union, change any personnel policy or practice, or change any other matter affecting general working conditions of unit employees.

While attempting to negotiate directly with an employee would directly violate the Order (FLRC No. 74A-80; 4 FLMC 76-1), I distinguish the situation here as one in which management merely sought information for consideration of a watch schedule.

In accepting the agency's petition for review in Department of the Navy, Naval Air Station, Fallon, Nevada, A/SLMR No. 432, holding that a major policy issue was presented concerning the propriety of the Assistant Secretary's finding that, absent mutual agreement between an exclusive bargaining representative and an agency or activity concerning the latter's right to communicate directly with unit employees over matters relating to the collective bargaining relationship, direct communications (such as those here involved) necessarily tend to undermine the status of the exclusive representative in violation of the Order (Report No. 62), "The Council held that in determining whether a specific communication is violative of the Order, that communication must be judged independently and determination made as to whether it constitutes, for example, an attempt by agency management to deal or negotiate directly with unit employees, or to threaten, or promise benefits to employees, which would be violative of the Order. In other words, all communications between agency management and unit employees over matters relating to the collective bargaining relationship are not violative of the Order, and to the extent that communication is permissible, it is immaterial whether such communication was previously agreed upon by the exclusive representative and the agency or activity concerning the latter's right to engage in such communication. Turning to the specific communications here involved, the Council further held that such communications, (which can be equated with an attempt to bargain directly with employees, and to urge them to put pressure on the union to take certain actions) were in violation of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order and upheld the Assistant Secretary's finding in this regard as consistent with the purposes of the Order."

In Veterans Administration Hospital, Murfressboro, Tennessee , A/SLMR No. 702, the Complainant alleged "that the Respondent violated the Order by contacting a unit employee regarding the withholding of dues from his back pay and by refusing to withhold dues in the absence of an executed SF 1188 cancellation form.

The Assistant Secretary found that the evidence did not establish that the Respondent attempted to deal or negotiate directly with the unit employee or to threaten or promise benefits to him by contacting him with regard to withholding dues from his back pay. Rather, the Respondent merely sought to ascertain the position of the unit employee regarding the dues withholding. It was further determined that the Respondent's refusal to comply with the Complainant's request for dues withholding was not a violation of the Order inasmuch as the evidence established that the Respondent was uncertain as to the appropriate course of action to be taken and, therefore, sought a decision from the Comptroller General regarding compliance with Complainant's request. In this context, the Assistant Secretary concluded that where, as here, an agency, in good faith, seeks a decision from the Comptroller General, it should be given a reasonable opportunity to comply with the consequences which flow from the Comptroller General's decision. Finally, it was found that the evidence did not establish that the Respondent's action in the subject case tended to encourage or discourage membership in the Complainant by discrimination in regard to conditions of employment."

The evidence in this proceeding does not establish that Respondent attempted to deal with or negotiate directly with unit employee Johnston or threaten or promise benefits to him by contacting him with regard to furnishing information as to inclusion of a team concept principle in a watch schedule.

Conclusions

In view of the foregoing Findings and Discussion and Evaluation, I conclude that:

1. The Respondent did not refuse to consult, confer or negotiate with the Complainant in violation of the provisions of Section 19(a)(6) of the Order;

2. The Respondent did not interfere with, restrain or coerce an employee in the exercise of rights in violation of the provisions of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order, and

3. The Complainant has not sustained its burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that the Respondent violated the provisions of Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

RECOMMENDATION

Upon the basis of the above findings, conclusions, and the entire record, I recommend to the Assistant Secretary that the Complaint in Case No. 62-4873(CA), be dismissed in its entirety.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE,
CINCINNATI SERVICE CENTER,
COVINGTON, KENTUCKY
A/SLMR No. 844

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the National Treasury Employees Union and Chapter 73, NTEU, alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order by certain alleged coercive and threatening remarks made to the Chapter 73 President by one of the Respondent's supervisors.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, no violation had been committed. In this regard, he found that the remarks made by the supervisor were prompted by his belief that the Chapter 73 President had breached her promise to him, and that, while the atmosphere at the private meeting between the two was hostile, the action which the supervisor threatened to take in retaliation for what he believed to be a breach of promise was not violative. Thus, the supervisor only threatened to hold the Chapter 73 President to the requirements of the negotiated agreement with respect to official time. Under these circumstances, in which no threat was made to impose restrictions on the use of official time beyond the terms of the negotiated agreement and no other adverse action was threatened, the Administrative Law Judge found no interference, restraint, or coercion within the meaning of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions, and recommendation and ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to a complaint filed November 11, 1975 and an amended complaint filed November 19, 1975, alleging that Internal Revenue Service, Cincinnati Service Center (hereinafter called the Respondent Activity) violated Section 19(a)(1) and (2) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, the Assistant Regional Director for Labor-Management Services for the Atlanta Region issued a Notice of Hearing on Complaint on March 19, 1976. Subsequently, National Treasury Employees Union and Chapter No. 73, NTEU (hereinafter called the Complainant) filed a request for withdrawal of the Section 19(a)(2) allegation from the complaint. This request was granted.

The amended complaint alleges that the Respondent Activity interfered with and coerced the President of Chapter No. 73 of the Complainant in that the Chief of Data Conversion and Accounting at the Respondent Activity threatened her for exercising rights assured by the Executive Order.

A hearing was held on this matter in Cincinnati, Ohio on May 5, 1976. All parties were represented by counsel and afforded full opportunity to be heard and to introduce relavent evidence and testimony on the issues involved. Briefs were submitted by both parties and have been duly considered. Upon the entire record in this case, including my observation of the witneses, I make the following:

Findings of Fact

The Complainant Union is the exclusive representative of the bargaining unit employees at the Respondent Activity, and the parties had a negotiated agreement in effect during the period involved in this complaint. Evalyn Lunkenheimer was the president of Chapter No. 73 of the Complainant Union, which was the Local representing the employees at the Respondent Activity. In addition to her office as president, Lunkenheimer was the union area representative for the employees working in the Data Conversion and Accounting Division on the 12:30 p.m. to 9:00 p.m. shift.

On February 13, 1975, Charles Mitchell, then chief of the division, called Ms. Lunkenheimer into his office for a meeting regarding an employee whose position was being affected by a reorganization taking place at the Respondent Activity. 1/ Mitchell, who was Lunkenheimer's fourth level supervisor, normally met with the chief representative of the Union on matters affecting the bargaining union employees. However, there had been a change of officers and he did not know the chief representative. He also felt that he should meet with Lunkenheimer as the new president in order to get to know her.

Mitchell explained to Lunkenheimer that under the reorganization he had one employee (Celanor Hudson) who did not qualify to promotion to tax technician. He was having difficulty finding a position for her in the Service Center. Hudson was approximately 64 years old with 31 years of government service at the Service Center. He offered the employee a position as a clerk in the Accounting Branch, but she rejected the job as it required a considerable amount of walking. Mitchell informed Lunkenheimer that he finally found a position for Hudson in the Research Branch. He stated that the employee would have to accept this transfer or she would have to resign, retire, or be terminated. After some discussion about management's efforts to locate another position for Hudson, Lunkenheimer stated that she needed to "research" the matter and would get back to Mitchell later in the day. He agreed to this, but asked Lunkenheimer not to discuss the matter with the employee until he had a chance to inform her of the transfer at a meeting scheduled for 9:00 a.m. the following morning.

1/ The reorganization had been discussed with union officials prior to its implementation by management. Basically, it involved the elimination of the positions of tax examiner which were grades GS-4, 5 and 6, and establishing a new position of tax technician at grade GS-6. The employees affected who were already in grade GS-6 were automatically converted to the new positions. Those who were in grades GS-4 and 5 had to apply and compete for the new positions.

The testimony is conflicting as to whether or not Lunkenheimer agreed to Mitchell's request. According to Lunkenheimer, she told Mitchell she wanted to consult with the area representatives and the employee, as she did not feel it was fair for the employee to be "called in cold and not know what was going on". Mitchell, on the other hand, testified that Lunkenheimer agreed not to discuss the matter with the employee and made no mention of consulting with the area representatives.

After Lunkenheimer left Mitchell's office, she encountered the chief representative of the Union in the hall and related the substance of her meeting with Mitchell. They decided to meet immediately in a small canteen in the Audit Branch with the two area representatives involved to discuss the matter. The Union officials met and then decided it would be best to call in the employee and consult with her. The total time spent on the subject matter was approximately 30 minutes. Prior to calling in Hudson, Lunkenheimer attempted to contact Mitchell by telephone but was unsuccessful.

Before leaving at 4:00 p.m., Mitchell was informed by several supervisors in the Accounting Branch that the Union officials had met with Hudson. These supervisors were aware of the problem involving Hudson. Mitchell attempted to reach Lunkenheimer by phone, but she was on her lunch break. Mitchell then left his office at his customary time and proceeded home.

Upon arriving home, Mitchell began to reflect on the matter and became quite irritated with Lunkenheimer because he felt his confidence had been betrayed. The more he thought about the matter, the more distrubed he became. He then decided to return to the Service Center that evening to confront Lunkenheimer. He arrived at the Respondent Activity at approximately 7:45 p.m. and called Lunkenheimer into the office of the Section Chief. They then went into a consultation room and closed the door. No one else was present except Mitchell and Lunkenheimer.

There is considerable dispute as to what was said in the conversation between Mitchell and Lunkenheimer, but it is clear that Mitchell was quite angry and both he and Lunkenheimer spoke in loud tones. Mitchell acused Lunkenheimer of breaking a promise to him regarding discussing the transfer with Hudson before he had an opportunity to meet with the employee at 9:00 a.m. the next morning. Lunkenheimer explained that the chief and area representatives decided the employee had to be consulted in advance. Mitchell questioned how they could have overruled the authority of the union president. Lunkenheimer stated she was sorry that she had made the promise not to inform the employee of the proposed transfer, but she was not sorry that she had discussed the matter with the employee or the union representatives. According to Mitchell, he then stated that the meeting was on official time, and in the future, he (Mitchell) was "going to hold her feet to the fire and monitor her time" to be certain that she did not abuse the official time requirements set forth in the negotiated agreement. Lunkenheimer retorted that she too was going to hold Mitchell to the agreement and make certain that he did not violate its terms. Lunkenheimer's testimony was substantially the same as Mitchell in this regard, however she recalled that he stated, "I will have your time monitored and your feet will feel like they are on fire when you walk around here."

The meeting between Lunkenheimer and Mitchell lasted approximately an hour. At the conclusion of the meeting, Mitchell calmed down considerably and stated that they had both made "idle threats that neither one intended to keep, but he would do whatever he had to do."

Concluding Findings

The Complainant Union contends that Mitchell's statements constituted threats of penalty and reprisal against Lunkenheimer for engaging in activity protected by the Executive Order. At first blush, the facts of this case appear to support this argument.

There is no need here to resolve the question of whether Lunkenheimer did or did not promise Mitchell that she would not discuss the transfer with Hudson prior to his meeting with the employee the following morning. If such a promise were made, and I am inclined to believe that it was, it has no bearing on the ultimate resolution of the issue presented in this case. Nor is there any need to reconcile the two versions of his statements to Lunkenheimer regarding "making it hot" for her and monitoring her time. The import of either version is abundantly clear, and each is in substantial agreement with his intended meaning.

It is immaterial whether Lunkenheimer made a promise not to discuss the matter with the employee. What is important, however, is that Mitchell believed she did. 2/ The only question to be decided here is whether Mitchell's reaction to this purported breach of faith violated the Executive Order.

In the peculiar circumstances of this case, I am of the opinion that no violation of the Executive Order has been committed.

As noted, Mitchell was under the impression that he had a commitment from Lunkenheimer that she would not inform the employee of the proposed transfer until he first had an opportunity to tell her of the decision. When it was brought to his attention that Lunkenheimer had in fact talked to the employee, he felt she had violated her promise to him. This feeling was obviously exacerbated by the fact that he had not received any communication from Lunkenheimer that afternoon, although the testimony indicates that she made an unsuccessful attempt to contact him by telephone prior to speaking to the employee. That Mitchell's irritation and aggravation increased the more he reflected on the matter is evidenced by his return to the Service Center to confront Lunkenheimer after having left for the day.

It is evident that his remarks to Lunkenheimer were prompted by his belief that she had breached her promise to him. The atmosphere during the confrontation was hostile

2/ There is no question that Lunkenheimer in her capacity as union president and area representative had a right to decide, after confering with her colleagues, that the wiser course of action required consultaton with the employee. Indeed, had she not done so, she may have been remiss in her duty as a representative of the employee.

and heated. Mitchell's threat "to hold her feet to the fire" and monitor her time to be certain she did not violate the "official time" provision of the negotiated agreement obviously was made in retaliation for her having spoken to the employee about the transfer. The action Mitchell threatened to take, however, cannot be described as unlawful. Regardless of the tone or the phrasing of his comments, he was stating that henceforth, he was going to be certain Lunkenheimer complied with the "official time" requirements of the negotiated agreement in performing her representation duties. He did not threaten to impose restrictions contrary to the agreement or to take any adverse action other than to insure that she followed the terms of the agreement between the parties.

In these circumstances, I do not find that Mitchell's statements violated any rights assured Lunkenheimer under the Executive Order. They did not interfere with or restrain the union official from acting in her capacity as a representative of the employees in the unit. Nor can it be said that the statements were coercive, although made in anger and in retaliation for a putative breach of faith. Mitchell was merely threatening to do that which he had a lawful right to do, i.e., make certain that Lunkenheimer adhered to the "official time" requirements of the agreement in performing her duties as a union representative. Although Lunkenheimer was understandably upset as a result of the discussion, it did not constitute restraint or coercion within the meaning of Section 19(a)(1).

Moreover, the confrontation did not end in the same heated manner and tone as it commenced. After the passions had subsided, Mitchell recanted by stating that they had both made idle threats which neither one intended to keep. In so doing, he effectively and immediately retracted any threats that may have been contained in his prior statements to Lunkenheimer. U.S. Army Natick Laboratories, Natick, Massachuttes, A/SLMR No. 381.

In view of the foregoing, I find and conclude that the Respondent Activity has not violated Section 19(a)(10 of the Executive Order, and that the complaint herein must be dismissed in its entirety.

RECOMMENDED ORDER

On the basis of the foregoing findings of fact and conclusions of law, I find that Internal Revenue Service, Cincinnati Service Center, Covington, Kentucky did not engage in conduct with violated Section 19(a)(1) of Executive Order 11491, as amended. Accordingly, it is hereby recommended that the complaint in this case be dismissed in its entirety.

PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE,
FOREST SERVICE,
OUACHITA NATIONAL FOREST,
HOT SPRINGS, ARKANSAS
A/SLMR No. 845

This proceeding involved two unfair labor practice complaints filed by the National Federation of Federal Employees, Local 796 (Complainant). The first complaint alleged that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order when its supervisor, during the course of a private meeting with the Complainant's National Representative, told the National Representative that a member of the Complainant had told a District Ranger that he was ready to withdraw from the Union because the Complainant's President was waging a private battle against management. The second 19(a)(1) allegation by the Complainant alleged, in effect, that the Respondent's supervisor threatened the Complainant's President with physical harm.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Respondent had not in either case violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order. With regard to the complaint involving the private meeting between the Respondent and the Complainant's National Representative, the Administrative Law Judge found that the alleged critical comment at the private meeting, standing alone, did not constitute a violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order. With regard to the second alleged violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order, he found, on the basis of the credited testimony, that the Respondent's supervisor's comment did not constitute a threat to the Complainant's President and was, in fact, a positive denial of any threat.

The Assistant Secretary concurred in the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge and ordered that the complaints be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

On February 25, 1977, Administrative Law Judge William B. Thereafter, the Complainant filed exceptions to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the Respondent filed an answering brief to the Complainant's exceptions.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

These cases arise under Executive Order 11491, as amended (hereinafter also referred to as the "Order"). The Complaint in No. 64-3032(CA) was filed November 20, 1975, and alleged certain violations of Sections 19(a)(1) and (4) of the Order and the Complaint in No. 64-3059(CA) was filed January 6, 1976. By letter dated July 26, 1976, the Regional Administrator dismissed those portions of the Complaint in No. 64-3032(CA) concerning the alleged outburst on September 19, 1975, and the alleged violation of Section 19(a)(4) of the Order as a result of a statement on August 20, 1975, by Mr. George W. Whitlock, Deputy Forest Supervisor, to Mr. Eugene W. Haskins, National Representative, National Federation of Federal Employees. The Regional Administrator stated that he intended to consolidate the cases and, in the absence of a request for review, to issue a notice of hearing on that portion of No. 64-3032(CA) not dismissed and No. 64-3059(CA). The Order of consolidation issued October 14, 1976, and on the same date a Notice of Hearing issued for a hearing on November 23, 1976, in Hot Springs, Arkansas. Subsequently, at the request of Complainant, and for good cause shown, the hearing was rescheduled to December 14, 1976, and the Order Rescheduling Hearing issued November 11, 1976 (Ass't. Sec. Exh. 1) pursuant to which a hearing was duly held before the undersigned in Hot Springs, Arkansas on December 14, 1976. All parties were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses and to introduce evidence bearing on the issues involved, and briefs, timely filed by the parties, were received on or about January 24, 1977, and have been carefully considered. Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions and recommendation:

Findings and Conclusions

As there is one alleged violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order in each of the consolidated cases, it is appropriate to discuss each case and the conclusions with respect thereto separately.

A. Case No. 64-3032(CA). The alleged violation of Section 19(a)(1) in this case involves a request by Deputy Forest Supervisor George W. Whitlock for a private meeting with Eugene W. Haskins, National Representative of National Federation of Federal Employees (hereinafter also referred to as "NFFE"), on August 20, 1975, and the converstion that took place. Only Messrs. Whitlock and Haskins were present at the private meeting which followed a meeting to discuss unfair labor practice charges filed by Local 796 at which Local 796 had been represented by William B. Roach, President of Local 796 and Mr. Haskins, and Respondent had been represented by Mr. Whitlock and Mr. David Westbrook, Administrative Officer.

There is no dispute that a private meeting was requested by Mr. Whitlock; that a private meeting was held; and that in the course of the meeting Mr. Whitlock told Mr. Haskins that a member of Local 796 had told a District Ranger that he was ready to withdraw from the Union because Mr. Roach was waging a private battle against management (The District Ranger referred the member to the Union). In other respects there are sharp conflicts 1/ but for the purpose of determining this

1/ Mr. Haskins stated that the meeting lasted 5 to 7 minutes; Mr. Whitlock stated that it lasted 10 to 15 minutes. Mr. Haskins' testimony was inherently improbable. On the one hand, he asserted that all that was discussed was the statement of a union member to a District Ranger; but he admitted that Mr. Whitlock was concerned about the number of unfair labor charges and felt that there had to be some kind of a system to resolve them. Mr. Haskins denied that he ever discussed this meeting with anyone outside the Union; but Brent P. Gunderson, a Labor Management Relations Specialist in the Washington Office of the Forest Service, testified that during negotiations at the Shawnee National Forest in Marion, Illinois, Mr. Haskins had a discussion with him in Mr. Gunderson's motel room and that Mr. Haskins had told him about the meeting with Mr. Whitlock and that Mr. Haskins had stated that the purpose (continued) matter it is unnecessary to resolve these conflicts.

Such private meetings, frequently referred to as "side bar" meetings in labor-management relations are extremely common, the efficacy of such technique being directly proportinate to the mutual trust and confidence of the individuals involved. Indeed, Mr. Haskins admitted that he had requested such private meetings with management. Assuming, which assumption I do not believe was true, that the meeting consisted wholly of a statement by Mr. Whitlock to Mr. Haskins that a union member, or members, had reported dissatisfaction with Mr. Roach to the extent that such member, or members, wanted to get out of the Union (the District Ranger referred the individual to the Union), there simply is no basis to find a violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order which provides:

> (1) interfere with, restrain, or coerce an employee in the exercise of the rights assured by the Order.

Mr. Whitlock, by reporting the incident to Mr. Haskins, a National Representative of the Union, did not interfere with, restrain, or coerce Mr. Roach, President of Local 796, in the exercise of any right assured by the Order. There was no bypassing of the exclusive representative to deal directly with employees as was involved in United States Army School/Training Center, Fort of their meeting (Whitlock - Haskins) was to discuss what could be done to improve the relationship between Whitlock, Mr. Owen and Mr. Roach; that Mr. Haskins also told him that his problems on the Quachita were going to be over because Dave Westbrook was leaving.

Mr. Whitlock's testimony was credible and consistent with all testimony and evidence. He testified that he was concerned about the number of unfair labor practice charges; that he primarily wanted to meet with Mr. Haskins to see if relations could be improved; that Mr. Haskins said that the way to improve relations was to get rid of Dave Westbrook; that he discussed the offer to settle an unfair labor practice charge he had made in the meeting earlier; that Mr. Haskins urged him to put the offer in writing to Mr. Roach; that he (Haskins) believed he (Roach) would find that solution acceptable.

McCellan, Alabama, A/SLMR No. 42 (1971) and Department of Defense, U.S. Navy, Norfolk Naval Shipyard, A/SLMR No. 746 (1971); and no involvement by management in the internal election of a labor organization as was involved in Department of the Navy, Office of the Secretary, Washington, D. C., A/SLMR No. 393 (1974), and, although given most careful consideration, the decisions cited and relied upon by Complainant do not give the slightest support to Complainant's contention that the meeting here involved was in violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order. Mr. Haskins voluntarily agreed to meet with Mr. Whitlock and both the request for and the fact of the meeting were open and fully known to Mr. Roach who expressed no opposition. Such meeting, even assuming critical comments by management of local union officers to a national union representative standing alone, does not constitute a violation of 19(a)(1) of the Order. Accordingly, as I find no violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order, either from fact that a private meeting was held by Respondent with a National Representative of the Union or from anything that transpired at such meeting, I shall recommend that the Complaint in No. 64-3032(CA) be dismissed.

B. Case No. 64-3059(CA). The alleged violation of Section 19(a)(1) in this case involves a meeting held on October 6, 1975, at which Complainant was represented by Mr. Roach and Mr. James R. Lawrence, Chief Steward of Local 796, and Respondent was represented by Mr. Whitlock and Mr. Phillip M. Ingram, Personnel Officer, Quachita National Forest. The October 6 meeting was a pre-complaint meeting to attempt to resolve an unfair labor practice charge filed by Local 796. At the commencement of the meeting, Mr. Roach submitted an amendment to the charge previously filed and Mr. Whitlock and Mr. Ingram discussed among hemselves whether the amendment should be considered and agreed to handle the amended charge at that time. The amendment related to a September 19, 1975, meeting and Mr. Roach testified that he said,

> "Mr. Whitlock, I'm glad I was about four feet away from you on September the 19th at the Labor Management meeting because when you lost your temper I was afraid that you'd take a swing at me ... When I told Mr. Whitlock that ... he bent over and crouched over and looked me right square in the face and said through clinched teeth that he would like to put his knuckles in my face ... Mr. Whitlock stated that he wouldn't so abase his knuckles, he wouldn't > skin his knuckles in my face."

Mr. Lawrence testified as follows:

> "Mr. Whitlock read the pre-complaint and he stated to Mr. Ingram that well, maybe we need to postpone these due to the pre-complaint.Mr. Ingram suggested we went on into it. So after Buddy finished reading it, Mr. Roach stated that I'm glad you called a coffee break at this meeting in Hot Springs, because he said, Mr. Roach said, I think you were about ready to take a swing at me. It was at this time that Mr. Whitlock made this statement, that I would have liked to put my knuckes in your face, and then Mr. Whitlock hestitated just for a moment and said, no, my knuckles are too good.

Mr. Ingram testified as follows:

> "When the amendment to the complaint was presented, Mr. Whitlock and I recessed shortly to take a look at it to determine whether or not it would be appropriate to investigate and attempt to resolve that portion of the complaint also at the meeting of October the 6th ... well, when we first went back into the meeting, we told them that we would attempt to resolve and investigate this complaint also in addition to the original complaint ... There was a discussion between Mr. Whitlock, myself and Mr. Roach regarding the meeting of which the supplement complaint was based on. At that time Mr. Roach indicated that he felt like Mr. Whitlock was angered during the meeting and indicated that he felt like Mr. Whitlock was going to take a swing at him during the meeting ... Mr. Whitlock - uh - responded to that by saying that he would not waste the skin on his knuckles on Mr. Roach ... I would not wast the skin on my knuckles on you, Bill."

Mr. Whitlock testified as follows:

> "Mr. Roach began to describe my actions which were not - uh - really actually what happened, his description of it. And - uh - as we discussed it, Mr. Roach said, you wanted to hit me at the meeting. I said Bill, it has never occurred to me to hit you. He said, no, I know you wanted to hit me, you wanted to take a swing at me. I said, Bill, I haven't had a fight since I was a kid - uh - I'm not a fighter, can you say the same thing. He said forget that, you wanted to hit me. And by this time I was pretty disgusted with being accused a third time of wanting to hit him and I said, Bill, I just wouldn't waste the skin on my knuckles to fight with you."

It is prefectly apparent that nothing occurred on September 19, 1975, which would be considered a threat by Mr. Whitlock. To the extent that he may have been angered, he recognized it and called a short recess, after which the September 19, 1975, meeting continued without incident. On October 6, 1975, Mr. Roach said that he thought Mr. Whitlock was going to take a swing at him on September 19 and Mr. Whitlock responded, according to Mr. Lawrence "I would have liked to put my knuckles in your face ... no my knuckles are too good." Although Mr. Roach used quite similar phraselogy, it is recognized that he spoke in the present tense, implying that Mr. Whitlock said on October 6th, that he would like to put his knuckles in Mr. Roach's face; but I do not credit Mr. Roach's testimony in this regard. The testimony of Messrs. Lawrence, Ingram and Whitlock, which I credit in this regard, is wholly to the effect that Mr. Whitlock responded to Mr. Roach's appraisal of his (Whitlock's) attitude on September 19, 1975. In short, Mr. Whitlock made no threat to Mr. Roach on October 6, but, at most, if the substance of Mr. Roach's and Mr. Lawrence's versions are accepted, he responded to Mr. Roach by saying, in effect, "yes on September 19 I would have liked to put my knuckles in your fact - no my knuckles are too good for that." As a retort to Mr. Roach's needling about a past incident, there was no present threat and no interference with, restraint or coercion of Mr. Roach in the exercise of his rights assured by the Order and, accordingly, no violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order.

It is also perfectly clear that the meeting on October 6, 1975, after the asserted statements by Messrs. Roach and Whitlock continued without interruption.

Moreover, while the substance of Mr. Roach's and Mr. Lawrence's version of Mr. Whitlock's alleged statement on October 6, 1975, has been accepted for the purpose of discussion and, even if such version is accepted, no violation of Section 19(a)(1) occurred, I am not persuaded that Mr. Whitlock made the statement as attributed to him by Messrs. Roach and Lawrence. Rather, I find the testimony of Mr. Ingram persuasive, namely that Mr. Whitlock responded to Mr. Roach's remark about September 19 by saying "he would not waste the skin on his knuckles on you, Bill" which was fully consistent with the equally credible testimony of Mr. Whitlock that "Bill, I just wouldn't waste the skin on my knuckles to fight with you." The recollection of Messrs. Whitlock and Ingram concerning the details of the October 6 meeting was sharper and clearer than that of Messrs. Roach and Lawrence; and various details supplied by Messrs. Whitlock and Ingram were confirmed by Mr. Lawrence, for example, the private discussion between Mr. Whitlock and Mr. Ingram as to whether the amendment should be considered at that time but which was wholly absent in Mr. Roach's version; Mr. Lawrence confirmed Mr. Whitlock's testimony, denied by Mr. Roach, that Mr. Roach made repeated reference to Mr. Whitlock's attitude on September 19 before Mr. Whitlock made his response, etc. Mr. Roach was the provocator of Mr. Whitlock's response; Mr. Whitlock's response related to a prior (September 19) time; and nothing contained in Mr. Whitlock's response constituted a threat to Mr. Roach, indeed, his statement that he "would not waste the skin on his knuckles on you, Bill" was a positive denial of any threat. While violence, or threats of violence, is not condoned in any manner, the record contains no credible evidence or testimony that Mr. Whitlock made any threat to Mr. Roach, or, on the basis of which it could be said, would have engendered belief that a threat was implied. Accordingly, as nothing contained in Mr. Whitlock's response to Mr. Roach was in violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Order, I shall recommend that the Complaint in Case No. 64-3059(CA) be dismissed in its entirety.

RECOMMENDATION

Having found that Respondent has not engaged in certain conduct prohibited by Section 19(a)(1) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, I recommend that the Assistant Secretary of Labor enter an order dismissing the consolidated complaints herein in their entirety.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE, NATIONAL OFFICE
A/SLMR No. 846

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the National Treasury Employees Union (NTEU) alleging that the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by unilaterally issuing Internal Revenue Service Manual Supplement 13G-75 (MS13G-75) without affording the NTEU an opportunity to bargain over the issuance of the Supplement or its impact and implementation on employees represented by the NTEU. The NTEU contended that the Commissioner of Internal Revenue had made a commitment to inform the NTEU prior to any final decision concerning the creation of GS-905 Estate and Gift Tax Attorney positions in the Appellate Conferee classification and, thus, the unilateral issuance of MS13G-75, which concerned qualifications needed currently for consideration for an Appellate Conferee position, violated that commitment and the Order.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded, and the Assistant Secretary concurred, that the IRS had not engaged in conduct which violated the Order. In this regard, it was found that the NTEU had exclusive recognition for employees in a series of separate units located in 56 District Offices, 11 Service Centers and 4 Regional Offices, and that the IRS had an obligation to bargain only at those individual office levels. Thus, absent some form of national exclusive recognition or national consultation rights, the IRS was not obliged to meet and confer or consult with the NTEU at the national level concerning the issuance of MS13G-75 which applied uniformly to all IRS Regional Offices, including those not represented by the NTEU. Moreover, with respect to the substance of MS13G-75, the Administrative Law Judge concluded that it dealt only with existing circumstances as it set forth the criteria to be used currently in crediting attorney education and experience for the Appellate Conferee position and was not a determination on whether to convert the Appellate Conferee position to a GS-905 classification, which was the thrust of the NTEU's position at its meeting with the IRS Commissioner. The Administrative Law Judge concluded also, and the Assistant Secretary agreed, that the NTEU had failed to request bargaining at any level concerning the implementation or impact of MS13G-75.

Having adopted the findings, conclusions, and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This matter comes before me upon a Notice of Hearing on Complaint issued on May 26, 1976 by the U.S. Department of Labor Regional Administrator for Labor-Management Services, Philadelphia Region. The Complaint filed by the National Treasury Employees Union (hereinafter called the Union or NTEU) on November 4, 1975 alleges that the Internal Revenue Service (hereinafter called the Activity or the IRS) violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of Executive Order 11491, as amended (hereinafter called the Order) by unilaterally issuing a manual supplement without first negotiating with the Union about the decision to issue the manual supplement, its implementation or its impact.

A hearing was held before the undersigned in Washington, D.C. Both parties were represented by counsel and were given full opportunity to present, examine and cross-examine witnesses and to present evidence and arguments in support of their respective positions. Both parties had an opportunity to argue orally and submitted briefs, which have been duly considered.

Upon the basis of the entire record 1/ herein, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions of law and recommendation.

Findings of Fact

A. General Bargaining History 2/

At all times material herein NTEU represented employees in separate units located in each of 56 of IRS' 58 3/

1/ As part of the record herein the parties, by stipulation incorporated the record from Internal Revenue Service, Case No. 22-5243(CA), A/SLMR No. 550.

2/ Those Findings of Fact dealing with the collective bargaining history between the parties are based in a large part, on the record from the IRS case, Case No. 22-5243(CA), A/SLMR No. 550, and the Findings of Fact which I made in that case.

3/ NTEU apparently also represented employees in other units but they were not raised and are therefore not relevant to this case. Also it should be not that originally the Complainant was known as the National Association of Internal Revenue Employees (NAIRE) but subsequently changed its name to NTEU. NTEU represented professional and non-professional employees in 55 District Offices and non-professional employees only, in one.

Districts and 11 of 12 Service Centers and 4 of 7 Regional Offices.

During 1969 through 1972 NTEU negotiated separate collective bargaining agreements for approximately twelve Districts and four Service Centers. In 1970 NTEU filed three CU petitions with the U.S. Department of Labor in attempt to obtain exclusive recognition in three separate units at the national level. 4/ These three petitions were dismissed by the Regional Administrator, who was affirmed by the Assistant Secretary for Labor Management Relations. The Assistant Secretary stated that the merger of the local units into national units should be accomplished by means of RO petitions rather than CU petitions. The Assistant Secretary was affirmed by the Federal Labor Relations Council. No such RO petitions were filed. 5/

In 1972 the IRS and NTEU entered into multi-unit negotiations in regard to the units in the 56 District Offices represented by NTEU. A Multi-District Agreement covering the units located in the 56 District Offices and represented by NTEU was signed on April 5, 1972 6/ and a Multi-Center agreement covering the units located in the Service Centers and represented by NTEU was signed on April 13, 1973. 7/

During the negotiations for these agreements matters involving travel terms and procedures for employees were discussed and some were included in the negotiated agreements. Many of these agreed upon travel terms included in the agreements were at variance with the then existing

4/ NTEU, by these petitions, attempted to merge all the District Office Units composed of both professional and non-professional employees into one nationwide unit; to merge the District Office Units composed solely of professional employees into another nationwide unit; and all the Service Center units into another nationwide unit.

5/ At no time has NTEU sought National Consultation Rights with respect to the employees it represented.

6/ A subsequent Multi-District Agreement was executed on May 3, 1974.

7/ A Multi-Regional Agreement covering the individual Regional Units represented by NTEU was signed on May 21, 1974.

travel regulations contained in the Internal Revenue Service Manual (IRM). It was apparently understood that with respect to the employees covered by the collective bargaining agreements, the terms of those agreements, at least concerning travel, took precedence over the travel regulations contained in the IRM. Where there was no contract term covering a specific area the regulations in the IRM still controlled.

Further, during these negotiations the parties bargained about and in some instance agreed to terms that were outside the normal authority of the individual District Directors' or of the Service Center Directors'. The bargaining took place in Washington. With respect to the Multi-District agreement, the IRS team that apparently negotiated and signed the contract, was composed of two District Directors, one Assistant District Director and four members of the Washington staff. Similarly with respect to the Multi-Center agreement the IRS team was composed of three Service Center Directors and four members of the IRS Washington staff.

In the Multi-District agreement Article 1. Section 1 A provides, in part:

"The following employees comprise the unit covered by this agreement:

All professional and non-professional employees of the districts listed in Appendix A, including those professional employees who did not vote for inclusion with units of non-professional employees."

Article 1 Section 1. A. of the Multi-Center Agreement states, in part:

"The following employees comprise the unit covered by this Agreement:

All certified units of professional and non-professional employees of the Centers listed in Appendix A, including those certified units of professional employees who did not vote for inclusion with units of non-professional employees."

Article 1 Section 1. A. of the Multi-Regional Agreement states, in part:

"The following employees comprise the unit covered by this agreement:

All units of professional and non-professional employees of the regional offices listed in Appendix A, including those units of professional employees who did not vote for inclusion with units of non-professional employees.

B. The Parties' Dealings Regarding Mobility Problems Of Estate And Gift Tax Attorneys Prior to November, 1974.

Those employees of the Internal Revenue Service who are presently referred to as Estate and Gift Tax Attorneys were, prior to 1968, classified as non-attorneys in a GS-526 job series, even though individuals with law degrees were often hired to perform the work. It was the position of NTEU (at that time referred to as National Association of Internal Revenue Employees, "NAIRE" for short) that these employees were more properly classified as attorneys in the GS-905 series. In 1968, The Civil Service Commission agreed with NAIRE and directed that these employees be classified as GS-905's, and that classification remains in effect to date. These attorneys are usually hired as GS-7's or 9's, and can advance competitively to GS-13.

Once having achieved this goal, NTEU sought to create opportunities for these attorneys to advance to other, higher graded positions in the IRS. One such position targeted by NTEU has been the Appellate Conferee position, which is found in IRS Regional Offices and is classified in the GS-512 Auditor series. The highest grade level for these employees is GS-14. Basically, their duties consist of sitting in judgment on taxpayer appeals which have been taken from determinations of tax liabilities established in IRS District Offices. It was NTEU's contended that because the original evaluation and determination of taxes owed was made by Estate and Gift Tax Attorneys (E and G Attorneys) in the District Office, they should be the logical ones to move up to the Regional Office into the position that reviews some determinations made by E and G Attorneys.

Between 1968 and 1974 there were numerous conferences and discussions concerning this issue. During these meetings, the IRS indicated that it felt that mobility for E & G Attorneys was restricted, in large part, because of their non-competitive status. 8/ Much of the discussions focused on developing legislation that would make these attorneys non-exempt (i.e., in the competitive service).

Normally, these meetings would involve a representative of the IRS National Office, and the Personnel Director, for the IRS; and Vincent L. Connery, President of NTEU, or Robert M. Tobias, General Counsel for NTEU, for the union. Further, there were approximately four such meetings between 1970 and the November 5, 1974 meeting, which is here in question, all involving national representatives of IRS and NTEU.

C. The November 5, 1974 Meeting.

On November 5, 1974, the Commissioner of the IRS, Donald Alexander, met with the NTEU National President Vincent Connery, in the IRS National Office, Washington, D.C. The meeting was arranged by the IRS, in an effort to better the general working relationship between the IRS and NTEU, and to introduce Mr. Alexander and Mr. Connery to each other. No agenda was prepared for the meeting, as a general wide-ranging discussion between Mr. Alexander and Mr. Connery was anticipated. The meeting lasted approximately an hour and one-half, during which time various topics were discussed by Mr. Connery and the Commissioner. Mr. Connery brought up between six and a dozen topics for general discussion in order to acquaint the Commissioner with some of the Union's concerns. Among these topics of discussion were the issues of rearbitration of already-decided issues, over-strictness on the part of the IRS deciding officials in advisory arbitration cases, and the creation of more GS-905 Attorney positions in the IRS.

In regard to this last issue, Mr. Connery expressed the concern of NTEU that E & G Attorneys had limited career opportunities in the IRS because of the fact that no other 8/ The positions that NTEU contended the E & G Attorneys should be eligible to move into were all positions that required competitive Civil Service status.

IRS positions were classified as attorney positions. NTEU's concern was expressed as being that although E & G Attorneys were able in some circumstances to move into other non-supervisory positions in the IRS, such positions were not classified as GS-905 Attorney positions; NTEU felt that more IRS non-supervisory positions should be classified as GS-905 positions. Specifically, NTEU expressed interest in creation of GS-905 classifications in the new E ployee Plans/Exempt Organization (EP/EO) function and in Appellate Conference. In this regard, NTEU ntoed that there would be many positions within the new EP/EO function, then being formulated, that would entail substantial legal work and that such positions should therefore be classified as GS-905 Attorney positions. In addition, NTEU expresed its belief that the position Appellate Conferee, GS-512 (non-attorney), ought to be reclassified as GS-905 Attorney, insofar as the incumbent of that position reviewed the work of E & G attorneys and was called upon regularly in that function to apply complex legal principles. Finally, Mr. Connery noted the difficulties an E & G attorney has in moving from a GS-905 position to a GS-512 position if he/she lacks Civil Service competitive status from a previous job. The discussion in regard to this topic primarily concerned the need, as NTEU viewed it, for more GS-905 Attorney classifications in the IRS. The record does not establish that the discussion involved the qualifications necessary for an E & G attorney with competitive status to move into an Appellate Conferee, GS-512, position.

In regard to all of the matters that were discussed in the meeting, the Commissioner indicated that he was in sympathy with the Union's concerns and that he would look more carefully into each topic on his own, and that he appreciated the information that the union had given him. There is a conflict in testimony whether at any time during the meeting Commissioner Alexander promised Mr. Connery or anyone else that he would have any further discussions with NTEU before implementing any actions in any of these areas. However it is clear that, even if not expressly stated, Commissioner Alexander indicated that he would communicate with NTEU further after he had looked into the matters they had brought up.

When the IRS receives an estate and gift tax return, the return receives its initial audit in a IRS District Office. If the taxpayer disagrees with the initial audit, he/she may appeal it through two levels of review, culminating in appeal to an Appellate Conferee, in an IRS Regional Office. As noted above, in 1968, the Civil Service Commission determined that initial audits of estate and gift tax returns must be made by an attorney. The IRS accordingly reclassified the position as Estate and Gift (E & G) Attorney, GS-905. GS-905 is the only attorney classification in federal civil service. In addition, the E & G Attorney position is the only position in the IRS (excluding Office of Chief Counsel) that is classified as GS-905. Since 1968, NTEU has been urging the reclassification of Appellate Conferee positions from GS-512 to GS-905, arguing that insofar as an Appellate Conferee reviews the work of an E & G Attorney, Appellate Conferee position should also be classified as GS-905. To the extent that Appellate Conferee positions were discussed during the meeting of November 5, 1974, it was primarily regarding this contention of NTEU's that the position of Appellate Conferee ought to be reclassified as GS-905.

D. The Correspondence Between The Parties Following The November 5th Meeting.

President Connery wrote to Mr. Hastings on November 11, 1974, referring to the November 5, 1974 meeting and the discussion regarding the use of attorneys in EP/EO work stating that it should be classified in the GS-905 Attorney series. Mr. Brown responded on November 19, 1974, indicating that the IRS was "considering your (NTEU's) position and will respond as soon as possible." On December 23, 1974, Mr. Connery wrote to Mr. A exander, again referring to the November 5th meeting, and again referring to the discussion of E and G Attorney mobility generally. 9/ Mr. Orion Birdsall, acting for Mr. Brown, the Personnel Director, indicated that "the matter" was being reviewed, and the IRS would "be in contact with (NTEU in the near future."

Some time between December 10, 1974 and January 15, 1975, NTEU National Headquarters received a copy of a 9/ Specifically Mr. Connery protested a proposed plan to use a test group of GS-512 employees to do estate and gift work, work which he contended had already been determined by the Civil Service Commission, to be GS-905 Attorney work. Apparently no such test was ever put into effect.

letter dated November 19, 1974 sent by Mr. Billy Brown, IRS Personnel Director to a group of E & G Attorneys in Chicago. In Mr. Brown's letter, it was noted that the IRS intended to issue in the near future guidelines for evaluation of the qualifications of E & G Attorneys who had competitive status Appellate Conferee, GS-512, positions. The guidelines thus referred to were those eventually contained in M.S. 13G-75, issued on March 7, 1975. Mr. Connery again wrote Mr. Alexander on January 15, 1975. He again referred to the November 15th meeting, and referred to Mr. Brown's November 19th letter, for the proposition that no decision concerning E and G Attorneys participation in EP/EO work had been reached. He expressed concern that Mr. Brown's November 19 letter to the Chicago Attorneys indicated a contrary state of affairs. On February 3, 1975 Mr. Alexander responded to this letter, stating that no final decision had been made on the use of GS-905 attorneys in EP/EO work and that NTEU would be given advanced notice and an opportunity to discuss the Service's position on this issue before a final decision is made.

Manual Supplement (M.S.) 13G-75 which was issued on March 7, 1975 provides an interpretation fo pertinent Civil Service Commission regulations governing the qualifications necessary for consideration of an applicant for an Appellate Conferee, GS-512, position. More specifically, it provides guidelines for the substitution of experience as an E & G Attorney for experience otherwise required by the Civil Service Commission regulations. Prior to the issuance of M.S. 13G-75, such substitution of experience was determined on an ad-hoc basis by many different personnel technicians and without uniformity throughout the IRS. The purpose of the issuance of M.S. 13G-75 was to establish greater uniformity in the IRS in this regard. M.S. 13G-75 applies only to E & G Attorneys who already have competitive status from a previous job. Further, it applies only as long as the position of Appellate Conferee continues to be classified as GS-512. It has no impact on the classification of that position. 10/

M.S. 13G-75 applies to all IRS Regional Offices; some of these Regional Offices contain units that are represented by NTEU individually, and some do not.

10/ A reclassification of the Appellate Conferee position out of GS-512 would make M.S. 13G-75 obsolete.

The record does not establish that NTEU asked IRS, or the management of any of the individual units that NTEU represents, to bargain about the decision to issue M.S. 13G-75, or concerning its impact and implementation.

Conclusions of Law

A. Scope of Exclusive Recognition

NTEU was originally accorded recognition in a series of separate units located in the District Offices, Regional Offices and Service Centers. In fact separate collective bargaining agreements were entered into by NTEU and IRS covering certain of these units.

In 1972, however, NTEU and IRS entered into negotiations on a multi-unit basis. The IRS bargaining committee in the Multi-District Agreement was made up of District Office representatives and IRS officials from Washington. Similarly the IRS Multi-Center contract committee was composed of Service Center representatives and IRS officials from Washington. 11/ During their negotiations the parties bargained about, and ultimately agreed to terms that were normally outside the scope of the authority of District Directors' and/or the Service-Center Directors. The IRS representatives had obtained prior authority from the IRS Commissioner to bargain about such terms. All the contracts, in Article 1. Section 1. A., speak in terms of the "Unit" covered by the contract being composed of all pertinent employees in the Districts, Regions or Centers listed in the Appendix attached to each respective contract. In all these circumstances it seems clear that the NTEU and IRS, by this multi-unit bargaining, intended to merge the separate units in the District Offices into one nationwide District Office unit composed of the separate units the represented by NTEU and to merge the separate Service Center units into a nationwide Service Center unit composed of the separate units represented by NTEU. 12/

11/ The record contains nothing about the bargaining for the Multi-Regional Contracts.

12/ Similarly it can be assumed the parties had the same intention with respect to a Nationwide Regional Unit composed of separate units represented by NTEU.

However, the original Executive Order 11491 was signed in October of 1969 and provided that exclusive recognition must be obtained by a vote of the employees in the appropriate unit. It was after effective date of this Order that NTEU first tried to merge the units by means of the CU petitions. In dismissing them, it was held that the use of RO petitions, which could provide for an election, would have been the appropriate procedure for achieving exclusive recognition in these new nationwide units. NTEU failed to pursue such procedures. Rather the parties themselves by the 1972 negotiations voluntarily decided to merge the separate units into new nationwide units without utilizing any elections or RO petitions. To permit this would be to permit the parties to avoid the reasoning behind the dismissals of the CU petitions and to frustrate the purposes of Section 10 of the Order, which provides the method for obtaining exclusive recognitions. 13/

Therefore, despite the wishes and aims of the parties, it is concluded that neither the bargaining nor the multi-unit agreements had the legal effect of merging the separate local units and granting NTEU exclusive recognition in such new nationwide units. Therefore NTEU only had exclusive recognition for the employees in a series of separate units located in 56 District Offices, 11 Service Centers and the 4 Regional Offices. Further it must be noted that NTEU neither sought nor obtained National Consultation Rights.

B. Obligation to Bargain Concerning Issuance of M.S. 13G-75

M.S. 13G-75 which contained the uniform criteria for evaluating attorney experience when considering applicants for the Appellate Conferee GS-512 position applied to all IRS Regional Offices including the 2 or 3 not then represented by NTEU. Similarly these uniform standards would be applied to all E & G Attorney applicants for the Appellate Conferee GS-512 position, even those who came from District Offices not represented by NTEU.

13/ The Report and Recommendation of the FLRC on the Amendment of E.O. 11491, as Amended, on page 20 recommended that Section 10(a) of the Order be amended to permit such a voluntary consolidation of units, and Executive Order 11838, signed on February 5, 1975, followed that recommendation. Thus Section 10(a) of the Order has been amended to permit consolidation of units by the voluntary action of the parties.

Absent national recognition, national consultation rights or any special or peculiar circumstance the IRS was obliged not by the Order to bargain or consult with NTEU concerning the decision to issue and the issuance of M.S. 13G-75, even though that manual item, by imposing uniform criteria, would affect the working conditions of employees, the E & G Attorneys, in units represented by NTEU as well as similar employees not in units represented by NTEU. 14/ cf. U.S. Merchant Marine Academy, FLRC No. 71A-15 (November 20, 1972) and Department of Defense, Air Force Defense Language Institute, English Language Branch, Lackland Air Force Base, FLRC No. 73A-64 (October 25, 1974).

Because NTEU has neither national consultation rights nor national recognition it must be determined whether there were any other circumstances here present, which would somehow have prevented IRS from unilaterally issuing M.S. 13G-75. In this regard it is concluded that the November 5 meeting was, by its nature a rather informal meeting designed to permit the Union and IRS to explore and discuss mutual problems. By engaging in such a meeting the IRS did not waive any right it had to unilaterally issue the subject regulation; any such waiver of a right must be clear and unequivocal, and there was no such waiver present here. Further the thrust of the November 5 meeting was to create more GS-905 jobs. M.S. 13G-75 did not deal with that issue but merely provided that, with respect to the situation as it then actually existed (i.e. the Appellate Conferee position as a GS-512 position) what criteria would be used in crediting attorney experience. It was not a determination on whether to convert the Appellate Conferee position to a GS-905 classification. Therefore it must be concluded that there were no unusual or special circumstances present as a result of the November 5 meeting which in any manner limited the IRS' right to issue the Manual Supplement in question.

IRS had obligation to bargain with NTEU only at the individual District Office, Regional Office and Service

14/ It should be noted that Section 11(a) and (c) of the Order was Amended by Executive Order 11838 signed February 6, 1975 so as to provide in effect that appropriate subjects for bargaining can not be removed from bargaining by an agency regulation unless the agency can establish "a compelling need exists" for such a regulation. These amendments did not become effective until after March 7 and therefore are not applicable to the subject case.

Center level. Further the Order requires an Activity to bargain about the impact and implementation of a privileged change in working conditions only when a request or demand to so bargain is made by an exclusively recognized collective bargaining representative. 15/

In the subject case the record fails to establish that NTEU ever requested IRS at any level, including the units for which it was the collective bargaining representative, to bargain concerning the implementation or impact of M.S. 13G-75. In these circumstances it can not be concluded that the IRS, at any level, failed or refused to bargain about the impact and implementation of the manual supplement. 16/

In light of all of the foregoing, therefore, it is concluded that IRS did not engage in conduct which violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

Recommendation

In view of the findings and conclusion made above it is recommended that the Assistant Secretary for Labor-Management Relations dismiss the subject complaint.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

NATIONAL WEATHER SERVICE
A/SLMR No. 847

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the National Association of Government Employees (NAGE) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by its denial of the Complainant's request to delay implementation of a Merit Promotion Evaluation Guide and by its unilateral implementation of such Guide. Further, the Complainant alleged that the Respondent refused to discuss its proposals with respect to matters covered by the Guide at subsequent negotiation sessions held by the parties to negotiate a new multi-unit agreement.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order when it denied the Complainant's request to delay the implementation of the Guide and unilaterally implemented such Guide. With respect to the allegation that the Respondent had refused to negotiate with respect to subsequent proposals made by the Complainant, the Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Respondent had fulfilled its obligation in this regard. Thus, while the Administrative Law Judge agreed that there was an obligation on the part of the Respondent to negotiate with respect to the proposals made by the Complainant, he found that the Complainant had entered into an understanding with the Respondent over the Guide which effectively waived any right it might have had to object to the failure to negotiate in this regard. Accordingly, the Administrative Law Judge recommended dismissal of this portion of the complaint.

Contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, the Assistant Secretary concluded that the unfair labor practice complaint should be dismissed in its entirety. Thus, the Assistant Secretary noted that the Respondent was an organizational entity below the agency or primary national subdivision level which contained subordinate organizational elements in which exclusive bargaining units exist. In the Assistant Secretary's view, the Respondent had the authority to issue a policy such as the Guide having uniform application to all of its subordinate organizational elements, including those in which there were exclusive bargaining units, so long as the issuance of the policy did not preclude bargaining on negotiable matters at the level of exclusive recognition. In this regard, the Assistant Secretary found, as noted by the Administrative Law Judge, that the issuance of the Guide by the Respondent did not preclude bargaining on the Guide at the subordinate organizational levels as evidenced by the fact that the Respondent's subordinate activities met and conferred with the Complainant concerning the subject matter encompassed in the Guide, and the Complainant subsequently agreed to accept the Respondent's evaluation plan with regard to merit promotions.

Accordingly, under the particular circumstances, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

DECISION AND ORDER

On January 18, 1977, Administrative Law Judge Gordon J. Myatt issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom and take certain affirmative action, as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. The Administrative Law Judge found certain other conduct of the Respondent not to be violative of the Order. Thereafter, both the Respondent and the Complainant filed exceptions and supporting briefs with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. 1/ The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order, and the entire record in this case, including the exceptions and supporting briefs filed by the parties, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's finding, conclusions, and recommendations, only to the extent consistent herewith.

In his Recommended Decision and Order, the Administrative Law Judge found, among other things, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order when it denied the Complainant's request to delay the implementation of a Merit Promotion Evaluation Guide (Guide) and by its unilateral implementation of such Guide.

1/ At the hearing, the Administrative Law Judge denied the Respondent's Motion to Dismiss, which was based on the action of the Administrative Law Judge in allowing the Complainant's only witness to testify by deposition taken subsequent to the hearing in this matter. In its exceptions, the Respondent argued that it was prejudiced by the ruling of the Administrative Law Judge which compelled the Respondent to present its defense prior to having

The Respondent is an organizational entity below the agency or primary national subdivision level which contains subordinate organizational elements in which exclusive bargaining units exist. The evidence establishes that the Respondent issued a Guide concerning merit promotion evaluations at a time just prior to the commencement of negotiations with the Complainant involving several bargaining units for which the Complainant is the exclusive representative. In my view, an organizational entity, such as the Respondent herein, has the authority to issue a policy such as that involved in the instant case having uniform application to all of its subordinate organizational components, including those in which there are exclusive bargaining units, so long as the issuance of such policy does not preclude bargaining on negotiable matters at the level of exclusive recognition. In the instant case, the evidence establishes that the Respondent did not preclude bargaining on the Guide at its subordinate component levels. In fact, as noted by the Administrative Law Judge, the subordinate activities of the Respondent met and conferred with the Complainant concerning the subject matter encompassed by the Guide, and the Complainant subsequently agreed to accept the Respondent's evaluation plan with regard to merit promotions. 2/ Under these particular circumstances, I shall dismiss the complaint herein in its entirety.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the complaint in Case No. 22-6777(CA) be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to a complaint filed on March 31, 1976, by National Association of Government Employees (hereinafter called Complainant Union) alleging that National Weather Service (hereinafter called Respondent Activity) violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, the Acting Regional Director for Labor-Management Services for the Philadelphia Region issued a Notice of Hearing on Complaint on June 16, 1976. The complaint alleged, in essence, that the Respondent Activity unilaterally promulgated a Merit Promotion Evaluation Guide on or about January 5, 1976, despite the demand of the Complainant Union, as the exclusive representative of multiple units of employees of the Respondent Activity, that the contents of the Evaluation Guide were subject to negotiation. Further, that on or about January 16 and March 2, 1976, the Respondent Activity refused to discuss proposals of the Complainant Union relating to "an objective Merit Promotion Evaluation Procedure" during collective bargaining negotiations, and took the position that there was no duty to negotiate the subject matter.

A hearing was held on July 22, 1976, in Washington, D.C. Prior to the date of the hearing, counsel for the Complainant Union filed a motion to reschedule on the ground that the chief witness and former counsel of the Complainant Union was no longer employed by the labor organization and was not available to testify at the time of the scheduled hearing. The Respondent Activity entered an objection to the motion because it would have worked a hardship on a critical witness who had since retired from federal service. The motion was denied and permission was granted, over the objection of the Respondent Activity, for the parties to take the deposition of the Complainant Union's chief witness at a subsequent date. The record was kept open until this was accomplished. Following the taking of the deposition 1/, the Respondent Activity filed a motion to strike the deposition on the ground that it had been prejudiced in preparing and presenting its defense to the allegations of the complaint. 2/ Upon notificiation to the parties of an intention to reopen the record for the purpose of allowing the Respondent Activity to present any additional evidence or testimony it deemed necessary as a result of the deposition, the Respondent Activity submitted a letter preserving its objection to the procedure followed but indicating that it had no additional new or substantial evidence to offer. 3/

Briefs were submitted by both parties and been duly considered. Upon the entire record in this, including my observation of the witnesses, I make the following:

3/ The statement of the Respondent Activity is hereby received into the record as Assistant Secretary's Exhibit No. 1(1).

National Weather Service has a headquarters operation and field offices throughout the United States; which from an organizational standpoint is divided into regions.

The Complainant Union is comprised of Regional Councils having exclusive recognition for units of employees on a region-wide basis and Locals having exclusive recognition in regions where the extent of the recognition was on less than a regional basis. Although the Complainant Union does not have national exclusive recognition with the Respondent Activity, it is the exclusive representative for the vast majority of the employees of the Activity. Of approximately 4100 employees, 3500 belong to units represented by labor organizations. Approximately 3150 of these employees are represented by the Complainant Union in various units throughout the United States. In addition, the Complainant Union was accorded national consultation rights under Section 9 of the Executive Order by NOAA in 1971.

Since 1970, the Complainant Union, on behalf of its Regional Councils and Locals, has bargained for and executed a series of multi-unit agreements with the Respondent Activity. The most recent of the multi-unit agreements covered the period February 1, 1974, to March 31, 1976. (Joint Exhibit No. 2). The predecessor agreement was in effect from January 1, 1972 to Janury 31, 1974. (Joint Exhibit No. 1).

II. The Events Leading to the Alleged Violations of the Executive Order

A. The Proposed Merit Promotion Evaluation Guide

On November 10, 1975, the Director of the Respondent Activity sent a copy of a proposed Merit Promotion Evaluation Guide to the Executive Vice President of the Complainant Union. (Joint Exhibit Nos. 4 and 5). The purpose of the Evaluation Guide was "[t]o ensure uniformity in filling vacancies under the Merit Promotion Program" throughout the Weather Service. The Complainant Union was requested to submit comments on the Evaluation Guide by December 5, 1975. 4/

The Evaluation Guide was the result of the urgings of regional personnel officials at several conferences convened by the Chief of Personnel of the Respondent Activity. Prior to the development of the Guide, each region followed its own procedure, which of course had to conform with the merit promotion plan of NOAA and the policies set forth in the Federal Personnel Manual. The Guide was formulated because the regional personnel officials were anxious to have a uniform procedure applicable throughout the Weather Service.

4/ Two other unions, American Federation of Government Employees and National Federation of Federal Employees represented small units of employees at the Respondent Activity. Their views were also solicited by the Respondent Activity, and each of these unions submitted comments on the Evaluation Guide by the date requested.

Because the multi-unit agreement between the parties was scheduled to expire in March 1976, it was mutually agreed that there would be an exchange of proposals for a new agreement in November 1975, and negotiations would commence in January of the following year. The Respondent Activity gave its proposals to the Complainant Union on November 24 and the labor organization submitted its proposals several days later. Included in the Complainant Union's proposals was a specific provision (Article 17) relating to a merit promotion procedure. This proposal included the factors to be considered and the weight to be assigned them in evaluating employees for purposes for promotion. (Joint Exhibit No. 3).

On December 3, 1975, the Executive Vice President of the Complainant Union responded to the Activity's request for comments on the proposed Evaluation Guide. The Complainant Union asked that "discussions be postponed pending scheduled negotiations in January and that no action be taken by the Agency until the subject has been dealt with through the negotiation process." (Joint Exhibit No. 6). The Union reminded the Respondent Activity that it had submitted contract proposals which included proposals on the "Merit Promotion Program," and took the position that "many areas" encompassed in the Evaluation Guide and the contract proposals were negotiable.

In a reply dated January 3, 1976, the Respondent Activity rejected the Complainant Union's request to delay implementation of the Evaluation Guide. (Joint Exhibit No. 7). The letter stated, in part:

> "While matters relative to merit promotion are proposed for the upcoming negotiations, the content and issuance of a nationwide NWS Guide as above are not proper for negotiations since your organization does not hold national exclusive recognition. We will, of course, negotiate any merit promotion matter which is properly within your scope of recognition and not in conflict with national policy."

The Respondent Activity concluded by informing the Complainant Union that it planned to issue the Evaluation Guide on January 6, 1976, to "establish uniform application on a national basis."

B. The Negotiations for a New Multi-Unit Agreement

The parties commenced negotiations on the proposals for a new multi-unit agreement on January 12, 1976. The chief negotiator for the Complainant Union was Phillip Collins, then union counsel in charge of the NWS negotiations. Management was represented by a team of negotiators headed by Perry Walper, Chief of Labor-Management Relations Branch of the NOAA Personnel Division. He was assisted by a number of management officials including Hasker B. Samuel, Jr., Chief of the Personnel Section of the Respondent Activity 5/ and Andrew Husser, Chief of Policy, Planning and Evaluation Branch of the Personnel Division of NOAA.

The testimony 6/ indicates that the parties initially began bargaining as one large group. Subsequently they subdivided into small groups handling specific contract proposals. On the last day of the January negotiations (January 16), Collins attempted to raise the Union's proposal for Article 17 relating to the merit promotion procedures and evaluations. Husser, who was in charge of the management sub-group handling this particular proposal, declined to discuss Section 6 pertaining to the factors and weights to be considered in evaluating employees for promotion and Section 7 pertaining to the determination of the best qualified candidate for promotion. Husser testified that he took this position because he did not have knowledge of the Respondent Activity's plans on this particular area in view of the Evaluation Guide which was recently issued. 7/

5/ The personnel section of the Respondent Activity was a component of the personnel division of NOAA.

6/ The testimony of all of the witnesses including the deposed witness, is in substantial agreement concerning the events that occured during the negotations. There are some minor conflicts between witnesses in recalling the timing of certain statements and events, but I find this to be the result of the passage of time rather than an intent to mislead. Accordingly, I find all of the testimony to be creditable, and the facts set forth above are a synthesis of the testimony of all of the witnesses.

7/ Collin's notes indicate that Section 6 was not discussed because it conflicted with NWS policy.

At the conclusion of the January negotiation sessions, the parties agreed to exchange correspondence delineating the areas of agreement and in setting forth their position on proposals which were in disagreement. Management also submitted a counter proposal for Article 17 entitled "Filling Vacancies". Section 1 of the counter proposal indicated that "vacancies may be filled by lateral reassignment or other means recognized as exceptions to merit promotion programs, or through the NOAA Merit Promotion Program (MPP)." Management's proposal for Article 17 did not spell out the factors to be considered and the weight to be given each in making the evaluation, but contained a section which stated that Regional Councils "through consultation would recommend and assist management in reviewing evaluation ranking systems to make them as objective as possible." (Joint Exhibit No. 8). 8/

On February 20, 1976, the Complainant Union submitted a copy of its assessment of the various proposals to management. (Respondent Activity No. 5). Regarding Section 6 of Article 17, the Complainant Union stated that "[w]e reiterate our demand that the NWS negotiate our proposals for Section 6 prior to implementing the Merit Promotion Plan Evaluation Guide." The parties agreed to resume negotiations during the week of March 1, 1976.

The parties reached Article 17 during the second day of the negotations in March. The Complainant Union's chief representative insisted that the Evaluation Guide and the Union's merit promotion proposals should be negotiated. Samuel, on behalf of management, suggested that the Evaluation Guide remain operational for a period of four months. Then management would be willing to engage in consultation with the Union regarding the results. The Complainant Union rejected this proposal and insisted on negotiating the Guide. Walper, the chief representative for management, stated that the time for consultation had passed

8/ This section of management's proposal was identical to Article 17, Section 5 of the existing agreement. That provision in the current agreement stated:

> Section 5. Regional Councils, through consultations, will recommend and assist management in reviewing evaluation ranking systems with the aim of making them as objective as possible and follow the prescribed policy on evaluation and ranking as set forth in the Federal Personnel Manual.

and the Guide was not negotiable. He told Collins to get back to the business of negotiation, as the Guide was "not on the table". Collins nevertheless continued to detail the Complainant Union's criticism of the Guide. Finally, the parties began to discuss the proposals relating to Article 17 and, more specifically, Section 6 dealing with the evaluation factors. Management took the position that the evaluation had to be according to the Guide. The record shows that there was some discussion on one portion of Section 6 relating to a provision that management would make an annual promotion evaluation of each employee. However, management refused to discuss the other portions of Section 6 relating to the factors to be considered in the evaluation. It was clear that the chief obstacle was the previously issued evaluation guide, which management stated was not up for negotiation.

On March 5, 1976, Samuel renewed management's offer to leave the Guide in operation for a four month period to gain experience on its effectiveness. Then management would consult with the union representatives on the results. Collins took the position that the Evaulation Guide was a fait accompli, and finally agreed to management's suggestion for the four month trial. He stated however, that the Complainant Union was not waiving its right to object to the implementation of the Guide on January 6 and the failure of management to negotiate the substance of the Guide and the Union's proposals on merit promotion. The parties finally agreed that they would enter into a separate memorandum of understanding regarding the four-month trial period for the Evalution Guide. This memorandum of understanding was to be drafted by management and forwarded to the Complainant Union for signature. The parties also agreed that management would submit a draft of the multi-unit agreement incorporating all items agreed upon during the negotiations.

Later that month, management submitted a draft agreement to the Complainant Union. Collins did not consider it as accurately reflecting the matters agreed upon, and he requested a meeting between the parties be held on March 30 and 31. This meeting was subsequently cancelled by management because several Regional Councils withdrew authority for the Complainant Union to negotiate on their behalf and filed decertification petitions seeking the ouster of the Complainant Union. Management did not submit the memorandum of understanding regarding the operation of the Evaluation Guide either, because of this development

The Complainant Union contends that by virture of its national consultation rights with NOAA it was entitled to "consult" with the Weather Service regarding the Evaluation Guide. When it requested delay in implementation of the Guide until the parties had an opportunity negotiate the merit promotion provisions of its contract proposals, it did not waive the right to engage in consultation. The Complainant Union also argues that the implementation of the Evaluation Guide, after rejection of its request for delay and on the eve of negotiations for a new multi-unit agreement, was a denial of its national consultation rights and was also a manifestation of an intent to refuse to negotiate the Union's merit promotion proposals during the bargaining sessions. Finally, the Complainant Union contends that the Respondent Activity refused to negotiate the merit promotion evaluation factors during the January and March bargaining sessions, although required to do so under the Executive Order.

The Respondent Activity defends its actions on several grounds. First, it contends that the existing multi-unit agreement contained a provision (Article 17, Section 5) which limited the parties to "consultation" as opposed to negotiation on policies and procedures involving evaluation ranking systems. The Respondent Activity argues that the Complainant Union was afforded an opportunity to "consult" on the Evaluation Guide, but chose not to take advantage of this offer when it asked for a delay until negotiations were completed on the merit promotion proposals. The Respondent Activity further contends that Section 12(b)(2) of the Executive Order reserves to management the right to control the promotion of its employees and to select and weight the criteria upon which such promotions shall be accomplished. It was also argued that even if the Evaluation Guide were considered negotiable, there was no duty to engage in such negotiations with the Complainant Union before the start of the multi-unit negotiations, as the Union did not have national exclusive recognition with the Respondent Activity. An extension of this argument is that during the January and March negotiation sessions, it discharged all negotiating obligations placed upon it by the Executive Order regarding the Union's merit promotion proposals. Finally, the Respondent Activity takes the position that the Complainant Union waived any right that it had regarding a failure to negotiate the merit promotion provisions of the contract proposals when it agreed to allow the Evaluation Guide to remain in effect for a four-month trial period.

Concluding Findings

In my judgment, one of the features of this case which complicates the issues is the reliance the parties place upon the national consultation rights afforded the Complainant Union by the parent organization (NOAA) of the Respondent Activity. It is evident that both parties are attempting to interprete their obligations against the backdrop of a relationship which does not exist between the Respondent Activity and the Complainant Union. National consultation rights arise under Section 9 of the Executive Order and are subject to criteria established by the Federal Labor Relations Council. (5 C.F.R., Part 2412). Within the meaning of the criteria (5 C.F.R. §2412.2) NOAA is a primary national subdivision of the Department of Commerce. 9/ However, the Merit Promotion Evaluation Guide is a promotion policy and procedure developed and promulgated by the National Weather Service; a major operational component of NOAA. Thus, it was not issued at the primary national subdivision level. Samuel testified that the regional personnel officers were pressing for the issuance of a merit promotion procedure which would have uniform application to all regions of the Respondent Activity, and the Evaluation Guide was developed to meet this objective. Therefore, the duties and obligations arising under the national consultation rights accorded to the Complainant Union by NOAA have no material bearing upon a merit promotion plan promulgated by the Respondent Activity and is not a factor to be considered in resolving the issues presented by this case.

The threshold question here is whether the Respondent Activity had a duty under Section 11(a) of the Executive Order to negotiate the substance of the Evaluation Guide with a union which was the exclusive representative of a number of region-wide and local units of employees, but which did not have national exclusive representative status. The Respondent Activity in a well written brief describes the Evaluation Guide as consisting "primarily of a series of tables and worksheets prescribing in detail the factors or criteria... and the precise weight to be given each factor, by the NWS Personnel Officers and Manpower Utilization Councils in making promotion decisions under... the NOAA Merit Promotion Plan." The Respondent Activity asserts that the "right to select and weight promotion criteria is at the very heart of the right to promote reserved to agency management under Section 12(b) of the Order." 10/

In my judgment this assertion has too broad a sweep. The Federal Labor Relations Council in interpreting the rights reserved to agency management under the Executive Order has carved out a careful definition of the meaning of these rights. In Veterans Administration Research Hospital 11/ and the subsequent line of cases on this point 12/ the Council has consistently declared that the intent of Section 12(b)(2) is "to bar from agreements provisions which infringe upon management officials' exercise of their existing authority to take the personnel actions specified therein" but does not "preclude negotiations of the procedures which management will follow in exercising that reserved authority", provided "such procedures do not have the effect of negating the authority itself."

It is evident from the Council's decisions that the right to promote employees is unquestionably reserved for management, but the procedures management will follow in exercising this authority are proper subjects for negotiation as long as it does not have the effect of nullifying the authority itself. 13 / In the instant case, the criteria and factors to be considered and the weight to be assigned them are, part of the promotion procedure to enable agency management to evaluate employees for promotion opportunities under the merit promotion plan. There is nothing in the Evaluation Guide which would cause management to negotiate a promotion selection, nor would it interfere with the ultimate decision making and action authority of the agency officials. It would merely establish a uniform procedure by which all employees would be evaluated for purposes of promotion under the merit promotion plan. 14/ Therefore, unless limited to a lesser process by express provision in the existing multi-unit agreement, the substance of the evaluation guide is a proper subject matter for negotiations between the parties.

It is of no consequence that the Complainant Union did not enjoy national exclusive recognition with the Respondent Activity, but was only the exclusive representative of multiple units of employees throughout the Activity. The mere fact that the evaluation guide was to have activity-wide application does not remove the obligation to negotiate its substance, as it relates to personnel policies and practices, with a labor organization which has exclusive recognition for units of employees on a less than activity-wide basis. The evaluation guide clearly involved personnel policies and practices affecting all employees, and under Section 11(a) 15/ was a bargainable subject matter. To hold otherwise would allow the Respondent Activity to circumvent its bargaining obligation on a matter, otherwise negotiable, by the mere extention of its application beyond the scope of the represented units of employees.

It should be noted at this point, that there is serious question as to whether the compelling need provisions of Section 11(a) are applicable to the facts of this case. As

15/ Section 11(a) of the Executive Order provides, in pertinent part:

> Sec. 11 Negotiation of Agreements. (a) An agency or a labor organization that has been accorded exclusive recognition, through appropriate representatives, shall meet at reasonable times and confer in good faith with respect to personnel policies and practices and matters affecting working conditions, so far as may be appropriate under applicable laws and regulations, including policies set forth in the Federal Personnel Manual; published agency policies and regulations for which a compelling need exists under criteria established by the Federal Labor Relations Council and which are issued at the agency headquarters level or at the level of a primary national subdivision; ....

previously indicated, the Respondent Activity is not a primary national subdivision, but is a principle organizational element, albeit nation-wide in scope, of a primary national subdivision (NOAA). 16/ The Evaluation Guide was issued by the Respondent Activity itself and not at the agency headquarters or the primary national subdivision level. Therefore, the "compelling need" criteria would not seem to be a valid basis for excluding the Evaluation Guide from the negotiation process.

But even if this portion of 11(a) is construed to have application, the record does not contain evidence sufficient to meet the criteria established by the Council for a "compelling need" exclusion. The illustrative criteria are set forth in 5 C.F.R., Part 2413. The only provision which would have application to this case is found in Section 2413.2(e). That illustrative example states that the "compelling need" requirement is satisfied when:

> (e) the policy or regulation establishes uniformity for all or a substantial segment of the employees of an agency or a primary subdivision where this is essential to the effectuation of the public interest. (Emphasis Supplied).

Although it is clear that it was management's desire to achieve uniformity in the merit promotion evaluation of the employees throughout the entire organizational component, there is nothing in the record which suggests that it was essential or vital to the effectuation of the public interest. As Samuel testified, prior to the promulgation of the guide there variations in each region, and over a period of time the personnel officers were pressing for the establishment of a uniform procedure. There is no evidence that the prior variations caused the regions to fail to comply with the merit promotion plan of NOAA or the policies prescribed in the Federal Personnel Manual. Nor is there any evidence that the variations were so substantial that they interfered with the agency's efforts to develop sound promotion policies. Hence, there is nothing in the record which causes me to find that the promulgation of the Evaluation Guide was of such a compelling nature as to override the obligation to negotiate its substance under Section 11(a).

The remaining issue regarding the negotiability of the evaluation guide is whether Article 17, Section 5 limited the parties to a process less than negotiation on the substance of the Guide. This provision in the agreement required "Regional Councils, through consultation, " to recommend and assist activity management in reviewing evaluation ranking systems to make them objective and to conform with the prescribed policy in the Federal Personnel Manual. The Respondent Activity argues that this section "effectively limited" the bargaining obligation imposed by Section 11(a) of the Executive Order. While it is true that parties by contractual agreement can place a valid limitation on their obligation to negotiate under Section 11(a) 17/, I am not persuaded that such has occurred here.

Article 17, Section 5 relates solely to Regional Councils, however, the multi-unit agreement involves both Regional Councils and Locals with exclusive recognition. It is not clear whether this provision is intended to impose a limitation on the various Regional Councils and not on the Locals of the same union in instances where there was no region-wide recognition. But more important, when this provision is read in context with Article 6, Section 1 of the agreement 18/ which grants broad authority to the parties for consultation and negotiation on matters relating to working conditions, including promotion plans, the intent of the prior provision is even less clear.

In order to have an effective waiver or limitation restricting the right conferred by Section 11(a) of the Executive Order to negotiate a subject matter, the waiver must be clear and unmistakable. NASA, Kennedy Space Center, Kennedy Space Center, Florida, A/SLMR No. 223; U.S. Department of Navy, Naval Ordinance Station, Louisville, Kentucky, A/SLMR No. 400. It is evident that such is not the case here.

17/ See U.S. Army School/Training Center, Fort Gordon, Georgia, A/SLMR No. 148.

18/ Article 6 relates to "matters appropriate for consultation and negotiation." Section 1 of that provision provides:

> It is agreed that matters appropriate for consultation and negotiation between the parties are policies and practices related to working conditions which are within the discretion of the employer, including but not limited to such matters as safety, training, labor-management cooperation, employee services, methods of adjusting grievances, appeals, granting of leave, promotion plans, demotion practices, pay regulations, reduction-in-force practices, and hours of work. (Emphasis supplied).

Accordingly, I find that Article 17, Section 5 does not constitute a waiver of the right of the Complainant Union to negotiate the substance of the Evaluation Guide with the Respondent Activity.

On the basis of the foregoing, I find and conclude that the Respondent Activity failed to consult and confer with the Complainant Union, as required by Section 19(a)(6) of the Executive Order, when it denied the Complainant Union's request to delay implementation of the Evaluation Guide until the parties had an opportunity to negotiate those matters which were common to the Guide and the proposals submitted by the Union for the pending multi-unit negotiations. I further find that the unilateral implementation of the Evaluation Guide on January 6, 1976, in the face of a timely request to negotiate is a further violation of Section 19(a)(6). In addition, such conduct had a concomitant coercive effect upon and interfered with the rights assured employees in the recognized bargaining units by the Executive Order in violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Executive Order.

The remaining issue to be decided in this case is whether during the January and March negotiation sessions the Respondent Activity refused to negotiate the merit promotion proposals of the Complainant Union as required by the Executive Order. There is no doubt on the basis of the record in this case that the major obstacle confronting the parties in dealing with the merit promotion proposals was the existence of the Evaluation Guide and the fact that it had already been implemented by the Respondent Activity. It is equally clear that there was full and frank discussion on all of the contract proposals and counterproposals submitted by both parties with the exception of Section 6 of the Complainant Union's merit promotion proposals. The Respondent Activity took the position that the Evaluation Guide was controlling in this area and the subject matter was not for negotiation. Critical to a determination of the issue presented by this portion of the complaint is the agreement entered into by the parties to allow the Evaluation Guide to remain in effect for a four-month period; after which they would engage in further discussion on the results.

Although the chief representative of the Complainant Union entered into the understanding with the express caveat that he was not waiving the Union's right to object to the failure to negotiate that portion of its merit promotion proposal, I find that he did in fact waive this right. By acquiescing to the operation of the Guide for a four-month trial period, and by agreeing to engage in future discussions with the Respondent Activity on this subject after the trial results were known, the Complainant Union agreed to accept management's counter offer regarding this aspect of the merit promotion proposal. It cannot now be heard to complain about the failure to negotiate the subject matter after having accepted management's evaluation plan, even though it was unlawfully implemented in the first instance, and agreeing to engage in future discussions after the expiration of the trial period. Accordingly, I find in the circumstances of this case that this allegation of the complaint must be dismissed.

Having found that the Respondent Activity engaged in conduct which violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Executive Order, I shall recommend that the Assistant Secretary adopt the following Recommended Order designed to effectuate the policies of Executive Order 11491, as amended.

RECOMMENDED ORDER

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

U.S. CUSTOMS SERVICE, REGION IV,
MIAMI, FLORIDA
A/SLMR No. 848

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the National Treasury Employees Union (NTEU) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by: (1) failing to give NTEU Chapter 146 an opportunity to be present at a formal meeting between management and an employee for whom the NTEU had filed a grievance, and (2) resolving the grievance in a manner which constituted a change in the past practice of dealing with such matters without prior notice to, or bargaining with, the exclusive representative.

The Administrative Law Judge recommended that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. In reaching this conclusion, he found that the record failed to establish that a grievance was presented on behalf of the employee who was unhappy with the overtime assignment he had received. Thus, the Administrative Law Judge concluded that a subsequent discussion of the issue between the employee and a supervisor was not a "formal discussion" within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order. Furthermore, the Administrative Law Judge found that the resolution of the questions raised by the complaining employee was consistent with the past practice of the Respondent and, in any event, that there was no clear unilateral breach of the negotiated agreement. In the Administrative Law Judge's view, at most, there were differing and arguable interpretations of the parties' negotiated local agreement.

Noting particularly the absence of exceptions, the Assistant Secretary adopted the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge. Accordingly, he ordered that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This case arises under Executive Order 11491, as amended (hereinafter also referred to as the "Order"). It was initiated by a charge filed on, or about, May 28, 1976, and a Complaint filed on August 20, 1976. Notice of Hearing issued on October 29, 1976, pursuant to which a hearing was duly held before the undersigned on December 6, 1976, in Miami, Florida.

On Motion of the parties, and for good cause shown, the time for filing briefs was successively extended to and including March 8, 1977, because of the delay in the receipt of the transcript by the parties.

The Complaint alleged that a grievance was lodged on April 19, 1976, and adjusted that day by Supervisory Inspector Hernandez; that on April 20, 1976, the grievant was summoned to a meeting with Supervisory Inspector Zagar; that the Union was not notified or given an opportunity to be present at the formal meeting with grievant in violation of Section 10(e) of the Order; and that Chief Inspector Recio later on April 20, 1976, advised Inspector Rizzo, President of National Treasury Employees Union Chapter 146 (hereinafter also "NTEU" or "Union"), 1/ that the grievance was denied, i.e., inspectors above grievant would not be red-lined, which overturned a prior settlement in violation of Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order and was, moreover, a change in policy from published Overtime Rules, without prior notice and bargaining in violation of Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

Respondent had asserted that the National President of NTEU was not a proper party to raise the matters comprising the Complaint but in its Post-Hearing Brief Respondent has withdrawn that position.

All parties were represented by counsel, were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses and to introduce evidence bearing on the issues involved and briefs, timely filed, have been carefully considered. Upon the basis of the entire record, including my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, I make the following findings, conclusions and recommendations:

1/ Region IV was originally represented by the National Customs Service Association which entered into an agreement with Respondent in 1973 (Comp. Exh. 4), which agreement is still in effect. Subsequently, NTEU affiliated with the National Customs Service Association and the certification was amended to NTEU.

Discussion

This case involves the Miami Seaport. This portion of Respondent's operation is headquartered on Dodge Island. The Dodge Island office closes at 5:00 p.m. and calls after 5:00 p.m. go to Respondent's office at the Miami International Airport which is open around the clock. Under the 1911 Act, 19 U.S.C. §267, customs services in connection with the lading or unlading of cargo, etc., outside normal hours are provided only at the request of the shipping agent or master of a vessel and the Government is reimbursed for cost. Inspectors performing such overtime work are paid pursuant to 19 U.S.C. §267, in effect, double time, there are certain minimum hours guaranteed and time is computed by periods. This is quite lucurative; but Respondent is obligated to equalize, as nearly as possible, overtime earnings of its Inspectors. To do so, a record of overtime earnings is maintained and the Inspectors with the least overtime earnings are listed, on the basis of overtime earned, daily as 1-2-3-4 as the order to be called for overtime assignments.

In normal practice arrangements for Customs Inspectors are made well in advance by the shipping agent or master since many interrelated phases must be coordinated. On occasion, of course, the ball is dropped and all will have been arranged except for Customs Inspectors, or some other urgent contingency will arise which requires an immediate assignment of a Customs Inspector. The record shows, without any contradiction, that it is the normal practice of Respondent that Inspectors are not called for overtime assignments between 5:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m. in order to allow time for the Inspectors to reach their homes after leaving work at 5:00 p.m. The only departure from this practice is when some urgent necessity dictates.

Inspectors who refuse an overtime assignment are penalized. That is, they are "red-lined" and credited with "wooden money" in the amount they would have earned had they accepted the assignment. The record further shows, overwhelmingly, that Inspectors who were not reached prior to 6:00 p.m. were never penalized when another Inspector was reached prior to 6:00 p.m. and given overtime assignment because of some urgent necessity. This practice was thoroughly established by the testimony of Chief Inspector William Recio, Supervisory Inspector Douglas Hernandez, and Senior Inspector Hazel Raymond, which testimony I fully credit. The testimony of Ronald Rizzo and Kenneth W. Brown that they were not aware of this practice does not constitute any evidence that such practice did not exist and in view of the testimony of Messrs. Recio and Hernandez and Ms. Raymond which has been fully credited no weight is accorded to Mr. Brown's and Mr. Rizzo's testimony that they were unaware of such practice.

1. Overtime Rules Agreement

In 1975, the Inspectors through the Overtime Committee, consisting of Inspectors Stroface, Hartman and Peterson, met with Chief Inspector Recio and agreed upon "Overtime Rules" (Comp. Exh. 1) which was approved at a meeting of all inspectors and the written document, dated October 1, 1975, was signed "Approved" by Inspectors Stroface, Hartman and Peterson and by Chief Inspector Recio. 2/ "Overtime Rules", as pertinent, provide as follows:

> "2. Anyone missing or refusing an overtime assignment will be given 'wooden money' for the number of periods earned by that assignment. You are entitled to one free calloff (call off should be done before 9:00 a.m.), after which a penalty will be assessed for each additional call-off for the amount earned on the job that you would have worked.
> "3. All assignments will be given as they are called in to the lowest Inspector available. Any cancellation will not change the order of jobs already assigned. The Inspector whose job is cancelled will be given the next available assignment. All Inspectors will call the Dock Office by 1630 to find their relative overtime standings.
> * * * (Comp. Exh. 1).

2/ Mr. Rizzo, President of Chapter 146,acknowledged that this was a duly negotiated local agreement. As such, it may well be a part of the "agreement" of the parties to the same extent as if made a part of the "Basic Agreement"(Comp. Exh. 4), and subject to the negotiated grievance procedure; however, as neither party has urged such result, and it is unnecessary for decision herein, no determination is made, or is to be inferred, that a dispute under the "Overtime Rules" agreement is, or is not, subject to the parties' negotiated grievance procedure.

2. The Johns Incident.

On Saturday, April 17, 1976, the call out list for overtime assignments (Comp. Exh. 2) showed, in order of call out, Mr. Barkdull No. 1, Mr. Ramirez No. 2, Mr. Edwards No. 3, and Mr. Johns No. 4. Each of these Inspectors had worked the regular shift on April 17, although, unknown to anyone involved at the time, Mr. Edwards worked over and, for this reason, was not available for call out, since he was already working and Mr. Johns was, in fact, No. 3 for call out even though he left the Dock Office at 5:00 p.m. believing he was No. 4.

The record shows that the Airport received an urgent call for an Inspector at about 5:20 p.m. and duly called Messrs. Barkdull, Ramirez and Edwards but did not reach them and called Mr. Johns. Mr. Johns had not arrived at home but a message was taken and when he arrived at about 5:30 p.m. he returned the call and was told to report for the overtime assignment which he reluctantly did and his time sheet showed that he entered upon duty at 6:00 p.m. (he worked from 6:00 p.m. to 8:00 p.m. and was paid for 8 hours).

On Sunday, April 18, 1976, Mr. Johns stated to Ms. Raymond, a non-supervisory employee, that he wanted "these other people red-lined because he had been called out on a job the evening before." On Monday, April 19, 1976, Mr. Johns discussed his call out with Mr. Kenneth W. Brown, Vice President of Chapter 146, and Mr. Brown had a discussion with Supervisory Inspector Hernandez. Although Mr. Brown was quite positive at the hearing that he presented a grievance to Mr. Hernandez on behalf of Mr. Johns, I am persuaded from all the testimony that, as Mr. Hernandez testified, Mr. Brown asked, simply, if a person were No. 1 and was not available would he be red-lined, to which Mr. Hernandez replied "yes". Mr. Hernandez was not aware that a grievance was intended; was given no facts pertaining to any actual incident; Mr. Brown admitted that he had made no investigation and did not know which Inspectors were above Mr. Johns, whether or if they had been contacted; Ms. Raymond was not aware of any grievance by, or on behalf of, Mr. Johns; and Mr. Johns testified that he had asked Mr. Brown "was this a red-line situation?", all of which convinces me that Mr. Brown asked Mr. Hernandez the simple question as set forth above. On April 20, Assistant Chief Inspector Harold H. Zagar, accordint to Mr. Johns, asked Mr. Johns whether it was his desire to have these people red-lined. Later On April 20, 1976, Chief Inspector Recio, having been informed of the request of Mr. Johns to red-line the inspectors above him, informed Ronald Rizzo, President of Chapter 146, that the Inspectors above Mr. Johns would not be red-lined,

> "because those two men stayed in the office until 5:00 o'clock and they hadn't had a chance to get home yet and Mr. Johns, I told him [Rizzo], he should not have taken the job. He should have refused the job and said 'wait til the number one man got home. Those are my exact words.
>
> "Q. . . . If Mr. Johns had refused the assignment, would he have been red-lined?
>
> "A. No, sir. If it had been later, he would have been, if they had given the person time to get home.
>
>
> "A. I consider that an unwritten rule ... that you give a man until 6:00 o'clock to get home, in Miami, particularly when our men live anywhere from ten miles to forty miles from here ..." (Tr. 20-21).

Conclusions

The record fails to establish that a grievance was presented on behalf of Mr. Johns to Supervisory Inspector Hernandez, or that Inspector Hernandez adjusted, or purported to adjust, any grievance. On the other hand, the record is clear that Mr. Johns was disturbed at being called for the overtime assignment on the evning of April 17th, when he appeared to have been number four in call out order, and on Sunday, April 18 Mr. Johns informed Ms. Raymond that he wanted the people above him red-lined. In due course this request was reported to Assistant Chief Inspector Zagar and Chief Inspector Recio. The record shows that on April 20, Inspector Zagar asked Mr. Johns if it was his desire to have these people red-lined to which Mr. Johns replied that he wanted to go by the rules. While it is perfectly clear that Complainant was not informed of the Zagar-Johns "meeting" and was neither present nor had any opportunity to be present, the simple inquiry by Mr. Zagar did not constitute a "formal discussion" within the meaning of Section 10(e) of the Order. To the contrary, this was, at most, a nonformal meeting between management and an employee at which the employee was asked whether he desired to have certain Inspectors red-lined. There was no discussion beyond this inquiry. Accordingly, as this was not a formal discussion, Section 10(e) provides no right of a union to representation at such nonformal meeting. Statement on Major Policy Issue, FLRC No. 75 P-2, Report No. 116, December 2, 1976.

On April 20, 1976, Chief Inspector Reico informed the President of Chapter 146, Mr. Rizzo, that the Inspectors above Mr. Johns for call out on April 17, 1976, would not be red-lined. Complainant's assertaion that this constituted a change in policy was simply not established. To the contrary, the great weight of the testimony shows that Respondent's policy and practice at Miami had consistently been that Inspectors were not penalized, by being red-lined, when not reached when called between 5:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m. as such time was allowed for Inspectors to reach their homes after completion of their regular work day. While the language in Paragraph 3 of the Overtime Rules agreement that "All assignments will be given as they are called in to the lowest Inspector available" appears to permit assignment on the basis of availability, the word "missing" in Paragraph 2 of the Overtime Rules certainly does not compel, if indeed the word would permit, imposition of a penalty on an employee who had no opportunity whatever to accept or to refuse an overtime assignment because he was in transit from work and could not have reached his home when called. Mr. Rizzo's asserted interpretation strains credulity at best. On the one hand if an Inspector left in his automobile at 5:00 p.m. and Respondent's representative saw him depart and at that moment received an emergency call, Mr. Rizzo indicated that that Inspector, assuming he was No. 1, must be called. If Respondent did not call he stated there would be another grievance; but if Respondent dialed his number and the telephone was not answered, for the obvious reason that the employee had not arrived, then, Mr. Rizzo contended he must be penalized. Be that as it may, Respondent, by adhering to and applying its long established policy and practice of not red-lining Inspectors called, but not reached, prior to 6:00 p.m., did not change policy but, rather, adhered to existing policy and practice.

Moreover, and perhaps most important, it is apparent that the gravamen of the Complaint in this regard is the contention that Respondent breached the negotiated and published Overtime Rules by its failure to red-line employees as Complainant asserted was required by Section 2 of the Overtime Rules agreement. There was no clear, unilateral breach of the negotiated local agreement, but, at most, differing and arguable interpretations of the negotiated local agreement which are not deemed to be violative of the Order. Aerospace Guidance and Metrology Center, Newark Air Force Station, Newark, Ohio, A/SLMR No. 677 (1976).

RECOMMENDATION

Having found that Respondent has not violated Section 10(e) of the Order; that Respondent has not engaged in certain conduct prohibited by Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of Executive Order 11491, as amended; and as a gravamen of the Complaint is a breach of the parties' negotiated local agreement concerning differing and arguable interpretations of such agreement which is not deemed to be violative of the Order, I recommend that the Assistant Secretary of Labor enter an order dismissing the complaint herein in its entirety.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

NAVAL AIR REWORK FACILITY,
CHERRY POINT, NORTH CAROLINA
A/SLMR No. 849

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by Local Lodge 2297, International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, AFL-CIO (IAM) alleging, essentially, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by bargaining in bad faith since on or about December 9, 1975, and by refusing to bargain with the IAM since on or about January 22, 1976.

The Administrative Law Judge found that the gravamen of the complaint herein is that the Respondent was obligated, under the parties' negotiated agreement, to process a grievance submitted by the IAM and to pursue to arbitration the dispute between the parties. The grievance, which concerned assignment of work to a non-unit employee, had been rejected as not arbitrable by the Respondent. The Administrative Law Judge noted that when a party in good faith asserts that a matter is not grievable or arbitrable under a negotiated agreement, a determination of grievability or arbitrability may be obtained from the Assistant Secretary pursuant to Section 13(d) of the Order and that this procedure is the proper vehicle for resolution of such an issue. Accordingly, as he concluded that the Respondent did not evidence bad faith in refusing to process the IAM's grievance beyond the second step of the parties' agreement and resort to arbitration, the Administrative Law Judge recommended that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge and ordered that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

DECISION AND ORDER

On February 24, 1977, Administrative Law Judge William Naimark issued his Recommended Decision in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had not engaged in the alleged unfair labor practices and recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. Thereafter, the Complainant filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and the

1/ In its exceptions, the Complainant asserted that, in other than questions concerning whether a grievance is subject to a statutory appeal procedure, Section 13(d) of the Order requires the mutual agreement of the parties before questions of grievability or arbitrability under a negotiated procedure may be referred to the Assistant Secretary for decision. However, in my view, it is clear that while Section 13(d) permits the parties to a negotiated agreement to agree bilaterally to refer grievability or arbitrability questions to an arbitrator in lieu of the Assistant Secretary, it does not require bilateral agreement as a precondition to a party referring such matter to the Assistant Secretary for decision. RECOMMENDED DECISION

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to a Notice of Hearing on complaint issued on July 16, 1976 by the Regional Administrator for Labor-Management Services of the U.S. Department of Labor, Atlanta Region, a hearing in this case was held before the undersigned on October 5, 1976 at New Bern, North Carolina.

The proceeding herein is brought under Executive Order 11491, as amended (herein called the Order). A complaint was filed on April 26, 1976 by Local Lodge 2297 of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, AFL-CIO, (herein called the Complainant) against Naval Air Rework Facility, Cherry Point, North Carolina (herein called the Respondent). The said complaint alleged that since on or about December 9, 1975 the employer has bargained in bad faith; that since on or about January 22, 1976 it has refused to bargain with Complainant - all in violation of 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

All parties were represented at the hearing, were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to adduce evidence, and to examine as well as cross-examine witnesses. Thereafter, briefs were filed which have been duly considered. 1/

Upon the entire record in this case, from my observations of the witnesses and their demeanor, and from all of the testimony and evidence adduced at the hearing, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions and recommendations:

Findings of Fact

1. At all times material herein, including in 1976, Complainant has been the exclusive bargaining representative of all ungraded employees, journeymen and below employed by Respondent at its Cherry Point, North Carolina facility.

2. The most recent collective bargaining agreement was executed by Complainant and Respondent on February 26, 1973 covering the unit employees as set forth hereinabove. The said agreement was effective by its terms for two years from the date of its approval (March 9, 1973) and to continue in full force and effect for one year thereafter unless modified or terminated as specified.

3. Article 9 of the aforesaid agreement sets forth various provisions with respect to the assignment by the employer of overtime work to unit employees. Section 2 of Article 9 states that overtime will be distributed fairly

1/ Subsequent to the hearing Complainant moved to correct the transcript by changing the words "has further" on page 5, line 25 to "as per the" and changing the word "trade" on page 11, line 5, to "rate". The motion is granted.

and justly among all employees within their shop and job rating. Section 6 of said Article provides, inter alia, that after overtime requirements have been established, all immediate supervisors will post a listing of employees by rating assigned to work overtime.

4. The aforesaid collective bargaining agreement provides for a grievance procedure (Article XXIV) which is available to the parties and unit employees for processing grievances solely as to the interpretion and application of the agreement. If the grievances are not settled, the dispute will be submitted to arbitration upon written notice by the party invoking arbitration as set forth in Article XXV of the agreement.

5. On December 4, 1975 the acting supervisor of Shop 94201, G.G. Dudley, posted a list of employees who were assigned to work overtime on Saturday, December 6, 1975. The said list included a non-unit employee, C.R. Elson, who was a general schedule employees, GS-9.

6. The Chief Union steward, Charles H. Wilson, notified Dudley that the posting and assignment were in violation of the negotiated agreement. The union official complained that the overtime list was not listed by trade as required under the agreement, and, further, overtime work had been assigned to a non-unit employee.

7. A written grievance was filed by Wilson on December 6, 1975 regarding the improper posting and the assignment of overtime work to a non-unit employee. On December 8, 1975 Dudley sent the shop steward a written denial of the grievance filed. The denial stated that the assignments were in accord with Article 9, Section 6 of the contract since all journeymen were offered the opportunity to work overtime; that while the posted overtime list was not in strict conformity with the agreement, it was in accord with the intent and past practices; that the negotiated agreement does not limit the assignment of employees outside the unit, and the GS-9 Electronics Equipment Specialist rating is not covered by the said agreement.

8. A written formal reply to the grievance was made on December 18, 1975 and signed by L.H. Smith, Division Director. The said reply stated that the union's complaint re the preformance of work of the GS-9 Specialist was denied since the individual is not in the unit and not covered by the negotiated agreement. Smith further stated that management has the right to hire, promote, or assign under the Order; that unit work restriction in prior agreements was eliminated in the present one because it conflicted with the Order; and the posted overtime list, while not in strict conformity to the agreement, was in accordance with past practices over a two year period.

9. By letter dated January 14, 1976 Complainant's President Lane, Jr. wrote Respondent's commanding officer that since the union's grievance had not been processed in accordance with Article XXIV of the contract, Complainant invoked the arbitration provision of the contract re the interpretation and application of Article IX, Sections 2 and 3 and Article XVIII, Section 3 thereof.

10. Respondent wrote Complainant on January 22, 1976 rejecting the request for arbitration. The union was advised in the letter that management did not consider the subject, i.e. unit work restrictions, as appropriate for submission to arbitration or through the negotiated grievance procedure; that it considered the issue was not negotiable under Section 12(b) of the Order.

Conclusions

The gravamen of the complaint herein is that Respondent was obliged, under the negotiated agreement, to process the grievance submitted by Complainant, and to pursue arbitration of the dispute between the parties. The grievance itself was predicated on the assignment of overtime work to non-unit employee Ronald S. Dick. Since management refused to process the grievance beyond the second step, and resort to arbitration, it is contended that Respondent refused to consult, confer or negotiate in violation of 19(a)(6) of the Order. 2/

2/ In its brief Respondent asserts that the Regional Administrator's letter of July 16, 1976 to the parties suggests litigating an issue beyond the scope of the complaint, i.e. unilaterally changing or violating the agreement. I do not so construe the said letter. Moreover, to litigate the subject of the grievance would run afoul of 19(d) which precludes raising an issue under the complaint procedure when it has been raised, as in this case, under the grievance procedure.

It is provided under Section 13(d) of the Order that questions arising as to whether a grievance concerns a matter subject to the grievance procedure in an agreement, or subject to arbitration under such agreement, may be referred to the Assistant Secretary for decision. Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary declared that in the absence of bad faith, grievability and arbitrability questions should not be resolved under Section 19 of the Order dealing with unfair labor practices. When a party, in good faith, asserts that a matter is not grievable or arbitrable under a negotiated agreement, a determination may be obtained from the Assistant Secretary as to whether the matter is grievable or arbitrable. U.S. Air Force Headquarters, 31st Combat Support Group (TAC), Homestead Air Force Base, Florida, Assistant Secretary, Case No. 42-2649(CA), FLRC No. 75A-82, Report No. 91; See Section 205 et. seq. of Rules and Regulations. Moreover, where an employees notified the union that it did not consider the subject matter of a grievance to involve the interpretation or application of the negotiated agreement, and suggested that the union seek a determination from the Assistant Secretary under 13(d) of the Order, a refusal to process such grievance was not deemed to constitute bad faith. Veterans Administration Hospital, Waco, Texas, A/SLMR No. 735.

In the case at bar Respondent, while it conceded that the posting of a non-unit employee for overtime was not in strict conformity with the negotiated agreement, maintained that assigning overtime to a GS-9 in Shop 94201 has been the accepted policy over the life of the agreement. Since the record lends some validity to this contention, I cannot conclude that management has evinced bad faith in refusing to process the grievance of Complainant beyond the second step of the agreement. The subject matter of said grievance, concerning itself with the assignment of overtime work to a non-unit employee, was not deemed by Respondent to involve the interpretation or application of the agreement herein. In this posture, I consider the instant case to be controlled by the cases cited hereinabove, and agree with management's assertion that the proper vehicle for a determination as to the grievability or arbitrability of Complainant's grievance lies under Section 13(d) of the Order. Accordingly, I conclude that by refusing to process said grievance and resort to arbitration Respondent did not violate Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

RECOMMENDATION

It having been found that Respondent did not violate Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by refusing to further process a grievance submitted by Complainant, and to resort to arbitration thereof, I recommend that the complaint herein be dismissed in its entirety.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY, BUREAU OF ALCOHOL, TOBACCO AND FIREARMS, MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN
A/SLMR No. 850

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the National Treasury Employees Union and Chapter 094, NTEU (Complainant) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) of the Order when it refused to recognize the Complainant's duly appointed area representative in Milwaukee. The Respondent took the position that the employee in question served in a confidential capacity to the Area Supervisor and was, therefore, prohibited under Section 1(b) of the Order from acting as a representative of a labor organization. In this regard, the Respondent noted the Assistant Secretary's decision in Department of the Treasury, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, Washington, D.C., A/SLMR No. 538, in which the Assistant Secretary ordered that the Clerk to the Area Supervisor in each of the 45 Area Offices of the Respondent be excluded from the unit as a "confidential employee."

The Administrative Law Judge found that the job description of the employee in question fitted the description of Clerk to the Area Supervisor found by the Assistant Secretary to be confidential in the cited decision. Therefore, he concluded that the Respondent did not violate the Order when it refused to recognize the appointment of such employee as the Complainant's area representative in Milwaukee because a conflict or apparent conflict of interest within the meaning of Section 1(b) of the Order would result from such an appointment.

Noting particularly the absence of exceptions, the Assistant Secretary adopted the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations and ordered that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Preliminary Statement

This case arises under Executive Order 11491 as amended. It was initiated by a complaint dated December 22, 1975 and filed December 29, 1975 alleging a violation of Section 19(a)(1) of the Executive Order by the Respondent in refusing to recognize Ms. Susan A. Backes as the Complainant's area representative in Milwaukee although she was duly appointed to that position by the Chapter President.

On January 28, 1976 the Respondent filed a response to the complaint. It admitted that the Respondent refused to recognize Ms. Backes as the Complainant's area representative and alleged that its refusal was in accordance with the Executive Order because Ms. Backes held a confidential position with the Complainant and her serving as the Complainant's areas representative would result in a conflict of interest.

On August 23, 1976 the Regional Administrator issued a Notice of Hearing to be held October 5, 1976 in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. Pursuant to motion of the Complainant the hearing was postponed to October 19, 1976. Hearings were held that day in Milwaukee. The Complainant was represented by the Associate General Counsel of the Complainant. The Respondent was represented by a staff attorney in the Office of the Chief Counsel of Respondent and by a representative in its Office of Personnel. Witnesses were examined and cross-examined and exhibits introduced. Both parties waived closing argument. The Respondent filed a timely brief.

Facts

National Treasury Employees Union has been the certified national exclusive representative of the non-supervisory employees of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, with certain exceptions, since April 1973. One of the exceptions is "confidential employees". NTEU generally acts through Chapters. Chapter 094 is the Chapter through which it acts for employees it represents in the Area Office in Milwaukee. The parties have had a comprehensive written agreement since March 5, 1974 between the Bureau and the national N.T.E.U.

The Bureau, headquartered in Washington, D.C., operates through seven Regional Offices. The Regional Offices are subdivided into Area Offices. There are 45 Area Offices, each headed by an Area Supervisor. One of the Area Offices is in Milwaukee.

Chapter 94 designated Susan A. Backes as the union representative for the Milwaukee Area Office. On May 2, 1975 the Respondent notified the Chapter that it could not recognize Backes as the representative because she was not a member of the bargaining unit. This case eventuated.

Ms. Backes is a clerk-typist, and has been for several years. Bryan A. Flaa is the Area Supervisor of the Milwaukee Area Office. As such he is the head of that Office. Under him are a number of inspectors and two clerks. The inspectors are included in the unit represented by the Complainant. Ms. Backes, at the times here relevant, was employed as a GS-4. The other clerk is a GS-3. Backes acts as Flaa's secretary. She types evaluation reports for promotions, annual performance ratings, and other material Flaa would not want disclosed in advance of formal action. When asked by his superiors his comments on a new contract proposed by the union, he discussed it with Backes before he made his comments.

Some mail addressed to FLaa or the Milwaukee Area Office is intended and sometimes marked that it is to be opened only by Flaa, the so-called "pink envelopes" because that is the color of the envelopes in which they are usually sent. Backes opens such mail. If he is out of the office and Backes thinks the mail is urgent she calls him and tells him what it is. She decides whether to show the confidential mail to the Acting Area Supervisor, one of the inspectors who is a member of the bargaining unit. Some of the confidential mail concerns matters the Respondent would not want disclosed at the time to the exclusive representative, such as alleged misconduct of one of the inspectors. Although Backes works primarily for Flaa, she sometimes helps the other clerk in the office, who works primarily for the inspectors, when the other girl is overloaded with work.

In some situations, should Backes act as the Complainant's area representative, she would feel a distinct conflict of interest between her obligation to Flaa as his secretary and her obligation to the Chapter.

Discussion and Conclusion

In Department of the Treasury, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, A/SLMR No. 538, the Complainant filed a petition for clarification of unit in which it sought a clarification of the exclusion from its unit of "confidential employees" in which it contended that employees designated as Clerk to the Area Supervisor were included in the unit because not included in the exclusion of "confidential employees". The Assistant Secretary held that the Clerk to the Area Supervisor was a "confidential employee" and therefore excluded from the unit. He based this conclusion on the fact that they performed work just about precisely the work performed by Backes for Flaa.

Of course an exclusive representative is not limited to members of the bargaining unit in selecting its spokesmen. However, the right to select a representative of its choice is not absolute. Section 1(b) of the Executive Order expressly does not authorize participation in the management of a labor organization or acting as its representative by, among others, "an employee when the participation or activity would result in a conflict or apparent conflict of interest. ..." The evidence here is uncontradicted that such conflict or at least an apparent conflict would result if Backes should act as the Complainant's area representative.

By expressly not authorizing representation by such an employee the Executive Order was intended to prohibit it. See Department of Defense, Army Material Command, Tooele Army, Depot, A/SLMR No. 406. It follows that in refusing to recognize Backes as the Complainant's area representative for Milwaukee, the Respondent did not violate the Executive Order. Department of the Treasury, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, Boston, Massachusetts, A/SLMR No. 695; U.S. Army Electronics Command, Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, A/SLMR No. 691.

RECOMMENDATION

The complaint should be dismissed.

SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

SOCIAL SECURITY ADMINISTRATION,
HEADQUARTERS, BUREAUS AND OFFICES
IN BALTIMORE, MARYLAND
A/SLMR No. 851

This case involved an unfair labor practice complaint filed by American Federation of Government Employees, Local 1923, AFL-CIO (AFGE) alleging that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to give an employee 60 days notice, as required by Article 19(c)(2) of the parties' negotiated agreement, prior to the denial of that employee's within-grade step increase. The Respondent contended that: (1) the complaint was untimely; (2) that the aggrieved employee had filed an equal employment opportunity complaint and had utilized a statutory appeal procedure concerning the denial of his within-grade step increase, including the failure to give the requisite notice and, therefore, Section 19(d) of the Order precluded the Complainant from raising the same issue in this unfair labor practice proceeding; and (3) that the failure to give the required notice was not violative of the Order.

The Administrative Law Judge found, contrary to the Respondent's contention, that the complaint was timely and that the issue raised in the unfair labor practice proceeding, differed from that raised under the statutory appeal procedure and, thus, the Complainant was not barred by Section 19(d) from raising the issue under the unfair labor practice procedures of the Executive Order. With respect to the Respondent's failure to serve the required notice, the Administrative Law Judge found that such action, while a breach of the parties' negotiated agreement, was not so flagrant a breach as to be violative of Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order, inasmuch as the Respondent recognized is failure to give the required notice and sought to rectify its breach by reconsidering its decision 60 days later.

The Assistant Secretary found, contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, that the Respondent's failure to give the 60 day notice could be construed as a patent unilateral change in terms and conditions of employment in the negotiated agreement and, as such, could be considered violative conduct under the Order. However, in view of the Respondent's immediate rectification of such conduct and thus the de minimis effect of its conduct, the Assistant Secretary found that it would not effectuate the purposes and policies of the Executive Order to find a violation. Under these circumstances, he ordered that the complaint be dismissed.

DECISION AND ORDER

On February 11, 1977, Administrative Law Judge William Naimark issued his Recommended Decision in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had not engaged in the alleged unfair labor practices and recommending that the complaint be dismissed in its entirety. Thereafter, the Complainant filed exceptions and a supporting brief with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and the entire record in this case, including the Complainant's exceptions and supporting brief, I hereby adopt the findings, 1/ conclusions, and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge, only to the extent consistent herewith.

In his decision, the Administrative Law Judge found that the Respondent had failed to give an employee, Dr. Ronald S. Dick, the requisite 60 day notice leading up to the denial of his within-grade step increase as required by Article 19(c)(2) of the parties' negotiated agreement. 2/ The Administrative Law Judge found also that the Respondent had attempted to rectify its failure to give the prescribed notice by subsequently advising Dr. Dick that he would have 60 days from the negative determination to improve his work performance and that a new determination would then be made. In this regard, the Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Respondent's failure to serve the original 60 day notice, while a breach of the negotiated agreement, was not so flagrant a breach as to be violative of the Order inasmuch as the Respondent recognized its failure to give the required notice and sought to rectify its breach by reconsidering its decision 60 days after its original determination.

Contrary to the Administrative Law Judge, I find that the Respondent's failure to serve the prescribed 60 day notice could be construed as a patent unilateral change in terms and conditions of employment in the negotiated agreement and, as such, could be considered violative conduct under the Order. However, in view of the Respondent's immediate rectification of such conduct and thus the de minimis effect of its conduct, I find that it would not effectuate the purposes and policies of the Executive Order to find a violation herein. 3/ Under these particular circumstances, I shall order that the subject complaint be dismissed.

ORDER

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that the complaint in Case No. 22-6667(CA) be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

1/ On page 3 of the Recommended Decision, Section "16(a)(1) and (6)" of the Order is cited rather than Section 19(a)(1) and (6). Similarly, on page 4, the Recommended Decision indicates that Dr. Dick became eligible for a within-grade increase on July 8, 1975, rather than on June 8, 1975, and that he was notified that his work was not of an acceptable level of competence on July 5, 1975, rather than on June 5, 1975. These inadvertences are hereby corrected.

2/ Article 19(c)(2) states, in pertinent part:

RECOMMENDED DECISION

Statement of the Case

Pursuant to a Notice of Hearing on an amended complaint issued on July 16, 1976 by the Acting Regional Administrator for Labor-Management Services Administrations of the U.S. Department of Labor, Philadelphia Region, a hearing was held in the above-entitled case on July 28, 1976, at Baltimore, Maryland.

This proceeding was initiated 1/ under Executive Order 11491, as amended (herein called the Order) by the filing of a complaint on February 9, 1976 by American Federation of Government Employees, Local 1923, AFL-CIO, (herein called Complainant) against Social Security Administration, Headquarters, Bureaus and Office in Baltimore (herein called the Respondent). It was alleged that Respondent made unilateral changes in the union-agency agreement, including its failure to discuss with Dr. Ronald S. Dick, under Article 19(cc(2), the basis of its refusal to grant him a within grade increase - all in violation of Sections 7(c), 10(e), 11(a) and (d), and 12(a), of the Order. On February 24, 1976 Respondent filed a response and motion to dismiss the complaint. It contended the complaint did not contain a concise statement of facts, was barred under 19(d) of the Order, and did not establish a violation thereof. No specific ruling thereon was made by the regional office. An amended 2/ complaint was filed on March 5, 1976 which alleged a violation by Respondent of 19(d)(5) and (6) of the Order. It was averred that the employer violated 15 other articles of the Union-Agency agreement which constituted unilateral changes, with reference made to the original complaint as well as the charge against the Respondent.

By letter dated May 21, 1976 the Regional Administrator dismissed all allegations pertaining to violations of "15 other sections of the negotiated agreement" as well as an alleged violation of Section 19(a)(5) of the Order. He found a reasonable basis existed to conduct a hearing in respect to the failure of Respondent to give Dr. Dick a 60 day notice of a denial of a within grade increase in violation of 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

1/ The charge reciting the facts alleged to be violation of the Order was contained in a letter dated November 6, 1975 addressed to Respondent.

2/ The Regional Office solicited an amended complaint herein since the original complaint, which consisted of 10 pages and appended statements, did not constitute a clear and concise statement under 203.3(a)(3) of the Regulations.

Respondent moved to dismiss the complaint on the following grounds

(1) the complaint must be served within 60 days of the date when the final decision letter on the charges is served by Respondent under 203.2(b)(2) of the Regulations. Since the decision letter was served on December 12, 1975, and the amended complaint was not filed until March 4, 1976, it is contended that there is a violation of said Regulations as the hearing is based on the amended, rather than the original complaint herein.

(2) the "purported" complaint of February 9, 1976 is defective in that: (a) it does not allege a violation of Section 19 of the Order or the particular subdivisions thereof; (b) it did not set forth a clear and concise statement of the facts as required under 203(a)(3) of the Regulations.

(3) this proceeding is barred under Section 19(d) of the Order in view of the statutory appeals procedure to the Civil Service Commission which Dick availed himself of, and the fact that Dr. Dick filed a complaint with the Equal Opportunity Officer of the Agency and thereafter appealed an adverse decision by the Deputy Director to the Civil Service Commissions.

(4) there is no basis for concluding that the failure to give a 60 day notice originally to Dick was a violation of 16(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

Both parties were represented at the hearing, were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to adduce evidence, and to examine as well as cross-examine witnesses.

Upon the entire record in the case, from my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, and from all of the testimony and evidence adduced at the hearing, I make the following findings, conclusions and recommendations.

Findings of Fact

1. At all times material herein Complainant has been, and still is, the collective bargaining representative of all nonsupervisory General Schedule and Wage grade employees of Respondent, including professionals, in the Baltimore SMSA.

2. The most recent collective bargaining agreement (union-agency agreement) between Complainant and Respondent covering the aforesaid unit became effective on September 24, 1974 and expires its terms on July 1, 1977.

3. Article 19, Section C(2) of the said agreement provides, in substance, that when a supervisor's evaluation of an employee leads to a conclusion that said employee's work is not of an acceptable level of competence, the supervisor will discuss the matter with the employee and provide a summary 3/ of the discussion in writing at least 60 days before the employee is eligible for a step increase.

4. At all times material herein Dr. Ronald S. Dick was employed by Respondent at its Baltimore headquarters. In and during July 1975 Dick was an Operations Research Analyst, GS-14 who became eligible for a within grade increase on July 8, 1975.

5. By letter dated July 5, 1975 Respondent notified Dick that his work was not of an acceptable level of competence. The letter also recited the particular areas in which management found the employee deficient, and Dick was advised therein that his within greade increase was being denied. Further, Respondent stated therein that since he was not given 60 days advance notice, 4/ a new determination would be made no later than August 5, 1975 based on his performance "between now and then". 5/

6. A request to management for reconsideration was filed by Dick on June 6, 1975, in which it was asserted that the agency did not follow proper procedure since it failed to send the employee a 60 day notice as required under Article 19, Section C(2) of the Contract.

3/ This section of Article 19 also sets forth the items which should be included in the summary.

4/ Respondent concedes that no 60 days notice was given as required under Article 19, Section C(2) of the contract.

5/ Prior to its negative determination, Respondent requested the Complainant's president, Joseph Rosenberg, to waive the 60 day provision in the contract. Rosenberg refused to do so.

7. On June 20, 1975 Dick sent a letter to the Respondent's Equal Opportunity Officer, reciting that he was lodging a complaint under the Equal Opportunities Act regarding the denial of his within grade increase. It was alleged by Dick that he was discriminated against because of his sex, race, age and national origin; that he was deprived of his employment rights and management failed to act as required by the union-management contract.

8. By letter dated August 14, 1975 Dick was notified of the Respondent's subsequent 60 day determination that the within grade increase was denied on the basis of the employee's work being below the acceptable level of competence.

9. By letter dated November 6, 1975 the Deputy Director for Equal Employment Opportunity, John Ottina, informed Anthony M. McGurrin, Dick's representative, that the allegation of discrimination by Dick against Respondent based on age, race, sex and national origin was rejected. It was stated therein that the evidence submitted established that the denial of a within grade increase was due solely to a failure of Dick to perform at an acceptable level of competence. 6/

10. The request by Dick for reconsideration of the denial of his step increase was the subject of a letter to him from Respondent dated November 28, 1975. Management stated that it saw no reason to grant the increase; that the failure to give a 60 day notice under the Civil Service regulation, FSM Chapter 990, Supp. 990-1, Section 531.407 is no basis for granting the benefit which should otherwise be withheld.

11. The reconsideration decision by Respondent of November 28, sustaining the negative determination of June 5, 1975 was appealed by Dick on December 1 to the Civil Service Commission, Federal Employee Appeals Authority. The said Appeals Authority issued a decision on March 9, 1976 wherein it concluded that the reasons given by the agency for denying

6/ The Civil Service Commission subsequently reversed the decision of the agency's Deputy Director for EEO. The reversal was based on the failure of the decision to consider any alleged acts of discrimination other than the denial of the step increase, as well as the absence of any evidence that the complaint by Dick was discussed with his EEO counsellor as required under Section 713.213(a) of Civil Service Regulations. The matter was returned to the agency for proper processing.

the within grade increase "form a valid basis for the conclusion reached...that the appellant's work performance during a substantial portion of the awaiting period was not of an acceptable level of competence, thus warranging the withholding of the within grade increase". The decision also referred to the contention that no 60 day notice was given to Dick, and it was concluded that the employee had been adequately notified of the reasons for the negative determination. 7/

12. Respondent issued a reconsideration decision on February 27, 1976 sustaining its negative determination on August 14, 1975 of an acceptable level of competence of Dick. This decision was appeal on March 1, 1976 to the Civil Service Commission, Federal Appeal Authority. On April 26, 1976 the said appeals Authority issued its decision which was limited to a review of Dick's record for a 60 day period beginning June 8, 1975 to decide whether there was a valid basis for the negative determination that the employee's performance during that period was not of an acceptable level of competence. The Appeals Authority concluded there was insufficient evidence of documentation in the record to support the negative determination. It reversed the agency's negative determination of August 14, 1975 and recommended a within grade salary increase for Dick retroactive to June 8, 1975.

Conclusions

In urging the dismissal of this proceeding, Respondent makes three principal contentions: (1) the complaint of March 5, 1976, upon which this hearing is based, was filed more than 60 days after a written decision on the charge was served by Respondent upon Complainant, and is thus untimely filed; (2) Section 19(d) bars this proceeding since appeals were taken by Dick to the Civil Service Commission from adverse decisions by Respondent - all in regard to the denial of a step increase and the failure to provide him a 60 day notice as required; (3) the breach of contract by the Employer in failing to give the said notice is not a unilateral change so as to be a violation of 19(a)(6) of the Order.

7/ The decision quoted 531.407(c)(4) and (5) of the Regulations which states that a failure to inform an employee of a negative determination may not be the basis for changing such determination.

A. Timeliness of the Complaint

Under Section 203.2(b)(2) of the Rules and Regulations a party is required to file a complaint no later than 60 days from the date a written decision on the charge is filed by a Respondent on the charging party. Moreover, Assistant Secretary's Report No. 48 declares that the use of such a phrase as "see attached correspondence" in the space provided for the "basis of the complaint" renders an otherwise adequate complaint invalid. The Report also states that the date to be used in computing timeliness requirements is the date when a valid, properly filled out complaint form is received by the area office.

In the case at bar the original complaint was filed on February 9, 1976 within the 60 day requirement of 203.2(b)(2). However, the regional office solicited an amended 8/ complaint since Complainant had inserted the words "see attached" in the space provided for the basis of the complaint, and had attached ten pages setting forth the basis of the complaint as well as the background and facts in support thereof. The complaint was not deemed to contain a clear and concise statement of facts constituting the unfair labor practices as required under Section 203.3(a)(3) of the Rules and Regulations. While the amended complaint was filed on March 5, 1976, it was not filed within 60 days from the date the Respondent served its decision re the unfair labor practice charge upon Complainant.

After examining the original complaint herein, I am not convinced that the document was invalid within the meaning of Report No. 48. It is true that the words "see attached" are used under the heading "Basis for Complaint". However the attached statement did state the basis for the complaint upon which this proceeding is brought, i.e. the failure by Respondent to adhere to the contract and give the 60 day notice to Dick under Article 19C(2) thereof. The fact that the complaint included in the attachment numerous other allegations 8/ Respondent argues that the rules do not provide for an amended complaint and that the original complaint, particularly since it is defective, could not be amended. This argument is rejected. The Assistant Secretary has always accepted the principle that complaints may be amended, and his decisions reflect that the right to amend is implied under the Rules and Regulations.

of breach of contract and failed to specify the proper Section of the Order which it claimed had been violated, does not invalidate the complaint. It rendered the document imprecise and lacking in clarity which the regional office attempted to correct with an amended complaint.

In respect to Report No. 48, I read this decision as invalidating a complaint which does not recite or attach facts upon which an unfair labor practice may be founded or based. In such an instance, the attachments neither spell out that which Complainant relies upon to prove a violation, nor informs the Respondent of the basis for its contentions. See Defense Supply Agency, Defense Contract Administration, Burlinghame, California; A/SLMR No. 247; Department of the Air Force, Headquarter, Air Force Flight Test Center, Edwards Air Force Base, California, A/SLMR No. 255. In the instant case Respondent was informed by the original complaint as to various alleged breaches of the contract, including the one at issue herein. Accordingly, I conclude the original complaint dated February 9, 1976 was valid. Since it was filed within the required 60 day period, I reject Respondent's contention that inasmuch as the amended complaint was not so filed the proceeding should be dismissed.

B. Applicability of Section 19(d) of the Order

It is stoutly asserted by Respondent that since 19(d) specifically provides that "issues which can properly be raised under an appeal procedure may not be raised under this section", the present proceeding is barred thereby. Respondent maintains that the resort by Dick to the EEO procedure, under which he filed a complaint, is itself a bar herein. In said complaint Dick referred to the actions leading up to the denial of his step increase, and the issue of Responndent's failure to give a 60 day notice raised in the EEO proceeding. Thus, it is argued that such failure is the precise issue raised herein. Moreover the requirement of a 60 day notice, although incorporated in the contract, is an established procedure for Federal employees under Title 5 of the Code of Federal Regulations, Section 531.407, and provisions is made for a review of negative determination by management. In the instant matter the appeal procedure was both afforded to, and utilized by, the employee. Therefore, the Employer insists complaint has no standing or right under 19(d) to pursue the unfair labor practice procedure.

It is true that Dick, in his EEO proceeding and the appeals to the Civil Service Commission, raised the failure by Respondent to send him the requisite 60 day notice and discuss the proposed denial of his step increase. Moreover, the Complainant herein alleged said failure as an integral part of its alleged violation by management of 19(a)(6). However, Ido not agree with Respondent that the issue raised, or which could have been presented, under the appeals procedure is identical to that posed herein. The question decided by the Appeals Authority was whether Dick was properly denied a step increase despite the absence of the required notice and discussion. Although the appeals body considered the failure to give said notice, it did so in conjunction with the ultimate issue concerning the denial of the increase itself. In the case at bar we are concerned with whether the failure to give such notice, albeit to Dick, was the type of unilateral breach of contract deemed violative of the Order. In my opinion the issue raised in the appeals procedure differs from the one at hand in this unfair labor practice proceeding. Accordingly, I conclude that 19(d) does not bar this matter. 9/

C. Alleged Refusal to Consult, Confer and Negotiate Under 19(a)(6) of the Contract

It is contended by Complainant that the failure to give employee Dick the required 60 day notice, as set forth in Article 19, Section C(2) of the contract, was a breach of contract and a unilateral change in personnel policies or practices affecting the working conditions of other employees in the bargaining unit. Since the Respondent refused to meet and confer with Complainant in respect thereto, it is alleged that the Employer has violated 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

Past decisions of the Assistant Secretary reflect that agency management violates its obligation to meet and confer under the Order when it unilaterally changes terms and conditions of employment included within the ambit of Section 11(a) of the Order. See U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Philadelphia District, A/SLMR No 673, Moreoever, actions constituting clear, 9/ See Department of the Navy, Portmouth Naval Shipyard A/SLMR No. 508. The case of Boston District Office, Internal Revenue Service, A/SLMR No. 727 is distinguishable from the case at bar. In that case the precise issue - whether the union was entitled to the requested information - was raised in the proceeding before an arbitrator as well as in the unfair labor practice matter. The union therein alleged its need for the information in order to represent the discharge properly during arbitration. It also raised its need for said data before the Assistant Secretary.

unilateral breaches of an agreement may constitute an unfair labor practice. Watervliet Arsenal, U.S. Armament Command Watervliet, New York, A/SLMR No. 726. Care is taken in recent decision to distinguish between actions involving arguable interpretation of a contract and those which constitute clear and flagrant breaches of the contract. See Watervliet Arsenal, supra.

Despite Respondent's failure to serve the 60 day notice upon Dick and discuss his performance with him, I do not view such breach of the contract as violative of the Order.

It is not every breach of contract which will constitute an unfair labor practice. As stated in past decisions, the breach must be flagrant and evince an intention to avoid management's responsibilities under a negotiated agreement. The record herein does not establish to my satisfaction that Respondent attempted to disregard or change the language in the contract. In truth, the employer, recognizing its failure to give the required noted under Article 19, Section C(2), reconsidered its decision 60 days later after notifying Dick of its intention to do so. Moreover, I do not view the initial failure to give the 60 day notice as so flagrant in nature that it warrants finding a violation under Section 19(a)(6) of the Order. 10/ There was no intention by Respondent to change or modify its obligation under Article 19, Section C(2) of the agreement, but rather a breach thereof which the employer sought to rectify belatedly. In such a posture, I am disinclined to conclude that the failure to give the 60 day notice initially was per se an unfair labor practice. Accordingly, I find that such failure was not violative of 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

10/ Note is also taken that, although Complainant's president was asked to waive the 60 day notice requirement, no request was made by him to bargain over the impact of the decision to omit giving proper notice. Thus I would not, in any event, require Respondent to bargain over the impact or effect of such decision. Cf. Small Business Administration, Hato Rey, Puerto Rico et al, A/SLMR No. 751.

RECOMMENDATION

Upon the basis of the foregoing findings and conclusions, the undersigned recommend that the complaint against the Respondent be dismissed in its entirety.

DEPARTMENT OF THE AIR FORCE,
GRISSOM AIR FORCE BASE,
PERU, INDIANA
A/SLMR No. 852

This consolidated proceeding involved separate unfair labor practice complaints filed by Local 1434, National Federation of Federal Employees (NFFE) alleging that the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 3254, AFL-CIO (AFGE) violated Section 19(b)(1) of the Order and that Grissom Air Force Base (Respondent Activity) violated Section 19(a) (3) and (1) of the Order. Both complaints were based on the AFGE's placing of an advertisement in the Grissom Contact, the Respondent Activity's contracted out newspaper, at a time when the AFGE was not in equivalent status with the Respondent Activity's employees exclusively recognized representative, the NFFE.

In agreement with the Administrative Law Judge, the Assistant Secretary found that the AFGE did not violate Section 19(b)(1) of the Order by publishing its advertisement in the Grissom Contact, but that the Respondent Activity violated Section 19(a)(3) and (1) of the Order by permitting such publication. In this latter regard, the Assistant Secretary concurred with the Administrative Law Judge's finding that the publication in the Grissom Contact of the AFGE advertisement constituted the furnishing of services and facilities by the Respondent Activity to a labor organization (AFGE) not in equivalent status with the exclusively recognized representative (NFFE) inasmuch as the Respondent Activity exercised control over the Grissom Contact and the newspaper was, in effect, an instrumentality of the Respondent Activity.

The Assistant Secretary adopted the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge and ordered that the Respondent Activity cease and desist from the conduct found violative and that it take certain affirmative actions.

DECISION AND ORDER

On December 20, 1976, Administrative Law Judge William B. Devaney issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled consolidated proceeding, finding in Case No. 50-13119(CO) that the Respondent labor organization had not engaged in conduct which was violative of the Order. In Case No. 50-13120(CA), the Administrative Law Judge found that the Respondent Activity had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommended that it cease and desist therefrom and take certain affirmative action as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. Thereafter, all of the parties filed exceptions and briefs with respect to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject cases, including the parties' exceptions and briefs, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations.

In agreement with the Administrative Law Judge, I find that Local 3254, American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, hereinafter called AFGE, did not violate Section 19(b)(1) of the Order in Case No. 50-13119(CO), but that the Respondent Activity violated Section 19(a)(3) and (1) of the Order in Case No. 50-13120(CA). Thus, I concur with the finding of the Administrative Law Judge that the publication in the newspaper, the Grissom Contact, of an advertisement by the AFGE constituted a violation of Section 19(a)(3) and (1) of the Order by the Respondent Activity in that its conduct, in permitting such publication, in effect, constituted the furnishing of services and facilities to a labor organization, the AFGE, which was not in equivalent status with the exclusively recognized representative of the Respondent Activity's employees, Local 1434, National Federation of Federal Employees, hereinafter called NFFE. In reaching this conclusion, it was noted particularly that the evidence established that the Respondent Activity exercised control over the Grissom Contact and that the newspaper was, in effect, an instrumentality of the Respondent Activity. In this regard, I view it as immaterial to the finding of a violation herein that the Respondent Activity's contract with the publisher of the Grissom Contact did not specifically forbid an advertisement such as that involved in the subject case. Thus, in my view, as Section 19(a)(3) of the Order prohibits agency management from providing assistance to a labor organization such as the AFGE, not in equivalent status, permitting the publication of an advertisement by the AFGE in a newspaper which it controls is violative of the Order irrespective of the specific contractual arrangements entered into with the publisher.

Accordingly, I agree with the Administrative Law Judge that the Respondent Activity's conduct herein violated Section 19(a)(3) and (1)

of the Order. 1/

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the Department of the Air Force, Grissom Air Force Base, Peru, Indiana, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Assisting Local 3254, American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, or any other labor organization, by permitting advertisements by such labor organizations in the Grissom Contact, or by otherwise furnishing customary and routine services and facilities to Local 3254, American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, or any other such labor organization, at a time when such organizations are not party to a pending representation proceeding raising a question concerning representation and when its employees are represented exclusively by Local 1434, National Federation of Federal Employees.

(b) In any like or related manner interfering with, restraining, or coercing its employees in the exercise of rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purposes and policies of the Order:

(a) Post at its facility copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary for Labor-Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms, they shall be signed by the Commanding Officer and shall be posted and maintained by him for sixty (60) consecutive days thereafter, in conspicuous places, including all places where notices to emloyees are customarily posted. The Commanding Officer shall take reasonable steps to insure that such notices are not altered, defaced, or covered by any other material.

(b) Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations, notify the Assistant Secretary within 30 days from the date of this order as to what steps have been taken to comply herewith.

1/ It was noted that in January 1976, the AFGE filed a petition seeking an election in the unit represented by the NFFE. Such petition, however, was not consolidated herein with the instant unfair labor practice complaints and, therefore, is not properly before me for decision.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the complaint in Case No. 50-13119(CO) be, and it hereby is, dismissed.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

These cases arise under Executive Order 11491, as amended (hereinafter also referred to as the "Order"). Separate charges were filed on, or about, January 8, 1976, by N.T. Wolkomir, President of National Federation of Federal Employees (Complainant), with the American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE), alleging a violation of Section 19(b)(1) of the Order, and with Grissom Air Force Base (Grissom), alleging a violation of Sections 19(a)(1) and (3) of the Order. A complaint against AFGE, alleging a violation of 19(b)(1), was filed February 11, 1976 (Case No. 50-13119(CO)); and a complaint against Grissom, alleging violations of 19(a)(1) and (3) was filed February 12, 1976 (Case No. 50-13120(CA)); an Order Consolidating Cases issued September 15, 1976; and a Notice of Hearing on the consolidated cases also issued on September 15, 1976 (Ass't. Sec. Exh. 4) pursuant to which a hearing was duly held before the undersigned on October 21, 1976, in Peru, Indiana. 1/

The alleged violations of the Order, both against AFGE and against Grissom, turn on a full page advertisement by AFGE which was published in the December 19, 1975, issue of the Grissom Contact, a weekly unofficial newspaper, privately published, pursuant to contract between Grissom and Hometown Publications.

1/ The Complainant's request to correct the transcript as set forth in its motion dated November 23, 1976, no opposition having been filed and as each correction requested appears wholly proper, Complainant's motion is hereby granted and the transcript is hereby corrected as more fully noted in "Appendix B", hereto.

All parties were represented by able counsel, were afforded full opportunity to be heard, to examine and cross-examine witnesses and to introduce evidence bearing on the issues involved and briefs have been timely filed by the parties which have been carefully considered. Upon the basis of the entire record, I make the following findings of fact, conclusions and recommendations:

Findings of Fact

1. Complainant has held exclusive recognition at Grissom since 1967. Its current contract was signed March 16, 1973, and was for a period expiring March 16, 1976. To be timely, a petition challenging Local 1434's right to represent civilian employees at Grissom would have to have been filed on or after December 17, 1975, but prior to January 16, 1976. AFGE filed a petition for Certification of Representatives on January 12, 1976 (Stipulation, Ass't. Sec. Exh. 3). 2/ Because of the unfair labor practice charges here involved, AFGE's petition for certification has been held in abeyance and Complainant's contract has been extended to March, 1977.

2. The Grissom Contact is a weekly unofficial newspaper published in the interest of personnel at Grissom by Hometown Publication, James Bannon, Publisher. Mr. Bannon is not connected with the Air Force. Publication of the Grissom Contact is governed by a contract between James Bannon and Grissom (Ass't. Sec. Exh. 3, Stipulation, Attachment 2) and by AFR 190-7 (Ass't. Sec. Exh. 3, Stipulation, Attachment 1).

3. Grissom furnishes the news content, headlines, editorials, captions and pictures; the Publisher solicits and sells advertising and prepares advertising copy. The Publisher's sole revenue is derived from the sale of advertisements. Copies of the Grissom Contact are deposited at various places on the base, such as commissary, chow hall, post office, etc. (See, Ass't. Sec. Exh. 3, Stipulation, Attachment 3), where personnel may, without charge, pick up a copy. The editor of the Grissom Contact is an airman detailed by Grissom for such duty. Airman James D. Rosenberg was editor on December 19, 1975, and Sergeant Youngclause was the editor at the time of the hearing. Grissom's Office of Information, currently headed by Major Herbert Lubin, is responsible for the editorial copy of the Grissom Contact.

2/ Complainant and Grissom in Case No. 50-13120(CA) submitted a stipulation of facts and their request for a decision by the Assistant Secretary without a hearing pursuant to Section 203.5(b) of the Regulations; however, in view of the consolidation of Case No. 50-13120(CA) with Case No. 50-13119(CO) and the absence of a like stipulation of facts and a request for a decision by the Assistant Secretary without a hearing in the latter case, a Notice of Hearing issued as to both cases.

4. The contract between Grissom and James Bannon in Paragraph III, Advertising, provided, in part, as follows:

> "c. 'Control.' The Publisher shall not accept for publication advertisements that are in conflict with the principles of the Air Force character guidance program. The Publisher shall not solicit advertising or publish advertisements from establishments that have been declared to be 'Off Limits' to military personnel by the Base Commander or by the Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Board ... In addition, the Publisher may request the Information Officer or designated representative(s) to advise him if the contents of any advertisement would cause the Base Commander to bar the paper's circulation on the base. Advertisements which are essentially political in nature or which have political connations will not be carried in the GRISSOM CONTACT. No advertisement will be carried that is unlawful, detrimental to discipline, that undermines loyalty, or is otherwise contrary to the best interest of Grissom Air Force Base, to the United States Air Force or any part thereof, or to the United States of America. All advertisements shall conform to principles of good taste. In this regard, the Publisher shall not advertise any motion picture or other form of film entertainment which is rated 'X'... In the event of disagreement over advertising content, the commander of Grissom Air Force Base shall have the final authority for determination." (Ass't. Sec. Exh. 3, Stipulation, Attachment 2, pp. 3-4).

Air Force Regulations, provide, in part, as follows:

> "12. Commercial Advertising:
>
> "a. To be acceptable for on-base distibution through official channels, no advertising in commercial enterprise publications shall be worded or phrased to give the reader the impression that the Air Force in any way endorses, guarantees, or sponsors any product or service ...
>
> . . .
>
> "d. The publisher will request advertisers to observe the highest business ethics and applicable laws in describing goods, services, and commodities ...
>
> "e. Active-duty Air Force military and civilian personnel are prohibited from soliciting or endorsing advertisements in commercial enterprise publications.
>
> . . .
> "h. Advertisements must conform to the principles of good taste. ..." (AFR 190-7, Ass't. Sec. Exh. 3, Stipulation, Attachment 1).

5. Chester Horning, Sr., then President of AFGE Local 3254 and now Chief Steward, contacted Mrs. Mildred Precourt, sales representative for Hometown Publication, about an advertisement which Mr. Horning, with the assistance of various members of Local 3254, had developed; and Mrs. Precourt, after receiving Mr. Horning's material, wrote the advertisement as it appeared in the December 19, 1975, issue of the Grissom Contact (Jt. Exh. 2, p. 13). The AFGE advertisement was solely the product of AFGE, was paid for by AFGE Local 3254, and Grissom had no knowledge of the advertisement until Editor Rosenberg saw the galley proofs containing the AFGE advertisement on, or about, December 15, 1975. Airman Rosenberg testified that he did not bring the AFGE advertisement to the attention of his superior, Major Lubin, because,

> "I found it not to be in violation of any of our regulations or the contract." (Tr. 59)

Major Lubin testified that after publication he saw the AFGE advertisement and did not find that it violated the provisions of AFR 190-7 or the contract. Mrs. Precourt testified that she did not remember that Mr. Horning asked her whether an advertisement such as he sought was acceptable, but that if he had, she would have told him that we could accept it; that she saw absolutely nothing wrong with the advertisement.

6. The AFGE advertisement, of course, extols AFGE; suggests various reasons why Grissom Civilain employees should support AFGE; does not mention Complainant in any manner; and listed three telephone numbers to call for further details (Peru, Bunker Hill and Kokomo). The testimony of various Local 3254 officers indicated that no calls were received at the numbers listed; nevertheless, a petition was filed on January 12, 1976, supported by the requisite showing of interest.

7. Several newspapers serve the area including the Peru Tribune, the Kokomo Tribune, and two Indianapolis newspapers, and Mr. Horning testified that, while they (AFGE Local officers) had discussed placing an advertisement in either the Peru or Kokomo paper, they felt it would be too expensive and, in addition that coverage would be far less than through the Grissom Contact. Mr. Horning also testified that Local 3254 had tried personal contact but had been unable to make employees aware of AFGE's presence; that consideration had been given to passing out leaflets outside the Base as cars entered and left the Base, but that they thought the best avenue was to place an advertisement in the Grissom Contact.

8. No witness had any knowledge of any prior advertisement in the Grissom Contact by any labor organization.

CONCLUSIONS

A. Section 19(b)(1) Allegation (Case No. 50-13119(CO)).

Complainant asserts that AFGE's advertisement interfered with, restrained, or coerced employees in the exercise of rights assured by the Order. As the advertisement did no more than extol AFGE without mention of Complainant, obviously there was no threat so that the basis for the 19(b)(1) violation is, quite simply, that AFGE violated the Order by utilizing the Grissom Contact at a time that it did not have "equivalent status." It is recognized that under the National Labor Relations Act (NLRA) interference with organization rights by an employer has been premised on the violation of Sections 7 and 8(a)(1), see, for example, NLRB v. Babcock-Wilcox Co., 351 U.S. 105 (1956);

that the rights of employees to self-organization under Section 7 of the NLRA are essentially similar to the rights to self-organization under Section 1(a) of the Order; and that Section 19(b)(1) of the Order, in language essentially parallel to the language of Section 8(a)(1) of the NLRA, as to an employer, makes it an unfair labor practice for a labor organization to "interfere with, restrain, or coerce an employee in the exercise of his rights assured by the Order", while 19(b)(1) of the Order reaches any interference, restraint or coercion practiced by a labor organization, there is no provision prohibiting, for example, organization activity by a labor organization on an agency's or activity's premises at any time. Although Section 19(a)(3) of the Order makes it an unfair labor practice for an agency to furnish services or facilities except to organizations having equivalent status, an agency violation of Section 19(a)(3) does not make coercive, etc., in violation of 19(b)(1) of the Order, union conduct which, in itself, was wholly uncoercive and lawful, except that the agency or activity could not lawfully furnish such services or facilities until such organization achieved "equivalent status". Indeed, the realities of labor relations require that labor organizations have the fullest possible freedom of communication if the basic right of employees to self-organization, etc., is to have meaning. Consequently, in the absence of a clear and unambiguous restriction, I find no warrant in the Order for finding a labor organization quilty of an unfiar labor practice even if it were unlawfully assisted as a result of an employer's violation of 19(a)(3) of the Order.

Thus, even if it is assumed that Grissom violated 19(a)(3) by permitting the advertisement to be carried in the December 19, 1975, issue of the Grissom Contact, I am aware of no precedent, and none has been called to my attention, that a union which solicits or distributes in violation of non-solicitation and non-distribution rules is guilty of an unfair labor practice even if the employer were guilty of an unfair labor practice by permitting or allowing such solicitation or distribution. Indeed, the only precedent called to my attention is to the contrary. In Complaint Against American Federation of Government Employees, Case No. 64-2513(CO), the Assistant Regional Director, Mr. Cullen P. Keough, dismissed the Complaint by letter dated January 27, 1975, stating, in part, as follows:

> "... It is alleged that the American Federation of Government Employees (AFGE) violated Section 19(b)(1) and (2) of the Order by having its representatives conduct an organizational drive among employees of the Veterans Administration Hospital, New Orleans, Louisiana, who are represented by Local 169, National Federation of Federal Employees (NFFE). It is also alleged that the AFGE representatives were not employees of the hospital, that they conducted the organizational drive on the hospital premises and contrary to the express instructions of agency management.

"Assuming the above allegations to be true, I find no violations of Section 19(b)(1) and (2) of the Order. It does not follow that the complained of conduct interfered with any employee rights assured under the Order (Section 19(b)(1)) or that it constituted an attempt to induce agency management to coerce an employee in the exercise of such rights (19(b)(2)).

"I am, therefore, dismissing the complaint in this matter." (AFGE Exh. 1b)

The Assistant Secretary of Labor, Mr. Paul J. Fasser, Jr., by letter dated May 29, 1975, denied the request for review, stating, in part, as follows:

". . .

"In agreement with the Assistant Regional Director and based on his reasoning, I find that dismissal of the instant complaint is warranted in that a reasonable basis for the complaint has not been established." (AFGE Exh. 1c).

The Federal Labor Relations Council, FLRC No. 75A-64 (September 30, 1975), denied the request for review, stating, in part, as follows:

"... As to the alleged major policy issue, the Council is of the opinion that in the circumstances presented, noting particularly that the cited Assistant Secretary's decisions all involved an allegation and a finding that an agency had violated section 19(a) when it granted organizational rights to a labor organization (which were not present in the instant case), the decision of the Assistant Secretary does not appear inconsistent with prior decisions and does not raise a major policy issue warranting review." (AFGE Exh. 1a).

As AFGE's conduct did not interfere with any employee rights assured by the Order, I shall recommend that the complaint in Case No. 50-13119(CO) be dismissed.

B. Section 19(a)(1) and (3) Allegations (Case No. 50-13120(CA)).

In the circumstances of this case there is no independent 19(a)(1) violation. Rather, the controlling allegation is that Grissom violated Section 19(a)(3) of the Order by allowing publication of AFGE's advertisement at a time that AFGE did not have "equivalent status" and thereby assisted AFGE. If Grissom violated 19(a)(3) it also, derivatively, violated 19(a)(1). Army and Air Force Exchange Services, Pacific Exchange Systems, Hawaii Regional Exchange, A/SLMR No. 454 (1974); Secretary of the Navy, Department of the Navy, Pentagon and American Federation of Government Employees, AFL-CIO, Case No. 22-6787(CA) (decision of Administrative Law Judge, November 3, 1976).

Section 19(a)(3) provides that Agency management shall not -

"(3) sponsor, control, or otherwise assist a labor organization, except that an agency may furnish customary and routine services and facilities under section 23 of this Order when consistent with the best interests of the agency, its employees, and the organization, and when the services and facilities are furnished, if requested, on an impartial basis to organizations having equivalent status;"

Section 23 provides, in part, as follows:

"Agency implementation. No later than April 1, 1970, each agency shall issue appropriate policies and regulations consistent with this Order for its implementation. This includes but > is not limited to a clear statement of the rights of its employees under this Order; ... policies with respect to the use of agency facilities by labor organizations. ..."

The terms "an agency may furnish customary and routine services and facilities" (19(a)(3)) and "agency facilities" (23) are not defined. Complainant contends that: a) the Grissom Contact is an agency service or facility; b) that Grissom may furnish such services and/or facilities on an impartial basis only to labor organizations having equivalent status; c) that on December 19, 1975, AFGE had not filed a representation petition and, therefore, did not have equivalent status and, consequently, Grissom violated 19(a)(3) by furnishing services and/or facilities to AFGE, i.e., utilization of the Grissom Contact. Department of the Navy, Navy Commissary Store Complex, Oakland, A/SLMR No. 654 (1976), where Administrative Law Judge Sternburg, whose decision was adopted by the Assistant Secretary, stated:

> "In Department of the Army, U.S. Army Natick Laboratories, Natick, Mass., A/SLMR No. 263 and U.S. Department of Interior, Pacific Coast region, Geological Survey Center, Menlo Park, California, A/SLMR No. 143, the Assistant Secretary concluded that a union which has not raised a question concerning representation by virtue of its action in filing a representation petition ... does not enjoy 'equivalent status' within the meaning of Section 19(a)(3) of the Order. Further, in the absence of 'special circumstances' a labor organization not possessing 'equivalent status' with an incumbent exclusively recognized representative ... may not enjoy the use of the services and facilities of the Activity involved for purposes of organizational activities. Accordingly, in the absence of a showing that the employees involved are inaccessible to reasonable attempts by a labor organization to communicate with them outside the agency's or activity's premises, the granting of access to a union not enjoying 'equivalent status' is violative of Section 19(a)(3) of the Order. ..."

From the foregoing, it is clear that, as AFGE did not, on December 19, 1975, enjoy "equivalent status", if Grissom furnished services and/or facilities within the meaning of Sections 19(a)(3) and (23) it violated Section 19(a)(3).

In the private sector, the importance of freedon of communication to the free exercise of organization rights pursuant to Sections 7 and 8(a)(1) of the National Labor Relations Act (essentially comparable to Sections 1(a) and 19(a)(1) of the Order) has long been recognized and the guiding principle for adjustment of the conflict between §7 rights and property rights has been determined by the Supreme Court. NLRB v. Babcock and Wilcox Co., 351 U.S. 105 (1956); Central Hardware Co. v. NLRB, 407 U.S. 539 (1972). In Central Hardware Co., supra, the Court stated,

> "The principle of Babcock is limited to this accomodation between organization rights and property rights. This principle requires a 'yielding' of property rights only in the context of an organization campaign. Moreover, the allowed intrusion on property rights is limited to that necessary to facilitate the exercise of employees' §7 rights. After the requisite need for access to the employer's property has been shown, the access is limited to (i) union organizers; (ii) prescribed nonworking areas of the employer's premises; and (iii) the duration of organization activity. In short, the principle of accomodation announced in Babcock is limited to labor organization campaigns, and the 'yielding' of property rights it may require is both temporary and minimal." (407 U.S. at 543-545)

In further recognition of organization rights, the Board has long required an employer to provide names and addresses of employees in the unit within a specified time after an election agreement is executed or an election is directed. Excelsior Underwear, Inc., 165 NLRB 1236 (1966); NLRB v. Wyman-Gordon Company, 394 U.S. 759 (1969).

Under Executive Order 10988, the predecessor of E.O. 11491, and the Standards of Conduct for Employee Organizations and Code of Fair Practices promulgated pursuant thereto, 3/ it might have been argued with conviction that the private sector standards were reflected in E.O. 10988. Whether this was intended in E.O. 10988 is of little moment as it is perfectly apparent that the Order is vastly different. Thus, the Order in Section 19(a)(3) allows an agency to furnish "services and facilities" to organizations "having equivalent status" which uniformly has been interpreted by the Assistant Secretary to mean that only organizations having equivalent status may be furnished services and facilities. Department of the Treasury, Bureau of Customs, Boston, Massachusetts, A/SLMR No. 169 (1972); Department of the Navy, Navy Commissary Store Complex, Oakland,

> Section 10. "No later than July 1, 1962, the head of each agency shall issue appropriate policies, rules and regulations for the implementation of this order, including ... policies with respect to the use of agency facilities by employee organizations. ..."

supra. In short, under the Order, an agency, not only is not required, but is affirmatively prohibited from giving aid to labor organizations prior to an organization attaining "equivalent status". The Assistant Secretary has very clearly stated that to allow an agency to furnish services or facilities at any time prior to attainment of "equivalent status" could place in jeopardy the labor-management relations stability sought to be achieved by the Order. Department of the Army, U.S. Army Natick Laboratories, supra.

There is no doubt whatever that the same advertisement in the Peru Tribune or Kokomo Tribune, for example, would have been protected under the Constitution, Thornhill v. Alabama, 310 U.S. 88 (1940); but the Grissom Contact was not a normal newspaper. Despite Grissom's assertion that the Grisson Contact was Mr. Bannon's publication, and it may very well be in some respects, the Grissom Contact is, nevertheless, very much Grissom's newspaper. Grissom writes all the news and editorial content, provides all pictures, captions and headlines, and retains absolute control over advertising which must be submitted to it in galley form prior to publication. Moreover, the publication bears the imprimatur of Grissom from its title to its content. Thus, the contract provides, inter alia, that Grissom's control over advertising includes:

> 1. Publisher shall not accept advertisements that are in conflict with the principles of the Air Force character guidance program.
> 2. Publisher shall not publish advertisements from establishments declared to be "Off Limits".
>
> 3. Publisher may request the Information Officer or designated representative to advise him if the contents of any advertisement would cause the Base Commander to bar the paper's circulation on the base.
>
> 4. Publisher will not accept advertisements which are essentially polical in nature or which have political connotations.
>
> 5. Publisher shall not publish any advertisement that is unlawful, determental to discipline, that undermines loyalty, or is otherwise contrary to the best interests of Grissom Air Force Base, to the United States Air Force or to the United States of America.

6. In the event of disagreement over advertising content, the Commander of Grissom Air Force Base shall have the final authority for determination.

There cannot be the slightest doubt that Grissom retained absolute control over advertising and in the event of disagreement the Base Commander had final authority for determination. Because it had the right to bar any advertisement, exercise of that right would not have constituted a breach of its contract with Hometown Publication; and by its failure to bar AFGE's advertisement in the Base publication with full knowledge of the advertisement prior to its publication, at a time when AFGE did not enjoy "equivalent status", Grissom violated Section 19(a)(3) of the Order. It is with considerable regret that I reach this conclusion as the importance that the electorate be informed of relevant information so as to enable employees to make a reasonable choice seems as compelling in organizing as in the election itself. Nevertheless, in view of the limitation in the Order prohibiting the furnishing of services or facilities except to organizations having equivalent status, I am constrained to conclude that Grissom,with full knowledge of AFGE's advertisement, permitted publication and distribution on its premises of the advertisement in the Grissom Contact which it controlled.

RECOMMENDATIONS

Having found that Respondent AFGE Local 3254 did not violate Section 19(b)(1) of the Order, I recommend that the Complaint in Case No. 50-13119(CO) be dismissed.

Having found that Respondent Department of the Air Force, Grissom Air Force Base, engaged in conduct which was in violation of Section 19(a)(3) of the Executive Order and, derivatively, of Section 19(a)(1) of the Executive Order, I recommend that the Assistant Secretary adopt the following order.

RECOMMENDED ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that Department of the Air Force, Grissom Air Force Base, Peru, Indiana, shall:

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Assisting the AFGE, or any other labor organization, by permitting advertisements by any labor organization in the Grissom Contact or by otherwise furnishing customary and routine services and facilities to AFGE or any other labor organization at a time when such organizations are not party to a pending representation proceeding raising a question concerning representation and when the employees are represented exclusively by the National Federation of Federal Employees, Local 1434.

2. Take the following affirmative action in order to effectuate the purposes and provisions of the Order:

(a) Post at its facility copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary for Labor-Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms, they shall be signed by the Commanding Officer and shall be posted and maintained by him for sixty (60) consecutive days thereafter, in conspicuous places, including all places where notices to employees are customarily posted. The Commanding Officer shall take reasonable steps to insure that such notices are not altered, defaced, or covered by other material.

(b) Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations, notify the Assistant Secretary within twenty (20) days from the date of this Order as to what steps have been taken to comply herewith.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION
OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C.
A/SLMR No. 853

This case involved a petition for consolidation of units filed by the National Treasury Employees Union (NTEU) on behalf of itself and/or its constituent local chapters seeking to consolidate 79 units for which the NTEU and/or its constituent local chapters are the current exclusive representatives at 57 of the 58 Internal Revenue Service (IRS) District Offices, 6 of the 7 IRS Regional Offices and the National Office of the IRS. Through the subject petition, the NTEU sought to establish a consolidated unit consisting of all the professional and nonprofessional employees of the IRS's District Offices, Regional Offices, and National Office who are currently represented exclusively by the NTEU and/or its constituent local chapters. The IRS contended, essentially, that the NTEU was without standing to file the instant petition on behalf of its exclusively recognized local chapters as, among other things, the Executive Order requires that consolidation may be sought only by exclusive representatives and the NTEU has not, as a minimum, sought authorization from its exclusively recognized local chapters to file the present petition. Furthermore, the IRS asserted that the proposed consolidated unit was not appropriate because it did not meet the criteria established by Section 10(b) of the Order and that the consolidation of existing bargaining units herein will not promote the goal of fostering more comprehensive collective bargaining as the parties already have a successful history of multi-unit bargaining.

With respect to the IRS's threshold contention that the NTEU was without standing to file the instant petition, the Assistant Secretary found that, as the contentions of the parties and the factual circumstances with respect to this question were identical to those raised in Internal Revenue Service, Washington, D. C., A/SLMR No. 831, and for the reasons stated therein, the NTEU had standing to file the instant petition on behalf of its exclusively recognized local chapters.

The Assistant Secretary also noted, as he had in his previous Internal Revenue Service decision, that consistent with the Federal Labor Relations Council's clear policy guidelines on consolidation of units there has been established, in effect, a presumption favoring the appropriateness of proposed consolidated units. Given these policy guidelines, he found that the consolidated unit petitioned for by the NTEU was appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. Thus, he found that the employees in the unit sought constitute all of the eligible employees of the IRS except for those in the IRS's specialized, computer-oriented Center-type operations. They are part of an integrated organization in which they share a common mission and common supervision on a nationwide level, common job classifications, common types of working conditions, and similar personnel and labor relations practices pursuant to the essentially similar multi-District, multi-Regional and National Office negotiated agreements between the parties. Under these circumstances, he concluded that the employees in the petitioned for consolidated unit share a clear and identifiable community of interest. As the evidence also established that the parties had successfully negotiated at the national level multi-unit agreements covering the District and Regional Office employees sought herein, and that these agreements are essentially similar to the National Office agreement between the parties, he found that the proposed consolidated unit would promote effective dealings. Moreover, noting the scope and history of the parties' current multi-unit collective bargaining relationship, he found that there has already been demonstrated the benefits to be derived from a unit structure related to a combination of employees of the IRS's District Offices, Regional Offices and National Office. In these circumstances, he concluded that the proposed consolidated unit will promote the efficiency of the agency's operations. Although the parties have been voluntarily bargaining for some of the employees sought herein on a multi-unit basis, the Assistant Secretary determined that the petitioned for consolidated unit, which will provide bargaining for employees on a nationwide basis under a single unit structure, will reduce fragmentation, promote a more comprehensive bargaining unit structure and is consistent with the policy of the Order set forth by the Council.

Case No. 22-6484(UC)

NATIONAL TREASURY EMPLOYEES UNION

Petitioner

DECISION AND DIRECTION OF ELECTION

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer Eugene M. Levine. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

The Petitioner, National Treasury Employees Union, herein called NTEU, which filed the instant petition on behalf of itself and/or its constituent local chapters, seeks to consolidate 79 units for which the NTEU and/or its constituent local chapters are the current exclusive representatives at 57 of the 58 Internal Revenue Service (IRS) District Offices, 6 of the 7 IRS Regional Offices and the National Office of the IRS. Through the subject petition, the NTEU seeks to establish a consolidated unit consisting of all the professional and nonprofessional employees of the IRS's District Offices, Regional Offices, and National Office, excluding all the employees of the Anchorage, Alaska, District Office, the employees of the Southeast Regional Office, the professional employees of the North Atlantic Regional Office, the National Office employees of the Office of International Operations assigned to the post of duty at Hato Rey, Puerto Rico, management officials, guards, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

The IRS contends that the NTEU is without standing to file the instant petition on behalf of its exclusively recognized local chapters as, among other things, the Executive Order requires that consolidation may be sought only by exclusive representatives and the NTEU has not, as a minimum, sought authorization from its exclusively recognized chapters to file the instant petition. The IRS further asserts that the proposed consolidated unit is not appropriate because it does not meet the criteria established by Section 10(b) of the Order. The IRS argues also that the consolidation of the existing bargaining units herein will not promote the goal of fostering more comprehensive collective bargaining as the parties already have a successful history of multi-unit bargaining. The NTEU, on the other hand, takes the position that its standing to file the subject petition on behalf of its constituent chapters is an internal matter not subject to challenge by either the IRS or the Assistant Secretary, that the Report and Recommendations of the Federal Labor Relations Council (1975), which set forth the consolidation procedures, established a presumption favoring consolidation, and that the IRS has not produced evidence which rebuts this presumption. In this latter regard, it contends that the parties' successful history of multi-unit bargaining at the level of the Commissioner, IRS, is the best evidence that recognition at that level will promote effective dealings and the efficiency of the agency's operations. Alternatively, the NTEU indicated its willingness to represent all of the eligible District Office and Regional Office employees in one consolidated unit, with the National Office unit remaining separate, or two separate consolidated units of District Office employees and Regional Office employees, with the National Office unit remaining separate.

The mission of the IRS, which is an organizational component of the Department of the Treasury, is the administration of the tax laws of the United States. The IRS is headed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue who reports to the Secretary of the Treasury. There are three organizational levels within the IRS. The first level, the National Office, located in Washington, D. C., develops nationwide policies and programs for the administration of the Internal Revenue laws and provides overall direction to the field organization. The day-to-day operations of the National Office are essentially directed by the Deputy Commissioner, IRS. There are seven organizational subdivisions within the National Office, each headed by an Assistant Commissioner who reports to the Deputy Commissioner. The Assistant Commissioners have no line authority with respect to the IRS's field operation. The record reveals that there are approximately 2100 bargaining unit positions within the National Office.

The second level of the IRS's organization is the seven Regional Offices which supervise and evaluate the operations of the District Offices and Service Centers within their geographical purview. The Regional Offices are headed by Regional Commissioners who report to the Deputy Commissioner, IRS. The size of the Regional Offices ranges from approximately 243 to approximately 441 bargaining unit employees. The majority of unit employees within each Regional Office are assigned to the appellate function, which is located in Branch Offices throughout each region and which is concerned with hearing and undertaking final settlement of taxpayer appeals from determinations of tax liability made in the District Offices. The remaining Regional Office bargaining unit positions primarily involve clerical employees.

The third level of the IRS's field organization, the District Offices and the Service Centers, 1/ constitute the IRS's field operation. The 58 District Offices implement the programs and policies established by the National Office and the Regional Offices. They have initial taxpayer contacts in the areas of taxpayer assistance, audit of tax returns, collection of delinquent tax returns and/or revenue, and settlement efforts of tax disputes. The District Offices are headed by a District Director who reports to the Regional Commissioner. The size of the District Offices ranges from approximately 100 employees at Cheyenne, Wyoming, to approximately 3000 employees at Los Angeles, California. Every District has both a headquarters office and local offices in other cities or towns within the District. Certain districts are designated as "key" districts because they possess the personnel and capability to administer special programs. However, the evidence shows that all the District Offices basically consist of employees in essentially similar job classifications who are required to have essentially similar training, and who share essentially similar working conditions.

As noted above, the IRS has raised a threshold question that the NTEU was without standing to file the instant petition. As the contentions of the parties and the factual circumstances with respect to this question are identical with those raised in Internal Revenue Service, Washington, D. C., cited above, at footnote 1, I find that, for the reasons stated therein, the NTEU had standing to file the instant petition on behalf of its exclusively recognized local chapters.

With respect to the appropriateness of the proposed consolidated unit, the IRS contends that it is an essentially decentralized organization which has delegated primary authority for those decisions concerning the terms and conditions of employment for its employees to its line managers at each level of its organization. In this regard, the record shows that all the Assistant Commissioners (with respect to National Office employees), Regional Commissioners and District Office Directors have been delegated and effectively exercise day-to-day authority with respect to such matters as hiring, firing, transfer, reassignment, promotion, reduction-in-force procedures, resolution of grievances and unfair labor practice complaints, and other matters affecting employee interests. Furthermore, the record shows that only a small number of employees

1/ The ten Service Centers process tax returns and related documents and maintain accountability records for the taxes collected. Their program includes the processing, verification, and accounting control of tax returns, the assessment and refund of taxes, and the preparation of audit selection lists.

In Case No. 22-6486(UC), the NTEU filed a petition seeking to consolidate its exclusively represented Service Centers, the IRS National Computer Center and IRS Data Center units. See Internal Revenue Service, Washington, D. C., A/SLMR No. 831.

receive either temporary details or permanent reassignments/promotions between any of the District Offices, Regional Offices, and/or the National Office and that the effective area of consideration for both reduction-in-force procedures and promotions is either District-wide, or within the purview of the particular Regional Commissioner's or Assistant Commissioner's jurisdiction. Based on these considerations, the IRS argues that consolidation will require the centralization of its decision-making authority with respect to all matters affecting employee terms and conditions of employment.

The IRS's contention that consolidation will necessarily result in the centralization of its decision-making authority must be viewed, however, in the context of the recent bargaining history between the IRS and the NTEU. In 1972, and again in 1974, the IRS and the NTEU negotiated multi-District collective bargaining agreements encompassing all the District Office employees sought to be incorporated in the proposed consolidated unit. In 1974, the IRS and the NTEU negotiated a multi-Regional collective bargaining agreement encompassing all the Regional Office employees sought to be incorporated in the proposed consolidated unit. In 1975, the IRS and the NTEU negotiated a collective bargaining agreement for the National Office employees sought to be incorporated into the proposed consolidated unit. Some of the subjects covered by the agreements, as shown by the record evidence, indicate the extent to which the parties herein have dealt at the national level with problems concerning the terms and conditions of employment of the District Office and Regional Office employees sought herein. Thus, among the subjects covered by the most recent agreements are promotions, details, evaluations of performance, annual ratings, training, position classification, equal employment opportunity, leave, health and safety, hours of work, etc. The IRS contends that multi-District and multi-Regional agreements are based on the active input of the respective District Directors and Regional Commissioners and were negotiated and signed on their behalf, with the central Union Relations Branch staff merely acting as their agents. The IRS contends, further, that it will be unable to continue to do this should the proposed consolidation be approved. However, no evidence was presented to show that the IRS could no longer continue, as before, to utilize its field personnel and use their input as the basis for negotiations with the NTEU at the national level, or that any agreement negotiated at the national level could not continue to delegate to field level managers certain authority, such as the resolution of grievances and the scheduling of meetings with local union representatives to deal with local problems, which currently are incorporated into the present agreements. Furthermore, the evidence shows that the current multi-District, multi-Regional and National Office agreements are essentially similar in many instances, (e.g., employee rights, union rights, union stewards, promotions, details, performance evaluations, discipline, equal employment opportunities, grievance procedures, etc.), thereby evincing the commonality of interests throughout the unit sought by the NTEU herein.

In a recent decision, I found, consistent with the Federal Labor Relations Council's clear policy guidelines on consolidation of units, that there has been established, in effect, a presumption favoring the appropriateness of proposed consolidated units. 2/ Given these policy guidelines, I find that the petitioned for consolidated unit herein is appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under the Order. As indicated above, the employees in the unit sought constitute all of the eligible employees of the IRS except for those in the IRS's specialized, computer-oriented Center-type operations. They are part of an integrated organization in which they share a common mission and common supervision on a nationwide level, common job classifications, common types of working conditions, and similar personnel and labor relations practices pursuant to the essentially similar multi-District, multi-Regional and National Office negotiated agreements between the parties. Under these circumstances, I find that the employees in the petitioned for consolidated unit share a clear and identifiable community of interest

As the evidence also establishes that the parties have successfully negotiated at the national level multi-unit agreements covering the District and Regional Office employees sought herein, and that these agreements are essentially similar to the National Office agreement between the parties, I find that the proposed consolidated unit will promote effective dealings. Moreover, noting the scope and history of the parties' current multi-unit collective bargaining relationship, I find that there has already been demonstrated the benefits to be derived from a unit structure related to a combination of employees of the IRS's District Offices, Regional Offices and National Office. In these circumstances, I find that the proposed consolidated unit will promote the efficiency of the agency's operations. Although the parties have been voluntarily bargaining for some of the employees sought herein on a multi-unit basis, I also find that the petitioned for consolidated unit, which will provide bargaining for all of the employees sought herein on a nationwide basis under a single unit structure, will reduce fragmentation, promote a more comprehensive bargaining unit structure and is consistent with the policy of the Order set forth above.

Accordingly, I find that the following unit is appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition under Executive Order 11491, as amended: 3/

2/ Education Division, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, Washington, D. C., A/SLMR No. 822.

3/ The certifications or grants of exclusive recognition held by the NTEU were not made part of the record herein. As noted in the Education Division decision, cited above, proposed consolidated units are limited to, and/or defined by, the parameters of the existing exclusively recognized units at the time of the filing of a consolidation petition. Insofar as the actual state of the exclusively recognized units at the time of the filing of the instant petition may differ, if at all, from the unit found appropriate herein, the unit description should be so modified.

All professional and nonprofessional employees of the Internal Revenue Service District Offices, Regional Offices, and National Office, excluding all the employees of the Anchorage, Alaska, District Office, the employees of the Southeast Regional Office, the professional employees of the North Atlantic Regional Office, the National Office employees in the Office of International Operations assigned to the post of duty at Hato Rey, Puerto Rico, management officials, guards, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

The IRS requested that in the event the proposed consolidated unit was found to be appropriate, an election be held to determine whether or not the employees involved desire to be represented in the proposed consolidated unit by the NTEU. As noted above, the unit found appropriate includes professional employees. However, the Assistant Secretary is prohibited by Section 10(b)(4) of the Order from including professional employees in a unit with nonprofessional employees unless a majority of the professional employees votes for inclusion in such a unit. Accordingly, the desires of the professional employees as to inclusion in a unit with nonprofessional employees must be ascertained. I shall, therefore, direct that separate elections be conducted in the following voting groups:

Voting group (a): All professional employees of the Internal Revenue Service District Offices, Regional Offices, and National Office, excluding all nonprofessional employees, employees of the Anchorage, Alaska, District Office, employees of the Southeast Regional Office, professional employees of the North Atlantic Regional Office, National Office employees in the Office of International Operations assigned to the post of duty at Hato Rey, Puerto Rico, management officials, guards, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

Voting group (b): All nonprofessional employees of the Internal Revenue Service District Offices, Regional Offices, and National Office, excluding all professional employees, employees of the Anchorage, Alaska, District Office, employees of the Southeast Regional Office, professional employees of the North Atlantic Regional Office, National Office employees in the Office of International Operations assigned to the post of duty at Hato Rey, Puerto Rico, management officials, guards, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

Employees in the nonprofessional voting group (b) will be polled whether they desire to be represented for the purpose of exclusive recognition in the proposed consolidated unit by the National Treasury Employees Union.

Employees in the professional voting group (a) will be asked two questions on their ballots: (1) whether they desire to be represented for the purpose of exclusive recognition in the proposed consolidated unit by the National Treasury Employees Union, and (2) whether or not they desire to be represented in a separate consolidated professional unit if the proposed consolidated unit is approved by a majority of all the employees voting.

The valid votes cast by all the eligible employees will be tallied to determine if a majority of the valid votes have been cast in favor of the proposed consolidated unit. If a majority of the valid votes have not been cast in favor of the proposed consolidated unit, the employees will be taken to have indicated their desire to continue to be represented in their current units of exclusive recognition. If a majority of the valid votes are cast in favor of the proposed consolidated unit, the ballots of the professional employees in voting group (a) will then be tallied to determine whether they wish to be included in the same consolidated unit with the nonprofessional employees. Unless a majority of the valid votes of voting group (a) are cast for inclusion in the same consolidated unit as the nonprofessional employees, the professional employees will be taken to have indicated their desire to constitute a separate consolidated professional unit, and an appropriate certification will be issued by the Area Administrator.

The unit determination in the subject case is based, in part, then, upon the results of the election among the professional employees. However, I will now make the following findings in regard to the appropriate unit:

1. If a majority of the professional employees does not vote for inclusion in the same unit as the nonprofessional employees, I find the following units appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition within the meaning of Section 10 of the Order:

(a): All professional employees of the Internal Revenue Service District Offices, Regional Offices, and National Office, excluding all nonprofessional employees, employees of the Anchorage, Alaska, District Office, employees of the Southeast Regional Office, professional employees of the North Atlantic Regional Office, National Office employees in the Office of International Operations assigned to the post of duty at Hato Rey, Puerto Rico, management officials, guards, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

(b): All nonprofessional employees of the Internal Revenue Service District Offices, Regional Offices, and National Office, excluding all professional employees, employees of the Anchorage, Alaska, District Office, employees of the Southeast Regional Office, professional employees of the North Atlantic Regional Office, National Office employees in the Office of International Operations assigned to the post of duty at Hato Rey, Puerto Rico, management officials, guards, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

2. If a majority of the professional employees votes for inclusion in the same consolidated unit as the nonprofessional employees, I find the following unit appropriate for the purpose of exclusive recognition within the meaning of Section 10 of the Order:

> All professional and nonprofessional employees of the Internal Revenue Service District Offices, Regional Offices, and National Office, excluding all the employees of the Anchorage, Alaska, District Office, the employees of the Southeast Regional Office, the professional employees of the North Atlantic Regional Office, the National Office employees in the Office of International Operations assigned to the post of duty at Hato Rey, Puerto Rico, management officials, guards, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors as defined in the Order.

DIRECTION OF ELECTION

An election by secret ballot shall be conducted among the employees in the voting groups described above, as early as possible, but not later than 60 days from the date below. The appropriate Area Administrator shall supervise the election, subject to the Assistant Secretary's Regulations. Eligible to vote are those in the voting groups who were employed during the payroll period immediately preceding the date below, including employees who did not work during that period because they were out ill, or on vacation or on furlough, including those in the military service who appear in person at the polls. Ineligible to vote are employees who have quit or were discharged for cause since the designated payroll period and who have not been rehired or reinstated before the election date. Those eligible shall vote whether or not they desire to be represented for the purpose of exclusive recognition in the proposed consolidated unit by the National Treasury Employees Union.

A/SLMR No. 854

This case involved a unit clarification petition by the American Federation of Government Employees, Local 1770, AFL-CIO (Petitioner) seeking clarification as to the status of certain employee classifications and requesting that the employee classifications involved be included in its exclusively recognized unit located at Fort Bragg. Contrary to the view of the Petitioner, the Activity contended that all the subject employee classifications should be excluded from the exclusively recognized unit as supervisory.

With respect to certain of the employee classifications covered by the petition, the Assistant Secretary noted that during the course of the hearing the parties agreed to their supervisory or nonsupervisory status. In these circumstances, he concluded that the agreement of the parties constituted, in effect, withdrawal requests insofar as they sought clarification with respect to the agreed upon employees. In the absence of any evidence that the parties' agreement was improper, the Assistant Secretary approved the withdrawal requests. He noted also that in order to expedite the hearing on those employee classifications at issue the parties divided the disputed classifications into three basic categories and stipulated that witnesses testifying within each grouping were representative of all such individuals within that grouping. The Assistant Secretary found that the record demonstrated that such stipulation was not improper.

As to the remaining disputed employee classifications, the Assistant Secretary concluded that all employee classifications within each grouping were supervisory within the meaning of the Order. Accordingly, he excluded from the Petitioner's exclusively recognized unit those employee classifications.

DECISION AND ORDER CLARIFYING UNIT

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer Adam J. Conti. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed.

Upon the entire record in this case, including a brief filed by the Petitioner, the Assistant Secretary finds:

The Petitioner, American Federation of Government Employees, Local 1770, AFL-CIO, hereinafter called AFGE, is the exclusive representative of certain employees of the Activity. 2/ In this proceeding, the AFGE seeks clarification as to the status of approximately 154 employee classifications, requesting that they be included in the exclusively recognized unit located at Fort Bragg, North Carolina. 3/ The Activity contends that the employees in each of the disputed classifications (Groups A, B and C set forth below) are supervisors within the meaning of Section 2(c) of the Order and, therefore, should be excluded from the exclusively recognized unit.

During the hearing, the parties stipulated that certain employee classifications were supervisory while others were nonsupervisory. 4/ In order to expedite the hearing on those employee classifications at issue the parties divided the disputed classifications into three basic

1/ The name of the Activity appears as set forth, October 9, 1974, in the amendment of recognition in Case No. 40-5517(AC).

2/ The AFGE was originally granted exclusive recognition under Executive Order 10988. On October 9, 1974, that recognition was amended by changing the wording of the unit description. Currently, the AFGE is the exclusive representative of the following unit: "Included: All General Schedule and Wage Grade employees at Fort Bragg, North Carolina, including employees of the following tenant organizations who are serviced by the Fort Bragg Civilian Personnel Office: Headquarters, First ROTC Region; U.S. Army Communications Command Agency-Fort Bragg; U.S. Army Institute for Military Assistance; U.S. Army Airborne Communications and Electronics Board; U.S. Army Medical Department Activity, Womack Army Hospital; U.S. Forces Command Intelligence Group (FORSIG); and the U.S. Readiness Group-Fort Bragg. Excluded: All professional employees, management officials, employees engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity, and supervisors and guards as defined in the Executive Order." At the hearing, the parties attempted to amend the above unit description by omitting the U.S. Readiness Group-Fort Bragg because allegedly it no longer is serviced by the Fort Bragg Civilian Personnel Office. Inasmuch as insufficient supporting evidence was adduced on this matter, I shall not pass upon whether the omission of the U.S. Readiness Group from the unit description herein is warranted.

3/ The AFGE represents exclusively approximately 3,500 employees at the Activity.

4/ There is no evidence that such stipulations were improper. I view such stipulations, in the context of a unit clarification petition, as motions to amend the petition to delete and, in effect, withdraw such stipulated classifications. In these circumstances, I grant the motions to amend and therefore find it unnecessary to make a determination concerning the status of the stipulated classifications.

DISPUTED EMPLOYEE CLASSIFICATIONS

Group A

The record reveals that employees in Group A closely resemble "limited foremen" who exercise first level supervisory responsibility for control over work operations at the Activity. In this connection, they approve leave and short term absences from work, spot check work priorities to see that they are effectively and economically accomplished, effectively recommend promotions, plan and prescribe deadlines and the sequence of work, counsel and discipline employees, are effectively involved in the process of giving cash awards and letters of commendation, and are authorized to adjust informal complaints and resolve minor grievances. Moreover, the record shows that individuals in Group A exercise independent judgment with respect to the day-to-day supervision given employees and supervise anywhere from 2 to 53 employees.

In view of the fact that employees in Group A possess independent and responsible authority to direct other employees, approve leave and short absences from work, and effectively recommend promotions and discipline employees, I find that such employee classifications found in Group A are supervisory within the meaning of the Order and, therefore, such classifications should be excluded from the unit.

Group B

Record evidence indicates that employees in Group B classifications are foremen with full responsibility for the employees under their direction. Employees in Group B classifications plan weekly and daily work schedules, establish deadlines within job priorities, determine how many work assignments can be done concurrently, how many must be delayed, and decide the type and number of employees to complete work. Also, the record reflects that employees in Group B classifications approve annual and sick leave, effectively recommend discharges and other forms of employee discipline, handle grievances and meet upon occasion with shop stewards, counsel employees, effectively recommend promotions and awards, and hire or select employees for work. Additionally, individuals in Group B classifications are authorized to require written explanations for abuse of sick leave, alcoholism and safety infractions and are able to transfer employees for short periods of time, as well as set performance standards for work. Employees in Group B classifications generally supervise from 15 to 18 individuals.

5/ The record reveals that such stipulation was not improper. Thus, Group A, Group B and Group C reflect the parties' attempt to categorize classifications that fall into the 201 job series, the 202 job series and the GS series, respectively.

Based on the foregoing, I find that the individuals in Group B classifications are supervisors within the meaning of the Order in that the evidence establishes that they possess independent and responsible authority to direct other employees, assign work and leave, adjust grievances and effectively recommend discipline and promotions. I shall, therefore, exclude such classifications from the unit.

Group C

The record evidence indicates that individuals who occupy the classifications in Group C occassionally schedule overtime for employees, establish regular duty schedules, approve annual and sick leave, hire and select employees for work from Civilian Personnel Office registers and referrals, direct and assign work on a daily basis, counsel and admonish employees, effectively recommend terminations, and initiate incentive awards for employees. Also, the record reflects that individuals in Group C classifications train new employees and inform them of their mission and responsibility and annually review job descriptions with employees in addition to regularly evaluating personnel.

Inasmuch as employees in Group C possess independent and responsible authority to direct other employees, establish duty schedules and assign work, hire and select employees for work, and effectively discipline employees, I find that individuals found in Group C classifications are supervisors within the meaning of the Order and, therefore, such classifications should be excluded from the unit.

ORDER

DECISION AND ORDER

On January 31, 1977, Administrative Law Judge Samuel A. Chaitovitz issued his Recommended Decision and Order in the above-entitled proceeding, finding that the Respondent had engaged in certain unfair labor practices and recommending that it cease and desist therefrom and take certain affirmative actions as set forth in the attached Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order. No exceptions were filed to the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order.

The Assistant Secretary has reviewed the rulings of the Administrative Law Judge made at the hearing and finds that no prejudicial error was committed. The rulings are hereby affirmed. Upon consideration of the Administrative Law Judge's Recommended Decision and Order and the entire record in the subject case, and noting particularly that no exceptions were filed, I hereby adopt the Administrative Law Judge's findings, conclusions and recommendations.

ORDER

Pursuant to Section 6(b) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, and Section 203.26(b) of the Regulations, the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations hereby orders that the United States Army Electronics Command, Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, shall:

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

U.S. ARMY ELECTRONICS COMMAND, FORT MONMOUTH, NEW JERSEY
A/SLMR No. 855

This case arose as a result of an unfair labor practice complaint filed by the National Federation of Federal Employees, Local 476 (NFFE) alleging, in substance, that the Respondent violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order when it changed the competitive areas used for reduction-in-force (RIF) purposes without bargaining with the NFFE, the exclusive representative of certain employees affected by the change, concerning the decision to alter the competitive areas.

The Administrative Law Judge concluded that the Respondent was obligated to bargain, in advance, about the decision to change the competitive areas as the change in the competitive area itself impacts on employees. While the Administrative Law Judge further concluded that the Respondent fulfilled its obligation to supply the NFFE with requested information necessary for the Complainant to adequately bargain about the proposed change and that the record established that the parties had engaged in two bargaining sessions, he concluded that the parties had not, as required, exhausted the bargaining possibilities or reached impasse concerning the issue and, therefore, the Respondent had violated Section 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order by failing to fulfill its bargaining obligation with the exclusive representative, prior to the implementation of the change of competitive areas.

The Assistant Secretary, noting particularly the absence of exceptions, adopted the findings, conclusions and recommendations of the Administrative Law Judge and he ordered that the Respondent cease and desist from the conduct found violative and that it take certain affirmative actions.

1. Cease and desist from:

(a) Changing the composition of Competitive Area No. 10 without notifying National Federation of Federal Employees, Local 476, the exclusive representative of units of employees in Competitive Area No. 10, and affording such representative the opportunity to meet and confer, to the extent consonant with law and regulations, on the decision to effectuate such change.

(b) In any like or related manner, interfering with, restraining, or coercing employees in the exercise of their rights assured by Executive Order 11491, as amended.

2. Take the following affirmative actions in order to effectuate the purposes and policies of Executive Order 11491, as amended:

(a) Rescind its command letter of January 26, 1976, modifying the competitive areas for RIF purposes at Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, insofar as Competitive Area No. 10 is affected.

(b) Notify the National Federation of Federal Employees, Local 476, of any intended changes in the composition of Competitive Area No. 10 and, upon request, meet and confer in good faith, to the extent consonant with law and regulations, on the decision to effectuate such changes.

(c) Post at its facility at the U.S. Army Electronics Command, Fort Monmouth, New Jersey, copies of the attached notice marked "Appendix" on forms to be furnished by the Assistant Secretary of Labor for Labor-Management Relations. Upon receipt of such forms, they shall be signed by the Commanding Officer and shall be posted and maintained by him for 60 consecutive days thereafter, in conspicuous places, including all bulletin boards and other places where notices to employees are customarily posted. The Commanding Officer shall take reasonable steps to insure that such notices are not altered, defaced, or covered by any other material.

(d) Pursuant to Section 203.27 of the Regulations, notify the Assistant Secretary in writing within 30 days from the date of this order as to what steps have been taken to comply herewith.

RECOMMENDED DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

This case arises under the provisions of Executive Order 11491, as amended, (hereinafter called the Order). National Federation of Federal Employees Local 476 (hereinafter called the Union and NFFE Local 476) filed a complaint on March 5, 1976 and an amended complaint on March 19, 1976 alleging that the United States Army Electronics Command, Fort Monmouth, New Jersey (hereinafter called the Activity) violated Sections 19(a)(1), (2) 1/ and (6) of the Order by making certain changes in the competitive areas for reduction in force without bargaining with the Union and providing it with sufficient information and also subsequent to the change refused to supply the Union with sufficient information to permit it to bargain about the change.

A Notice of Hearing on Complaint was issued on September 30, 1976 by the U.S. Department of Labor Regional Administrator, New York Region. Pursuant to said Notice of Hearing, a hearing was held before the undersigned in Fort Monmouth, New Jersey. At the hearing both parties were represented and were afforded full opportunity to be heard; to call, examine and cross-examine witnesses; and to introduce evidence. The parties were afforded an opportunity to argue orally and to submit briefs. Both parties submitted briefs, which have been duly considered.

Upon the entire record in this case, from my observation of the witnesses and their demeanor, and from all of the testimony and evidence adduced at the hearing, I make the following findings, conclusions and recommendations.

Findings of Fact

1. At all times material herein the Union was the exclusive collective bargaining representative for a number of units composed of various employees of the Activity. One of the units so represented by NFFE Local 476 was one composed of employees of the Activity's Directorate of Research, Development and Engineering.

2. On or about December 17, 1975 Mr. Lester Edminston, a labor management specialist for the Activity, requested Union President Herbert Cahn meet with Activity representatives concerning a proposed change in the competitive areas. Mr. Cahn requested Activity representative Woolsey to bring population figures by competitive areas to the meeting. Mr. Woolsey refused, but nevertheless did bring them.

3. A meeting was held on December 19, 1975. Present at the meeting were representatives of NFFE Local 476,

1/ The allegation that Section 19(a)(2) of the Order was violated was dismissed by the Regional Administrator.

American Federation of Government Employees Local 1904 2/ and the Activity. The Activity proposed to change the competitive areas by moving the headquarters personnel of the Directorate of Research, Development and Engineering (RD&E) from Competitive Area #1 to Competitive Area #10, which was basically composed of the Research and Development Complex. 3/ The Unions requested that representatives from RD&E Directorate be present at a future meeting to explain the reasons for the proposed change and also they proposed the establishment of a single competitive area for all of the Activity and Fort Monmouth. NFFE Local 476 asked for retention registers and was advised there were none present. Mr. Cahn requested there be another meeting when the requested information, the retention registers, were available.

4. The next meeting was held on January 8, 1976. Representatives of NFFE Local 476, AFGE Local 1904 and the Activity, including representatives of the RD&E Directorate, were present. The parties discussed the background and reason for the proposed change. The two unions again suggested that there be one competitive area for all of Fort Monmouth and the tenant activities. NFFE Local 476 President Cahn renewed his request for copies of retention registers that would show how the retention registers would appear before and after the proposed change in competitive areas. They were not provided at the meeting.

5. A few days later Mr. Cahn received a retention register for Competitive Area #1 as prepared on April 10, 1975 and one for Competitive Area #10 as prepared August 28, 1974.

6. On January 20, 1976 Mr. Cahn spoke to Mr. Robert Woolsey of the Activity's personnel office. Mr. Woolsey advised Mr. Cahn of the procedure for determining, by, examining retention registers, which persons from Area #1 are

2/ AFGE Local 1904 also represented employees of the Activity.

3/ This involved moving approximately 450 employees from Competitive Area #1 to Competitive Area #10. No employees in Competitive Area #1 were in units represented by NFFE Local 476, but some employees in Competitive Area #10 were in such units.

proposed to be shifted to Area #10 and how to determine precisely where they would fit on the Area #10 retention register.

7. On January 21, 1976 Mr. Cahn telephonically advised an Activity representative that the Union's analysis would be completed in about a week and requested an additional meeting on the competitive area change in about one week.

8. By letter dated January 21, 1976 the Activity advised the Union that the Union's suggested change in competitive areas was rejected and that when the new competitive alignment is published the Union would be provided a copy.

9. On January 23, 1976 the Union telephonically requested that the Union wanted to meet with Activity Commander General Crawford to discuss the proposed change in competitive areas. The Activity representative agreed to try to set up such a meeting.

10. On January 26, 1976 the proposed change of shifting the RD&E Directorate from Competitive Area #1 to Competitive Area #10 was implemented.

11. By letter dated January 28, 1976 the Activity provided the Union with a copy of the changes that had been instituted.

12. On February 4, 1976 the Union sent the charge letter in the instant case to the Activity.

13. On February 20, 1976 the Union learned that new retention registers had been prepared on February 12, 1976 reflecting the new change in the competitive areas. On February 24 Mr. Cahn requested copies of these registers. He was not given copies of these registers but he was permitted to use them at the personnel office.

14. Mr. Cahn by letter dated March 3, 1976 advised the Activity that this arrangement was a satisfactory interim arrangement until such time as complete "before" and "after" retention registers were made available.

15. The Union apparently was not provided with copies of such registers.

16. The record does not establish that the Union tried to make any arrangements to see the new retention registers or that the Activity failed in any way to permit the Union to see them and/or copy them at times requested by or convenient for the Union.

17. The result of the change in competitive areas was to move about 450 employees from Competitive Area #1, none of whom were in units represented by the Union, to Competitive Area #10, which contained a number of employees in units represented by the Union. It is the placement on the retention register by competitive areas that is used during Reduction in Force. Therefore it is reasonably foreseeable that in the event of a Reduction in Force this change, which added the 450 new employees to the Competitive Area #10 retention register, would probably have an impact and affect on some of the employees in Competitive Area #10 that are represented by NFFE Local 476.

Conclusions of Law

1. The Activity takes the position that it had no obligation to bargain about the decision to change competitive areas because it contends that this decision had no impact on the employees until a RIF was actually implemented. The Activity misinterprets the thrust of the Order. The change in the competitive areas itself, by affecting and changing employees' placement on the retention registers, has an impact on the employees. Therefore the Order mandates that the Activity bargain with the collective bargaining representative before it decides to make such changes. 4/ Therefore the Activity's position,

4/ If it were concluded that the Activity was not obliged to bargain about this change of competitive areas until an actual RIF, and a RIF was decided upon 2 or 3 years later, the parties would be in the strange and impractical situation of having to bargain about the decision to change competitive areas some 2 or 3 years after it had been put into effect. A clearly unacceptable procedure in any practical system of labor-management relations.

in this regard is rejected and it is concluded that the Activity was obliged to bargain, in advance, about the decision to change the competitive areas. cf. Department of the Army, U.S. Army Electronics Command, Fort Monmouth, N.J., A/SLMR No. 679.

2. The Activity was obliged, upon request, to supply the Union with available information needed by the Union to intelligently bargain about the proposed change in competitive areas. 5/ cf. Boston District Office, IRS, A/SLMR No. 727; Department of Navy, Long Beach Naval Shipyard, A/SLMR No. 728; and GSA Region 3, A/SLMR No. 734. The retention registers requested by the Union were necessary for the Union to bargain about the proposed change. However, prior to the finalization of the decision the Union was supplied with some rather dated retention registers for Competitive Areas #1 and #10. Although the Union might have been entitled to more recent retention registers, the Union did not protest that the retention registers that it was actually supplied were too old or not useful. Rather the Union did start to analyze the registers. Further although the Union wanted a retention register that reflected Competitive Area #10 after the proposed change, the record establishes that from the then existing retention registers for Areas #1 and #10, the Union could have itself figured out the changes in the retention register for Competitive Area #10. In these circumstances it is concluded that the Activity fulfilled its obligation to supply the Union with requested information necessary for the Union to adequately bargain about the proposed change. Therefore the Activity did not, in this regard, violate Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

3. It is concluded, however, that the Activity did violate the Order with respect to the decision and implementation of the change in the competitive areas. The record establishes that the parties had only engaged in two bargaining meetings; the Union wasn't supplied with the requested retention registers until after the second bargaining meeting; the Union, after promptly analyzing the registers, requested another bargaining meeting. Further the record does not establish that the parties had exhausted bargaining possibilities or reached impasse. In these circumstances it is concluded that the Activity reached it final decision to change the competitive areas and implemented these changes prematurely; that is before it had fulfilled its obligation to bargain with the Union about the change and its implementation. cf. U.S. Army Electronics Command, Fort Monmouth, N.J., A/SLMR No. 653. In this regard it is therefore concluded that the Activity violated Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of the Order.

5/ The record did not sufficiently establish that to supply the retention registers would have been to burdensome or costly.

4. With respect to making the new retention registers available after the change, in February 1976, it is concluded that the Activity made the registers available to the Union and the record fails to establish that the Union ever requested or was denied their use at the Union's convenience. Thus it is concluded that the Activity did not violate the Order in this regard.

Recommendation

Having found that the Activity engaged in conduct which violates Sections 19(a)(1) and (6) of Executive Order 11491, as amended, I recommend that the Assistant Secretary adopt the following Order designed to effectuate the policies of Executive Order 11491, as amended.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS
SUMMARY OF DECISION AND ORDER AMENDING AND CLARIFYING UNIT
OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY
PURSUANT TO SECTION 6 OF EXECUTIVE ORDER 11491, AS AMENDED

UNITED STATES PATENT AND TRADEMARK OFFICE
A/SLMR No. 856

This case involved a petition for amendment and clarification of unit (AC/CU) filed by the Activity. Thus, the Activity sought to amend a unit of essentially all of its professional employees other than Trademark professionals, for which the Patent Office Professional Association (POPA) has been the exclusive representative since 1965, by adding certain specific exclusions. In this regard, the Activity asserted that certain Patent Attorneys, Management Analysts, Program Analysts, and an Information Systems Analyst should be excluded from the POPA's unit as management officials within the meaning of the Order and/or as confidential employees. It asserted, further, that its Personnel Psychologist should be excluded from the POPA's unit as a management official, a confidential employee, and/or as an employee engaged in Federal personnel work in other than a purely clerical capacity. Conversely, the POPA contended that all of the employees in the disputed classifications were within the POPA's exclusively recognized unit.

As requested by the Activity, the Assistant Secretary amended the POPA's exclusively recognized unit to encompass the normal exclusions under Executive Order 11491, as amended. With respect to the employees in dispute, the Assistant Secretary, while excluding from the POPA's exclusively recognized unit two of the Patent Attorneys whom he found to be "representatives of management" within the meaning of Section 2(f) of the Order and the Personnel Psychologist whom he found to be engaged in non-clerical Federal personnel work within the meaning of Section 10(b)(2) of the Order, concluded that the remainder of said employees were neither management officials within the meaning of the Order nor confidential employees and, therefore, should be included in the POPA's exclusively recognized unit.

Accordingly, the Assistant Secretary ordered that the POPA's unit be clarified consistent with his conclusions herein.

exclusions as prescribed by the Order and the decisions of the Assistant Secretary:

> management officials, supervisors, employees engaged in Federal personnel work other than in a purely clerical capacity, confidential employees, Trademark professionals, 3/ and nonprofessionals.

In this regard, the PTO asserts that certain Patent Attorneys, Management Analysts, Program Analysts, and an Information Systems Analyst should be excluded from the POPA's unit as management officials within the meaning of the Order and/or as confidential employees. 4/ It asserts, further, that its Personnel Psychologist should be excluded from the POPA's unit as a management official within the meaning of the Order, a confidential employee, and/or an employee engaged in Federal personnel work other than in a purely clerical capacity, and seeks to clarify the POPA's unit accordingly. Conversely, the POPA contends that all of the employees in the disputed classifications are within its exclusively recognized unit.

The mission of the PTO is essentially to examine applications for trademark registrations and patents to determine if they meet the requirements of law and, upon such determination, issue patents and certificates of trademark registration. Organizationally, overall direction of the PTO is vested in the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks who has several "offices," three Assistant Commissioners, and a Solicitor who report directly to him. The Assistant Commissioners and the Solicitor, in turn, have various "offices" reporting to them. With the exception of the Patent Attorneys, who report to the Solicitor, and one Program Analyst, who is located in a sub-unit of the Commissioner's Office, all of the employees in dispute herein are employed in "offices" which report to the PTO's Assistant Commissioner for Administration.

3/ The Patent Office Employees Union, Local 2600, also a party to this proceeding, is the exclusive representative of all nonprofessional employees at the PTO while the Trademark Society, Inc., which is not a party to this proceeding, is the exclusive representative of the PTO's trademark professionals. At the hearing in this matter, all parties to the proceeding stipulated that the disputed employees herein are professional employees within the meaning of the Order.

4/ In Virginia National Guard Headquarters, 4th Battalion, 111th Artillery, A/SLMR No. 69, the Assistant Secretary held that it would effectuate the purposes of the Order to exclude from bargaining units employees who assist and act in a confidential capacity to persons who formulate and effectuate management policies in the field of labor relations.

DECISION AND ORDER AMENDING AND CLARIFYING UNIT

Upon a petition duly filed under Section 6 of Executive Order 11491, as amended, a hearing was held before Hearing Officer Jonathan Kaufmann. The Hearing Officer's rulings made at the hearing are free from prejudicial error and are hereby affirmed. 1/

Upon the entire record in this case, including briefs filed by the parties, the Assistant Secretary finds:

The Activity-Petitioner, the United States Patent and Trademark Office, 2/ hereinafter called PTO, seeks to amend the unit for which the POPA is the exclusive representative by adding the following specific

---

1/ At the hearing in this matter and in its post-hearing brief, the Patent Office Professional Association, hereinafter called POPA, made several motions to dismiss the instant petition based on the specificity of the petition, the alleged inadequacy of the posting of the petition, and the failure of the Activity-Petitioner to answer certain POPA written "interrogatories." These motions are hereby denied.

2/ Previously, in this same case, the Regional Administrator amended the POPA's unit recognition by changing the name of the Activity-Petitioner from the United States Patent Office to the United States Patent and Trademark Office.

The POPA is the exclusive representative of a unit of essentially all professional employees at the PTO other than Trademark professionals. In this regard, the record reveals that, when, on September 3, 1965, and pursuant to Executive Order 10988, the POPA was recognized by the PTO as the exclusive representative of the aforementioned unit, no specific exclusions from the unit were set forth other than nonprofessionals and Trademark professionals employed by the PTO, although the parties' most recent negotiated agreement, executed in December 1972, contains a unit description which excludes, in essence, management officials, supervisors and employees engaged in Federal personnel work other than in a purely clerical capacity. Under these circumstances, and inasmuch as PTO's request to amend the POPA's unit recognition is consistent with the specific requirements of Executive Order 11491, as amended, I shall amend the POPA's unit recognition as set forth below.

With respect to the particular employees whose status is in dispute herein, I make the following findings and conclusions: 5/

Jack E. Armore, Fred E. McKelvey, John W. Dewhirst, Fred W. Sherling, Gerald H. Bjorge, Robert D. Edmonds, Henry W. Tarring III, Thomas E. Lynch, Harry I. Moatz, Patent Attorneys, GS-1222-15, 14, and 13, Office of the Solicitor

The PTO asserts that as the above-named employees represent or advise PTO management on various labor relations matters they are management officials and/or confidential employees and should, therefore, be excluded from the POPA's exclusively recognized unit.

5/ Subsequent to the hearing in this matter, the PTO stipulated that Steve L. Mathis, Management Analyst, GS-343-5, Jean E. Burkhart, Program Analyst, GS-345-5, William J. Maykrantz, Information Systems Analyst, GS-301-13 and Franz A. Lancaster, Program Analyst, GS-345-9 did not meet the criteria for exclusion as management officials and/or confidential employees and, therefore, should be included in the POPA's exclusively recognized unit. Under such circumstances, I view the PTO's stipulation as, in effect, a withdrawal of the request for clarification with respect to these employees. Accordingly, I approve the withdrawal request and, therefore, find it unnecessary to make a determination as to these particular employees. Cf. New Jersey Department of Defense, A/SLMR No. 121. Also, during and subsequent to the hearing in this matter, the parties stipulated that Raphael Lupo and Roger Holland are no longer employees of the PTO and, accordingly, I shall make no finding as to their status. Moreover, in their post-hearing briefs, the parties, in essence, noted that Linus Liddle was no longer in the position described in the hearing record due to a promotion to a supervisory position. Accordingly, I find it unnecessary to make a determination with respect to this individual. Finally, the PTO indicated in its post-hearing brief that Jankwell Rossen is no longer in the position described in the hearing record due to reassignment and, accordingly, I shall make no determination as to his status.

The record indicates that while these employees' primary function is to represent the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks in suits where he is a defendant, they may also be assigned to represent management at administrative and judicial hearings involving such matters as performance rating appeals, grievances, adverse personnel actions, and equal employment opportunity matters. However, the evidence establishes that labor relations matters are a minor activity within the Office of the Solicitor and that only two members of the Solicitor's staff, Armore and McKelvey, are involved in labor relations matters on a continuing basis. Thus, Armore is responsible for reviewing proposed adverse personnel actions for legal sufficiency and has the capacity, based on his findings, to make recommendations without prior review by the Solicitor as to the disposition of such proposals, which recommendations generally have been accepted. He has also represented the PTO at adverse personnel action appeal hearings and has reviewed negotiated agreements as to their conformance with law and regulations prior to the signing of such agreements by the Commissioner of Patents and Trademarks. With respect to McKelvey, the record reveals that he is the "general representative" on the PTO's Performance Rating Board of Review. In this capacity, McKelvey is responsible for representing PTO officials at administrative hearings before the aforementioned Board called for the purpose of adjudicating disputed performance evaluations of PTO employees. Further, he serves as a "grievance examiner" to the "Deciding Official" (generally an Assistant Commissioner) under the POPA's negotiated grievance procedure. In this capacity, McKelvey conducts investigations into the circumstances surrounding a grieved act and, based on such investigations, makes recommendations as to the disposition of the grievance to the "Deciding Official" who makes the final decision. In this regard, the record indicates that McKelvey's recommendations as a "grievance examiner" have always been accepted by the "Deciding Official".

Under all of these circumstances, I find that both Armore and McKelvey serve as "representatives of management" and, thus, are, in effect, "agency management" within the meaning of Section 2(f) of the Order, clearly acting on behalf of management on a continuing basis with respect to the implementation of the Activity's labor-management relations program. Accordingly, I shall exclude them from the POPA's unit. 6/

Although the PTO contends that the other Patent Attorneys in dispute herein are also management officials and/or confidential employees because they also represent or advise PTO management on various labor

6/ Cf. United States Department of Justice, Immigration and Naturalization Service, San Francisco District, San Francisco, California, A/SLMR No. 730. In view of this disposition, I find it unnecessary to decide whether Armore and McKelvey are management officials and/or confidential employees.

relations matters, the record reveals that Dewhirst, Tarring, and Moatz have engaged in such conduct infrequently, 7/ and that Sherling, Bjorge, Edmonds, and Lynch have had no involvement in PTO labor relations matters whatsoever. Moreover, the record fails to establish that Dewhirst, Sherling, Bjorge, Edmonds, Tarring, Lynch, or Moatz have the authority to make, or to influence effectively the making of, policy necessary to the PTO with respect to personnel procedures or programs. In these circumstances, I find that the aforementioned Patent Attorneys are neither management officials nor "representatives of management" within the meaning of the Order. 8/ Additionally, based on the aforementioned Patent Attorneys' past sporadic involvement in labor relations matters, and the highly speculative nature of any future involvement in such matters, I find that they are not confidential employees. Accordingly, they should be included in the POPA's exclusively recognized unit. 9/

John R. Bain, Mary E. Turowski, Tyrone B. Ayers, Carolyn A. Bryant, Sharon L. Holmes, Herbert M. Hoop, Louis L. Primovich, Florence R. Stanmore, Carol A. Hearn, and Susan J. Nelms, Management Analysts, GS-343-13, 12, 11, 7 and 5, Office of Management and Organization

The PTO asserts that the above-named employees are management officials and/or confidential employees and should, therefore, be excluded from the POPA's unit.

7/ In this regard, the record indicates that Dewhirst has advised PTO officials on approximately two occasions with respect to the Privacy Act implications of certain negotiated agreement proposals set forth by the POPA; that approximately four years prior to the hearing in this matter Tarring was assigned to represent the PTO at an adverse action appeal before the Civil Service Commission which was withdrawn before the hearing occurred; and that approximately two weeks prior to the hearing in this matter Moatz was assigned to represent the PTO at an equal employment opportunity hearing.
